SPANISH FORTS WERE REDUCED BY YANKEES.

Meagre Details of Battle at Santiago Received From Cuba.

The Only Reports Come From Spanish Sources But Even They Admit the Destruction of Morro Castle and Other Fortifications—Spain Claims the Victory.

MORRO DESTROYED.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Port au Prince, Hayti, June 1, 1:13 p. m—Additional details concerning the reported bombardment of Santiago by the American fleet yesterday were received here this morning.

They came from Spanish sources by the way of Havana. They are consequently considerably predjudiced in favor of the Spanish side.

They say that the Spanish batteries first answered the fire from the American fleet in a lively manner. After twenty minutes firing directed in a superior manner upon the part of the American fleet, the batteries weakened under the concentrated fire of the Americans.

The violent fire upon Morro Castle silenced the guns there and destroyed that fortification. The forts of La Zocapa and Punta Garda fired the last shots.

The Spanish losses must have been considerable. Details of the American losses are lacking. The Spaniards claim to have struck the Americans several times. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the Americans withdrew.

SPAIN CLAIMS VICTORY.

Censored Despatch From Havana Claims that Americans Were Forced to Retire.

Havana, June 1, 1:30 p. m—(Censored.) The following Spanish account of the reported engagement at Santiago has been issued here.

The American fleet, consisting of the Iowa, Massachusetts, Brooklyn, Texas, New Orleans, Marblehead, Minneapolis, another cruiser, in addition to six small vessels, took position Tuesday off the western side of the mouth of Santiago channel.

The first five ships in line opened fire on the Spanish fortifications and the Spanish cruiser Cristobol Colon, which was anchored near Fort Punta Garda where she could be seen from the open sea.

The fire of the American fleet was answered by the Morro Castle and Punta Garda batteries and by the cruiser Cristobol Colon.

The Americans fired seventy shots, of which thirty-two projectiles did not do the least damage. Several fell inside the harbor near the Spanish warships.

The bombardment lasted ninety minutes when the American ships retired with the auxiliary cruiser damaged. Two shells were seen to explode on the Iowa's stern. Flames were soon aboard another cruiser.

Porter Has Despatches.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 1, 11:44 a. m—The torpedo boat Porter has arrived at the Mole of St. Nicholas, presumably with despatches for Washington.

WASHINGTON WAITS.

No Official News Of Any Engagement at Santiago Yet Received.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 1, 9:44 a. m.—The news despatches announcing the bombardment of Santiago de Cuba are generally credited in government circles here. Official despatches confirming them are momentarily expected.

Washington, June 1, 11:45 a. m.—The suspense still continues. No news has yet been received at Washington.

Washington, June 1, 1:48 p. m—President McKinley, Secretary Long and the other officials here are inundated with queries about the reported engagement at Santiago de Cuba. They universally respond discrediting all reports.

LONDON BEWILDERED.

Conflicting Reports of American and Spanish Victories Cabled There Today.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

London, June 1, 1:50 p. m—The public here is bewildered by the conflicting reports of the engagement at Santiago between the American and the Spanish fleet and shore batteries.

One account says: "Commodore Schley, after exploding many mines in the channel, ran the Texas far enough into the harbor to engage and sink the Reina Mercedes."

TUGS BOMBARDED.

They Destroy a Spanish Block House Near Matanzas Monday Without Loss.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Key West, June 1, 1:02 p. m—Reports have reached here of a small engagement between two of the armed tugs of the blockading fleet and a Spanish block house near Matanzas.

The tug Uncas arrived in port this morning. Her officers report the circumstances of the affray which occurred Monday. The Uncas and the tug Leyden participated in the affair.

The bombardment was rather one sided. Every shot from the tugs struck while only one shot was fired from the Spanish blockhouse. The fortification was destroyed and the Spaniards fled.

Rough Riders at Tampa.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Tampa, June 1, 9:17 a. m—Roosevelt's Rough Riders have arrived in good condition at General Shafter's camp. Major General Miles has arrived at headquarters.

Greeted Dr. Mitchell.

Rev. Dr. Charles B. Mitchell, of Minneapolis, Minn., formerly pastor of the First M. E. church, was at the Methodist parsonage yesterday afternoon, where he received a number of his old friends. An informal reception was held in which Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass assisted in receiving. Dr. Mitchell was looking well and expressed much pleasure in being in Plainfield once more and seeing the familiar faces.

TOO ARDENT LOVE OF OSCAR WAS REJECTED

But He Continued His Attentions Till He Was Arrested.

UNDER BONDS TO BE QUIET.

HATTIE STEWART'S FATHER REFUSED VAUGHN IN A STRONG WAY.

Vaughn was in the Good Graces of the Young Lady Till He Served a Sentence in Jail for Stealing a Coat—Then He was Rejected, But Still Continued to Press His Attentions on the Girl and Threatened to 'Do' the Father for Interfering—The Affair Heard Before Justice Mosher Last Night.

Oscar Vaughn, of Harmony street, whose attentions to Miss Hattie Stewart, the daughter of John J. Stewart, of West Front street, have not been reciprocated recently, was arraigned in Justice Mosher's court last night on a charge of annoying the young lady, and threatening to kill her father. Vaughn stoutly denied the charges and tried to prove that the father was the one who had made the threats, but was adjudged guilty and held in the sum of $50 to keep the peace.

Vaughn's attentions to Miss Stewart began a year ago. From the first he called frequently at the house, and often took the young lady out to church and for walks. Everything went along smoothly for the couple until last October, when Vaughn "borrowed" an overcoat, as he termed it, from a party in Morristown and sold it. As a consequence he was arrested and sentenced to sixty days in in the Morris county jail. When he was released in December, Mr. Stewart told Vaughn that his attentions to Miss Stewart must cease. He was also told to keep away from the house.

This it was that brought on all the trouble. Like the true lover Vaughn determined not to let the "old man" stand in the way of his courtship, and repeatedly wrote letters to the girl, breathing out his love for her with all the ardor that a boy of twenty is capable of. These letters were kept and formed no little part in the testimony last night. Miss Hattie, like a good girl, made no reply to these epistles, except once or twice to make an appointment with Oscar to meet her on some corner where she, in company with her mother, would meet him and ask him what he meant by the threats which he was continually making against her father.

One time, it was alleged, Oscar pulled out a pistol and urged the girl to fly with him, proposing to "do" the "old man." An important witness to these threats was Richard Ayres, of Harmony street, a neighbor of Vaughn's, who testified to threats that Oscar had made.

Jed Smalley was one of the witnesses for the defendant. Jed spoke well of the prisoner, and to a question as to whether he would be willing to loan Vaughn $50 said that he had loaned him as much as twenty-five——cents.

Stewart claimed that he was obliged to change his residence from Muhlenberg place to West Front street to be rid of the annoyances of the impatient lover. The letters all began very affectionately by calling her "Dear Hattie" and were mostly of a reproachful nature because of her seeming indifference to his attentions.

Miss Hattie said that at one time she loved Vaughn, but that she no longer cared for him. When he followed her along the street she said she paid no attention to him, and as she passed Stewart said Vaughn would lay back and laugh like a "cheese-cat."

The plaintiff was represented by Counselor W. S. Angleman, and the defendant by Wm. DeMeza.

GAINING A FOOTHOLD.

Religious Revival Being Held by St. Peter's A. M. E. Zion Church.

Sunday a season of missionary revivals opened at the St. Peter's A. M. E. Zion church, colored, on Filmore avenue. The meetings will be continued until June 16th, when a rally will be held in the Cycle Academy on Watchung avenue. Leading colored preachers from all over the land are expected to be present, and one of the biggest revivals among colored people is to be instituted.

It is also expected that His Honor, Mayor Fisk, will be asked to open the meeting.

This is a new church and the people are being backed by Former Councilman Leon Spangenberg, of Netherwood, who is looking after their organization.

Mrs. H. S. Thatcher, of Chicago, is visiting Plainfield relatives.

WOMEN MADE THE MUSIC

Opened the Programme With an Overture Militaire—Miss Luckey Heard in Recitations—Councilman Runyon Sang.

A delightful musicale was given in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church last evening for the benefit of the W. C. T. U. The Ladies' Orchestra was among the entertainers. The orchestra opened the programme with a well-rendered overture, "Militaire." There was a unity in the playing of the different instruments which brought out harmony to its best advantage.

Then followed a recitation by Miss Mary Adelaide Luckey, "Wee Willie Winkie," one of Rudyard Kipling's best. Miss Luckey gave her selection in a decidedly entertaining fashion that showed her ability in the portrayal of the various characters. A violin duet, "Symphonie," was given by Miss E. L. Metson and Mrs. J. Herbert Buckley. A soprano solo, "Forbidden Music," by Miss Katheryn Glenn followed.

Two short selections by the orchestra were followed by Councilman William N. Runyon in one of his famous songs. He was loudly encored and compelled to respond again and again.

Part second opened with the recitation of "The Child Wife," a sketch taken from one of Dicken's novels, by Miss Luckey. The Ladies' Banjo and Guitar Club, largely composed of the members of the orchestra, gave the selection, "On the Mill Dam," in a pleasing manner. After another delightful solo by Miss Glenn, "Could I," the programme closed with a "Grand American Fantasia," by the orchestra. The patriotic music was received with a great outburst of applause.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue church gave a strawberry and ice cream festival last night. The festival was well attended. During the evening Wm. Moore entertained the audience with phonograph selections, which were much enjoyed.

Mrs. Arthur D. Pearson had charge of the strawberries; Mrs. Kriney and Wm. Eakin were in the kitchen handling the cream. Mrs. Fred Wenzel was at the cake table, and the waitresses were Miss Ackerman, Miss Smith, the Misses Foster, Mrs. Edward Brown, Miss Brower and Mrs. Fulton. Mrs. Brouard had charge of the ice cream tickets.

A Better Court Room.

Justice Moffett, who has recently moved his office from over the United States Express Company to another office over Stephenson's restaurant, has the best courtroom in the city, barring the Council chamber. The Justice needed more room and, as this room was vacant, he rented it. He has fitted it up with a railing, inside of which are chairs and a table for the lawyers and reporters, and plenty of room for witnesses and even a jury. The new arrangement meets with universal approval, and as a lawyer said yesterday, he couldn't tell, when he got inside Justice Moffett's court, but what he was in the Court of Common Pleas at Elizabeth.

New Church of Redeemer.

The fair recently held for the benefit of the building fund of the Church of the Redeemer, of the borough, netted the church the neat little sum of $1,000. The purchase price for the lot at the corner of Prospect avenue and Grove street, $3,000, will be paid over to Mr. Peck, of New York. A member of the church told a Press reporter that the church will begin to consider plans for their new edifice, and it is probable that it will be started within a month.

Death of Mrs. Tryon.

The death of Mrs. E. C. Tryon, aged sixty-nine years, occurred yesterday of dropsy at the home of her brother-in-law, W. S. Benton, Babcock building. Mrs. Tryon was formerly of Westfield, but she has resided in this city since last August. The funeral services was held this afternoon at 1 o'clock from the home of Mr. Benton. Interment will be at Ingraham, Clinton county, New York.

Helping the Earnest Workers.

The entertainment recently given at the residence of Mrs. Charles Ames for the benefit of the Boys' Mission Band, "The Earnest Workers," cleared $32.09. At the last regular meeting of the band resolutions were adopted tendering thanks to Mrs. Ames, Mrs. Brooks and the other friends who assisted in making the affair so great a success.

PRESENT MAIL SERVICE.

IMPROVEMENTS THAT POSTMASTER HETFIELD HAS ACCOMPLISHED.

The Plainfield Office is Considered a Model One for a Second Class City, Both in Point of Enterprise and Efficiency.

The postoffice, pending the change in postmasters, is a subject of no little interest to Plainfielders just at the present time.

Yesterday John M. Hetfield, the present postmaster, finished his four-year term as head of Plainfield's office, having taken possession June 1, 1894, although his commission bears the date of May 11th.

It is no easy matter to step into a postoffice, like the one in this city, and handle the reins of authority with the skill and exactness required. The postal laws change every month, and it requires an alert minnd to catch all ends of the business and to keep pace with the changes. The present incumbent, Mr. Hetfield, has made his work a special study and, as a result, the residents of Plainfield can look upon the improvements that are being enjoyed here and know that even first-class city postoffices have not yet received them.

A brief outline of Mr. Hetfield's term and some of the changes that are due to him would not come amiss. In the first place, Mr. Hetfield was instrumental in removing the office from its quarters on East Front street to the present spacious building.

This was done without any added cost to the Government, and the office was fitted up with the latest and most approved postoffice fixtures. So well pleased with the change was Inspector Lewis, who covers this district, that he has said he doesn't expect to see the office moved from its present location, because of its adaptability. The postoffice in Morristown has been patterned from the one in this city.

Mr. Hetfield has increased the carriers' territory so that mail is delivered to all the residents of the city. By a permanent change in the carriers' work, and an economy of time here and there, Mr. Hetfield was able to give the residential portion of the city three deliveries a day, instead of two. The Netherwood office has been abolished and free delivery given to that portion of the city instead. Stamp stations have been established in the eastern and western parts of the city.

A quicker mail system has also been established. Instead of the western mails being sent to New York and several hours being lost in transportation, the pouches are put on the train in this city and go right through to the Pacific slope. The Philadelphia mails have also been changed so that business men can get a letter from that city in the mornings mail and have the answer in the hands of his correspondent in Philadelphia before night.

The Plainfield office is reckoned one of the best second class offices. The salary is $2,800, with appropriations for outside expenses, such as heat, light, clerk hire, etc.

Mr. Hetfield is engaging in the coal business and expects to step from the postmastership into active business life.

The eleven carriers connected with the office are worthy of mention. Each one of them covers from fifteen to twenty miles a day. With the exception of Dunn, who covers Evona, Revelle, who goes to Netherwood, Glaentzer, who delivers in the business part of the city, and Edward Hann, all ride wheels. The first two are mounted and Glaentzer and Hann go on foot.

PROMINENT MAN TO RESIDE HERE.

Police Commissioner H. H. Abernethy Coming to Plainfield.

To the already long list of prominent people in this city there is to be added that of another family, when Plainfielders will welcome in a few days H. H. Abernethy and family, of Jersey City. Mr. Abnerthy is president of Board of Police Commissioners in Jersey City, and still has another year to serve. He is one of Jersey City's well-known and popular citizens. He has two charming daughters who will be an acquisition to Plainfield's society. Mr. Abernethy has leased, through the agency of E. C. Mulford & Son, real estate and insurance brokers, Walter Manning's new and handsome residence on West Seventh street, near Grant avenue, and will take possession June 15th.

To Aid the Red Cross Society.

A porch fair will be given next Saturday afternoon on the piazza of the home of Miss Grace E. Overton, 91 Rockview avenue. It will be for the benefit of the National Red Cross Society. It will be held under the direction of Miss Grace E. Overton and Miss Eleanor T. VanDeventer.

DON'T KILL THE BIRDS.

Chairman Maxson Advises Parents to Caution Their Sons Not to Shoot Birds of Any Kind With Flobert Rifles

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—In view of the slaughter of birds reported by former Councilman Ginna, and also of the fact that several times I have seen boys wandering about among the trees of the city with Flobert rifles and "sling-shots," may I ask you to publish in your paper the enclosed extract from the State game laws. It will be seen that nearly every bird common to this vicinity is protected by the law. English sparrows are an exception, but there are so many other birds that are easily mistaken for sparrows that parents would be wise in forbidding their boys to shoot even sparrows, for in case a boy should shoot one of the protected birds, even by mistake, he would be subject to a fine of $20.

As a member of the executive committee of the Audubon Society, I should be glad to have reported to me at any time any information that may lead to the detection of shooting or poisoning birds. I have arranged with the game warden for the prompt following up of any clues that may be obtained and the prosecution of all persons concerned in the destruction of our song birds.

Sincerely yours,
H. M. Maxson.

Plainfield, May 31, 1898.

"It shall be unlawful to capture, kill or injure or have in possession after the same have been captured, killed or injured, any night hawk, whip poor-will, thrush, meadow lark, martin, barn swallow, wood-pecker, robin, oriole, red or cardinal bird, cedar bird, tanager or other insectivorous bird, under a penalty of twenty dollars for every bird so captured, killed, injured or had in possession; provided, that nothing in this section shall be so construed as to prevent the taking or killing of English sparrows, cranes, hawks, crows, ravens, crow-black-birds, king-fishers or red-winged blackbirds. And it shall be unlawful to rob or destroy the eggs or nests of any wild bird whatever, under a penalty of twenty dollars for each and every nest so robbed or destroyed."

THE BAKER WILL CASE.

Counselor Angleman Explains How Certain Items Were Reduced.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—In an article in your issue of yesterday regarding the action by the Union County Orphans' Court in the matter of the exceptions filed by me to the account of William C. Stanbery, administrator of the James A. Baker estate, it was stated that all the sixteen exceptions were overruled, excepting four on which evidence was taken. That statement was incorrect.

One of the exceptions was to a charge of $54.76, for which the voucher called for only $34.76. W. R. Codington, who appeared for Mr. Stanbery, stated to the court that it was a clerical error. The account, however, was corrected by the surrogate to $34.76, as the exception claimed. This does not look very much as though that exception was overruled.

Another exception was to a claim filed by Mr. Stanbery himself for $198.42 for an alleged deficiency arising on his mortgages. I offered in court the official books of the Sheriff's office, which showed that the deficiency amounted to only $108.82. As Mr. Codington could not explain this discrepancy, the court said that unless some error in the books could be shown the record must be kept as true, and the amount of the claim reduced to the figures as shown by the official books. This reduced Mr. Stanbery's claim $89.60. This does not look very much as though that exception was overruled.

About the same may be said of many other exceptions, but it is needless to cite any other examples.

GAVIN-POWERS NUPTIALS.

A Pretty Church Wedding to Take Place in Roselle This Evening.

This afternoon at 5 o'clock in St. Joseph's church, Roselle, will occur the marriage of Miss Anna Laurentia Powers, of that place, to Joseph P. Gavin, of West End Farm, North Plainfield. A reception will follow at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Gavin has leased the E. J. Howe house on Mountain avenue, and will go to housekeeping at once. It is expected that a large number of guests from Somerset and Union counties will witness the marriage. The bride is well known to many Plainfielders, as is also her husband. They both have best wishes for a happy and prosperous journey through life.

BOROUGH WILL HAVE NEW SCHOOL HOUSE.

Voters Autnorized the Expense Last Night.

WILL COST ABOUT $21,000.

BUILDING WILL BE AT MOUNTAIN AND WATCHUNG AVENUES.

The Structure Will be Modern in All Details and Will Contain Six Class Rooms—Maturing Bonds of $500 Denomination Will be Issued in 1908 and Redeemed by 1914—Two Sites Submitted to the Voters—Considerable Discussion Concerning the Plan, But Only One Objector to Better Facilities.

There were only about seventy-six taxpayers and voters in the borough who thought it of sufficient importance to attend the special school meeting held in the borough public school last evening for the purpose of deciding upon the advisability of erecting another school building in the borough. The matter was settled, however, and North Plainfield is to have another fine school building.

S. St. John McCutchen, president of the School Board, called the meeting to order and Senator Reed was elected chairman. J. K. Arnold was chosen secretary.

Mr. McCutchen stated the object of the meeting after the call was read by Secretary Arnold. He stated that as a result of the meeting held last January, the Board of Education had prepared plans, specifications and tangible facts concerning the probable cost of a new school. It was the desire of the Board to locate a new school apart from the present one and it was deemed wise that it should contain at least six class rooms. Approximately the cost would be $16,000, $17,000 or $18,000.

The Board had considered two properties. One at the southwest corner of Watchung and Summit avenues, 158x150. The other at the corner of Watchung and Mountain avenues. It had since been learned that in both vicinities there was a quantity of water close to surface and that people living in the neighborhood are troubled with water in their cellars. Hence the question of locating at either point. On second consideration it was thought that the ground could be raised and thus the difficulty would be overcome. On the first property an option had been secured at a price of $2,100, and on the second an option for the price of $1,700. In the judgment of the Board one of the two properties should be purchased. An architect had furnished plans of a school for the borough from which a similar building had been erected at Norwich, Conn. It would therefore be no experiment for the borough to erect such a school. Regarding the estimated cost, $21,000. It was thought wise to set that cost at that figure so that everything necessary could be included. The Board would be disappointed if the cost of the building should reach those figures, but is always well to provide for emergencies.

At this time Mr. Woolston offered a motion that the Summit avenue property be purchased.

W. E. Brock said that he did not favor either location, as they were not central enough and were not in a district where children are to be found. He said that the borough does not need a school there and it would be better to place a building near the Park. He stated that the taxes in the borough are high at present and that that they had been raised every year he had lived in the borough. Continuing, he said, "there are better school facilities now in the borough than there were when I went to school, and I think the present facilities are sufficient."

John Valiant said in reply, "I would not like to see a condition of affairs such as were in existence when I went to school, and I would not like to see such retrogression."

Mr. McCutchen offered a motion that the Board be authorized to purchase the Mountain avenue property at a cost not to exceed $1,800. There were 77 votes cast, of which number 43 were in favor of the motion and 33 against. Another resolution was offered by Mr. McCutchen that the Board be authorized to erect a brick building on the property to contain at least six class rooms at a cost not to exceed $18,000. On this resolution there were 76 votes cast, 47 of which were for and 29 against the resolution.

The last resolution offered by Mr. McCutchen was to the effect that for the purpose of erecting the building and furnishing the same bonds in the

POINTS OF INVASION

Expeditions For Porto Rico and Santiago In Preparation.

GEN. BROOKE TO PORTO RICO

It Is Doubtful Which of the Two Will Get Away First—The Exact Point of Embarkation Cannot Be Disclosed—General Shafter Will Command the Troops at Santiago—Will Not Sail for Several Days.

Washington, June 1.—The cabinet has discussed the situation at Santiago and the coming invasion of Porto Rico and Santiago. Both the secretary of the navy and the secretary of war were reticent in regard to the exact movements of the army and navy, but they acknowledged that before the week ended important developments would occur, and that there would be no further delay in regard to the campaign in the West Indies.

The actual embarkation of troops began late yesterday afternoon, according to positive information at the war department. It is not permissible to state the point of departure, and it will be probably a day or two before the expedition actually sails.

Porto Rico to Be Invaded.

It is the general belief in Washington that the real point of invasion at this time is Porto Rico—and there is doubt whether troops will be landed at Santiago before or after the attack on Porto Rico. There are obvious reasons for not resolving this doubt, and the only thing that can be stated positively without impropriety is that both the Porto Rican and the Santiago expeditions will precede the general invasion of Cuba.

While it may be true that a number of troops will be landed at Santiago to assist Commodore Schley, in his attack on the Spanish fleet and the city, it is the opinion of the administration that no time must be lost in seizing and holding Porto Rico. The most significant news from the South, in the opinion of the army officers here, is the announcement that General Lee has gone to Jacksonville, on the east coast of Florida, to establish headquarters there. But one inference can be drawn from this movement, namely, that Jacksonville is to be made a base of operations against Porto Rico. The town is admirably situated for this purpose; in fact it far surpasses Key West as a base for operations even against any of the eastern points of Cuba. The terminus of an excellent railroad system leading from the North and West, with good steamboat connection with New York, with a navigable river, affording a good harbor, and distant only 1,200 miles from San Juan in an air line, Jacksonville leaves little to be desired as a base of military operations. There seems to be little doubt that the plan of campaign contemplates the reduction of Porto Rico.

Gen. Miles's Plans.

The departure of General Miles does not mean that he is going to command in person the army bound either for Santiago or San Juan, but that, as stated in these dispatches last week, he is to organize the expeditions to Porto Rico and Santiago, so as to know exactly what the army needs and prepare for the greater invasion of Cuba.

The preparations for the occupation of Santiago and Porto Rico are nearing completion, and the division for Santiago, which will be under General Shafter, has been selected. Its equipment is complete, and it is not thought there will be any delay in starting.

General Miles will reach Tampa today, where he will confer with General Shafter regarding his campaign, and give him his final instructions. General Brooke will have command of the Porto Rican expedition, and General Lee will go with him, starting from Jacksonville. General Miles's plans are, as stated, to inspect the Santiago command and make his report to the president, after which he will turn his attention to the Porto Rican troops. After these expeditions have been started he will devote his entire attention to thoroughly organizing and quipping the army for the general Cuban invasion.

TO BUILD SHIPS FOR RUSSIA.

Philadelphia, June 1.—From a trustworthy source it was learned to-day that when Charles H. Cramp was in Russia he secured from the czar's government contracts for $15,000,000 for the construction of warships by the William Cramp & Sons' ship and engine building works in this city.

This is the largest foreign contract for war purposes ever secured by an American concern. The contracts call for the construction of one first class battleship, one first class cruiser and ten torpedo boat destroyers.

Building Association Funds Stolen.

Altoona, Pa., June 1.—Samuel H. Tuck, a clerk in the Juanita car shops, and secretary of the Juanita Building Association, was arrested late Monday night on the charge of embezzling $12,000 from the building association. His operations have been going on for several years. Being provided with a book of blank certificates signed by the president, he sold the stock privately and pocketed the proceeds to the amount named. Tuck has heretofore enjoyed a good reputation having been prominent in religious circles.

Women's War Relief Association.

Albany, June 1.—The Women's National War Relief Association, with principal office in New York city, was incorporated yesterday to enable the women of the nation to give expression to their patriotism by furnishing material aid to the men engaged in the military or naval service of the country, to furnish nurses and hospital supplies, reading matter to our soldiers, and to collect money for such purposes.

Delicacies for Wounded.

New York, June 1.—Major George H. Torney, chief surgeon of the hospital ship Relief, has been notified that the National Relief Association of Colonial Dames has donated the sum of $500 for the purchase of delicacies and other food for the wounded on board the Relief and the land hospitals of the army of invasion of Cuba.

WORK OF CONGRESS

Considering the War Revenue Bill—Number of Minor Bills Passed.

Washington, June 1.—The chaplain's opening prayer in the senate yesterday was wholly devoted to a eulogy of Mr. Gladstone—"England's great commoner, great in his gifts and greater in the use he made of them."

The credentials of William B. Sullivan as senator, appointed by the governor of Mississippi to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Walthall, were presented and read, and Mr. Sullivan, escorted by Senator Money, proceeded to the vice president's desk, where he took and subscribed to the oath of office.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Pettigrew (Silver Rep., S. D.), temporarily to increase the army. It provides for the acceptance into the service of the United States of twelve troops of light cavalry, under the command of Edmond F. English of Yankton, S. D., to serve in the Philippine Islands, and appropriates $525,000 to pay for arming and equipping them.

At 12.20 the senate resumed consideration of the war revenue bill. Mr. Mason, Republican of Illinois, gave notice of an amendment which he proposed to offer taxing adulterated flour, and requiring it to be properly branded and labelled when placed on the market for sale, and he made some remarks in advocacy of the amendment, for which he found a precedent in the oleomargarine law.

In the House.

Under unanimous consent bills were passed by the house authorizing the construction of a railroad across Lake St. Francis, Ark.; appropriating $1.9 to pay the bounty from the war of the rebellion due John M. Turner of the 18th Pennsylvania Volunteers.

The House then went into committee of the whole on the bill appropriating $70,000 to pay, for June and July, the crews of certain life saving stations along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, which are to be used in connection with the coast signal service.

WHY PORTO RICO IS WANTED.

Fears That Spain May Back Down Before We Get the Island.

Washington, June 1.—There seems to be little doubt that the first plan of campaign contemplates the reduction of Porto Rico and the president is being strongly urged to begin this movement before any serious attempt is made upon Havana. His advisers point to what they regard as the danger of a retreat on the part of the Spanish government.

It might be possible, it is thought, for the Spanish to assert that they accept in full the demands of this government's ultimatum and withdraw their troops from Cuba. In such case the United States would be placed in the disagreeable position of continuing to make war upon the country which holds out the flag of truce. The dilemma that would confront us in such case would be how to secure Porto Rico without offending against international law, for it can be safely accepted as the truth that the administration is determined that Spanish rule in the western hemisphere shall cease.

Now that General Miles has gone it can be stated that for the last five days he has held frequent conferences with a prominent Porto Rican, thoroughly conversant with the situation in that island and able to give exact information as to the Spanish strength, defences, etc., there.

GETTING INTO SHAPE.

The Astor Battery Completed and Drilling Engaged In.

New York, June 1.—No more recruits are wanted for the Astor Mountain Battery. All of the men needed to man the guns have been sworn in. A few places are being held open for blacksmiths, farriers and other artisans to go with the battery. The commanding officer, Lieut. March, says: "There are several men in the regular service who have applied for transfers to the battery. We may take our harness menders and other artisans from among their number. We have enlisted all of the men we need. And I wish to say right here that they are as fine a body of young men as I have ever seen. I am well pleased with them. In physique and general intelligence they are far above the average. They have evinced a willingness and eagerness to learn their duties that will help me wonderfully."

To Signal News of Fleets.

Washington, June 1.—The navy department yesterday issued a notice regarding the new coast signal system, which has been established on the Atlantic coast. Signal stations, connected wit hthe navy department by direct wire, are in operation between Quoddy Head, Me., and the Mexican border.

Yesterday's notice requests mariners passing any of the stations to signal by international code any news that they may have of sighting suspicious craft or fleets at sea.

A Bill For Colored Soldiers.

Washington, June 1.—Representative Walker has introduced a bill at the instance of William A. Gill of Worcester, an old army officer who had much experience with colored soldiers, proposing to enlist 100,000 negroes as an army of occupation for whatever islands the United States may take possession of during the present war. General Gill believes the American colored soldier far superior to the Spaniards.

Torpedo Boat McKee Passes Trenton.

Trenton, June 1.—The government torpedo boat McKee, which has been ordered from the Norfolk navy yard to Brooklyn, passed through Trenton on Monday evening, between 7 and 8 o'clock, with Commander Knepper and sixteen men aboard. By going through the canal the McKee is saving a considerable distance, and at the same time is not being exposed in the open sea.

Some More War Estimates.

Washington, June 1.—Secretary Alger has sent to Congress, through the secretary of the treasury, the following additional estimates: $1,386,000 for torpedo and $450,000 for gun mortar batteries; $3,200,000 for ordnance stores; $735,000 for armament of fortifications, and $100,000 for contingencies of the army; total, $5,871,000.

Dupont's Hull Damaged.

Mobile, Ala., June 1.—The torpedo boat Dupont arrived here Monday to go into dock for repairs to her hull, she having been in collision with some vessel at Key West. She will be ready to sail in two or three days.

GOMEZ SPURNS OFFER

FREEDOM TO FOLLOW ACT

Gen. Gomez Demands That the Independence of the Republic Be Recognized and Scorns to Accept Freedom Which He Says Has Already Been Obtained After Three Years Fighting—Spain Must Surrender to America and Cuba.

Washington, June 1.—Advices have reached Washington of additional proposals made by the Autonomist government of Cuba to the government of the Cuban republic, by which it is urged that the insurgents join with the Spaniards in repelling the proposed invasion of the United states, in consideration of which peace and freedom are to follow.

The formal proposal at first failed to reach General Gomez, and a second letter, more eagerly praying for peace, was sent from Blanco's commissioners. Both letters came to Gomez, who grew so indignant as to threaten death to any one bearing any further communications of similar character.

General Gomez's reply, dated May 15, 1898, spurns the offer of Blanco, and gives warning that a repetition of the proposition will result in the death of the bearer of the message. General Gomez demands that the independence of the republic of Cuba be recognized, and scorns to accept freedom, which, he says, has already been bravely attained after three years of fighting. The offer of Blanco General Gomez denounces as audacity.

Surrender of Spanish Army.

"Should General Blanco desire to communicate with us in an honorable manner," continues the reply, "he must do so through our foreign office, but it must be with the consideration and understanding that the army of the Cuban republic is in alliance with the United States army, and his communications must have no other object than the surrender of the Spanish army and the evacuation of our shores. A treaty of peace acknowledging the independence of Cuba forever from Spanish rule and the complete evacuation of the Spanish army is all that will be accepted."

Anyone who takes the liberty of speaking to him, he continues, with a view to inducing him to accept such a treaty, "Will be shot within one hour as a traitor."

The reply closes with these words: "The only idea that could prompt Spain to make such a proposition for an alliance between the Spanish army and the Cuban army is the knowledge that she has already lost control of our island, and this is the last step which she is seeking to take before her final fall. She realizes that she must soon surrender her forces before the united armies of the United States and Cuba.

"Free Cuba! Hurrah for the United States! Hurrah for the free Republic of Cuba! Hurrah for all good and true patriots!"

THIEVES IMPERILLED LIVES.

They Stole the Copper and Zinc from Railroad Signal Tower Batteries.

Elizabeth, June 1.—William McCandless, Paul Birtbauer and Frederick Birtbauer, three Elizabeth boys, each twelve years old, were arrested early yesterday morning on a charge of stealing copper and zincs that are connected with the batteries used in operating the signal on the line of the Central Railroad.

The company says that the safety of trains and lives of passengers were imperilled by this act of the boys, and that it was fortunate a disaster had not occurred on the railroad or the Newark Bay bridge through the inability of the automatic signals to work properly.

JENNY LIND'S MAD LOVER DEAD.

Bondout, June 1.—Tobias Van Steenburgh, 70 years old, known throughout the United States as the mad lover of Jennie Lind, the famous singer, died on Monday in a wretched hovel at Glasco, on the old post road leading to the Hudson river at Ulster Landing. Jennie Lind has been dead forty-seven years, but her hermit lover, familiarly known as Boot Van Steenburgh, has all these years cherished her memory, and until his death a faded portrait of the "Swedish Nightingale" hung on the wall in his rude cabin.

FORCES IN SANTIAGO DE CUBA.

Report That General Garcia Has Control of the Province.

Key West, Fla., June 1.—Senor Polo, head of the Cuban junta here, in his advices from General Calixto Garcia, is informed that Garcia is in complete control of the province of Santiago de Cuba. He claims to have from ten to twelve thousand men under him who are well armed, but in need of provisions, clothing and ammunition. Their food consists only of fruit and cereals. It is said that there are no Spanish troops in the vicinity.

Connecticut Naval Reserve.

Hartford, Conn., June 1.—Governor Cooke has received a communication from the secretary of the navy directing him to have the Connecticut Naval Militia rendezvous forthwith.

The governor said that in compliance with the order the Naval Reserves would soon be called out, and that they would probably rendezvous at New Haven.

Emerssohn Reported Safe.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., June 1.—The German newspaper correspondent, Mr. Emerssohn, who escaped after being arrested in Porto Rico, and who was declared a spy by the alcade of Caguas, who placed a price on his head, is reported to have reached Santa Cruz, the Danish island near here, in safety.

Hurrying Manila Expedition.

San Francisco, June 1.—General Merritt has impressed upon the contractors who are to supply the brown duck suits to be worn by the soldiers going to Manila the need of haste in filling the contracts. Double forces of men are now at work completing the suits.

Two Ounces of Blood Daily

Results in a case of severe kidney trouble after only four weeks' treatment.

Mr. Fred Latimer has written us as follows:

THE CAPSULOID COMPANY, UTICA, NEW YORK.

GENTLEMEN:—"Twelve years ago I had my first attack of kidney trouble, following a heavy cold. The pain in the back was severe and there was smothering over the kidneys. I rapidly lost in strength, weight, and color. I got over my acute attack, but my kidneys were left weak and tender. Several small attacks since further weakened my kidneys, and about a year ago I had the worst attack of all. I was confined to my room for eight weeks. My doctors attended me constantly, and by their ability pulled me through; but when I got around again I found my kidneys were in the same old state. A friend of mine, a doctor, told me to try Capsuloids. A month ago I commenced taking them. Now everyone of the bad symptoms have disappeared; the pain is all gone, an I scarcely ever feel any smothering. I have gained three pounds, my appetite has improved, I have lost that sallow kidney complexion, and have a good, healthy, strong appearance with lots of color in my face. Best of all, all the kidney symptoms that so worried me have disappeared. It is hard even for me to believe, but it is perfectly true. I feel thankful to the Capsuloid Company." Gratefully yours,

FRED LATIMER.

PATENT HEAD PROTECTORS.

With Them Miners Can Live a Half Hour in Any Atmosphere.

It is a well-known fact that but for the carbonicoxide in the afterdamp which follows gas explosions in mines the number of miners who might be able to escape would be very largely increased. A helmet has been devised which, it is said, will enable its wearer to live for half an hour in an atmosphere which without it would prove fatal in a few moments. The helmet, which is to be worn over the head and face, is constructed of a special asbestos tanned leather, or asbestos cloth, rendering it proof against fire, heat, steam, boiling water and all poisonous fluids. Sitting close on the shoulders it is held firmly by two straps under the arms. At the back of the helmet is a metal reservoir, from which the wearer is supplied with fresh air at the natural air pressure, and 20 degrees cooler than the outside atmosphere. This tank has a capacity of 100 pounds pressure of compressed air. It is always ready for service, the same pressure of pure air being retained for months. The amount of air in store can be seen on the gauge attached to the reservoir, which can be quickly charged by an air pump. A lever on the top of the reservoir forces the air through the supply tubes to a point inside and directly in front of the mouth and nostrils. The supply, which is under natural air pressure, can be adjusted to the comfort of the wearer of the helmet. The neck gear, which is lined with lamb's wool, has an outlet for the foul air. The two lookouts are constructed of double plates of clear mica, with revolving cleaners, and protected by four cross wires. The side or ear plates have special diaphragms, or sounding disks, which give perfectly distinct hearing. The helmet weighs 6 pounds. It has in front a whistle which is used for signaling.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

AN AUSTRALIAN CONTRIVANCE.

Some men were handling a little piece of wood about the shape of a cigar boat, and four or five inches long, with a long reed kind of tail to it.

Just then a native whirled one over his head at a dangerous gait, and sent it flying out along the level ground. The little nose of it bobbed up and down, and the queer, oblong thing worked its way along, with its tail as a balance, at a fearful rate. It ran along the ground for sixty or seventy yards. Others competed at the game of wichi-wichi, until the winner scored over one hundred yards in the directest line to the target.

Then they swung the hulawalla. This is a fish-shaped piece of thin wood tied to a long string and swung around and around by means of a long stick. The noise of it much resembled the rear of a giant bull enraged. The hulawala is used by the tribesmen to warn off the women during the week of the sacred bora dance. It can be heard three or four miles away, according to the wind and lay of the country. During that week the women must not come in hearing of the dread instrument, or they suffer dire agony to a sure death.—Outing.

Shark Charmers in the Persian Gulf.

In the Persian gulf the divers have a curious way of opening the season. They depend implicitly upon the shark conjurers, and will not descend without their presence. To meet this difficulty the government is obliged to hire the charmers to divert the attention of the sharks from the fleet. As the season approaches, vast numbers of natives gather along the shore and erect huts, and tents and bazaars. At the opportune moment—usually at midnight, so as to reach the oyster banks at sunrise—the fleet, to the number of eighty or a hundred boats, pulls out to sea. Each of these boats carries two divers, a steersman and a shark charmer, and is manned by eight or ten rowers. Other conjurers remain on shore, twisting their bodies and mumbling incantation to divert the sharks. In case a man-eater is perverse enough to disregard the charm and attack a diver an alarm is given, and no other diver will descend on that day. The power of the conjurer is believed to be hereditary, and the efficacy of his incantations to be wholly independent of his religious faith.—Lippincott's Magazine.

What Is Defilement in India.

In every native house in India there is a shrine in which the household gods are placed, like the ikon in a Russian house. The very shadow of a European or native of a different caste passing over these or the culinary utensils of the family is a defilement, but the use of malodorous disinfectants is, in the belief of the people, an outrageous desecration, calculated to call down on the family the wrath of the gods, and only to be atoned by rigid pryaschit (penance) and the administration of the panch gaviya, a foul pill composed of the five products of the cow.—Westminster Review.

A Chance for All.

Mrs. Gabb—Are you goin' to have your darter take music lessons?

Mrs. Gadd—No-o, I guess not. She hain't no ear for music.

Mrs. Gabb—Well, I wouldn't be discouraged at that; mebby she might learn to play classic, anyhow.—New York Weekly.

SUPPLIES FOR GARCIA

CONVOYED BY WARSHIPS

Seven Thousand Rifles, Two Million Rounds of Ammunition, Seventy-five Mules and Twenty-five Horses Carried to the Insurgents—The Expedition Sailed for Guantanamo Under the Command of Colonel Jose Lacret.

Key West, Fla., June 1.—The Plant line steamer Florida returned here yesterday from Cuba, having successfully landed there an important expedition. The Florida has been quarantined, but is expected to be released soon. She landed her party about 25 miles east of Havana and not a shot was fired. Senor Polo, the local delegate of the Cuban junta, has official information that the expedition was successful in accomplishing its object.

The expedition was landed on the coast of Cuba last Thursday morning. When the Florida, escorted by the Osceola, drew up close to the shore at the place selected for the landing, she sent out scouts ashore to see whether all was clear. The scouts were greeted by Generals Feria and Rojas, with about 1,500 armed insurgents. Consequently, far from there being any hostile demonstration upon the part of the Spanish, the landing was in the nature of a triumphal invasion. The Cubans who were in waiting for the party had a band and welcomed the newcomers with national airs.

Unloading the Cargo.

The work of unloading the cargo of the Florida was promptly begun and carried on by 432 men composing the expedition. There was no interruption, and the work was finished on Friday night. While the cargo was being unloaded the Osceola, which is an auxiliary gunboat, with her guns ready for action, scouted about the vicinity, looking for an enemy. But the Spaniards apparently had no suspicion of what was taking place, for not a sign of them could be seen ashore or afloat. So easily was the dangerous mission accomplished that while some members of the party were getting the supplies ashore, others were providing themselves with fruit, sugar and other products of the landing place, a large stock of which was brought back for Key West friends.

Nevertheless, no precautionary measure was neglected, and the moment the work was concluded the Florida and the Osceola slipped away, leaving the insurgents to convey their reinforcements and supplies into the interior, which, it is confidently believed, was done without any casualty. The returning members of the Florida party brought with them several hundred private letters, which, it is understood, give a complete insight into the present conditions prevailing in the blockaded island. The local Cuban colony is elated over the astonishing success of the expedition.

A Strong Expedition.

Nearly 400 men, with a pack train and a large quantity of arms and ammunition, sailed on the Florida, on the night of May 21. These men and the equipment constituted an expedition able to operate independently and to defend itself against any body of Spanish troops which might oppose it. The expedition was under the command of Colonel Jose Lacret, formerly insurgent commander in Matanzas province. He assumed the direction of affairs immediately on the landing of the expedition. Until then General Joaquin Castillo was in control.

In the landing of the expedition the United States army was represented by Captain J. H. Dorst; and Thomas Estrada Palma was represented on the Florida by J. E. Cartaya, who has been the landing agent of nearly every filibustering expedition for more than a year. Messrs. Castillo, Cartaya and Dorst will return to Key West. General Julio Sanquilly, on the way to report to General Maximo Gomez, was also on the boat.

Cubans and Americans.

This is the most powerful anti-Spanish expedition ever sent to Cuba. About 300 of the men are Cubans. The others are Americans. The engineer corps of the expedition is composed entirely of Americans, under Aurelian Ladd, and includes experts in explosives. Three of the four physicians with the party are Americans. The men were dressed in canvas uniforms furnished by the United States government, and the commissary department had rations enough to last fifteen days after the landing. The pack train consisted of seventy-five mules and twenty-five horses. The expedition carried 7,000 rifles and 2,000,000 rounds of ammunition for General Calixto Garcia. General Castillo, General Sanguilly and Colonel Lacret are fine looking men, and the expedition is composed of hardy young fellows who looked fit for anything.

Dismissals Under Civil Service Law.

Washington, June 1.—The United States supreme court yesterday decided that the United States district court for West Virginia had no jurisdiction to sit as a court of equity in the matter of dismissals under the civil service law and reversed the decree of that court, which restrained the collector of internal revenue from removing certain gaugers, storekeepers, etc.

Army Nominations.

Washington, June 1.—The president has sent the following nominations to the senate:

Fourth regiment, United States Volunteer Infantry—To be lieutenant colonel, George Cole of Connecticut; to be surgeon, with rank of major, Joseph M. Henry of Pennsylvania.

Ex-Vice Consul at Cadiz Dead.

Washington, June 1.—The state department has learned through the British consul in charge of the United States consulate at Cadiz that Benjamin G. Haynes, late vice consul of the United States at Cadiz, died there on May 2, after a very short illness.

THE WONDERFUL CADIZ FLEET.

Said That More Than Half of the Vessels Are Unfit for Fighting.

Washington, June 1.—The frequent reports from Spain, through other countries, to the effect that a formidable fleet is preparing at Cadiz to sail for the West Indies in aid of Admiral Cervera causes little apprehension here. Naval officers, through private means of communication, have pretty well satisfied themselves that the Cadiz fleet is a paper fleet. In other words, its offensive power is altogether illusionary. More than half the vessels whose names appear so frequently in the press dispatches as formidable war craft, are of antiquated type and in a state of disorder. The old Numancia is an example. She is rated as a battleship of the first class. In her day she was a battleship, but she has not a turret nor a sponson, and would be little more than sport for a modern ironclad. In addition to being antiquated, most of these vessels are broken down in engines and boilers. There are some vessels, although a very few, at Cadiz, of modern type, but they are not numerous or powerful enough to give our navy any serious concern.

Of course it is not to be understood from this that our naval officers are neglecting to take precautions against surprise at Santiago de Cuba. They have thrown scouts well out to the eastward of Cuba, so that they may receive quick notice if any of the Cadiz fleet was foolish enough to have started a day or two ago for the West Indies, as is now reported from Europe.

SICKNESS ON CRUISER BOSTON.

Hong Kong, June 1.—According to mail advices to the correspondent of the Associated Press from Manila, dated May 27, there is serious sickness on board the United States cruiser Boston. It is believed that the Spaniards poisoned the fish.

Rear Admiral Dewey promised to refrain from bombarding on condition that the Spaniards refrained from strengthening their defences. On Sunday, May 22, they were observed violating the pledge, and Admiral Dewey fired, as a warning. The work was stopped. Nobody was hurt.

Numerous dispatches congratulating Admiral Dewey have miscarried.

The anti-British demonstrations at Manila are intensifying. The queen's portraits are insulted and all the foreigners are preparing to take refuge at Cavite.

MR. BRYAN DETERMINED TO FIGHT.

The Colonelcy of a Nebraska Regiment Offered to Him.

Lincoln, Neb., June 1.—W. J. Bryan yesterday received a message from Governor Stephens of Missouri offering him the colonelcy of the new Missouri regiment now organizing in that state. Bryan did not accept at once, but telegraphed to Missouri's governor that he could not ask for a better command than one composed of men of the well known valor of Missourians, but that he was not yet at liberty to accept his offer.

Mr. Bryan said privately that he still had hopes of being placed in command of the regiment he had organized, and, as it was through his personal efforts the silver battalion had been placed in the field, his first duty lay in that direction. "In any event," he added, "I propose to serve my country in spite of any injustice from official sources."

SPANISH SCOUT RETURNS.

The Mysterious Steamer That the Bancroft Chased Again Sighted.

Key West, June 1.—Within the past twenty-four hours the same mysterious Spanish scout steamer which was pursued by the Bancroft was seen twenty miles south of Rebecca Light.

The scout has not been close enough to learn what ships are here. A sharp lookout is being kept up for her.

Purchased by Great Britain.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 1.—The British government has purchased in the United States, for delivery here, 120,000 barrels of flour for the army and navy stores. Part of the order was placed with the Consolidated Milling Company of Minneapolis. The flour will be transported here by the Atlas Steamship Company.

Spain Not Seeking Intervention.

Madrid, June 1.—In the cortes Monday evening Premier Sagasta declared that no negotiations whatever were on foot with any power looking to the conclusion of peace or interference with the United States in behalf of Spain.

WAR RUMBLINGS.

There are 8,400 troops at San Francisco in readiness for the second and third Philippine expeditions.

The cruiser Philadelphia will be ready to go into commission at Mare Island navy yard in two weeks.

The government has stopped buying mules in St. Louis, 12,000 having already been acquired at about $100 apiece.

"Lew" Wallace, author of "Ben Hur," will doubtless be commissioned by the president as a major general of volunteers.

A man supposed to be a spy is in jail at Fort Jackson. He attempted to run the guard at the fort and was shot and seriously wounded.

It was reported at Gibraltar that the departure of Admiral Camara's fleet for Cadiz had been delayed by the discovery of defects in the torpedo boats.

An official dispatch from Havana says that two American correspondents from Key West, named Whigham and Robinson, have been arrested near Matanzas.

It was allowed to be stated yesterday from Key West that the Red Cross steamer State of Texas, with food on board, left Key West on May 21, ten days ago, for Cuba.

The cowboy regiment organized by Colonel Wood and Colonel Roosevelt has been ordered from San Antonio to Tampa in all haste, and it is understood that the regiment will go to Santiago.

The paymaster's department issued orders yesterday to pay the soldiers destined for Cuba and Porto Rico one month's salary in advance. This will be paid them as they go on the transports. The soldiers intended for the Philippines will also be paid four weeks in advance. This will require more than $1,000,000.

Rich Young British Journalists.

Two youths in England have shown themselves able to do what few old heads in America can accomplish—make money in journalism. Over here we can give points to all the earth on how to lose money in a newspaper.

The two young men are both in journalism in London. One of them is Arthur Pearson, proprietor of Pearson's Weekly. He was naturally attracted to newspaper work and before he was 20 was an experienced journalist of his particular type, rather the gossipy, social and light literature type. He was not content to remain a mere writer, however, but quickly launched into enterprises of his own. They were almost universally successful. He got the largest returns from his weekly, which was somewhat of the style of the New York Ledger, that mine of wealth to Robert Bonner. Pearson is 32 years old.

The other gilt edged journalist is Alfred Charles Harmsworth, the man who got rich enough in journalism to buy and equip the Windward for the Jackson expedition, and after that was finished turn the vessel over as a present to Peary. It must be said, however, that neither Pearson nor Harmsworth got his money out of ordinary newspaper business. Harmsworth, too, founded a weekly paper, which became popular among the people and coined him thousands. Then he bought, first, the London Evening News and next founded The Daily Mail, both now through his management immensely valuable properties. After all, though, Harmsworth owes his success in daily journalism to his adaptation of the American idea of brisk, crisp, short editorials and reviews and condensed news matter. Harmsworth is 33.

Patriot Pepperburg.

Some years ago there came to this country from Warsaw, Poland, a Hebrew youth, by name Julius Pepperburg. He had the acumen and energy of his race. Taking advantage of the opportunities that lie all around in our happy land for those who have eyes and brains to see them and the hustle to grasp them, Pepperburg went on and became prosperous. He settled at length in Plattsmouth, Neb., there to enjoy the fruits of his years of work. Pepperburg was not like hundreds of rich native American men and women who never earned a dollar themselves, but who spend in lavish living in Europe the incomes their humble, hardworking ancestors earned in our republic. Pepperburg loved his adopted country more than most native Americans love the land where they were born. He loves it because he knows, when all is said and done, it is the country of the people.

The war with Spain came on. Pepperburg could not go and fight, for he was 50 years old and would not be accepted. So he drew a check for $200 and sent it to President McKinley. In the accompanying letter he said that since he owed his happiness and prosperity to the institutions of this free country he wanted to help the government in the present crisis, therefore he inclosed the check, to be used in the national defenses. The letter was signed "Your Jewish fellow citizen."

Loyal Pepperburg!

GUNS OF THE IOWA AND VIZCAYA.

A comparison of the fighting implements of Admiral Sampson's best ship, the Iowa, and the most powerful member of Admiral Cervera's fleet is favorable to the former. Of big guns the Iowa carries four 12-inch and eight 8-inch, while the Vizcaya has two 11-inch and ten 5.5-inch guns.

WHERE'S THE ELUSIVE FLEET?

Oh where! oh where is the Spanish fleet?
Where oh where can it be?
It's here, and there, and it's everywhere.
Just like poor Paddy's flea.

One day it's after the Oregon.
The next at Martinique.
Again it's off for the Philippines
Our navy's pride to seek.

Then safe and sound it is "bottled up"
In Santiago Bay;
But ere the cork has been driven in
It swiftly sails away.

Our Sampson, strong, is up and aloft
Where naught escapes his eye;
But he who'll grapple this slippery fleet
Must certainly be S—l—y.

Perchance 'tis Neptune's will o' the wisp,
And but a phantom fleet:
The wraith of the lost Armada may
Have drifted from its beat.

—Washington G. Park.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News, but Just as Interesting.

Last Monday Captain S. C. Peck displayed three old war flags in front of his handsome residence on West Front street. Mr. Peck only displays the flags Memorial Day from the fact that they are so old and are now ready to fall to pieces. He had the flags in the service when he was in the south during the war and he is very proud of them. They were greatly admired by all who saw them Monday.

It is not often that such sacrifices are made for the benefit of a community as are about to be undergone at Lincoln. Si Drake's blond whiskers are almost as famous the hustler himself, and not a few of a scientific turn of mind insist that the doughty little Mayor's energy and getthereitiveness is due to the bristling quality of his birsute growth, but notwithstanding the great personal pride which the Mayor takes in his nicely cultured whiskers he intends to forego whatever sentiment there is in their possession and have them actual cut off. The Mayor's friends will wonder thereat, so an explanation is necessary. For several weeks the Mayor has been trying to get a barber to locate in Lincoln, but it is only recently that he has secured such a one as he wants. As Silas believes in the eternal fitness of things this tonsorial artist is a woman. Everyone in the whole world knows—thanks to the Mayor's clever advertising ability—that Lincoln is the one original woman's town of America. It is especially fitting, then, that it should have a woman barber as well as women law-makers. Silas believes in encouraging every industrtry that locates in Lincoln and the only way he sees to help the woman barber is to have his whiskers cut off, and so off they are going. It will be a great sacrifice for Si, but nevertheless an exploit of the fact that even whiskers do not stand in the way of his enterprise. When the wintry winds whistle across the undulating land from the Watchung spur to Lincoln's lovely plateau they will no longer toy with Silas' bristling whiskers.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, June 1.—One of the most successful festivals of the Ladies' Circle of the Baptist church was held Monday afternoon and evening. Through the untiring efforts of the president, with her corps of excellent workers, over fifty quarts of ice cream were sold, beside a large crate of strawberries. The Junior Christian Endeavor Society did a large business with boutenerres and a candy stand.

Mrs. J. S. Braker will start Thursday to visit friends in Philadelphia and at her home in Lewisburg, Pa., after which she will return to set sail with her husband from Boston on the Cunard steamship Catalonia to attend the third annual convention of the World's Sunday-school Association to be held in Exeter Hall, London. Rev. Mr. Braker will visit France, Belgium, Switzerland and Germany while abroad.

J. O. Wilson, formerly of Cincinnati, O., with his family will occupy the parsonage during June, July and August. He has charge of the Bible class of the Sunday-school of the Baptist church. It may be that he will permanently settle in the village. Mr. Wilson was born in Scotch Plains and at the 150th anniversary of the church last Summer gave one of the best reminiscent addresses of the day.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, June 1—The residents of Mountainside are very much displeased with the Board of Education for not putting the flag out Decoration Day. The flag flies to the breeze every school day but on other days it is taken in out of sight.

There will be communion services in the Garwood chapel Saturday afternoon, at which time a number of infants will be christened and persons admitted to the church by profession of faith.

Mrs. H. T. Trenchard, of South Orange, has been spending several days with her son, N. H. Trenchard, of Broad street. She was accompanied by Mrs. A. M. Trenchard.

Miss Carrie Jones, of New York, came to Westfield Monday to see her brother, who plays with the Volnnteer A. A. baseball team, play against the Westfield Club team.

Mr. and Mrs. William Earle, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. George N. Williams for several weeks, left this morning for their home at Allegany, Pa.

A. L. Alpers will entertain the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church at his home on Kimball avenue Friday evening.

A number of children from the New York Hospital and the City Mission were brought to the Children's Country Home this morning.

Friday afternoon is the date of the ice-cream festival to be given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church.

A. H. Barnett, of this town, who won the Milburn road race in 1894, went to Milburn Monday to witness the race.

The Board of Health meets Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock and the Township Committee at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Ferris is still confined to her home by a severe illness.

LINCOLN.

(Special Correspondence to the Daily Press)

Lincoln, June 1—A very interesting game of baseball was played here Monday between a picked nine, composed of Bound Brook fellows. Five innings were played, which resulted in a victory for the home team by the score of 16 to 5. The playing of Frank Cushing and the strong batting of John Maloney were features of the game.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Roy have rented the large house on West Lincoln Boulevard, and intend keeping a first-class boarding house, which is much needed in this town at present.

Mrs. Joseph Mettler, a former resident of Lincoln, but now of Plainfield, spent Memorial Day with Mrs. Arthur Roy on Lincoln Heights.

TO
A DREAM

try Rowley's Soda. A new and perfectly appointed fountain enables us to make even better soda than in the past, though our beverages have always been of rare excellence. The new fountain has unusual ice capacity which insures cold soda. Then, we use the finest fruit juices and plenty of them; our soda is charged just right to be sparkling and refreshing; we are cranks in the matter of purity and cleanliness. You'll need no second urging after trying the soda once.

THE PROFESSIONAL GAZER.

Her Peculiar Occupation and How Her Mission is Accomplished.

Although the New York "shop girl" is the most conspicuous employe in the big retail stores, there are in each one a dozen women employed for special and peculiar services whose salaries would easily pay the wages of more than 100 girls who stand behind the counters, this being exclusive of the floor walkers and regular heads of departments.

First, there is the buyer, who is a person of distinction among the employes, and who is treated with marked consideration by her employers. She receives a salary varying from $1,000 to $5,000 a year, according to her experience and proved ability. She must be a woman of tact, of taste, and of discrimination in selecting her goods, and, what is even more important, she must possess the business sense that will enable her to gauge the public demand for certain articles and the trend of coming fashions and fancies, as well as those that already exist.

She has to be able to foresee how high a certain rage will run, when it will probably come to an end and what amount of goods they will be able to work off on their trade while it lasts. Most stores now employ about an equal number of men and women as buyers. The latter purchase exclusively infants' wardrobes, lingerie and all the dainty and delicate wares that are essentially feminine.

A number of the stores have had their best women buyers abroad recently selecting the most attracting things that France, Belgium, Germany, and Great Britain manufacture for the spring trade. Shopping all over Europe with the purse of a millionaire business in one's hand is a thought to breed envy in the breast of the ordinary woman. The responsibility attendant upon this wholesale buying expedition, however, takes the edge off the pleasure to some extent, and causes the buyer to earn every cent of the goodly salary and expenses paid out for her.

Then there is the detective in the store who makes from $25 to $50 per week. She has to be a woman of varied resources and talents and unerring instincts, carrying with her an accurate estimate of everything in the store, its arrangement and value, being ever on the alert and yet seemingly unconscious of what is going on.

Another kind of a detective is the woman who is known as the "shopper," and who, in the guise of a wealthy customer, goes about the rival stores and observes the details of their current business, the lines upon which they are making special runs, their qualities, prices and other facts which may be of use to her employers. As well dressed customers with well filled purses are often hard to please, she arouses no suspicion by seeming to be very fastidious, plying the clerks with questions and demanding to see the whole stock before making a selection.

A part of the shopper's duty consists in visiting a fashionable modiste, finding out what gowns and wraps are being made for prominent society women and perhaps getting a glimpse of some exclusive designs. She has the privilege of ordering, being measured and fitted for an elegant gown for herself; but, alas! that is the limit of her glory. It must straightway find its way to the house that employs her, where it serves for a model, which is speedily reproduced in a dozen gowns for their own trade.

She does get something more than this empty satisfaction out of her work, however, for she is provided with a home in a suitably fashionable district while posing as a swell and ordering her wares to be sent to her, and she is also fitted out with the finest of underwear in order that she may appear to be of the proper class and condition in life when she is being fitted. Her salary is about the same as that of a good detective.

An even more peculiar occupation is that of the "window gazer." She is not an employe of the high-class stores, but of their more lowly rivals, who have to make up for their disadvantages of location, etc., by resorting to all kinds of schemes to attract customers. Their windows having been arranged so as to display their best wares and most fetching bargains to the utmost, the "window gazer" begins her work.

She looks like an ordinary well-to-do shopper, and makes her way along the street in an inconspicous manner until she gets in front of the store by which she is employed. Then she stops so suddenly that the crowd behind her stops also. She lets her gaze wander, as if irresistibly, toward the window. Other gazes follow her. She walks slowly up to the window and fastens her eyes upon its contents still more intently.

A few others do likewise, and the nucleus of a crowd is formed which grows until the pavement is blockaded and not a soul but the window gazer knows what he or she is looking at. But they are all trying to find out, and in the meantime they have noticed in front of what store they are, and several have seen things in the window that draw them inside, and the "window gazer's" mission is accomplished.

Dainty Photograph Frame.

Photograph frames are as popular as ever, and although the silver and gold affairs have been relegated to the background, the handsomely embroidered ones on white linen are an excellent substitute and also quite a novelty.

These frames are made square or round and in all manner of shapes, sometimes with places for three or four photographs. The decorations are very artistic, a dainty design for a young girl's picture being a wreath of flowers tied with a true lovers' knot.

Shirt Waists in Lawn.

Shirt waists continue to grow in popularity and there will be no excuse for anybody not having an original style this summer. The variety in the accessories which accompany the shirt waist are also numberless, collars, neckties, belts and studs all playing an important part in the season's wardrobe.

A pretty model suitable for plain or figured lawn, is opened at the neck to show a shirt front of white pique, the latter material also forming the revers. Groups of tucks form the trimming on the blouse and also decorate the regulation shirt sleeve. A narrow belt and soft lace tie are worn with this waist.

Silks in Tempting Array.

A prominent feature of fashion as regards fabrics is among silks, which will be more universally worn than they have been in many seasons; and the assuring element on this side of fashion is the fact that a remarkably good quality can now be purchased at an astonishingly low price—for instance, a very pretty striped or checked taffeta at fifty-nine and sixty-nine cents a yard. A silk gown is a necessity in any sort of fashionable dressing, and in these times of wonderfully low prices the number is not necessarily limited to one or two. Between the elegant brocades and the simple inexpensive foulards, Indias, and surahs, there is a great variety of silks most tempting and beautiful, which cannot fail to please every taste and accommodate every purse. In general favor they take precedence over the very fashionable grenadines, etamines, and other transparent textiles, for the reason that these tempting goods require the price of a second dress, owing to the fact that they require a handsome silk lining.

Stylish Waist for Cool Days.

A very striking and effective model, especially designed for wear on cool days has the fashionable shield effect in front opening at the top to form a small square yoke. The material composing the corsage and skirt is a crepe of a charming shade of geranium red, which color has the combined effect of being both stylish and cool looking.

The front piece which comes from the shoulders and forms a narrow panel down the front, is bordered with two finely pleated ruffles of black chiffon. The yoke is outlined with cream colored insertion coming to a point in front.

Sleeves of crepon are shirred and come to a point over the hand.

Fine White Muslin Frocks.

All white muslin dresses will be especially in favor the coming summer and very charming these gowns are, ruched, ruffled, flounced or tucked with rows of insertion between. The skirts of the gowns are usually gored, the waists are simple and the sleeves quite small. Slips of silk are generally worn beneath them.

A very lovely model in fine white muslin has the skirt made very simply over a silk under skirt. A ruche, of the material borders the foot of the skirt and three narrow ruches form the sole trimming of the bloused waist. The sleeves are shirred over a fine net foundation and have tiny caps over them bordered with a ruche.

Lace Very Popular.

For millinery uses, for trimming handsome summer gowns, capes, and fichus, great use will be made of point de Venise laces. Some of the patterns are of a substantial quality, resembling guipure, and come in widths from two and one-half to ten inches. There are also edgings with insertions to correspond. Nearly all of the patterns show a purled edge, and some are finished with an entre deux or heading through which narrow ribbon may be threaded.

Fashion's Fads.

A pretty morning hat is a black sailor of rough straw with a band of burnt orange satin ribbon, which finishes in a spiral of the same. Three black spangled quills complete the trimming.

A hat that milliners say will be much worn is of green soft silk, a number of puff ruffles forming the crown and brim and trimmed at the side with a spiral puff and a large white aigrette.

The braided black straw plateau bent into turban shape, high at one side and the brim finished with large jet catashuns, is another of the pretty designs in walking hats.

Labouring men have 312 working days a year in Hungary, 293 in the United States, 278 in England, and 267 in Russia.

Wien. Im ersten Quartal 1898 wurden bei den städtischen Steuerabtheilungen insgesammt 16,245,610 Gulden an Steuern eingezahlt; hiervon entfallen auf landesfürstliche Steuern 8,805,877 Gulden, Landesumlagen 1,809,450 Gulden, städtische Umlagen 4,989,211 Gulden, Gewölbwachebeiträge 15,505 Gulden, Handelskammerbeiträge 51,937 Gulden, Gewerbeschulbeiträge 74,969 Gulden. Gegen die gleiche Periode des Vorjahres ergibt sich eine Zunahme der Steuereingänge um 1,994,421 Gulden.—Im besten Mannesalter starb hier der frühere liberale Bürgermeister Dr. Raimund Grübl.

Bozen. In Finete bei Raffian scheuten die Pferde eines Lohnwagens vor einer Prozession und rasten in die Menschenmenge, welcher sich eine furchtbare Panik bemächtigte. Drei Frauen wurden lebensgefährlich, zahlreiche Personen, darunter Kinder, leicht verletzt. Eine Frau ist den erlittenen Verletzungen erlegen.

Graz. Am Plabutsch erfolgte dieser Tage ein Felssturz. Ueber 3,000,000 Kubikmeter stürzten donnernd die Wand herab. Das Plateau des Berges zeigte bei Besichtigung einen 80 Meter langen und mehrere Meter breiten Riß, so daß bei nasser Witterung neuerliche, für die Gegend sehr verhängnißvolle Abstürze zu befürchten sind.

Kammer. Dieser Tage kam ein junger Mann Namens Leo Freundlich hierher, um Holzeinkäufe zu besorgen. Er miethete für eine selbe Stunde ein Boot, das man später leer auf dem See fand. Der junge Mann war verschwunden. Man glaubt, daß derselbe vom Herzschlage getroffen wurde und in den See stürzte.

Laibach. Hier standen wegen der antideutschen Exzesse vom März d. J. 18 Rädelsführer unter der Anklage des Landfriedensbruches. Obgleich die Verhandlung die Schuld der meisten ergab und daher eine strenge Strafe erwartet wurde, erkannte das Gericht doch nur für sieben Angeklagte auf auffallend milde Strafen und sprach die übrigen elf sogar frei.

Schweiz.

Bern. Das Volk des Kantons Bern hat das Kantonalbankgesetz mit 39,243 gegen 15,141, das Gesetz über Beschränkung der bürgerlichen Rechte bei fruchtloser Auspfändung mit 32,887 gegen 22,487, das Vormundschaftsgesetz mit 39,427 gegen 14,943 Stimmen angenommen. Etwa 67,000 Bürger haben nicht gestimmt.—Ein Einbaum aus keltischer Zeit ist im Bielersee gefunden und im Museum zu Biel untergebracht worden.

Zürich. Letzthin wurde in der Stadt Winterthur vorgeschlagen, zur Vorbereitung für das Züricher Polytechnikum auch die Realgymnasien den Mädchen zu öffnen. Mit 16 gegen 15 Stimmen wurde aber der Antrag abgelehnt, man fand, es genüge, daß in Winterthur den Mädchen das Literargymnasium offenstehe.

Glarus. Vom 15. Juni bis 15. September wird über die neu gebaute Klausenstraße ein Postkurs geführt. Es ist ein vier- bis fünfsitziger Wagen in Aussicht genommen. Die Post geht um 9 Uhr 45 Minuten von Linththal ab und kommt um 1 Uhr 5 Minuten in Urnerboden (Uri) an. Um 4 Uhr 20 Minuten geht die Post wieder von Urnerboden ab und kommt um 6 Uhr 15 Minuten in Linththal an.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

[OFFICIAL.]

Pursuant to the statute, the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, for the year commencing on Wednesday, May 11, 1898, met at the Court House, Elizabeth, on the said date, at 11 o'clock a. m.

The Board was called to order by S. Rusling Ryno, Clerk of the last Board, who administered the oath to the new members.

The roll was called by cities and townships, as follows, viz:

Clark Township—Benjamin King.
Cranford Township—E. K. Adams.
Elizabeth City—W. H. Hulskamper.
" " —Frederick Miller.
" " —Jacob Brucklacher.
" " —Joseph McCandless.
Fanwood Township—John Robison.
Linden " —F. T. Higgins.
New Providence Township—John F. Wahl.
Plainfield City—J. Frank Hubbard.
" " —John H. Tier.
Rahway " —Christian Ehrlich.
" " —John Farrell.
Springfield Township—J. Martin Roll.
Union Township—James A. Burnett.
Summit " —Wm. H. Swain.
Westfield " —M. M. Scudder.

All members were present except Freeholder Swain—1.

The clerk stated that the first business would be the election of Director and called for nominations.

Freeholder Farrell nominated J. Frank Hubbard for Director, which was seconded by Freeholder Brucklacher; there were no other nominations.

Freeholder Farrell moved that as there was but one nominee the election be made unanimous and that the clerk cast the ballot, which was so ordered.

The clerk cast the ballot for J. Frank Hubbard for Director, who was thereupon declared elected as Director of the Board for the legal term.

Director Hubbard was escorted to the chair by the tellers and briefly thanked the Board for the honor which had again been conferred upon him.

Freeholder Farrell presented the following resolution:

Resolved, That the salary of the clerk be fixed at three hundred dollars per annum.

Freeholder Miller moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call, it was unanimously adopted.

Freeholder Farrell nominated S. Rusling Ryno for Clerk, which was seconded by Freeholder Brucklacher; There were no other nominations.

Freeholder Robison moved that as there was but one nominee, that the Director cast the ballot, which was so ordered.

The Director cast the ballot for S. Rusling Ryno for Clerk, who was thereupon declared elected as Clerk of the Board for the legal term.

The Clerk thanked the Board for his election and was at once sworn in by the Director.

Freeholder Robison presented the following resolution, viz.:

Resolved, That the salary of the County Attorney be fixed at three hundred dollars ($300) per annum.

Freeholder Miller moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

Freeholder Farrell nominated W. R. Codington for county attorney, which was seconded by Freeholder Brucklacher; there were no other nominations.

Freeholder Roll moved that as there was but one nominee, that the clerk cast the ballot, which was so ordered.

The clerk cast the ballot for W. R Codington for county attorney, who was thereupon declared elected for the legal term.

On motion, the director requested the tellers to notify Mr. Codington of his election and bring him before the Board.

The tellers shortly appeared with Mr. Codington, who, in a few remarks, referred to his pleasant associations with the members of the Board in the past, and thanked them for the honor they had again placed upon him.

Freeholder Miller presented the following resolution, viz.:

Resolved, That the rules of order governing the last Board, be adopted as the rules of this Board.

On motion of Freeholder Robison, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

Freeholder King presented the following resolution:

Resolved, That the regular meetings of this Board be held on the first Thursday of each month at 2:30 p. m.

On motion of Freeholder Brucklacher, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

Freeholder Hulskamper presented the following resolution:

Resolved, That the proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders be published in the following papers, at the compensation of $100 per annum each, viz:

City of Plainfield — Courier News, Daily Press.

City of Rahway—New Jersey Advocate, Union Democrat.

Summit Township—Summit Herald, Summit Record.

Westfield Township — Westfield Leader, Union County Standard.

City of Elizabeth—Elizabeth Daily Journal, Daily Leader, Freie Press, New Jersey Contractor

Cranford Township — Cranford Chronicle

New Providence Township — Passaic Valley News

Freeholder Miller moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

Resolved, That when this Board adjourns, it stands adjourned to meet on Thursday, May 19, 1898, at 2:30 p. m.

On motion of Freeholder Farrell, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

Freeholder Farrell presented the following resolution, viz:

Whereas, By reason of illness, Freeholder Swain is unable to be present today, it is

Resolved, That we tender him our sincere wishes for his speedy restoration to his usual good health.

On motion of Freeholder Robison the resolution was unanimously adopted, and the Clerk directed to send a copy of the same to Mr. Swain.

The director announced the appointment of the committee on appropriations, as follows: viz: Freeholders Farrell, Roll, Hulskamper, Brucklacehr, Burnett.

Freeholder Burnett presented the following resolution:

Resolved, That the director be, and is, hereby constituted a member of all committees.

On motion of Freeholder King, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

Freeholder Roll moved te adjourn, which was carried.

The director declared the board adjourned until Thursday, May 19, 1898, at 2:30 p. m.

S. Rusling Ryno, Clerk.

Utter Failure.

"Mr. Billings spoke of you last evening as such a womanly woman," said the brunette one.

The blond one burst into tears. "To think," she sobbed, "that I have been at the forefront of all the intellectual movements for the betterment of woman's lot for more than a year, only to get maligned in that fashion."

Where Was Solomon?

Johnnie—Papa, is mamma the better half of you?

Father—Yes, my son, that's the way they put it.

J.—And are all the wives the better half of their husbands?

F.—Certainly, my son.

A Readjustment.

"But, Fred, are you really running behind so much?"

"Well, I keep my clothes in the drawer of my desk, and my unpaid bills in the wardrobe."—Life.

Mr. Calipers—"Yes, there are no flies on him then."

KEY TO THE BOX.

"What would you do" said the little key,
To the teak-wood box, except for me?"

The teak-wood box gave a gentle creak
To the little key; but it did not speak.

"I believe, said the key, "that I will hide
In the crack, down there by the chimney side,

"Just so this proud old box may see How little it's worth except for me."

It was long, long afterward, in the crack
They found the key, and they brought it back,

And it said, as it chuckled and laughed to itself,
"Now I'll be good to the box on the shelf."

But the little key stopped with a shiver and shock:
For there was a bright new key in the lock.

And the old box said: "I am sorry, you see:
But the place is filled, my poor little key."

AN ELEPHANT'S CUNNING.

This is a good story of an elephant's intelligence. The animal in question was a mere baby when he was sent by an Indian prince to England as a present for Queen Victoria.

He was shipped as a deck passenger by one of the Indian mail steamers from Bombay, and as he had but attained the height of a well-grown calf, and was always most docile and tractable, he was permitted to have the run of the decks for an hour or two every morning when the state of the weather permitted. By the sailors he was dubbed the "Bos'un's mate," owing to the penchant he had for carefully picking up every loose coil of rope that he could find and then throwing it over the side, being, as Jack said, "as bad as a naval lieutenant for keeping the decks tidy."

Among other acquaintances that he formed was that of the ship's baker, whose address he soon discovered to be the place of origin of all the sweet dainties with which he was petted. Here he took to making a regular morning call for something sweet for tiffin, and was generally regaled with a stale tart or piece of cake; but, upon calling one morning and extending his trunk, as usual, he found that his visit was unwelcome, as something had occurred to irritate the baker, and, instead of the cake, he received a blow on his trunk with the rolling pin.

The blow was not severe, but the Bo'sun turned tail and went trumpeting up the deck, where he took a post that would enable him to watch for his assailant. Before long he saw the baker leave his "shop," and mischief being his object rather than malice, he promptly marched down, and, with several vigorous sweeps of his trunk he swept all the shelves in the bakery clear, until loaves, tarts, cakes, patty pans and cake tins lay in confusion on the deck. This achieved, he bolted like any school boy, and was locked up in disgrace; but, upon the circumstances being known, the popular verdict was in his favor, and he was allowed his liberty as before.

Bo'sun marched down instanter to the baker, and never failed from that day to exact tribute, which was regularly paid, and from that time he and his opponent became fast friends.—Golden Penny.

"Growing Up" in Japan.

When a Japanese boy is three years old, he begins to wear the obi, a girdle, three inches wide, which confines the kimono, a loose sort of garment, and the main part of the Japanese national dress, for both children and grown people. The putting on of the obi is the occasion of a family feast; and a very important garment it is, for it corresponds to pockets in an American boy's trousers. The front part of the kimono, above the obi, is also used as a pocket; and the long, wide sleeves, sewed up at the lower end, make two very big ones.

When fifteen years old, the boy becomes of age, and a third family festival occurs. Another name is given him, and his hair is allowed to grow all over the head, like a man's. Previous to this time the head is shaved so as to allow the hair to grow only in spots or tufts, the place of the tufts varying up to the age of ten, when the crown only is shaved. At this festival celebrating his majority the manner of friends and relatives changes toward him, and while the day before he was still addressed as a child, now he is addressed in the ceremonious forms required by Japanese etiquette. The title of respect, san, is henceforth affixed to his name, even by those nearest and dearest. These titles, san, sama, always follow the name, and are never prefixed as with our "Mr." For example, a boy whose name is Kiyoshi will be called Kiyoshi-san. In his responses to the kind speeches made to him, the boy shows that he understands the new hongors that have come upon him, and that he is now ready to apply himself to the serious business of life.—Ida T. Heduett, in St. Nicholas.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Plainfield's sole representative in the great Irvington-Milburn road race was E. Riehter. He rode 5 minutes and thirty seconds handicap. He finished twentieth.

Benjamin O. Bowers, Jr., of Franklin place, and Godwin Beard, of Hillside avenue, will spend their short vacation in enjoying a wheeling trip to Delaware Water Gap.

An interested party stood at the corner of Park avenue and East Front street yesterday morning and watched the new wheels that passed. Three out of every five new wheels happened to be of the Eldridge make. Fourteen of them passed within five minutes. This speaks well for the excellent work being done by Manager Thomas A. Cuming.

One of the best of the Decoration Day race meets was held at Morristown Monday by the Century Cycle Club. Plainfield was represented in four of the races by Peter Simonds, Jerry Barnes and Joseph Burke. Burke rode second in the one mile novice. The one mile handicap was one of the events of the day. Simonds won in a rattling finish from a field of nine riders. He captured first prize, a $30 diamond. He also started in three other events, riding from scratch, but was not able to catch the limit men.

GOLF.

The first competition for the "Schoonmaker Cup" for ladies will take place Saturday at 3 o'clock. Entries for this event will close on the evening of June 3d, and should be mailed to the chairman of the golf committee or deposited in the mail-box in the clubhouse. In order to intelligently handicap the players, the golf committee must have three scores from each competitor. These scores can be dropped in the score-box in the clubhouse.

Burned His Hand Severely.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, June 1—Harry Dodwell, of Church street, is now prevented from work through a bad accident that occurred last Monday at Lincoln. Some of the celebrants were preparing several oil barrels to burn for a demonstration and Mr. Dodwell was assisting. His hands were saturated with oil when someone accidently dropped a lighted match near him. The oil ignited and burned his hand severely. It was with difficulty that the blaze was extinguished and it was feared that the arm would also be burned.

G. A. R. DON'T LIKE IT.

Object to Memorial Day Funds Going to Fire Company.

It has been the custom each year for the Township Committee of Scotch Plains to vote an appropriation of $10 or $20 for the use of the G. A. R. of Sons of Veterans on Memorial Day. This year the sum of $20 was voted, but it was not turned over to Mr. Ball, chairman of the committee. Instead it was voted to the members of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company, for the reason that the Sons of Veterans voted not to visit the town in a body. However, a delegation from Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., went to to the place and performed the duties prescribed.

The veterans of this place are now seriously objecting to the $20 being voted to any organization outside of their own. They say that the law states clearly that the money shall be voted to a Grand Army Post. This they claim has not been done, and they intend to see that the matter is straightened out in a satisfactory manner.

There will be a meeting of memorial detail soon when the matter will be brought up for discussion. As yet nothing has been heard from the Scotch Plains committee regarding the matter and they will no doubt communicate with them concerning the appropriation.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

R. R. Fairchild and wife, of Newark, formerly of Plainfield, spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bushnell, of Park avenue.

Alex. Sills, Mr. Maynard's assistant at his tonsorial room on North avenue, has taken a few days' vacation and gone to Troy, N. Y. His place is filled by Wm. Pride, an excellent workman from Washington, D. C.

Miss Sarah Schuyler, of LaGrande avenue, returned from Barnard College, New York, last evening, after having successfully passed all her examinations for the Sophomore year of that institution. Miss Schuyler graduated from the Plainfield High School last June.

COLORED RECRUITS.

Twenty Dusky Patriots Volunteer for Army Service.

Henry L. Senkinson, who claims to have credentials from the United States Government to recruit a company of colored troops from this State, was in town last night and authorized James Babbitt and George W. Hurley, colored, of this city, to raise 20 men. The whole number has been raised among colored men here and the recruits are expecting to go to Newark tonight where they will be mustered in at 98 Springfield avenue. Hurley says that he could raise as many more if necessary.

Painter Has a Fall.

One of the rungs in a ladder on which William Payne was standing to paint Rogers' bicycle establishment, on North avenue, broke this morning. Payne was thrown to the ground, a distance of ten feet, and injured about the hip. It is not thought that his injuries are serious.

Billy McCutchen Hurt.

A BIG BATTLE NOW RAGING

Fight Has Continued Since Early Yesterday Afternoon-Engagement Fierce From the Outset-Americans Ahead.

The Havana advices indicate that the American fleet has forced the entrance of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba and has engaged the Spanish fleet.

Private messages intimate that there has been a severe fight between the American fleet and the outer fortifications and the Spanish fleet.

According to latest advices the combat is still in progress.

Port au Prince, June 1.—Yesterday afternoon an American squadron, composed of fourteen warships, of which the cruiser New York displayed the flag of Rear Admiral Sampson, and a number of torpedo boats, began a bombardment with heavy guns of the forts and the harbor of Santiago de Cuba.

The American fire was directed principally against the forts and the harbor. The forts of Morro Castle, La Zocapa and Punta Gorda suffered especially. The cannonading was very persistent and cannot have failed to be destructive. It lasted until 3.45 p. m. The town, which is situated near the inner end of the harbor, escaped damage.

From the Spanish account it is impossible to judge as to the exact merits of the encounter. The Spanish authorities maintain strict silence as to the number of victims, who were apparently numerous.

CAPOTE MAY BE PRISONER.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 1.—It is now confidently believed that the Spanish have captured Dr. Domingo Mendez Capote, vice president of the provisional republic of Cuba, and that the fruit steamer Belvidere, on which he was a passenger, was deliberately wrecked by them by altering the light on Cape Maysi.

The Belvidere left here Wednesday morning with a number of passengers and was wrecked that night on Cape Maysi. The fruit steamers Etheldrel and Kingston were expected to take off the passengers.

The Etheired, however, has just arrived at Port Antonio, without any of the people of the Belvidere.

The Captain reports that he visited the wreck and found such a condition of confusion on board the Belvidere as led him to believe the Spaniards had swooped down on the vessel after she had been lured ashore and taken off the passengers by force.

There were no indications of bad weather and none had been reported since Wednesday.

According to early dispatches there were twenty passengers on the Belvidere beside Dr. Capote. The steamer City of Kingston arrived here this morning and her captain reported that he had seen the Belvidere wreck, but discerned no signs of life on her. It was then hoped that the Etheired would bring news of her, but the arrival of that vessel at Port Antonio seems to confirm the supposition that the Spaniards are responsible for the wreck and have captured Capote.

BLANCO NOW CUT OFF.

His Telegraphic Communication With Madrid Destroyed.

Key West, June 1.—The St. Paul has completed the cutting of the Santiago cables off Cape Maysi. This completely cuts Blanco off from communication with Madrid.

There were three submarine telegraphic cables leading out of Santiago de Cuba, two of them going to Kingston, Jamaica. These two lines are the property of the Cuba Submarine Telegraph Company.

The third line goes eastward to the Mole St. Nicholas, with an intermediate shore station at Guantanamo. All of these lines are owned by English concerns.

The cables leading out of Cienfuegos, where an attempt was made by United States warships to destroy communication, both touch at Santiago, so that the work of cutting them could be more effectually done at Santiago, where they touch shore for the last time before finally leaving Cuba.

The first attempt to cut the cables at Santiago was made by the auxiliary cruiser St. Louis and the tug Wampatuck on May 11.

The cables leading to Kingston were cut, but the one to Hayti was not. A further attempt to destroy this cable was made at Guantanamo on the following day, but it failed.

A Man's Musical Heart Beats.

The man with the musical heart is puzzling the surgeons out west. This marvellous man is Joseph Milkowski, a Russian. When the ear is applied to his chest the regular and heavy beats of the heart are surprisingly plain. Each beat is accompanied by a squeak which sometimes changes to a clear musical note. He has sold his body for $5,000 to a medical society for examination after death. Dr. O. A. LaCrone, ex-president of the Academy of Medicine, Kalamazoo, Mich., said, in speaking of Milkowski's heart: "It is a most interesting case, especially to all physicians. It is apparent that there is a trouble with the valves of his heart. The latter has grown larger, much the same as it is necessary to have a bigger pump when the valves of a smaller one are leaky."—New York Journal.

PLAINFIELD GIRL ESCAPES.

With Two Other Girls Hanna Clark Gets Out of Industrial School.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, June 1—The police authorities have been told to be on the lookout for three girls who escaped early yesterday morning from the State Industrial School, near this city. The missing girls are Anna Chamberlain, of Jobstown; Hanna Clark, of Plainfield, and Mary Timothy, of Newark. The escape was made through the efforts of Anna Chamberlain, who watched for her opportunity, and when the night watchman had passed her room, a little after midnight, she cut the slats in the door with a saw that she had managed to make from a table knife and, reaching through the opening, she turned the key in the lock and made her way into the corridor. She then opened the doors of the rooms occupied by Hanna Clark and Mary Timothy, and the three climbed through a window into the yard and disappeared. Their absence was not discovered until breakfast. The school authorities tried to keep the escape secret, but it leaked out last night through the police department.

Military Visitors.

Adjutant F. W. Armstrong and Lieut. Mathers, of the Third Regiment, N. G. N. J., were the guests last evening of Mr. Armstrong's brother, T. S. Armstrong, of the borough. They are now located at Fort Hancock and are very comfortably situated. They were given twenty-four hours off duty and returned to their duties this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. VanNest, of Bound Brook, were the guests of Mrs. Martha Colthar, of Duer street, Decoration Day.

LARGEST CLOTHING SALE OF THE SEASON!
NOW GOING ON.
FORCED TO THE WALL.
One of the largest wholesale manufacturers was forced to the wall. Every one knows of the depression in every line of business, but none have suffered so much as the clothing manufacturers that were rated away up. They were forced to go under or realize money in some way to save their credit, and we being enabled to offer them the ready cash, they accepted our offer and we secured a very large lot of desirable clothing at our own price. A chance of a lifetime to secureh igh-grade spring and summer clothing at less than one-third its value.
Remember, this stock will be sold without reserve, without restriction and without any consideration of cost of production, and the prices will bring every man and woman within 25 miles of Plainfield to our store in order to show what gigantic bargains will be offered.
A few prices are here mentioned, and remember there are a thousand other bargains we cannot enumerate. Cut this out and bring it with you and ask for the following mentioned articles.
Men's stylishly made gray and brown check and plaid cassimere suits, deep French facing, sizes from 34 to 42, strong and serviceable, worth $8, your choice at $2 95.
Men's strictly all-wool fancy cassimere suits, neat checks, stripes and plaids, deep French facing, six different patterns, worth $10, at $3.75.
Men's blue serge suits, color and seams guaranteed, single breasted only, heavy double warp linings, worth $12, your choice at $4.75.
An elegant assortment of handsomely made cassimere suits, latest patterns of checks, stripes, plaids and over-plaids, stout and regular cut, worth 13.00 at $5.25.

SIEGE TRAIN STARTED FOR SOUTHERN CUBA.

To Begin Active Operations Against Santiago at Once.

The First Detachment Sailed From Tampa Yesterday—News Censor at Tampa Declares the Report Premature—$53,000,000 Asked For to Support the Volunteers.

THE LATEST.

Three O'Clock.

TO BESIEGE SANTIAGO.

The First Section of the Invading Force Sailed From Tampa Yesterday.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 2, 12:33 p. m—Information has reached this city that the movement against Santiago on the part of the Army was begun yesterday.

The first part of the expedition for Santiago left Tampa yesterday. It included several transports, which, it is believed, are now lying at Key West awaiting the second detachment of the invading force.

The transports carry a battalion of engineers, a number of siege guns to be used in occupying the hills around Santiago, the field trains and a few infantrymen to protect them.

It is not certain that the first section will wait the re-inforcements but may proceed directly to Santiago where Schley will protect the landing.

PREMATURE REPORTS.

Thus the Censor Styles the Washington Story of the Expedition Sailing.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Tampa, June 2, 1:47 p. m., (Censored.)—The Washington reports about the departure of the expedition hence for Cuba are harmful as well as premature causing unnecessary agitation in the north and misleading the public mind.

The exact state of things here can not, of course, be divulged, but no good purpose can be served by the issuing of these premature reports.

New York, June 2, 1:47 p. m—The foregoing dispatch from Tampa is practically the production of the censor. A long descriptive story of camp life and the hardships of the volunteers which followed it, had plainly been blue-pencilled.

This wholesale suppression of news from that place is intended for the deception of the Spanish spies.

FRANCE AGAIN FALSE.

She Allows The Shipment of Contraband Articles Across The Pyrenees.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Paris, France, June 2, 1:24 p. m—It has been learned here that large quantities of arms and ammunition are being daily sent across the Pyrenees into Spain.

Many French and Belgian firms are engaged in the shipment of the contraband articles. The French authorities are fully aware of what is going on but are winking at it.

Movements of Troops.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Chickamauga, June 2, 10 a. m—The Third New York Volunteers arrived here this morning. The Sixty-ninth New York, the Third Pennsylvania, the Fifth Maryland and the First Illinois regiments started for Tampa to join the invading army.

MANY MILLIONS WANTED.

To Equip and Maintain the Volunteers Who Respond To the Second Call.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 2, 1:21 p. m—Secretary Alger, of the War Department, this morning asked for an appropriation of $53,000,000 for the equipment and maintenance for the remainder of the year of the troops who will respond to the second call for volunteers.

MUST GIVE UP CUBA.

Otherwise Spain Can Get No Assistance from European Powers.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

London, June 2, 1:05 p. m.—It is now generally understood by the European nations that under present conditions it will be useless for them to interfere in the present war between the United States and Spain, despite the hints of the latter nation.

The only grounds on which there is any hope of bringing the conflict to a close through the European powers is that they be empowered by Spain to promise the evacuation of Cuba by the Spanish troops forever.

Spanish efforts to obtain assistance from the powers will otherwise invariably be fruitless.

BUILDING NEW DEFENCES.

Spaniards Very Active Near Cardenas, But Retreat Before American Fire.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Key West, June 2, 1:25 p. m—A despatch boat from the blockading fleet reports that the Spaniards continue to build new defences in the neighborhood of Cardenas whenever left unmolested.

There are now fifteen thousand soldiers assembled there for the defence of the shore, assisted by three small Spanish gunboats and several small calibre cannon.

The armed tug Leyden of the blockading fleet attacked the gunboats yesterday but they retreated under the protection of the batteries without replying to the American fire.

The work of unloading the cargo of coal from the British ship Restormel, which was captured while trying to run the blockade into Santiago, was watched with interest this morning.

Captain Remey, now commanding the fleet in this vicinity, decided yesterday to seize the cargo of the British ship immediately without waiting for the action of the courts.

When the captain of the Restormal heard the decision he declared that he would scuttle his ship before he would allow a premature seizure.

It was found yesterday that the ship's hoisting cranes were broken. It is now suspected that there are arms and ammunition stowed away under the cargo of coal.

FIRST WEDDING OF THE MONTH OF ROSES.

Fashionable Nuptials of Worth-Long Celebrated

IN HOLY CROSS CHURCH.

CEREMONY PERFORMED BY REV. T. LOGAN MURPHY.

The Church Prettily Decorated for the Occasion and Filled With an Admiring Assemblage of the Young Couple's Friends—Bride Looked Handsome in a White Satin Gown, Trimmed With Duchess Lace—Names of Those Who Took Part in the Ceremony—Reception Held at Bride's Home

One of the first June weddings of the season took place last evening, the bride being Miss Sara Louise Long, the second daughter of General Eli Long, of the borough, and the groom George Cokelet Worth, of Grove street. The wedding was solemnized in Holy Cross church at 8 o'clock, Rev. T. Logan Murphy performing the ceremony. It was one of the events of the season, and was very pretty and select As both people are well known in the younger society set of the borough, the company that gathered at the church and afterwards at the house was a fashionable and congratulating one.

The church looked very pretty with its decorations of palms and marguerites. The palms were grouped around the altar in a tasteful manner, and were set off by the brighter colored marguerites.

The wedding party arrived at the appointed hour. The bridesmaids and maid of honor entered at a side door, and coming down the centre aisle met the bride and her father at the main entrance, and ascended the circle again in the following order: First came the ushers, David Lennox, of New York, Kerr Fox, of New York, Percy Long, a brother of the bride and Clarence L. Murphy, both of this city. Then came the bridesmaids, Miss Annie Murphy, Miss Daisy Elisberg, Miss Hallah Van Deventer and Miss Margaret Long, all of this city, and the maid of honor, Miss Laura Long, a sister of the bride. The bride, leaning on the arm of her father, ended the procession, while to the soft strains of the Loengren wedding march, played by Professor MacClymont, the wedding party took their places about the altar.

The groom and his best man, Dr. Eli Long, the bride's brother, and the rector, met the party at the altar, where the ceremony was soon over, and in a reversed order the party moved out of the church.

The bride looked very handsome in a white satin gown trimmed with duchess lace, her tulle veil being caught up with a diamond pin, the gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The bridemaids wore yellow organdie trimmed with white ribbons, and the maid of honor wore white organdie with yellows sashes, and carried white flowers.

At the home of the bride's parents on Grove street a reception was held to which the young friends of the couple were invited. Here the wedding supper was served and the happy couple congratulated by the good wishes of the guests. At a late hour Mr. and Mrs. Worth departed on a train for their honeymoon, and when they return will make their home somewhere in this city.

The gifts of the bride to her bridemaids were pretty rings set with topazes, and the groom gave the ushers and best man gold stick pins. The wedding presents were handsome and expensive.

Mr. Worth is a New York broker, and his partner, Mr. Berrian, gave him a silver salad set. A case of silver spoons and forks came from the groom's brother and sister, and besides there were table lamps, pictures, sofa pillows and furniture.

At the house the decorations were equally as appropriate. A large American banner hung over the front steps, so that its folds had to be brushed aside before the guests could enter. Flowers and greens arranged about the rooms lent a pretty effect to the scene.

Schoverling—Wyckoff.

A quiet wedding took place last evening when Miss Gertrude A., daughter of Mrs. Peter Wyckoff, of 402 East Sixth street, was united in marriage to Rudolph Schoverling, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Rev. J. W. Richardson performed the ceremony. Only the immediate family were present.

—The regular meeting of the Borough Council will be held tomorrow evening.

CAN'T STAND THE SMELL

JAMES H. CRAIG SAYS THE SEWAGE BEDS ARE HORRIBLE.

He Claims That His Daughter Has Been Made Sick by the Beds and Now He Will Seek Redress in the Courts.

James H. Craig, who lives on West Front street near the line dividing Plainfield and Dunellen, is one of the residents in that section who is affected by the sewer beds. Like Mrs. Milliken, a neighbor, Mr. Craig has placed his grievances in the hands of a lawyer, but not a Plainfield one, however. He has secured a legal light from Jersey City. It is the intention of Mr. Craig to push his action for damages with all possible haste and vigor. Regarding the case of Mrs. Milliken against the city of Plainfield, Mr. Craig says that it is barely possible that that case will be called this term of court, but he is determined that his case shall receive the immediate attention of the court. Tuesday night Mr. Craig says that the stench from the beds was so bad that the windows in his house had to be closed. For sometime past Mr. Craig's daughter has been under the treatment of Dr. Jenkins, and the latter thinks that the sewer beds have had something to do with her illness.

A few weeks ago when the State Board of Health visited the borough of Dunellen, the members told Mr. Craig that the proper course to pursue was to go to the Court of Chancery and they would very quickly give him damages. The members of the Board admitted that Plainfield made a mistake by locating the beds where they are, and said that they should have been placed farther away from a residential section.

APT MUSICAL PUPILS.

Miss Marsh's Class Display Talent on the Piano.

A very enjoyable musicale was given by Miss Ada G. Marsh and her piano pupils yesterday afternoon at Miss Marsh's home on Franklin place. A large number of the relatives and friends of the students were present and enjoyed both the music and the pretty picture made by the tastefully decorated rooms and the bright young faces and dainty summer costumes.

Those who took part were the following: Miss Marion Grace Marsh, Miss Hope Ivins, Miss Annie Fisk, Miss Louise Booth, Miss Anna Richards, Miss Isabella Scott, Miss Florence Taylor, Miss Helen Martin, Miss Elma Thayer, Miss Emily Gould, Miss Frances Weir and Miss Edith Arens. Miss Weir and Miss Arens played twice, the others once. Miss Weir's first selection was a very clever little composition of her own, "Pastorale, F sharp."

The young girls all played in a very pleasing manner, showing very careful training, and, in most cases, diligence in study, many of them combining excellent technique with depth of feeling.

At the close of the programme Miss Marsh received many congratulations upon the excellent work done by her pupils.

For Violating Game Laws

Several weeks ago Howard Breach and William Abbott, of Blackwell's Mill, were arrested by Game and Fish Warden Charles Sebring for having set lines in the Raritan river. They were taken to Somerville, tried and convicted. The sentence was that they pay a fine of $25 each or spend 25 days in the county jail. They took the latter and their time is now about completed.

Dr. A. S. Fritts to Leave Plainfield

Dr. A. Suydam Fritts, son of Dr. J. T. Fritts, of Plainfield, will hang out his shingle at Hawley, Pa., next week. He is a recent graduate of a prominent medical college, having practiced since under his father, one of the leading physicians of Plainfield. The citizens of Hawley may feel proud in having secured so eminent a young man of medicine.—Somerville Messenger.

At Camp Alger.

Charles Johnson, formerly of Plainfield, but late of Newark, is now located at Camp Alger, Falls Church, Va., with the Second Regiment, of Newark. He has written to Plainfield friends recently, and he says that he is doing well.

Class Day in the Borough.

Class Day in the borough school will be held June 21st, and the Commencement exercises will be held the evening of June 23d in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. The Class Day exercises will be held at the school.

Where's the Sprinkler?

The people living along the line of the trolley are very anxiously waiting to see the sprinkler which the street railway company purchased recently, and which has not yet made its appearance.

SMOTHERED TO DEATH.

TWO-MONTHS-OLD BABY SLEPT TOO CLOSE TO ITS MOTHER.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hall's Daughter Died During the Night—Second Child Lost in That Way—Parents Grief-Stricken

The two-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hall, of Somerset street, was found dead in bed this morning by its parents. When Mr. Hall arose at 5 o'clock to go to work he picked his little daughter up to kiss her good by when he discovered that she was dead. It was decided that the little one had been smothered by sleeping too close to the mother.

A peculiar circumstance in connection with the sad affair is that about a year ago when the family was living on what is now known as Watchung avenue another daughter, very young, was smothered in the same way and died. The parents are grief-stricken over the death of their child.

BROKE VALUABLE CASTINGS.

William Alberts, one of the drivers for the United States Express Company, was unfortunate enough to break three heavy iron castings yesterday, which he was bringing from Pond's to ship away.

Alberts had been to the factory and was returning with the castings. They weighed 200 pounds apiece, and were placed on the rear part of the wagon. Just as Alberts turned into the driveway that leads up to the company's platform, two of Jose Carbone's children stepped right in front of his horse's feet, and Alberts pulled up so sharply as to make the castings slide off the wagon and break in fragments. Alberts will have to stand the loss, which will amount to about $20

The marriage of Anna L. Powers to Joseph P. Gavin, of North Plainfield, which was solemnized at St. Joseph's church in Roselle yesterday afternoon, was followed by a very pleasant reception at the home of the bride's parents near Cranford. A large number of guests were present, among whom were the following from this city: The Misses Schartz, Miss Lizzie Gavin, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Arthur Neely, Den Gavin, Bert Vail, Werner Heidloff, J. B. Martin, Lyman Spencer, E. M. Southard, John and Garret Powers, Thomas Hughes and wife, John Keely, Ernest Barrett and wife, and others.

The Alumni Reception.

Arrangements are now in progress for the alumni reception of the commencement exercises of the Plainfield High School which is to be held at the Casino, Thursday, June 23d. The committee in charge has announced that members of the alumni may purchase subscriptions for the reception from any member of the committee or by addressing the chairman, Miss Grace E. Overton, 91 Rockview avenue.

The First Excursion.

On June 23d the members of the G. A. R. and the A. O. U. W., of this city, will run an excursion to Long Branch and Asbury Park. On that day the G. A. R. of New Jersey will hold their annual encampment at Long Branch, and no doubt many Plainfielders will avail themselves of the chance to spend a day at the seashore.

A Flag Social.

Next Tuesday evening a "flag social" will be held at the First Baptist church under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the church. During the evening an excellent programme will be presented and a good time is promised for all who attend. A silver offering will be received at the door.

Tenants Are Alleged Disturbers.

Peter Langenbahn, of Cottage place, complained to the City Judge yesterday morning of the conduct of some of his neighbors, who, he says, throw stones at his house and otherwise disturb the peace. Langenbahn rents out a part of one of his houses, and it is his tenants who are the alleged disturbers.

A Card of Thanks.

The committee in charge of the convention of the State Association of Letter-carriers, which was held on Decoration Day, extend their most hearty thanks to those citizens who so kindly assisted them in making it a success.

Planning for a Festival.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Catholic Club held Tuesday night, three new members were taken in and it was decided to have a strawberry festival in two weeks.

Mr. Woodhull, of the firm of Woodhull & Martin, the West Front street dry goods merchants, has returned from Lake Hopatcong, where he has a cottage.

ALL ABOUT THE FLAG.

A PATRIOTIC SIDE TO A STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL.

Unique Event Arranged by the Women of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church—Informal Programme Very Interesting.

Strawberries and flags were the all important features at the festival in the chapel of the Seventh-Day Baptist church last evening. It was really a strawberry festival, but the committee from the Ladies' Society for Christian Work of the church, under whose auspices it was given, departed from the beaten path and made it altogether a very delightful affair.

The main room of the chapel was gay with American flags which were hung about the walls in an artistic fashion. One of the alcoves was devoted to the serving of lemonade and was fitted out as a parlor lighted by electric piano lamps. Little tables were arranged in the parlors on which the prevailing decorations were in red and white. Here the refreshments were served.

The waitresses were all gowned in white, with red sashes and bows of ribbon on their jaunty little caps. A bunch of artificial strawberries, red and tempting, was worn on each of the caps. The waitresses were under the charge of Miss Luella Clawson and Miss Ida Randolph. They were: Miss Mary Green, Miss Carrie Randolph, Miss Etta Randolph, Miss Ernestine Smith, Miss Ida Spicer, Miss Jessie Utter and Miss Anna Wooden.

The lemonade booth and its charming reception room were under the charge of Mrs. Frank J Hubbard and Mrs. Frank Smith.

An informal programme was arranged for the evening. Here the strawberries gave place to the flag as the central object of interest. Miss May Ross read a paper on "The Evolution of the Flag," telling in an interesting way the history of the Stars and Stripes. Then followed an essay on "The Symbolism of the Flag," by Miss Ernestine Smith, which was of equal interest.

A chorus of young girls and children, gowned in white, next sang Rudyard Kipling's "Recessional," after it had been read aloud by Rev. A. E. Main.

The third of the series of papers on "The Proper Use of the Flag" was read by Miss Luella Clawson. A short poem, "The Flag Goes By," was recited by Charles Neagle. Then the chorus ended the programme with "The Red, White and Blue. D. E. Titsworth acted as master of ceremonies. A social hour followed.

The festival was arranged by a committee of which Mrs. D. E. Titsworth was the chairman. She was assisted by Miss Mabel Mitchell, Miss Mabel Maxson, Mrs. F. A. Dunham, Mrs. T. W. Saunders, Miss Ramsay and Mrs. Wm. C. Hubbard.

NORTH JERSEY ASSUMES CONTROL.

Consolidated Traction No Longer an Operating Company.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, June 2—All the lines of the Consolidated Traction Company in Newark, the Oranges, Elizabeth, Belleville, Bloomfield, Harrison, Jersey City, Kearny and Bayonne are now part of the North Jersey Street Railway, which controls nearly all the other trolley lines in the northern part of the State.

The Consolidated has ceased to be an operating company, although its officers are for the most part the managing officers of the North Jersey company.

The lease of the Consolidated lines to the North Jersey will, it is believed, be followed at an early day by leases of other lines. Practically all the lines in the northern part of the State not in the new consolidation are controlled by the people who control the North Jersey.

Persons intimate with the leading spirits in this great combination, expect to see a consolidation of all the trolley lines of New Jersey before many months.

His Bed the Sidewalk.

The lockup held only one unfortunate this morning, Charles Burns, a young machinist, who was found lying helplessly drunk on the corner of Fifth and New streets last night. City Judge DeMeza suspended sentence on him, as it was his first offense.

Enlisted in Signal Corps.

Irving Niles, of Orchard place, who is now employed as a draughtsman at the Pond Tool Works, has enlisted as an extra man to the Signal Corps of the 71st New York Volunteers. He is waiting a call at any moment.

Joined the Navy.

George W. Benson, of North Plainfield, left yesterday to join the United States navy. He enlisted in the Brooklyn navy yard. He was formerly employed by Woolston & Buckle for fourteen years.

CITY MAY ACQUIRE THE SANITARY PLANT

Plan on Foot For Reorganization of Company.

MAYOR SAID TO FAVOR IT.

MEANS THAT COLORED ASH CARTERS WOULD HAVE TO GO.

Andrew Love, Receiver of the Concern, Will Give Up Possession Very Soon—Creditors Who Have Not Been Paid Will be Asked to Accept Fifty Per Cent of Claims in Stock and the Rest in Cash—If the City Should Accept the Plant it Would Put a Manager in Charge—Eddy Clark's Plan Might be Adopted.

The Plainfield Sanitary Company is about to be re-organized again and a great change is probable in the operation. A plan is on foot to transfer the plant and its management over to the city, and in this way to give the city the sole charge of collecting garbage and disposing of it.

It is said that Mayor Fisk and other public officials of the city are in favor of this plan, and will push the matter as fast as possible. If these plans are consummated it means that the ash carters and garbage collectors' occupations are about over, as there will then be little probability of the city granting licenses for that work. Just how this prospect will hit the poor ash carters remains to be seen, but they can take a grain of comfort in the fact that the plant will need more men to operate it, and they may be fortunate enough to secure a job.

The receiver, Andrew Love, is going to give up possession of the plant today or tomorrow. Riker & Riker, the Newark lawyers, have charge of the affairs, and are taking the lead in the work of re-organization. The new company will be composed of the same men who made up the old company, with a few exceptions, Dr. J. T. Fritts, John W. Murray, DeWitt C. Ivins, Andrew Lutkins and others. The work of organization will be completed this week.

There are many creditors who have not been paid. They are to be persuaded to accept 50 per cent. of their claims in cash, and the remainder in stock, if they are mechanics; and the others have accepted their claims in stock. The lawyers who represent the creditors are Judge DeMeza, former Judge W. R. Codington, Reed & Coddington and W. S. Angleman.

If the city accepts the plant, they will put a manager in charge who will have the affairs of the plant in control. The rates of collecting may be lowered.

Eddy J. Clark, under whose charge the garbage disposal plant was erected, has a plan by which the sewage can be disposed of without any of the annoying odors of the present system. Mr. Clark's plan was fully explained in The Press a week or two ago, and consists of several pipes and conduits through which the solids and liquids can flow through the plant and be separated.

FIXING UP WEST FRONT STREET.

Street Commissioner Gavett's Men are Hard at Work.

Street Commissioner Gavett is taking advantage of the fine weather to get the streets in the best condition possible. His men are out from early morning to night, and have undertaken to do some big jobs.

One gang is hard at work on West Front street, and do not expect to finish that thoroughfare for at least fifteen days. South Second street will be finished to four days, providing the weather holds out. Gangs of gutter workers are busy filling the gutters in front of the Babcock Building and Music Hall on West Front street, and another gang is at work on Belvidere avenue doing the same thing.

Smith Wants Another Trial.

Henry T. Smith, of Westervelt avenue, who was tried in the city court a few weeks ago on a charge of meeting his wife one Sunday on Watchung avenue and calling her a "hypocrite" and telling her that she was no Christian, will demand another trial through his lawyers, Codington & Swackhamer, the jury having disagreed last time. Smith is anxious to have the matter settled up.

The Tax Collectorship.

It is quite likely that next Monday evening the City Council will appoint a man to fill the office of collector to serve until the election in the fall. No doubt the man selected will be a person whom the "powers that be" think can be elected if put in nomination. It is understood that the Democrats will make a strong effort to place a man in the office.

SANTIAGO BATTERED

Moro Castle Smashed by Schley's Powerful Guns

SPANISH CLAIM VICTORY

Said That Schley's Ships Leave Only Memories of the Defences to Cervera's Refuge—The Damage Sustained by Our Fleet Not Known, But It Is Thought None of Our Men Were Killed or Vessels Damaged.

Cape Haytien, June 2.—The torpedo boat Porter arrived at Mole St. Nicholas with dispatches for Washington. She left immediately. But before going to sea the following story of the bombardment of Santiago de Cuba, the refuge of Cervera and the Spanish fleet, was obtained:

The American squadron, augmented by the torpedo boat Porter, the auxiliary cruiser St. Paul and the protected cruiser New Orleans, formerly the Amazonas, approached the entrance to the harbor of Santiago at about 12.30 p. m., the Iowa leading.

As the American fleet drew near the New Orleans was detached and steamed forward ahead of the Iowa, Texas and Massachusetts. One of the forts opened fire on her and she replied, the other two ships directing their fire on the Punta Gorda within the harbor and to westward of the position occupied by the Spanish ship. The latter replied to the fire and immediately became a target for all the American ships engaged in the battle.

"Fighting Bob" Evans in the Van.

The Iowa, directed by Captain "Fighting Bob" Evans; the Massachusetts, Captain F. J. Higginson; Texas, Captain J. W. Philip, and the New Orleans, Captain W. M. Folger, kept up their terrific fire against Morro, Socapa and Punta Gorda forts for two hours, their projectiles of enormous size doing tremendous damage to the defences of the harbor.

The masonry on Socapa and Morro was battered almost into dust and the forms of Spanish artillerymen could be plainly seen flying to safety behind the neighboring hills.

After seeking the protection of a jutting headland, the Spanish warship continued to fire projectiles over the hills toward the fleet, but the Spanish gunners had no range—not even direction—to their shots, and the shells fell harmlessly into the sea.

That the number of killed and wounded on the Spanish side is enormous no one doubts, for time and again the American shells hit the batteries squarely, and amid the flying masonry and dismantled guns the forms of men were descried.

The damage done to the American fleet cannot be learned, but it is not thought any person was killed—if indeed any one was wounded.

"The American fleet, consisting of the Iowa, Massachusetts, Brooklyn, Texas, New Orleans, Marblehead, Minneapolis and another cruiser, in addition to six small vessels, took up a position on May 31 on the western side of the mouth of Santiago de Cuba channel, opening fire from the first five vessels.

"The Spanish cruiser Cristobal Colon was anchored towards Punta Gorda, and could be seen from the open sea. The fire of the American fleet was answered by the Morro, Socapa and Punta Gorda batteries and by the Cristobal Colon.

"The American fleet fired seventy shots, with projectiles of 32, without causing the least damage.

"The bombardment lasted ninety minutes and the American fleet retired with a trans-Atlantic steamer (auxiliary cruiser?) damaged. Two shells were seen to explode on the Iowa's stern, and there was fire on board an other battleship.

"Several projectiles fell inside the harbor, near the Spanish warships.

TO PAY STATE TROOPS.

Gen. Healy Files an Additional Bond of $25,000.

Albany, N. Y., June 2.—Brigadier-General Warren M. Healy, paymaster general on Governor Black's staff, filed an additional bond of $25,000 with State Comptroller Roberts yesterday, preparatory to beginning his work of paying off the New York state troops for the time served previous to their mustering in as part of the regular army.

After filing his bond, which is additional to a bond for $15,000 filed by the paymaster general in time of peace, General Healy made a draft upon the state treasury for $50,000, needed to pay the troops. The money for this purpose comes out of the $1,000,000 appropriation voted just before the close of the legislative session.

General Healy will make further drafts of $50,000 each as needed until all the troops of the twelve volunteer regiments have been paid.

Nominations Confirmed.

Washington, June 2.—In executive session yesterday the senate confirmed these nominations:

Brigadier generals—Frederick D. Grant of New York, J. A. Wiley of Pennsylvania, W. A. Bancroft of Massachusetts, F. V. Greene of New York.

Additional paymaster—James B. Houston of Connecticut.

TROOPS FOR THE PHILIPPINES

Next Expedition Likely to Include a Large Number of Regulars.

San Francisco, June 2.—The next expedition to the Philippines will probably include a large number of regulars. It is stated that General Merritt will carry out his ideas in this regard by selecting all the regular forces of this department for the advance guard of the expedition. The Third Artillery, consisting of eight batteries, one at San Dego and the other seven at Fort Point, this city, expect to receive orders to prepare for active duty in the Philippines. It is expected that the Sixth Artillery, now stationed at Fort McHenry, Md., will be brought here for coast defence purposes, while the Fifteenth United States Infantry, now stationed in Arizona, will be brought here for the Philippine expedition and their places in Arizona filled by a company of California volunteers. General Otis, who has taken up his quarters at Camp Merriam, will insist upon the observance of military discipline in the camp. The public will be only allowed to visit the camp between certain specified hours.

The next expedition to the Philippines will include sixty engineers under Captain Longfitt's command. This corps will mine the harbor at Manila. A large amount of cable and 480 submarine mines will be shipped in charge of Captain Longfitt. General Merritt is having the work of preparing the next fleet of transports rushed. It is believed that the Zealandia will be ready to receive the troops by the end of the present week. She is receiving her coal and the bunks for 1,000 men are nearly finished. Bunks for 1,200 men are being fitted on the steamer China, and she will be ready by the middle of next week. The work of preparing the Colon is progressing rapidly and she will be fit for sea within a week.

WORK OF THE COMMISSARY.

What the Department Has Accomplished During the Month.

New York, June 2.—A report of the work done during May in the purchasing commissary's department in the Army building, was made yesterday. The New York office supplied all Atlantic coast troops north of Key West; also the volunteers in state camps north of South Carolina and east of Ohio and Kentucky. Ten days' field rations, and from four to ten days' travelling rations, were supplied to all troops moved on the Atlantic coast. No shortage was reportel from any quarter.

During May $500,000 was spent on provisions. Among the articles purchased were the following: 2,100,000 pounds of flour, at from 3 to 3 1-2 cents a pound; 1,800,000 pounds of hard bread, at 4 3-4 cents a pound; 100,000 pounds of baking powder, 35,000 gallons of vinegar, 168,000 pounds of soap, 9,000 pounds of pepper, 450,000 cans of beef, 260,000 pounds of coffee, 1,100,000 pounds of tomatoes, 500,000 pounds of sugar, 2,150,000 pounds of potatoes, 50,000 pounds of rice, 460,000 pounds of beans, 60,000 pounds of candles and 140,000 pounds of salt.

In addition, large quantities of cereals, fruit, cheese, jam, etc., were purchased.

A SCHOONER FIRED ON.

The J. B. Melanson Tried to Enter Portland Harbor at Night.

Portland, Me., June 2.—Captain J. B. Melanson of the British schooner J. B. Melanson, which arrived off here on Tuesday night, reported yesterday that he was fired on while trying to enter the harbor about nine o'clock. He stated that he left Porto Rico with a cargo of molasses before the war broke out and was not aware that the harbor was closed at night. Two blank cannon shots and one cannon ball were fired, but these reports failed to stop the vessel and the soldiers opened fire with their rifles, and the vessel hove to and anchored.

New York, June 2.—At the Brooklyn navy yard yesterday it was said that the work of repairing the cruiser Columbia, which was damaged by collision with the British steamer Foscolia on Saturday night, would not occupy more than two weeks. The damaged plates are being removed and as soon as they are taken off the new ones, which are already ready, will be put in place.

Entire Plant Wrecked by Explosion.

New York, June 2.—A terrific explosion occurred early yesterday in the tar paper factory of Tobias New & Co., on East Nineteenth street, in which a number of persons were seriously injured. The entire plant was wrecked and thousands of dollars of damage done. No one was killed but it is feared some of the injured may die.

Rations for Gen. Lee's Troops.

Washington, June 2.—The war department is massing rations for thirty days for the troops that are assembling at Jacksonville, Fla., under command of Major General Lee. The officials decline to say how many men are to be concentrated there or whether they will stay at that place for the full thirty days.

Menocal Court-Martialed.

Washington, June 2.—Civil Engineer Menocal of the navy has been found guilty of neglect of duty and inefficiency and sentenced to three years' suspension from duty. Menocal was the famous Nicaragua naval engineer, and was tried for neglect of duty in the construction of the Brooklyn dry dock.

Two Years for a Check Swindler.

Elizabeth, June 2.—Frederick Wilson, a check swindler, was yesterday sentenced to state prison for two years in the Union county court for passing a fraudulent check on B. H. Dehue, a grocer of this city. Wilson tried to victimize a number of other people here, but failed.

Negro Volunteers Desert.

Raleigh, N. C., June 2.—The four negro companies organized in this state started yesterday for the point of mobilization, Fort Macon, N. C. On the way several of them deserted announcing on their return that they had changed their minds.

CHANDLER ON SILVER

New Hampshire Senator Argues On the War Revenue Bill.

SCORES SECRETARY GAGE

The New Hampshire Senator Speaks for An Hour and a Half in Advocacy of An Amendment to the Bill Pledging the Government to Bi-Metalism—Criticises Secretary Gage for the Position He Took on the Currency Question.

Washington, June 2.—When the war revenue bill was taken up in the Senate yesterday, Mr. Chandler, Republican of New Hampshire, assuming, he said, that the majority of the finance committee would insist upon its proposition to coin the silver seigniorage, and that the Republican minority would press its bond proposition, thought it proper to offer some remarks upon an amendment which he had offered to the pending bill. The amendment follows:

"And it is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States not to commit the country more thoroughly to the gold standard, but that the efforts of the government in all its branches shall be steadily directed to secure and maintain the use of silver as well as gold as standard money with the free coinage of both under a system of bi-metallism which will insure the parity in value of the coins of the two metals, furnish a sufficient volume of metallic money and give immunity to the world of trade from violent fluctuations in exchange."

To Await Developments.

Referring to the general features of the bill, Mr. Chandler declared that the opponents of the existing war should not be allowed to make it unpopular by the infliction upon the people of onerous and ill advised taxation. He urged that it were better to await the developments of the war before making extensive provision for it. A few months hence, he thought, it would be far easier than it is now to determine what amount of taxation should be levied.

Mr. Chandler announced his opposition to the issue of legal tender notes. The war, he said, could be fought to a triumphant close without endangering the parity of gold and our existing paper money. In his opinion, however, the proposed coinage of the silver seigniorage was an entirely different thing. He saw advantages that would accrue to the country from the conversion of the seigniorage into money and not he least danger. He felt, therefore, that it would be wise and healthy to coin the seigniorage. He also favored an issue of ten-year 3 per cent. bonds as the cheapest way of raising needed funds for the prosecution of the war.

Mr. Chandler then began a discussion of the financial question in which he opposed the gold standard and advocated bimetallism.

Secretary Gage Criticised.

In the course of a discussion of the administration's effort to secure international bimetallism Mr. Chandler criticised Secretary Gage sharply for the position he had assumed in attempting to irrevocably commit the administration to the gold standard. Following a reference to the work of the bimetallic commission in Europe, he introduced in his speech a letter which he wrote to the president last September in which he prophesied the failure of the commission's efforts.

"To this letter," said Mr. Chandler, at the conclusion of the reading, "I received no reply."

Mr. Chandler then referred to the message of the president transmitting the action of the Indianapolis monetary commission, and said the House hastened to take action in favor of the gold standard. He continued to discuss the action of Secretary Gage and criticised his hostility to silver and international bimetallism. Speaking of the action of the Teller resolution, which reaffirmed the Stanley Matthews silver resolution, he said that Secretary Gage had many supporters in the Republican party. He said that at the head of those who voted for the Matthews resolution in the House was William McKinley, now president, and in the Senate, William B. Allison of Iowa. He thought it remarkable that what was true and honest twenty years ago was true but dishonest now. Mr. Chandler said the Republican party did not hesitate to reorganize the supreme court in order to assert the right of the United States to issue irredeemable paper money.

He reviewed the various decisions of the supreme court on this subject and said that national honor was not in danger by coinage of silver if it was not endangered by the issue of paper.

Mr. Chandler spoke for an hour and a half and was accorded careful attention throughout.

BELVIDERE PASSENGERS SAFE.

Philadelphia, June 2.—The passengers and crew of the freight steamer Belvidere, which was wrecked off Cape Maysi, Cuba, arrived here on the Norwegian steamer Kong Frode from Port Antonio, which reached her dock in this city at 12.35 p. m. yesterday. She had on board twenty-four passengers and the crew of forty-one persons from the Belvidere. Vice President Capote of the Cuban republic, who was feared to have been captured by the Spaniards, was one of the passengers who were brought here.

The Belvidere sailed from Kingston for Boston last Wednesday and was wrecked on the following day. The Kong Frode passed Reedy island in the Delaware bay at 8.30 o'clock yesterday morning and signalled all well.

To Protect Homestead Settlers.

Washington, June 2.—A bill for the protection of homestead settlers who enter the military or naval services of the United States in time of war, was passed by the Senate at the opening of yesterday's session. The bill provides that the service in the war with Spain shall be considered as residence and work upon the land, and that by enlistment the claim shall not be forfeited.

All the Paint World knows that this big "H" stands for Harrison

Brand and means that the goods are exactly as represented. It is due to this that Harrison is today the standard for paints of all kinds, a fact that will be explained to the purchaser when he applies Harrison Paints. A setting hen may be fooled with a china egg—but no amount of incubation will hatch it out. Just the same with paint. The unsuspecting purchaser may be duped by a bright label and an unscrupulous dealer—but no amount of manipulation can make imitations take the place of Harrison Paints. Look for the big "H."

They will find you out at last.
Every time a man is fooled,
Another skeptic is made.
Many the remedy that makes the skeptic.
It fails to keep its promises.
Doan's Kidney Pills bring renewed faith.
They cure the skeptic.
Plenty of proof of this at home.
Plainfield proof for Plainfield people.
Our citizens say they cure backache.
Cure urinary disorders.
Cure sick kidneys.
Experience has taught them this is so.
Conviction for every sufferer.
In the testimony of friends and neighbors.
Read this case.

Mrs. I. L. Holmes, of 442 W. 2nd Street, says: "I have used several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills for backache and have derived more benefit from them than from anything else I ever used. Before I tried this remedy I was bothered almost constantly with a severe pain across the small of my back, so bad at times that I thought I must give up. If I sat down and got up, or was lying down and attempted to rise quickly, or retained one position for any length of time, sharp, acute pain always followed. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such trouble and went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box. They helped me from the first and I improved right along under the treatment. I recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to others who suffer from kidney complaint."

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers, price 50c per box. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

OMAHA EXHIBITION OPENS.

Omaha, June 2.—Amid the music of ia hundred bands, the cheers of 100,000 people, the blasts of many whistles, and the waving of innumerable flags, the trans-Mississippi and international exposition was dedicated yesterday.

Everything contributed to the smoothness of the final hours of preparations and nothing occurred to mar the occasion. At 9.30 o'clock the great civic parade started on its march from the center of the city to the grounds. The Marine band from Washington led the pageant and a hundred musical organizations from the various states of the middle West contributed to the occasion.

The parade was three miles long, consisting of the officers and guests of the exposition in carriages, the semi-military organizations and all the secret societies of this and adjacent states. Early the special trains had begun to unload their crowds, until the railroad men estimated that at least 100,000 people had arrived. These mingled with the citizens of Omaha and formed one solid phalanx along the route of the parade for more than ten miles.

Rev. Dr. Nichols of St. Louis opened the exercises at the grounds with an appeal to "He who doeth all things well," to shower his blessings on the enterprise and the people of the trans-Mississippi region especially.

President G. W. Watties, Hon. John L. Webster of Omaha and Hon. John N. Baldwin of Council Bluffs eulogized the occasion. President McKinley addressed the assembled multitude by long distance telephone, touched the magic button, which set the machinery in motion, and the exposition was dedicated.

BRYAN MAY GO TO PHILIPPINES.

Washington, June 2.—The war department has made an exception to its rule governing apportionments of troops among the states by consenting to muster in the regiment of Nebraska infantry of which W. J. Bryan is colonel. Under the second call for volunteers Nebraska's apportionment was 660 men.

When Governor Holcomb was informed by the war department a few days ago that Nebraska would be called on to furnish only 660 men, he sent a long telegram to Secretary Alger, asking that Bryan's regiment be accepted. After a consultation with the president, Secretary Alger yesterday directed the adjutant general to inform Governor Holcomb that the rule governing apportionments would be waived in the case of Nebraska, and that Bryan's regiment would be taken into the United States service.

It is said that the regiment will be sent to guard outlying islands of the Philippines, or else to the Ladrones or the Mariana islands if the United States takes possession of them.

The decision to accept Bryan's command was based on a disposition to be fair with the late Democratic presidential candidate, and also to remove cause for the criticism in which his partisans were indulging.

EX-CONSUL LEE IN JACKSONVILLE.

Jacksonville, Fla., June 2.—General Fitzhugh Lee arrived in this city from Tampa Tuesday evening and his welcome amounted to an ovation. Hundreds crowded the station as the train rolled in, and cheer upon cheer greeted him as he stepped from Mr. Plant's private car, which had been placed at his disposal. A committee of prominent citizens met him and he was escorted to the Seminole club, where he was entertained by his old friends here. No formal demonstration was attempted, as he had expressed his strong aversion to such a welcome. He was driven later to the Windsor hotel, which will be his headquarters in this city.

Later in the evening, accompanied by several members of his staff, General Lee paid his respects to General Miles and his party during their stay in this city en route to Tampa. The two generals enjoyed half an hour's conversation in General Miles's private car, but nothing was given out for publication.

WEDDED IN PARTS.

George Vanderbilt United to Miss Dresser in the French Capital.

Paris, June 2.—The civil marriage of Miss Edith Stuyvesant Dresser to Mr. George Vanderbilt of New York took place at three o'clock yesterday afternoon in the town hall of the Eighth district of Paris, on the Rue Anjou. The deputy mayor officiated. There were fifteen persons present. The witnesses were Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mr. Hamilton McK. Twombley, Mr. Daniel Lerov Dresser and Mr. John Nicholas Brown of Providence. There was no marriage contract whatever, and the ceremony only lasted fifteen minutes.

The religious ceremony will take place to-day in the American church on the Rue Alma.

Katahdin's Machinery Breaks Down.

Boston, June 2.—The U. S. S. Katahdin, which has just completed extensive repairs to her starboard engine made a trial in the harbor Tuesday which proved not to be very satisfactory. She made a few circuits of the harbor and then ran down in the direction of the forts. When opposite Fort Independence the machinery again broke down and the ram was helpless until the navy yard tug Iwana was dispatched to her assistance and towed her back to the yard. Machinists will set at work immediately to make the necessary repairs.

Two of the Dixie's Crew Hurt.

Norfolk, Va., June 2.—The auxiliary cruiser Dixie returned to Old Point yesterday afternoon after gun practice at sea. The gunners are said to have displayed excellent marksmanship. The six-inch and the six-pounder guns were both fired and the target was pierced several times at long range. Coxswain Charles Stone and William White, of the crew, were badly hurt by one of the boats falling upon them while it was being lowered. Stone's hand was broken and White was hurt internally.

THE CUBAN BLOCKADE

Spaniards Laying Mines and Sinking Hulks In Cardenas Harbor.

TUGS WRECK A BLOCKHOUSE

Morro Castle Light Still Shines — No Attempt to Run the Blockade Has Been Made in Eighteen Days—No Truth in the Report That Havana is Short of Coal and Electric Works Have Stopped —Wasp Enters Santiago Harbor.

Key West, Fla., June 2.—Advices from Cardenas, on the northern coast of Cuba, east of Matanzas, say that the Spaniards are laying mines and sinking hulks to obstruct the harbor entrance. Spanish troops are encamped on the high ground near by.

Piedras Light has been abandoned by the Spaniards since the cutter Hudson fired on the little settlement, landed men there, and brought away as souvenirs rare copies of "Don Quixote" in Spanish and fine examples of earthenware. Now men from the ships on the station go ashore nightly to set the light going for their own purposes. On Sunday and Tuesday, after dusk, two Spanish gunboats ventured forth from Havana, and were frightened back by the approach of the Maple.

Two American gunboats shelled and destroyed a blockhouse near Matanzas last Saturday. The Spaniards did not reply.

Strengthening Morro Castle.

The Morro Castle light still shines invitingly, but the lighthouse tender Mangrove reports that no attempt to run the blockade has been made in 18 days. It is not true that Havana is so short of coal that the electric light works have been stopped, as the Mangrove ran close to the shore and saw lighted streets plainly. Also a scaffolding on Morro Castle, as if, in addition to increasing fortifications, Captain General Blanco was strengthening this ancient fortalice.

The insurgent leader who recently rowed out in a small boat to the blockading squadron off Cardenas, says that many of the Spanish soldiers are becoming discouraged, that they are badly fed, and are only waiting for the destruction of the Spanish fleet to lay down their arms.

Key West, Fla., June 2.—The converted yacht Wasp on last Wednesday night repeated Admiral Dewey's trick at Manila by darting past the forts and over the mines in Santiago harbor. She went within two miles of the city wharves and returned undetected. As she lay outside the harbor most of the ships could be seen inside.

They were supposed to belong to the Spanish fleet. Under full steam the little converted warship—she used to be a yacht—slipped into what had been regarded as a sealed harbor. She crept along cautiously. She viewed everything afloat and found there three Spanish cruisers.

TROOPSHIP ALPHONSO XIII SIEZED.

Spaniard Surrendered After Seventeen Shots Had Been Fired.

Key West, June 2.—It is reported her that Commodore Watson, in charge of the blockading squadron off Havana, has received word that the big Spanish troop ship Alfonso XIII, has been captured off the eastern coast of Cuba by the auxiliary cruiser St. Paul, formerly the American liner. The story told is that the troop ship tried her utmost to get away, but the speed of the St. Paul was too great and the Alfonso XIII was compelled to surrender. The St. Paul, it is reported, fired seventeen shots, however, before the Spanish flag was hauled down.

There are 1,300 Spanish soldiers aboard the Alfonso XIII. She also carries a great amount of supplies for the Spanish army.

Captain Sigsbee, formerly of the Maine, is commander of the St. Paul. The ship is one of the fleetest on the Atlantic. She has a record of 22.5 knots. She is classed now as a steel auxiliary cruiser. Her gross tonnage is 11,629; her length 535 feet 5 inches; her beam 63 feet. She has two propellers and can develop 18,000 horse power.

Her armament consists of eight 6-inch guns, four 6-pounders and four Maxims.

The Alfonso XIII is the fastest of all the steamships of the Spanish Trans-Atlantic line. She was recently armed as an auxiliary cruiser.

Her displacement is 5,125 tons. Her length is 411 feet 4 inches; her beam 48.2 and her depth 29 feet.

General Miles at Tampa.

Tampa, June 2.—General Nelson A. Miles, accompanied by his entire staff, and a force of clerks, arrived in Tampa yesterday morning from Washington over the Florida Central and Peninsula Railroad. He was accompanied by his wife, daughter and son.

The general was tired out from his long journey and retired to his room shortly after his arrival. He refused to discuss the plan of the campaign in any way.

A Guard for Powder Works.

San Francsco, June 2.—A company of the Sixth regiment of California Volunteers, probably F of Sacramento, will be sent to Santa Cruz to guard the works of the California Powder Company, which are at work for the government. The troops will remain there as long as their presence may be deemed necessary.

Schooner Wrecked Off Cape Flattery.

San Francisco, June 2.—The Merchants' Exchange has received a report that the schooner Jane Gray, which left Seattle for Kotzebue Sound, with a party of prospectors on board, has been wrecked off Cape Flattery.

New Telegraph Line Completed.

Seattle, Wash., June 2.—The Western Union Telegraph Company has completed its line from this city to Victoria, B. C., the construction of which began about three months ago.

Ask your doctor how many preparations of cod-liver oil there are.

He will answer, "Hundreds of them." Ask him which is the best. He will reply, "Scott's Emulsion."

Then see that this is the one you obtain. It contains the purest cod-liver oil, free from unpleasant odor and taste. You also get the hypophosphites and glycerine. All three are blended into one grand healing and nourishing remedy.

INVADE SPANISH TERRITORY

Move On Porto Rico and Cuba To Be Made At Once.

Atlanta, June 2.—With the arrival of Major General Miles at Tampa, the loading of the transports at Port Tampa and every other active preparation for the immediate invasion of Spanish territory received fresh impetus.

All lay yesterday six-mule teams, drawing heavy army wagons, plowed throug hthe sandy roads between Tampa and the Port. Camps were broken in the quickest time yet recorded in army annals. A strong guard at Port Tampa kept everybody, army officers as well as civilians, at a distance from the docks.

To-day is the day set for the sailing of the fleet. It is more than probable that the actual start will not be made before sunrise to-morrow, but Major General Shafter has made all his preparations to take ship on Thursday.

Washington, June 2.—For the first time since the beginning of hostilities, there has been an official statement of the plan of campaign of the United States government. It was from Secretary Alger to Speaker Reed, transmitting recommendations and statements of General Ludlow, which disclosed the purpose of the war department to send 70,000 men to Cuba, 20,000 to start at once and the remainder just as soon as they can be made ready for departure. Then there was an estimate for establishing electrical communications in connection with the army "in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines," showing for the first time, officially, an implied intention on the part of the government to land troops in Porto Rico.

PRIZE SHIP PEDRO APPRAISED.

Key West, June 2.—The appraisement of the prize ship Pedro, which has been formally seized by the government, was made Tuesday afternoon by the naval board of appraisement appointed by the secretary of the navy. Its value has been fixed at $200,000. The Pedro was captured by the flagship New York off Havana the first day of the blockade. She was first sighted by the Mayflower, which informed the flagship, whereupon the latter put off and captured her. The prize money, therefore, will doubtless be divided between the two ships, although the question is yet to be decided whether the other ships of the blockading squadron were in sight when the capture was made. If they were then all would come in for a share.

Cadets at Key West.

Key West, June 2.—Fifty-three cadets from the Naval Academy at Annapolis, composing the first class, which has not yet graduated, arrived Tuesday afternoon on the City of Key West and will be distributed among the various ships of the fleet.

The Porter at Cape Haytien.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 2.—The United States torpedo boat Porter put into the harbor of Mole St. Nicholas at one o'clock yesterday morning, in all probability with dispatches for Washington, and left there again at two o'clock.

A New Treasurer for Harvard.

Boston, June 2.—Charles Francis Adams, 2d, a graduate of the class of 1888, was elected treasurer of Harvard University at a meeting of the corporation held yesterday afternoon, in place of Edward William Hooper, '74, resigned.

Built His Home on His Wife's Grave.

Colonel Elishe De Board of Gilmer County, Ga., is probably the only man whose home is on a grave. He has just built a house on the spot where his beloved wife rests, on the beautiful mountain side, near his mansion, at Ellijay. The structure is a small but substantial octagon of stone, and on the great iron opening into the single room is the inscription "One in life and one in death."

Colonel De Board, who is past four score years, lost the partner of half a century five years ago. His wife was his comfort and his inspiration in life, and now she is his solace in death.

Around the windows the rarest flowers have been planted, and the venerable patriarch spends the days in beautifying the surrounding yards. At night he finds repose and rest within touch of the grave he loves so well.—New York Journal.

Not West Pointers.

We regret it when so able an authority as The Outlook is caught napping, but a recent editorial in its pages says that during the civil war the north spent two years in learning how to fight and in discovering and educating its generals. Then it adds, "At the end of that war every man who had secured a first place in either army was a graduate of West Point." Let us see. On the Union side there was General Alfred H. Terry, who secured a first place if any man ever did, an able fighter and tactician. There again was General Miles, now the head of all the armies of the United States. He won brilliant distinction during the war. Once more there was that self educated soldier Mr. Rutherford B. Hayes. He was a brave enough leader to get himself severely wounded in battle and to rise to be a major general. Afterward his countrymen trusted him enough to make him president of the United States. H. C. Corbin, the present adjutant general of the United States army, is another soldier whose military education was got in actual service and not West Point.

On the Confederate side we recall at this moment General N. B. Forrest, along certain lines the ablest cavalry leader on either side during the civil war.

We certainly do not belittle the value of a West Point education. An officer is much better equipped when he has it, provided always it does not make a military snob of him, in which he is better without it. But where, for instance, did Washington get his training for war? There were generals before West Point was founded.

Moral of Wyckoff's Wanderings.

The intensely interesting story of Walter A. Wyckoff's wanderings still continues in Scribner's Magazine. At the last writing he was in Chicago yet and was just quitting a situation which he had got at $1.50 a day.

There is a moral to the Wyckoff sketches which perhaps he himself did not intend to convey, but it is conspicuously present. In brief it is this: Stick to your job. So far as we remember, Wyckoff was in no instance discharged from any employment he had obtained. He left it voluntarily to go in search of new fields and new experiences. That was part of his plan. Nevertheless in half a dozen cases if he had simply remained in the place he had obtained to do unskilled labor he would have been there still earning wages that at least would have made him a living. His bitter experiences came because he left the employment he had found to go in search of fresh experience.

Mr. Wyckoff probably illustrated in a different way from what he intended one phase of the situation in reference to unemployed labor. Like Mr. Wyckoff, other men want to move to new places. The impulse of wandering comes over them and they do not resist it. If they stuck to their work and kept their eyes open and their habits good, there would at least half the time be opportunity for them to rise to a better plane of existence.

A poem ought to be written on the man in the military mast. If you look at the picture of a man-of-war, you will see far up in each mast one or two places where a steel rim has been built around. Inside these steel rims are cannon and gunners. The place of the gunner in the military mast is the most dangerous of any on the whole ship. That grim, steel inclosed disk is the target at which the enemy's shot and shell are aimed.

France indeed has need to pocket her spite and jealousy of us at present, even if she secretly cherishes any such feelings toward us, which it is to be hoped is not the case. France would be loser to the extent of some millions of dollars annually by indulging in hostile remarks concerning us. American tourists spend money like water there and American merchants are lavish importers of French goods.

Something new in the annals of war is a matron for a regiment, in which capacity Mrs. Susan A. Glenn of Washington, a soldier's widow and mother of a soldier in the present war, goes to the front.

It is like Spain, after the United States had declared we would not resort to privateering, to take up and put in practice this vanished relic of the warfare of barbarous nations.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News, but Just as Interesting.

Joseph T. Vail, of North avenue, has a watch which he carries of which he is justly proud. His father carried the timepiece for nearly forty years, and Mr. Vail has carried it about twenty-seven years. It is of English make and is one of the most accurate watches to be found. Mr. Vail also has a much valued pocketbook which he has carried thirty years and it is in fine condition. Mr. Vail says that he has had a number of pocketbooks presented to him at different times, but he prefers to carry his old friend.

* * * * *

When the Third New York Provision Regiment passed through Plainfield Saturday evening, enroute to the front, a message written on a piece of hardtack was left behind. The address finally reached its destination but the message was smashed into a thousand fragments. Among the members of the company from Hornellsville in the regiment were Richard Carter and Raymond Cottrell, both of Alfred, and nephews of J. P. Mosher, of East Fifth street. Carter wrote a message to his cousin, Miss Maud Mosher, of this city, on a piece of hard-tack. On the otherside was the address and the initials of the finder. As their train passed through here at seven o'clock, Saturday evening, Carter stood on the step and tried to hand the hard-tack to some of the boys standing at the station. He finally tossed it and it struck a man's hat. The hard-tack was split, the man catching the half with the address on it while the message side was dashed to pieces. The hard-tack was delived to Miss Mosher and she now keeps it as a souvenir

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, June 2—The funeral services of the late David Runyon were held last Tuesday afternoon from the home of Runyon Clawson. Rev. F. E. Peterson, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, officiated. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, and the floral tributes were beautiful. Interment was in the Seventh-Day Baptist cemetery.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, June 2.—Roy Day goes to Camp Black today. Roy says he intends to enlist.

The class of '98 of the public school held a strawberry and ice cream festival in Excelsior Hall Tuesday evening The proceeds will be used by the class to defray the expenses of the reception to be given by the class at the commencement exercises.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, June 2—A large number of ladies from this town will attend the second annual birthday party of the Little Missionary Day Nursery, to be held in New York this evening.

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Benj. J. Crosby on Westfield avenue yesterday afternoon, when at 5 o'clock their daughter, Miss May J. Crosby, was united in marriage to Morland T. Townley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Townley. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the Methodist church, assisted by Rev. W. A. Ruth, of Rahway, under a canopy of American flags. Isaac M. Townley, a brother of the groom, acted as best man, and Miss Grace Crosby, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The ushers were Robert M. Crosby and Wm. Townley. Music was furnished by Wm. Hambridge and Charles Austin, of Newark. There were about one hundred guests present from Roselle, Dunellen, Plainfield, Philadelphia, Rahway, New York and Westfield. The newly-married couple left on an evening train for a short trip through New York State.

Rev. Henry Ketcham has returned home after a two weeks' stay at Asbury Park. Last Sunday Mr. Ketcham occupied the pulpit of the First Congregational church at that place.

A large American flag floats from the Congregational church. This is the first church in Westfield to show the Stars and Stripes during the present war.

Don't fail to hear the lecture on "Cuba" to be given under the auspiecss of Central Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., in Arcanum Hall tomorrow evening.

GARWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Garwood, June 2—From the preparations now under way at the Hercules Iron Tube Works, it is evident that the shops will not be opened again soon. The machinery is being put in shape for a long spell of idleness. Many of the people employed there are leaving Garwood. At the works of the C. and C. Electric Motor Company everything is activity and the works are being run full time and half of the night to keep up with orders.

The Garwood Land Improvement Company has refused to give consent to the trolley road to pass the property of the company through Garwood, which necessitates a change of route for the street railroad.

Mrs. T. W. Saunders, of Williamstown, Mass., is the guest of her brother, D. E. Titsworth, of West Seventh street.

Rev. A. E. Main, of Central avenue, has returned after attending the meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist churches at Rockville, R. I.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

A Fad for Engaged Girls.

It used to be the correct thing when a young woman was engaged to be married to have a double picture frame in her boudoir, or bed room, containing a photograph of her fiance and herself. Twenty-five years ago it was the fashion to have your photograph taken with the young man you were engaged to, and that was placed on your dressing table. Now there is a new fad. You must not, of course, that is not considered good form. Nor be photographed with your fiance—must you even have your picture in the same frame with his. The new fad is to have a frame holding four cabinet size photographs, and in this you must put four pictures of your fiance in four different positions—one full face, one side face, one three-quarters face and one profile. It is rather an interesting idea, as it is astonishing how changed a person's expression is with the face in different positions. One of these sets of photographs was seen the other day on a young girl's writing desk, and it was hard to believe that the profile and the full face were of the same man. This is one of the latest fads for engaged men as well as girls.—Detroit Free Press.

A Woman as Dog Enumerator.

Mrs. Sarah A .Richart is dog enumerator for Kansas City, Kan. She took the office for the sake of keeping the library. Five years ago there were seven literary clubs in the city; they formed a federation and started a library, which in two years grew beyond their capacity to support by free contributions. An appeal was made to the city, but the proposition to levy a tax was voted down. The women then asked for the dog tax as a help to the library. The tax was rarely collected, and the town was full of uncollared dogs. An ordinance to give the tax to the library was decided to be illegal. After much deliberation the women asked that they be given the cost of collecting the dog tax. That was done, and the office of dog enumerator was created. The men smiled, but the women meant business. The Mayor appointed Mrs. Richart enumerator. She receives one-half of the dog tax for her services and this she turns over to the library. The result is that the city is receiving much more money for dog tax than ever before, while the income of the library surpasses the women's utmost hopes. The plan has worked so well that it is proposed at Lyons, Ia., to make Mrs. M. H. Westbrook dog enumerator ,for the benefit of the Lyons library.—Woman's Journal

Rule for Making Bed Slippers.

The materals for bed slippers are: Two and a half skeins of Germantown wool and five No. 14 steel needles. On each of four needles cast thirty-six stitches. Knit 1, seam 1, and repeat for four rounds. Knit plain until you have half the width of the sole, as the slipper is joined across the bottom of the foot. The decreasing is done in the centre of one needle, and forms the instep; thus, narrow, knit two plain stitches, narrow. Make the ribbing as follows: Knit three rounds plain, seam three rounds, and repeat until you have five ribs plain, and five ribs seamed, always narrowing in the same way, and place every round until it is small enough for the ankle. Then knit one round plain, and one round by throwing the thread over the needle and narrowing, followed by one plain round. For the leg, knit two and seam two, until as long as desired. Join the bottom of the foot; finish the upper edge with a simple crocheted shell and run a narrow ribbon through the open spaces. The size can be varied by increasing or decreasing the number of stitches. These bed slippers or socks are very comfortable for invalids or elderly people.

Rich Girls Study Nursing.

A nurse who was graduated recently from one of the training schools of a New York city hospital says that a number of the members of her class were girls from wealthy or very well-to-do families who were studying nursing as a part of a liberal education. They had no idea of applying the knowledge they gained in any particular way, only to meet such emergencies as might come to them in life. One girl who was to marry a country doctor was taking the course to be able to assist her husband and take an intelligent interest in his work And the rich girls the nurse said, were, if anything, more enthusiastic and more devoted to their work than the girls who were taking up the profession as a means of livelihood.

A Swedish Waste Paper Basket.

The very prettiest and most attractive waste paper baskets to be found are Swedish. They are made of splints, and are in the shape of a big, square, thick envelope. The basket is painted in bright colors in crude designs of clover leaves and hearts, and ornamented further with rosettes of flannel tacked on to the basket in uldifferent places. The description is not attractive but the picturesqueness and effectiveness of the baskets make them well worth having. They hang, by a twisted cord, on the side of the desk, on the wall, or on a convenient table. One of the prettiest costs $8.50.—New York Times.

For Bicycle Suits.

Another objection to bicycling is overcome. An underskirt has been perfected which combines knicker-bocker and petticoat, giving the advantages of both without their disadvantages. The garment is known as the "Cythere," which name was chosen for its attractiveness.

With the Cythere, it is unnecessary to wear tights, though some lisle or light wool undergarment should supplement the article. Neither does the Cythere take the places of stockings. They begin at the knee, where the knickerbockers leave off. The chief advantage of this novelty is the added and desirable petticoat element. Men, it seems, deprecate such athletic costumes for women, as it dispenses with the traditional feminine garment.

Whether the inventor wrought in response to this masculine wail for the retention of the non-bifurcated underskirt; whether the wish of the women to be obliging or if the Cythere represents the natural reaction from great skirt to no skirt, then to little skirt, is not explained. It is. And such women as hitherto have found their athletic costumes incomplete, there is made with a deep yoke, the skirt and knickerbockers are attached below the hips, thus there is no fullness at the belt line.

The garment is unlined; the knickerbockers and skirt are of one fabric and hue. The former finish at the knee, while the latter is longer, the depth of the outer skirt. A fall from a wheel, a sudden gust of wind, would not discover so generously a woman wearing this sort of garment as one sans petticoat. The silk ones are frilled, but those of brilliantine are not. The skirt opens the entire length on either side, which is a gain for ease in locomotion. A woman of taste, of course, has all visible or possibly visible underwear match outerwear on the wheel, in color. These red Cytheres are to be countenanced only for golf, traveling or walking under circumstances in which the skirt would show only the least occasional bit.

There has been an immense sale this season of genuine Scotch tweeds, as these materials are in high favor for cycling and travelling dresses. The patterns are handsome, and, besides the soft gray mixtures, show any number of pretty color-blendings. The durability of these goods we are entirely familiar with. For general uses they rank well with English serge and the stylish waterproof cravenettes.

Dainty Flower Toques.

Toques composed entirely of flowers will be very much in fashion this summer. They are uncommonly pretty, genteel, and becoming this year, as the blossoms are daintily veiled with tulle or fine-meshed silk net. A charming French model is composed of perfectly natural-looking roses, shading from damask red to the faintest pink, intermixed with any amount of tender green tea-rose foliage that deepens in places into brownish red. Four or five lovely buds and leaves form a graceful aigrette at one side. Covering the entire toque, with the exception of the aigrette, is a misty veiling of soft green tulle; this also forming the face veil. The entire drapery is fixed in place with tiny jewelled pins, the veiling covering the flowers with a lace-like and softening effect.

Flowers in Abundance.

For those who are tired of violets, even of the best Parisian manufacture, are provided pretty wreaths and bunches of purple-blue iris, hyacinths, ragged-sailor blooms, periwinkles, white and lilac stocks, primulas, and Scottish blue-bells. Primulas of French make look very pretty in artificial form, and the foliage is decorative. Sprays of shaded nasturtium blossoms in velvet are very often seen on French hats and bonnets, the flowers as a rule veiled with brown, green, or black tulle. A harmony in green and white for a summer hat is charming—only very delicate foliage being employed, such as maiden-hair fern, shamrock, clover leaves, creeping Charlie in shaded velvet and tulle for the green portions, and lilac sprays, silk choux, rosebuds, mountain daisies, ostrich plumes, dogblossoms, and hawthern for the white garnitures.

Beautiful Dress Goods.

Plain and fancy mohairs glace, an uncommonly large and attractive exhibit of checked and fancy mixed suitings, self-colored fabrics in camel's hair, English serge, Henrietta cloth, drap d'Alma, French diagonals, and mohair armures, veilings, white and ecru linens, and batistes in striped, flowered, and dotted patterns, and grenadines in wool, as well as silk and wool weaves, are among the most popular dress goods set forth this week by all the leading importers of the city.

M. Paderewski, when travelling, has his piano in his bedroom, and immediately on rising commences practising, and it is a matter of difficulty to get him away from it. As an instance, when he was at Manchester in the winter of 1890 he remained there exactly forty-eight hours, and out of that time he was at the piano twenty-seven.

Berlin. Die verwittwete Frau Geheime Kommerzienrath Schwabach hat zu Ehren ihres am 23. Februar d. J. verstorbenen Gemahls dem Magistrat die Summe von 100,000 Mark zur Vertheilung an verschämte Bedürftige ohne Unterschied des religiösen Bekenntnisses überwiesen.—Der kürzlich in einer Vormundschaftssache vorgeladene pensionirte irrsinnige Lokomotivführer Kramer gerieth während der rein geschäftsmäßigen Verhandlung so in Wuth, daß er den als Richter fungirenden Assessor Wolff zu erschießen suchte. Als ihm dies nicht gelang, erschoß er sich selbst, ohne daß die paar als Interessenten im Gerichtszimmer Anwesenden dies verhindern konnten.—Sein 50jähriges Professorenjubiläum feierte dieser Tage der berühmte Lehrer der Rechtswissenschaften an der hiesigen Universität, Albert Friedrich Berner.—Mitte Juni findet hier der diesjährige deutsche Gastwirthstag statt.

Luckenwalde. Nachdem die Regierung in Potsdam zweimal die Wahl des Fabrikbesitzers Kallenbach hier zum unbesoldeten Stadtrath nicht bestätigt und bei einer abermaligen Wiederwahl die kommissärische Besetzung des Amtes angedroht hat, wurde von der Stadtverordneten-Versammlung in drei Wahlgängen der praktische Arzt Dr. Günther zum unbesoldeten Stadtrath gewählt. Der Gewählte war bisher Stadtverordneter und gehört der konservativen Partei an.

Provinz Hessen-Nassau.

Kassel. Ein schweres Unglück ereignete sich in der Unterneustadt. Zwei Kinder im Alter von sechs bis sieben Jahren, ein Knabe und ein Mädchen, hatten sich im sogenannten „Ziegenstall" nach der Fulda zu eine Schaukel hergerichtet. Plötzlich verloren sie Beide den Halt und wurden in die hochgehenden Wogen der Fulda geschleudert, in denen sie verschwanden, ehe Hilfe gebracht werden konnte.

Frankfurt. Eine Frau Müller in Homburg v. d. H. hatte mit einer Hauseinwohnerin einen thätlichen Streit. Diese legte ein Bündel Haare auf den Richtertisch und behauptete, die Müller habe ihr diese Haare ausgerissen. Bei näherem Zusehen ergab sich aber, daß das corpus delicti ein falscher Zopf war. Die Strafkammer hob denn auch das auf vier Tage Gefängniß lautende Urtheil des Homburger Schöffengerichts auf und erkannte auf Freisprechung.

Stettin. Der hiesige Konsumverein, der am 1. Januar d. J. 17,202 Mitglieder zählte und im vorigen Jahre einen Waarenumsatz von 2,406,780 Mark hatte, ist von den Sozialdemokraten ganz „erobert" worden. In der Hauptversammlung der letzten Jahre hatten sie stets, wenn es eine Wahl in den Vorstand galt, ihre Massen aufgeboten. Gegenwärtig gehören von den fünf Mitgliedern des Vorstandes vier der sozialdemokratischen Partei an, und zum Vorsitzenden ist der Reichstagsabgeordnete von Stettin, Herbert gewählt worden.

NEW SACRED EDIFICE

LONDON IS TO HAVE A CATHEDRAL OF GREAT SIZE.

It Is Being Built by the English Catholics—Its Completion Will Celebrate the Church's Golden Jubilee In England. The Interior Will Be a Work of Art.

Ever since the hierarchy of the Catholic church was restored in England—in 1850—it has been the ambition of those having the advancement of the church at heart to see erected in London a cathedral which should bear favorable comparison with other sacred edifices for which England is so justly celebrated. This idea was first conceived by Cardinal Wiseman, who left it as a legacy to Cardinal Manning, who in his turn handed it down to Cardinal Vaughan, the present archbishop of Westminster, from which see the new cathedral will take its name. As the building will be one of the most magnificent churches in the world and its completion will mark the golden jubilee of the Catholic church in England a description of it will be read with interest.

The cathedral, for which the site of nearly four acres was obtained by Cardinal Manning and in great part paid for after 19 years of persevering effort, is being erected in the Byzantine style. It will consist of a noble porch; a narthex, or vestibule, extending across the whole width of the cathedral; a campanile; a nave and two aisles, with eight side chapels and transepts; a sanctuary, 4½ feet above the level of the nave, with the Blessed Sacrament chapel and the Lady chapel at the sides; beyond the sanctuary a raised choir, 13 feet above the nave, for the chanting of the divine office, with a crypt beneath it; a spacious gallery over the aisles and at the west end, and beneath the Blessed Sacrament chapel two vast sacristies and other rooms connected with them.

The extreme external length of the edifice is 360 feet; width, 156 feet; height of nave, 117 feet; height of facade (not including the turrets), 101 feet; height of campanile, 273 feet, and to the top of the cross, 283 feet. The internal dimensions are: Length from the main entrance to the sanctuary, 232 feet; depth of the sanctuary, 62 feet, and of the raised choir beyond it, 48 feet—making the total internal length 342 feet; width of nave, 60 feet; width across nave and aisles, 98 feet; across nave, aisles and side chapels, 148 feet; height of the main arches of the nave, 90 feet, and of the three domes of the nave, 112 feet.

The exterior of the cathedral will be most imposing, and architecturally considered it will be one of the finest modern buildings in all Europe. Internally the appearance of the cathedral will be most impressive, with the full view of 342 feet of length; its vast nave, much wider and higher than any nave in England; the 12 lower arches on each side of the nave, supporting the stately gallery; above each two of these arches a lofty arch of 73 feet in height; above each two of the latter a still loftier arch of 90 feet, and rising above the highest arches the three domes of the nave. Besides the nave there will be the aisles and the side chapels, the transepts, with the two spacious chapels opening into them at each side of the sanctuary, and the whole interior will be so proportioned in the subordination of its various parts that, vast as the cathedral will in reality be, its dimensions will appear even greater than they are.

The interior will be a sumptuous work of art. Besides the massive piers there will be (in the nave, aisles and transepts) 28 columns of marble, with a marble front to the gallery, and in time, when means are found, the lower walls and the height of about 38 feet will be covered with marble, and the whole upper part of the piers and walls, the vaults and the concrete domes will be decorated with mosaic work illustrating the history of the Catholic church.

The first stone of the cathedral was laid on June 29, 1895, by Cardinal Vaughan, assisted by Cardinal Logue, in the presence of a distinguished concourse of clergy and laity, and since then there has already been expended $215,000. In November, 1896, the superstructure was commenced and the walls are already up to a height of 40 feet. Since the starting of the building project of May, 1894, about $330,000 has been collected in aid of the project, and it is Cardinal Vaughan's idea that the work shall go on as the necessary funds are collected. To this end his eminence issues a call to English Catholics throughout the world to help him erect this stately edifice not only as signalizing the progress of Catholicism in England, but as a memorial to the services of his two predecessors in the see of Westminster.—Chicago Tribune.

Order of Cistercian Monks.

The order of Cistercian Monks recently celebrated its eight hundredth anniversary, having been founded by the Benedictine, Robert of Molesme, at Citeaux, in Burgundy, in 1098. The order possesses a mighty history and was much more widely extended years ago than it is now. It then had over 2,000 monasteries, and probably now does not possess a tenth of that number. It is the parent of the Trappist order, and the Templars, the Knights of Alcantara, Calatrava and Montesa, in Spain, and of Christ, in Portugal, derived their rules from it. Bernard of Clairvaux was one of its members and fills the greatest place in its history.—New York Tribune.

Tsching-ts-Jen, the new Chinese embassador to France, is a Catholic. He comes of a family that was converted two centuries ago by a Jesuit missionary and has remained Catholic ever since.

ABOUT THE POPES.

Eighty of Them Honored as Saints, Thirty-one as Martyrs.

Eighty of the popes are honored as saints, 31 martyrs and 43 confessors, says The Weekly Bouquet. St. Agatho was the only pope who lived to be a centenarian, as he is also the only one after St. Peter who may be honored with the title of "miracle worker." St. Agatho died at the age of 107. The popes have been drawn from all classes of society. Many were nobles in rank or of great wealth. Others sprang from obscurity. Sixtus VI was the son of a fisherman, Alexander V was the son of poor, unknown parents, and passed his first years in begging from door to door. Adrian IV, the only English pope, was abandoned by his father and had to subsist on charity until, going to France, he entered a convent as a servant, where by his intelligence and his virtues he was afterward deemed worthy to be received into religion.

Sixtus V had for his father a poor laborer, for mother a servant and for sister a laundress. St. Celestine V was the son of a simple farmer. Urban IV had a carpenter for his father, as also had Gregory VII. Five of the popes had studied medicine before taking holy orders. Benedict XI was the child of a notary, Julius III was the descendant of a jurisconsult, Pelagius I was a son of the vicar of the prefect of his province, Paul V had for his father a patrician of Sienna and Eugene IV, George XIII and Alexander VII belonged to the patrician families of Venice. Whatever their origin, however, they no sooner acceded to the chair of St. Peter than they displayed great wisdom, great charity, great dignity and great piety.

THE GOLDEN ROSE.

The blessing of the golden rose is a ceremony which takes place in Rome during the Lenten season and always in the Sistine chapel. The ceremony of blessing the rose was performed for the first time by Leo IX in 1050, and it was intended to be presented to any Catholic sovereign the pope desired to honor for his or her piety and charity. Of late years the laity have shared this honor. Mrs. John Mackay and Miss Caldwell, both Americans, have been honored with the golden rose. The queen of Portugal was the last recipient. Who will be the next one is a question which will soon be answered.

As the procession of priests and cardinals enters the Sistine chapel a prelate is seen bearing before the holy father a golden rose which is beautifully wrought. After the prayers appointed to be used on this occasion the holy father anoints the rose and places in the center of it some balsam and musk, in a place made for it. He afterward sprinkles it with holy water and incense. It is then carried before him in procession and placed on the altar. After the mass it is again brought back to the sacristy with the same ceremonies, and is kept in the Vatican until the pope chooses to bestow it upon some favored person.—New York Tribune.

REGARDING "QUO VADIS."

The following self explanatory communication has been given out for publication in The Catholic Telegraph from the residence of Archbishop William H. Elder:

As regarding the book "Quo Vadis," the archbishop is not disposed to take part in the discussion of how much or how little harm it may do to readers, young or old. He wishes, however, that the Catholic institutions, schools, colleges, etc., of the diocese of Cincinnati should not take on themselves the responsibility of favoring its being read by persons under their care; particularly that they should not give it for premiums nor cast it in their libraries. By order of the archbishop.

HENRY MOELLER, Chancellor.

Blessing a Fishing Fleet.

An interesting ceremony took place at Paimpol, in Brittany, recently. Mgr. Fallieres, bishop of St. Brieuc and Treguier, formally blessed some 40 vessels which were about to sail for the season's fishing in the neighborhood of Iceland. There was a long procession through the streets of the quaint old town, headed by the statue of Notre Dame of Good Help, carried under a rich baldaquin and followed by the captains, men and owners of the vessels. The fleet is not so numerous this year as last, there being 40 schooners and 17 luggers, whereas last year there were 47 schooners and 14 luggers. The falling off is attributed to the bad prices brought by last year's catch. Over 2,000 sailors and their families derive their means of subsistence from this industry.—London Post.

Apostleship of Prayer Association.

Several important changes have been made lately in the organization known as the Apostleship of Prayer, in league with the Sacred Heart of Jesus. The director general of the association will henceforth be the general of the Society of Jesus. He will appoint and delegate his assistants in the various parts of the world. The Apostleship is a world-wide organization. There are 55,000 aggregations, or local centers, as they are called, and it is estimated that 25,000,000 Catholics take part in its practices. Of these at least 3,000,000 are associates of the 5,000 centers aggregated in the United States alone. Already 60 diocesan directors have been appointed in the United States.—Boston Herald.

An Ancient Breviary.

The breviary used in his prison by Mgr. Darboy, the archbishop of Paris, martyred during the commune of 1870, has come to light after 27 years and has recently taken its place among the treasures of Notre Dame. It is given by the archbishop of Paris, who lately received it from one of the priests of his diocese, the Abbe Jouin, cure of St. Medard.—Boston Herald.

THREE DAYS TO EUROPE.

Notwithstanding the constantly decreasing time of a voyage across the Atlantic, New Yorkers are not satisfied. The delay of a day or two now in the foreign mails causes more criticism that a week's tardiness would have done a quarter of a century ago. The cable service has done much to bring the continents nearer together as regards the great events of the day, and this, in turn, with the diminished time of the "ocean greyhounds," has resulted in creating a demand for still closer connections between the Old World and the New.

Partly to meet this demand, but chiefly in the interest of Canadian trade and commerce, the Canadian Government has planned for a considerable shortening of time between England and America. The Dominion Government, beginning in 1898, will give an annual subsidy of $500,000 for ten years, and the British Government a still further bonus of $250,000 per year to a steamship company which is to send across the Atlantic vessels of the highest standard with a speed guaranty of 500 knots in twenty-four hours, the company to forfeit $1,000 for every failure to make a voyage under the prescribed conditions.

The great Eastern projection of the American continent into the Atlantic is also to be utilized in shortening the voyage, thus saving 1,000 miles over the route from New York to Liverpool and easily reducing the time of an ocean voyage to four days. Should the Eastern coast of Newfoundland eventually become the point of departure for Europe this will knock off another 500 miles of ocean voyage, making a possibility of a transatlantic trip of three days from Newfoundland to Cork, lower than which there does not seem to be any probable prospect of reduction.—Chicago News.

HOW BUTLER GOT THE AMERICA.

He Did Not Buy It but Was Presented with It by Greatful Clients.

One of General Butler's closest yachting friends tells an interesting story concerning the General's connection with the cotton claims which arose out of the seizures by the Government during the late war and were before the courts in Washington a long time before the claimants were victorious. This man, who has been in active practice at the Suffolk bar many years, and got the story from General Butler's own lips, says the General did not come into possession of the famous yacht America by purchase, as generally supposed, but by gift, in the following manner: After the cotton claims had been pressed unavailingly for some time, the Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar, who was interested in them, and later was himself on the Supreme Bench of the United States, induced General Butler to take up the case and press it to a termination. Butler was finally successful in his suit and received a check for $25,000 from his gratified clients. Mr. Lamar also wrote him a letter in which he stated that he and his friends understood that the General was an enthusiastic yachtsman, and as they had come into possession of the old America after she had been raised from the spot where she had been sunk as a blockade runner during the war, they would be pleased if he would accept her as a gift, showing their further appreciation of his efforts in their behalf. This story, the writer's informant says, he believes to be entirely true.—Boston Herald.

Clothes Made of Corn Husks.

When the farmers of Kansas, jubilant over the bountiful harvest, decided three years ago to gravitate toward Atchison in a body, there to hold a great corn carnival, they little suspected that the gathering would one day attract universal attention. So unique was the display made during the carnival of the past year that the managers of the great exposition to be held in Paris in 1900 have heard about it, and have written to the town officials of Atchison asking them to accept a place in the exposition grounds to be devoted exclusively to exhibiting the costumes and decorations that are gotten up in connection with the Kansas corn carnival. The proposition has been favorably received, and as such an exhibit will do much to advertise the corn of this country, and so increase the demand for it from abroad, it is believed that the plan will receive not only State but Government support.

No Discrimination.

An aged Georgia negro, Nathan by name, is employed by a gentleman very prominent in State politics.

"Marse Jim," said Nathan, "is you gwine in dis yere race fer Governor?"

"Haven't thought about it."

"Well, ef yer does run, an' gits elected, will you give me a job?"

"Certainly, I would remember you, Nathan. What would you like?"

"Well, suh, I'd des like ter black boots round de Capitol."

"And what would you expect for that service?"

"Well, sur," he replied. "I should say $4 a day would be reasonable. Das what de yuther legislators get."—Atlanta Constitution.

Clara—"Well, aunt, have your photographs come from Mr. Snappeschotte's?"

Miss Maydeval (angrily)—"Yes, and they went back, too, with a note expressing my opinion of his impudence."

Clara—"Gracious! What was it?"

Miss Maydeval—"Why, on the back of every picture were these words: 'The original of this is carefully preserved.'"

SUCCESS IN ORATORY.

R. G. INGERSOLL POINTS THE WAY TO IT IN GRAPHIC LANGUAGE.

The Young Aspirant is Advised, for One Thing to Avoid Reference to Himself—To Study Language and Books and to be a Student of Shakspeare.

To the young man who aspires to be a leader of men, whether in political affairs or otherwise, it is quite ceretain that the art of public speaking is as useful now as it ever was. Colonel Ingersoll, as a past master of the art, was induced to give his ideas on the subject the other evening.

What advice would you give to a young man who was ambitious to become a successful public speaker or orator? he was asked.

"In the first place," said Colonel Ingersoll, "I would advise him to have something to say—something worth saying—something that people would be glad to hear. This is the important thing. Back of the art of speaking must be the power to think. Without thoughts words are empty purses. I would advise the young man to study his subject, to find what others had thought, to look at it from all sides. Then I would tell him to write out his thoughts or to arrange them in his mind, so that he would know exactly what he was going to say. Waste no time on the how, until you are satisfied with the what. After you know what you are to say, then you can think of how it should be said. Then you can think about tone, emphasis and gesture; but if you really understand what you say, emphasis, tone and gesture will take care of themselves. The orator should be true to his subject, should avoid any reference to himself.

ROBERT G. INGERSOLL.

"The great column of his argument should be unbroken. He can adorn it with vines and flowers, but they should not be in such profusion as to hide the column. He should give variety of episodes by illustration, but they should be used only for the purpose of adding strength to the argument.

"The great orator is full of variety—of surprises. Like a juggler, he keeps the colored balls in the air. He expresses himself in pictures. His speech is a panorama. By continued change he holds the attention. The interest does not flag. He does not allow himself to be anticipated. He is always in advance. He does not repeat himself. A picture is shown but once. So, an orator should avoid the commonplace. There should be no stuffing, no filling. He should remember that gilded dust is not as good as dusted gold. The great orator is honest, sincere. He does not pretend. His brain and heart go together. Every drop of his blood is convinced. Nothing is forced. He knows exactly what he wishes to do—knows when he has finished it, and stops.

"Only a great orator knows when and how to close. Most speakers go on after they are through. They are satisfied only with a "lame and impotent conclusion." Most speakers lack variety. They travel a straight and and dusty road. The great orator is full of episode. He convinces and charms by indirection. He leaves the road, visits the fields, murmurs in the woods, listens to the murmurs of springs, the songs of birds. He gathers flowers, scales the crags and comes back to the highway refreshed, invigorated. He does not move in a straight line. He wanders and winds like a stream.

"Of course, no one can tell a man what to do to become an orator. The great orator has that wonderful thing called presence. He has the strange something known as magnetism. He must have a flexible, musical voice, capable of expressing the pathetic, the humorous, the heroic. His body must move in unison with his thought. He must be a reasoner, a logician. He must have a keen sense of humor—of the laughable. He must have wit, sharp and quick. He must have sympathy. His smiles should be the neighbors of his tears. He must have imagination. He should give eagles to the air, and painted moths should flutter in the sunlight.

"There should be no introduction to an oration. The orator should commence with his subject. There should be no prelude, no flourish, no apology, no explanation. He should say nothing about himself. Like a sculptor, he stands by his block of stone. Every stroke is for a purpose. As he works the form begins to appear. When the statue is finished, the workman stops. Nothing is more difficult than a perfect close. Few poems, few pieces of music, few novels end well. A good story, a great speech, a perfect poem, should end just at the proper point. The bud, the blossom, the fruit. No delay. A great speech is a crystallization in its logic, and effervescence in its poetry."

It seems likely that Warren McLoughlin will permanently fill the position of McLarty as pitcher for the Crescents. McLarty is not as much in favor as he was promised to be. McLoughlin, on the contrary, is pitching mighty good ball, very seldom gets rattled and is very popular with the Plainfield cranks. Then, too, he is a Plainfield boy and home talent should be encouraged when possible. He has better control of the ball than his Staten Island rival, Larty, who is apt to "go up into the air" at any time and give several consecutive bases on balls. Saturday Larty gave four in succession.

Manager Mumford was very much disgusted with the game that the Octoroons put up Monday afternoon. They came to him very highly recommended by the manager of the Orange Athletic Club, by whom they are supported. He told Mr. Mumford that, in case the Crescents defeated the Octoroons, that he would schedule a game between the O. A. C. and the Crescents. Now Manager Mumford will hold him to his agreement. Had he known the weakness of the Octoroons the game would have never been scheduled.

Dave Vroom, the Crescents' catcher, came very near being put out of the game Monday afternoon through an accident. In sliding for third, the dusky baseman struck him with the ball just over the eye. A cut and swelling was the result, and it was with difficulty that Vroom could continue at his duties behind the bat.

Neely Collins, the good looking fielder for the Crescents, is one of the luckiest fellows on the team. He also has an unusual amount of good judgment. Saturday and Monday he was sent to first time after time on four bad balls. Once on base, he is the fastest man of the whole team in slipping down the base line.

Metz, the Crescents' new short stop, made several very pretty stops Monday. In both games there were several hot grounders and liners batted fiercely in his direction. He captured them with ease, however.

Charles W. Runyon, the well known veteran ball player, was a decided success as umpire Monday afternoon. He knows the game thoroughly and was not afraid to give his decisions quickly and decidedly.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Tonight the next Y. M. C. A. run will take place. The destination of the Plainfield boys will be Summit, and a big crowd is wanted so as to make a good showing for the association in this city.

GOLF.

W. T. Kaufman, chairman of golf of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, desires The Daily Press to state that the new grounds of the club will not be opened next Saturday as previously stated. They will not be ready for some time to come. In the meantime the present grounds will still be used.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

On account of the long continued rains making it impossible to get the horses in condition, the Central New Jersey Driving Association has postponed each of its trotting meetings two weeks.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. Leggett, of Madison avenue, is the guest of friends at Passaic.

J. C. Manning and family, of Albert street, leave tomorrow for a visit to Jacksonville, Ill.

Harry Kitchen, of Duer street, has resigned his position in Trenton to accept one at the Pond Machine Tool Works.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Moseman and family, of Brooklyn, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs Alex. Martin, of East Sixth street.

J. A. Ayres and family, of New York, have leased the house at 10 Rockview avenue, and will reside for the summer.

"Doc." White, formerly of Plainfield, but now of New York, was the guest of Plainfield friends and relatives yesterday.

Curtis M. Thorpe, of Norwood avenue, left early this morning for Newburgh, N. Y., where he was called by the serious illness of his mother.

DISPUTED OWNERSHIP.

The Eclipse Bicycle Company Victorious in Contest Over Lister's Wheels.

The controversey between the Hay & Willett Manufacturing Company and the Eclipse Bicycle Company over the bicycles in the establishment of Charles C. Lister, was settled in Justice Newcorn's court this morning. The Hay & Willett Company, it will be remembered, attached the goods for a debt owed by Lister. The Eclipse Company then put in a claim that the bicycles belonged to them. The right of property was tried this morning before Justice Newcorn and a jury of six men.

As the Hay & Willett Company put in no defence the case was easily won by the bicycle company, which was represented in court by former Judge W. A. Coddington, of Reed & Coddington. The jury brought in a verdict without leaving their seats in favor of the Eclipse Company.

FRIENDS INTERESTING MEETING.

The last regular meeting for the season of the Friends' Association was held last evening with a good attendance.

The reading of President Sharpless' early history of Pennsylvania was continued and covered the period from the reign of Queen Anne until the resignation by the Quakers of political power in the assembly in 1756.

Recent magazine articles and sermons relating to our present crises were discussed, and the meeting closed with sentiments on the subject of peace.

E. B. Maynard's Brother Killed.

E. B. Maynard, the North avenue barber, received the sad news this morning by letter from Boston that his brother, John R. Maynard, was thrown from a horse while out riding and instantly killed. The deceased was well-known in this city, having been at one time employed for four years with H. P. Reynolds, when the latter was proprietor of the pharmacy corner of North and Park avenues. He leaves a wife and two children.

George Nipping, of the borough, was arrested this morning for leaving his horse on Somerset street untied. When he was arraigned before Recorder Long he was fined $2.

Work at the Hospital.

There are at present twenty-one patients at the hospital and the nurses are kept very busy. It has been some time since an accident case was received.

RAG OFFERINGS AT OLD WELLS.

The singular custom of leaving rags and other worthless objects at wells has not entirely fallen into disuse. The superstitution, in a modified form, exists in other portions of the world. A traveler in Persia found a tree with rags tied to its branches. They had been left there by the inhabitants of a province infected with ague. A tree hung with rags was found by another traveler, in Africa. Crooked pins, old clothes, pebbles, shells, rusty nails, small coins, and even bundles of heath were considered appropriate thank-offerings at shrines in earlier days, for it was believed that the saints and Apostles did not care for articles of value.

Such was the superstitious adoration of fountains that it was forbidden by the sixteenth of the canons issued in 960, in the reign of King Edgar, and it was condemned by the canons of St. Anselm. It was also interdicted by laws passed in the reign of King Canute. Since the Reformation the practice has not been prevalent, except in Ireland, where many old wells consecrated to saints and martyrs are yet made places of pilgrimage. There is scarcely a parish throughout the land that has not its own holy well, where, despite practical admonition, the faithful and the faithless come to pray for physical or mental relief, and leave behind them a scrap of rag as an offering.—Godey's Magazine.

A CONFEDERATE RELIC.

Musket Barrel Stuffed With the Order for a Traitor's Arrest.

Miss May McKinney, who resides in West Philadelphia, has for some time been collecting odd articles of bric-a-brac, with which to decorate a novel boudoir. Her elder brother, who is a traveling salesman, picks up many curios for her, and last week she received from South Carolina an old musket that he had secured. A letter which accompanied the firearm stated that the brother had purchased it at an auction that took place at an old homestead, and that it was a relic of the war of 1812. Miss McKinney examined the musket, which was very rusty, and then hired her younger brother to give it a thorough cleaning. The lad, after polishing the outside, ran a stick into the barrel and found it was choked half-way up. The stoppage seemed to be too loose for a charge, so a hooked wire was secured, and, after fishing awhile young McKinley brought out a small roll of discolored papers. Examination showed that three of the lot were plans of fortifications, and were dated 1865, being signed: "R. R. Blaisdel." The remaining document was an order for the arrest of Robert Blaisdel, who was described as a traitor to the cause, and contained the signature of General Lee.—Philadelphia Record.

A GOOD BUSINESS VENTURE.

From a single venture five years ago, small stores or booths for the sale of musical instruments have become a regular thing on the large liners that sail from England to India, Australia and the Colonies.

From the beginning the music shop was quite a success. Perhaps most of its trade runs in the direction of cheap banjos which are bought up by almost every man on board before the voyage, as a means of passing the time. Valuable violins are often more easily disposed of at sea than on shore; while even pianos meet with at least four or five customers each voyage, many people disposing of their own instruments before starting and being readily persuaded into buying others to avoid the Colonial middleman on landing.

The seabound music shop agent usually travels first class, and as he is generally possessed of gentlemanly manners and a glib tongue, he meets with better opportunities for pushing his wares than he could get under ordinary circumstances.

Kitchen Chat.

"Ever notice," asked the stove, "what a modest creature the clock is?"

"Referring, I presume," said the wood-box, "to her holding her hands before her face?"

"Why, no; not so much that as to her habit of running herself down."—Indianapolis Journal.

WIT AND HUMOR.

Jobbs—"'Pon m'word, it's funny!"
Ella—"What is?"
Jobbs—"Well, we had all our drawing room furniture altered, the piano moved and all manner of violent revolutions—and Miss Furbelow never noticed it."
Ella—"Well, I don't see any—"
Jobbs—"But yesterday when she came in she said 'Gracious! What an alteration!'"
Ella (impatiently)—"Well?"
Jobbs—"Well—we had moved the mirror!"—Ally Sloper.

Visitor to the District (who has missed his way)—"Can you tell me, my good man, if I shall pass the 'Red Lion' Inn along this road?"

The Village Toper—"Oi wouldn't like to be saying wut a gent'leman loike ye wud be doin'; but Oi'm parfect sartin Oi shouldn't!"—Punch.

"Oratory is a gift, not an acquirement," said the proud politician as he sat down after an hour's harangue. "I understand," said the matter-of-fact Chairman. "We're not blamin' you. You done the best you could."—Detroit Free Press.

WAR NEWS.

special to The Journal from Chickamauga says that William Ruby, a negro private in one of the volunteer regiments, attempted several times to cross the guard lines of the Second Kentucky regiment.

When stopped he became abusive of the guards. The Kentuckians threw a noose about his neck and dragged him to the nearest tree.

Before he could be strung up Col. Gaither appeared and interfered. The Kentuckians have been greatly harrassed by the persistent insolence of the negroes at the camp.

REPORTS OF FIGHTING RESUMED AT SANTIAGO.

Spain Again Asks the Powers to Interfere.

World Special Says the Fight at Santiago Continues—A Similar Report from Hayti—Troops Moving Against Santiago—More Troops to Leave for Manila Tuesday—Washington Waits.

THE LATEST.

Three O'Clock.

ANOTHER BATTLE

Said To Be in Progress Off Santiago de Cuba This Morning.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Port au Prince, Hayti, June 3, 11:58 a. m.—A cablegram reached here this morning stating that a battle was begun off Santiago de Cuba before 9 o'clock this morning. No details were given.

BOMBARDMENT RESUMED.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

New York, June 3, 10:30 a. m.—A special to The World from Port au Prince reports that the bombardment of Santiago by the American fleet has been resumed. No particulars are yet attainable.

Cable communication with the island of Cuba is still uninterrupted, but the fact that no response is given to the cablegram inquiring as to the resumption of the bombardment leads to such a belief.

It is thought that either the people are too excited to answer or that the Spanish authorities will not allow them to respond so as to prevent the news from reaching the United States.

EXPECT BATTLE SOON.

The Movement Against Cuba and San Juan Is Under Way Now.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 3, 1:09 p. m—Despite all denials from the government officials there is the highest authority for the statement that troops to the number of 30,000 are now enroute for San Juan and Santiago.

They were embarked at Tampa, Mobile or some other point on the southern coast and may pe halted at Key West. Though a despatch has been received denying the sailing of the transports, contrary information has been received.

It is known beyond dispute that the administration is expecting a battle in the vicinity of Santiago during the next twenty-four hours.

Major General Shafter will undoubtedly command the expedition against Santiago de Cuba, while Major General Fitz Hugh Lee will be in command of the army that will be sent against San Juan.

Major General Miles will lead the general army of invasion against Spanish provinces in the West Indies. The entire army will number 100,000 men.

A Foolish Frenchman.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Paris, June 3, 12:25 p. m.—The correspondent of a Paris paper in Madrid declares that he has learned that Admiral Cervera and his fleet have never been in Santiago harbor, but are now rapidly approaching the Philippines.

SPAIN ASKS AID.

She Makes Another Appeal to the European Powers for Intervention.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

London, June 3, 10 a. m—It is announced here that Spain has made another effort to secure aid from some of the European powers in her war with the United States.

She has addressed another appeal to the powers and asks them to intervene. The protection of their interests and unlawful actions of the United States are suggested as reasons for the step.

The Pope has again communicated with the Queen Regent of Spain and has asked her to yield and end the war. It is not considered, however, that the appeal will have any effect until a decisive battle is fought.

TROOPS FOR SANTIAGO.

They Have Already Sailed to Assist the Siege Train in Cuba.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 3, 10:40 a. m—It was learned this morning that 4,000 troops making up the first division of the army of invasion for Santiago de Cuba, had already started.

They embarked on six large transports at Tampa and are now on their way to Cuba under the convey of several powerful warships.

The second division of troops for Santiago is preparing to follow. They will sail in transports in a few days. The transports are reported to be already for them.

ON TO MANILA.

More Troops to Leave San Francisco for the Philippines Tuesday.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

San Francisco, June 3, 10:39 a. m.—Orders were issued to Major General Otis late last night to prepare the Colorado and Pennsylvania troops to go to the Philippines Tuesday.

The news caused an early stir among the troops today. It is thought by many that several other troops will accompany them.

SENATE CONCURS.

Agrees to House Amendment to Introduce Disability Bill Today.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 3, 1:05 p. m—The Senate concurred today to the house amendment to the bill removing the disability imposed by Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The disability was that no former public officer who took part in the rebellion should again hold any public office, civil or military.

IN THE SENATE.

Senators at Work on the War Revenue Bill—Amendment Offered.

FAIR ENTERTAINERS ON THE LOCAL STAGE

Closing Reception of Miss Addie Parker Jackson's Classes.

A VERY LARGE AUDIENCE.

A DELIGHTFUL PROGRAMME WAS RENDERED DURING THE EVENING.

The Reception Was Held in Y. M. C. A. Hall Last Evening—It Included an Eastern Temple Drill and a Scarf Drill, Numerous Recitations and a Farce of One Act—The Monologue by Miss Constance Patton Was One of the Hits of the Evening—The Young Women Received Many Bouquets.

As a fit closing for a very successful year, the pupils of Miss Addie Parker Jackson's classes in physical culture, gave a reception in the Y. M. C. A. hall last evening. The programme showed the large audience that crowded the hall, the success of Miss Jackson's methods and her ability and skill as a teacher.

The programme opened with a flag march by the members of her class to the tune of "The Star Spangled Banner." They were all gowned in white and carried flags. Miss Mabel Maxson acted as accompanist. Then followed an "Eastern Temple drill." The exercises were adapted from the the various forms of Oriental worship. The young women taking part in it were gowned in white and wore red sashes. They were the Misses Ethel Bowen, Evelyn Benton, Alice Conant, Euphemia Demarest, Katharine Dwight, Aimee Emmons, Stephanie Krom, Lydia Loizeaux, Cora Laire, Marie Newman, Lucy Pound, Constance Patton, Elsie Smith and Elia Serrell.

Following it was a scarf drill by the younger girls. They, too, were gowned all in white. The scarfs were red and white and made a charming effect. The participants were the Misses May Bachelor, Lucie Budlong, Jean Dunham, Edith DeLong, Mabel Pound, Norma Northrop, Katherine Bocap, Elia Serrell, Margaret Townsend and Laura VanCampen.

"The Ballad of Tonio Manzi," a recitation full of action, was well given by Miss Lucy Pound. "Ten Robber Toes" was a little recitation, for a little girl, Miss Laura Van Campen. The selection given by Jerry Manning, "The Flag Goes By," was received with much applause. He was presented with a handsome flag. Miss Mabel Pound recited "Praying for Shoes" very satisfactorily. The first of the costume recitations, "Little Red Riding Hood" was given by Miss May Batchelor, who acted the character most charmingly.

Miss Margaret Townsend, although a little tot, evinced a decided talent in her pleasing little recitation, "For the Slumber Islands, Ho." "Lucy's First Swimming Lesson" was a humorous selection by Miss Euphemia Demarest. "Afternoon Tea" was well given by Miss Lucie Budlong. Miss Katherine Dwight made a charming "Evangeline" and her rendition of a part of the well-known poem was decidedly satisfactory.

"The Coming Out of Miss Cummings," a monologue by Miss Constance Patton, was one of the events of the evening. It was the eve of the 'coming out" of an up-to-date "bud" of seventeen from the far west. Miss Patton carried out the entire piece with an ease and lack of consciousness that displayed much ability.

A sweet little poem, "The Pride of Battery B," was pleasingly given by Miss Katherine Bocap. "Molly" was the title of Miss Jean Dunham's excellent recitation. There was humor and pathos combined in the "Volunteer Organist," which was well given by Miss Lydie Loizeaux. Miss Edith DeLong made a very pretty "grandma" in her character recitation, "When Grandma Was a Little Girl."

A pathetic story, "Mary Elizabeth," was particularly adapted to the abilities of Miss Aimee Emmons, who gave it with much effect.

The "Village Gossip," as recited by Miss Ella Harold Serrell, was very realistic. "College Commencement" was effectively given by Miss Marie Newman.

The programme closed with a farce in one act, "A Blind Attachment." It was well given and brought down the house. The characters were: Mrs. Philips, Miss Elsie Smith; Mary Philips, daughter to Mrs. Philips, Miss Cora Laire; Miss Maria Fosdick, aunt to Mr. Philips, Miss Stephanie Krom; Elinor Christy, school friend to Mary, Miss Ethel Bowen; Mrs. Fogarty, boarding house keeper, Miss Alice BLOWS GAVE ANSWER.

TWO SCOTCH PLAINS CITIZENS ENGAGED IN A ROW.

W. H. Turton Asked Town Clerk Hand if He Was Ready to Whip Him, and Hand Gave Him a Practical Answer.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, June 3—As a result of an inability to hold his temper under aggrevating circumstances any longer, Edward L. Hand, clerk of the Scotch Plains township board, was arrested yesterday, on complaint of William L. Turton, a grocery dealer, charged with assault and battery. Hand was arraigned before Justice Clark last night and waiving examination he was held to await the action of the Grand Jury of Union County.

It is alleged that Turton had been saying uncomplimentary things about Hand recently. Wednesday night Hand was passing along the main street when, it is stated, Turton hailed the township clerk from a barber shop and asked him if he was ready to whip him (Turton) yet. Without further ceremony Hand, it is alleged, proceeded to carry out an answer in the affirmative in a manner that was decidedly forcible. Those who witnessed the affair say that Turton was considerably battered up as a result of his untimely questioning of Hand.

Last night Justice Clark endeavored to persuade the two men to settle their differences out of court, but as Hand declined to negotiate with the man he had already physically punished the justice was compelled to hold him for the Grand Jury.

SOMERSET BOY GOES TO WEST POINT

The examination of candidates desiring appointment to West Point was held at New Brunswick Thursday, and there were thirteen who took the examination, five from Somerset county, five from Middlesex and three from Monmouth. The examinations in the six subjects—reading, spelling, arithmetic, grammar, geography and history, were conducted by the superintendent of schools of the three counties, each superintendent taking two subjects. The questions submitted were fair and well calculated to test the student's ability.

Somerset carried off the laurels, as three from Somerset county attained the highest averages, and from these, whose names will be submitted to Congressman Howell, the appointment will probably be made.

The representatives from the county who were examined were: Richard P. McCullough, age 17 years, and Orville F. Waring, age 17, of North Plainfield; E. Llewellyn Bull, age 20, Basking Ridge; H. D. Aller, age 18, Peapack; Asher Lipman, age 16½, Bound Brook.

QUIET HOME WEDDING.

A Sister of Mrs. E. H. Ladd Married at Latter's Home.

A very quiet wedding was celebrated last night at the home of E. H. Ladd, of Franklin place, when Mrs. Ladd's sister, Miss Elizabeth Evans, of Westfield, was married to Henry Holbert Porter, of Hartford, Conn. The wedding was attended by the members of the two families and was a quiet affair.

The best man was Edgar F. Peck, of Norwich, Conn., and the ushers were Howard Atterbury, of Norwich, and Sheldon Peck, of Newark. Rev. Chas. Fiske, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, of Westfield, officiated.

Delicacies for the Soldiers.

The monthly business meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist Christian Endeavor Society was held last night at the home of Miss Henrietta Cuming, of Putnam avenue. The society, through its missionary committee, voted to send $5 to the 1st Regt., N. J. Volunteers, to be expended in delicacies.

City's Flag to Wave Again.

The American flag presented to the city, which was torn a few days ago, is now about ready to be put in service again. In the meantime a handsome flag owned by Manager Charles Runyon, of the local telephone company, is being used on the pole.

Settled Out of Court.

The case of Hetfield and others against Lambert, which was brought by Judge Newcorn as attorney for the plaintiffs, has been settled out of court.

A Week's Gospel Services.

Rev. Arthur Crane will commence a week of Gospel services in the East Third Street mission's new chapel next Sunday evening.

—"Opening" bargains tomorrow, Doane & Edsall's, corner Front street and Madison avenue.

AN INCENDIARY ATTEMPT

A LIVELY BLAZE STARTED IN HETFIELD ROW LAST NIGHT.

A Quantity of Kerosene Oil Thrown in a Window in the Apartments and Then a Match Touched by an Unkown Party.

What seems to have been a deliberate attempt at incendiarism was discovered at a late hour last night. While Frank Scott and his family, colored, who live at 314 Arlington avenue in one of the apartments in "Hetfield's Row," were out calling some unknown person saturated one of the window casings of their parlor with kerosene and touched a match to the wood. The blaze was discovered just in time to prevent a disastrous conflagration by two neighbors.

Scott and his wife left their rooms about 8 o'clock, or a little after, and went over the brook. It was nearly 10 o'clock when Thomas Smith and Augustus Johnson, colored, who live in the same building, saw a bright light in Scott's front room. Both men knew that Scott and all his folks were away, and suspected that something had taken fire in the parlor.

Smith and Johnson ran up to the front door and putting their weight against it forced the lock, and tore down the blazing curtain. A pail of water, judiciously thrown over the window-sill and carpet, put out the remaining sparks.

When Scott and his wife came home, they were very much surprised at what had happened. The police were summoned, and Mayor Fisk also came. An investigation was made and it was found that some one had thrown kerosene inside the window, which had been left open, saturating the woodwork, lace curtain, a light tablecloth and the shade.

A match had been applied and, had it not been for the quick work of the two men, the fire might have gotten under good headway before it was discovered.

The Row belongs to Postmaster John Hetfield, and is occupied by a dozen families, mostly all colored. Scott had no insurance on his furniture. He cannot imagine who would have tried to burn him out, as he has no enemies.

A few days ago Augustus Runyon, who is in charge of some work being done around the Row, lost several valuable tools which were stolen out of a tool box belonging to A. B. Thorn, the plumber. At the same time the thief took a pocket-book containing $8 and a few rings out of a vest which hung in the box, and which belonged to one of the workmen.

NUPTIAL EVENTS CELEBRATED.

Two Couples of Popular Young Colored People Wedded.

Last evening the marriage of Miss Estella Martin to William Anderson, both of 521 East Sixth street, was celebrated at the above residence. Rev. Mr. Groves, pastor of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church officiated. Miss Lobenia Turpin acted as bridemaid, while Walter Daniel was the best man. A reception followed the wedding, and there was a large attendance of colored society people of this city and neighboring towns. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will reside at 521 East Sixth street.

The marriage of Miss Josephine Davis, of Harmony street, to Edward Banks, of Scotford, Va., was celebrated last evening at the home of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Prof. Laws, of Scotford, Va. The bridemaid was Mrs. Scott, sister of the bride, and James Ross, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man. The bride and groom left last evening for a short honeymoon, after which they will reside in the borough.

INCREASED Y. M. C. A. INTEREST.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. held last evening the following officers and directors were present:

E. R. Ackerman, A. B. Beers, E. L. Bonny, Stephen Cahoone, A. C. LaBoyteaux, H. J. Martin, W. D. Murray, H. O. Newman, R. H. Radford, George Rittenhouse, Nelson Runyon and John Valiant. The following were some of the interesting matters presented in the reports: The average attendance at the Sunday afternoon meetings has been 138 per cent. larger than for the corresponding month last year, and the Bible training showed an increase of 37 per cent. Men were helped to work, recommended to boarding houses and furnished with letters of introduction.

Matters of a too confidential nature for publication were also presented. Mr. Heywood reported for the outdoor work of the physical department.

—A covenant meeting will be held at the First Baptist church this evening.

STUPENDOUS WORK IN PLAN OF COUNTY TROLLEY

CIVIL ENGINEER HUBBARD HAS COMPLETED HIS SURVEY OF PROPOSED ROUTE.

The Boulevard Will Commence on North Avenue in This City—Lots of Buildings Are in the Way and Will Have to Be Removed—Will Change Topography of the Whole Adjoining Territory.

There is no subject of such general interest to the citizens of Union county at present as the proposed county boulevard from Elizabeth to Plainfield, with the trolley line running its entire length. The making of such a boulevard and the sale of the franchise for the trolley road is now within the power of the Union County Board of Freeholders, since the Squire bill became a law and received the Governor's signature.

That the Board of Freeholders is considering such action is known. Plans for the proposed thoroughfare are now completed and the Board is awaiting the completion of the estimates of its cost. Then the capitalists of the State will be given a chance to bid for the franchise. The present plan is, should the highest bid cover or exceed the cost of the building of the great roadway through the county, the franchise will be sold under such restrictions as the Freeholders may decide on to the highest bidder, and the money expended to buy necessary property, move the buildings that are now in the path of the proposed boulevard, and construct the road itself. Thus would the county secure a magnificent road and speedway of twelve miles in length through the finest part of New Jersey, and at no expense to itself.

The plans of the county boulevard and its proposed course have been completed by Engineer Frank J. Hubbard, of this city. They give an excellent idea of what changes to property the widening of the road to 100 feet, the proposed width of the boulevard, will necessitate.

The trolley road will start from Watchung avenue on Third street, and will continue eastward on that street to Richmond street and thence to North avenue where the boulevard proper begins. Third street and Richmond street will not be widened, and only a single track will be placed in those streets.

North avenue is 66 feet wide. The additional 34 feet will be taken from the north side, starting at Richmond street. The Sorensen meat market, at the corner of Richmond street and North avenue, will have to be removed entirely. The next building in the way is the old oil-cloth works, which has a frontage of 120 feet on North avenue. It will be necessary to take 30 feet off the front. The works of the Aluminum Plate and Press Company, at the corner of Berckman street, with a frontage of 80 feet on North avenue, will have to be moved back thirty feet, or else have a portion of the front removed.

There is some talk of making a bow in the road to pass south of these buildings, but such a move would interfere with the freight house yard.

At the corner of Hull street, a residence belonging to A. J. Gavett will have to be moved back. On the opposite corner, a house, the property of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, will have to be moved back thirty feet. The house and lot at the corner of Johnson avenue will be wiped out entirely. The adjacent lots are shallow and the loss of the thirty-four feet in front will probably spoil that property.

Near the corner of Leland avenue, beyond the Netherwood station, two small houses will have to go, but there is plenty of room to move them back. Three houses on the Taylor and MacDonald property will meet the same fate, but the lots are deep and will not be injured. From that tract to Terrill road, however, the lots are shallow and will be injured by the widening of the street.

Through Fanwood, North avenue is now quite winding. The extra property for the boulevard will be so taken as to straighten it, taking off the turns but following the same general line. In Fanwood borough and township, only four buildings will be required to be moved. One of these is the present postoffice near the Fanwood station.

The property to be taken for the widening of the road is, through Fanwood, taken from first on one side and then on the other as the turns in the road necessitate. At Westfield avenue, it returns again to the north side.

Without interruption the bouvelard continues to Westfield, moving one house only, to Charles street. Beyond that thoroughfare, it is the intention to run the road right through the town of Westfield a hundred feet wide. It will be necessary to purchase the property of Mrs. Mary K. Cox, corner of North Broad street and North avenue. The house of John M. Clark will have to be moved back. The road will take the corner off of the Methodist church lot, leaving the church itself twenty feet from the sidewalk while the trolley will be seventy feet away.

The little building on the point formed by Broad street and Westfield avenue will be moved arcund to front on North avenue, and its former site converted into the new boulevard.

The line of the proposed widening takes in the handsome brick building now occupied by The Union County Standard. This it will be necessary to move, or else build a new one on the remainder of Alfred E. Pearsall's lot which is still vacant. Over a half of the new bowling alleys and clubhouse of the Westfield Social Club, fronting on Prospect street, are within the limits of the proposed boulevard. They will have to be torn down and rebuilt elsewhere.

Across the way, the front of the livery stable on the property of Theodore S. Bird will have to go. The Park Hotel, owned by Charles E. Burtis, will have to be demolished unless arrangements can be made to purchase the property in the rear and move it back.

The house at the corner of Elm street will have to be moved back as a third of the property comes in the limits of the new road. Two small houses of Mrs. Mary K. Cox and another building will have to be purchased to get the right of way. A triangular lot, belonging to C. E. Burtis, corner of Picton street, will be wiped out entirely.

There has been some talk of stopping the widening of the street between Westfield avenue and Picton street on account of the valuable property affected. The large grounds in front of the station would give an outlet and prevent crowding.

At present there is a decided zigzag in the county road beyond Picton street for the distance of a block. It is the intention to cut right through the block from Central avenue to Elmer street. It will take two-thirds of the property of Alfred E. Bormer, including his greenhouses, and will make it necessary to move three buildings on his property. The rear half of Ezra Miller's lot and a corner of the property of Mrs. Sarah Townley, both fronting on Central avenue, will be included in the path of the new boulevard.

On Elmer street a large portion of the property of John S. Irving is taken, but it will not interfere with his lumber yard. The adjacent house of L. M. Whittiker will have to be moved. The rear portion of Julius Scheele's property will also have to be acquired.

From Elmer street the boulevard will follow the course of North avenue, the strip of land necessary to widen the roadway coming from the north side. The sheds belonging to Woodruff will have to go first.

Then no buildings come inside the line until Garwood is reached where the new road house will have to be town down or moved back. Three houses in Garwood will suffer the same fate.

The crook in the county road between Garwood and Cranford will be straightened and the additional strip for the roadway will shift to the south side on entering Cranford. It will run into Cranford on the south side and the twelve buildings included in its limits will have to go.

At Eastman street, the widening will end and the road way and trolley tracks will follow the present course of North avenue past the post office block to Alden street. It was suggested that the boulevard follow a course behind the post office block and continue a hundred feet wide.

The extra property for the enlarged roadway will, from the bridge over the Rahway river, be acquired on the north side. The bride will have to be widened. Ten houses will have to be moved, but the Episcopal church at the corner of Forrest avenue will not be touched.

The road will then continue through Union township on the county road, which at that point changes its name from North avenue to Westfield ave-

OUR INVADING FORCES

Confused Statements Regarding Movement of Troops

OFFICIALS ARE RETICENT

A Dispatch From Tampa Denies the Story That an Invading Expedition Has Left There for Cuba, While Reports from Washington State That a Battalion of Engineers With Siege Guns and Field Trains Are on The Way.

Until definite and official news is received from the fleets of Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley, it is the generally expressed opinion among the army officers that no movement of troops from here in the direction of Cuba will be ordered. The power of the fleet of Admiral Cervera is still much of a factor.

It is stated that there is no intention on the part of the authorities to assume any more risk than absolutely necessary in sending a big fleet of practically unarmed and therefore nearly helpless, transports into Cuban waters. For this reason, until the Spanish fleet is disposed of, or until a sufficient number of United States warships can be spared to insure protection for the transports from Tampa to their destination, no movement is expected.

Washington, June 3.—Officials here refuse absolutely to tell what the army plans are, but from roundabout sources of information it may be said that transports are waiting for the army of invasion.

The destination of these transports is positively known now to be Santiago. They may not wait for the second section, but may start for Cuba as soon as a convoy arrives from the fleet now lying off Santiago.

A semi-official statement of the plan of campaign, the first made since the war began, shows that the present army of invasion consists of between 15,000 and 20,000 men, and that it is to be followed by a second army of 50,000. The latter announcement indicates that, after all, the main invasion of Cuba may not be put off until the fall, but may follow the capture of Santiago and the destruction of the Spanish fleet.

Washington, June 3.—The first part of the expedition to Santiago de Cuba has left the Florida coast. The transport vessels bearing the expedition left Tampa at least twenty-four hours ago, and although the government officers in Washington will say nothing on the subject, it is presumed that the transports are lying off Key West awaiting the second detachment of the expedition to the southern coast of Cuba.

The detachment consisted of a battalion of engineers, the siege guns to be used in occupying the hills around Santiago, the field trains and, it is believed, a few infantrymen.

It is not certain that the expedition will await the arrival of the second detachment. It may proceed directly to Santiago, relying on the vessels of Commodore Schley's fleet to afford protection for landing.

THOMAS W. KEENE DEAD.

Well-Known Tragedian Passes Away at the Smith Infirmary.

New York, June 3.—Thomas W. Keene, one of the best known of American tragedians, died at Smith Infirmary at Tompkinsville, Staten Island, of heart failure. He had been ill but little over a week.

Mr. Keene was playing in Hamilton, Ont., on May 20, when he was taken ill. His company was disbanded, and after cancelling his engagements he left for his home on Staten Island.

Mr. Keene belonged to the old school of tragedy, a school noted for its vigorous force. Born in this city in 1840, he made his professional debut in "Julius Ceaser." Some previous stage experience as a super at the old Bowery and at Niblo's. His first permanent engagement was with John Brougham at his New York Lyceum.

SICKNESS ON BOARD A CRUISER.

The San Francisco Has 23 Men in the Chelsea Hospital.

Boston, June 3.—The United States cruiser San Francisco arrived off the navy yard here yesterday with ten of her seamen ill.

This was the second time within a week that the coast patrol cruiser has landed sick men here, and it is feared that the entire crew will have to be relieved and acclimated seamen from the receiving ship Wabash assigned to fill the vacancies.

The sailors on the San Francisco have been accustomed to warm climates and the rough weather of the last ten days has laid up twenty-three of them in the hospital at Chelsea with pneumonia, measles and serious colds.

UNDER THE RED CROSS.

The Steamer Marmion Will Carry Succor and Relief to Cuba.

Baltimore, June 3.—The steamer Marmion, late the Bowden of the Buckman Fruit Company's fleet, has been sold to the Red Cross Society, and the steamer sailed Wednesday for Boston, where she will be fitted for the uses of the society.

Three weeks ago the vessel was put under British register so as to avoid possible capture by the Spanish war vessels. She will again fly the Stars and Stripes, be rechristened by her new owners, and shortly sail for Cuba to succor and aid the wounded and sick that are promised by the present hostilities.

Secretary Long Suffers from Injury.

Washington, June 3.—By the advice of his physician Secretary Long did not go to the navy department yesterday. His leg is very much swollen from straining a tendon, and he cannot stand without great pain and danger of serious consequences. The injury will probably yield to treatment in a day or two.

SANTIAGO A STARVING CITY.

Even Officials Feel Its Pangs From Schley's Blockade and The Fall of The Town Is Not Far Off.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 3.—No direct news has been received here from Santiago de Cuba except a reiteration of the reports of the dreadful destitution of the inhabitants there. It is said that now even the officials are unable to procure a normal supply of food.

According to information received here yesterday from hitherto accurate sources, a decisive engagement between the United States and Spanish forces was expected to take place yesterday at Santiago de Cuba.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 3.—Advices from Port Antonio yesterday say that Commodore Schley has been informed by the navy department that the battleship Oregon, the first class armored cruiser New York, another cruiser and two colliers have been sent to Santiago de Cuba.

Port au Prince, June 3.—No fresh news has been received from Santiago de Cuba yet. The report of an attack upon the city by the insurgents is not confirmed and appears to be without foundation.

WHAT LONDON THINKS.

London, June 3.—Amid the conflicting accounts of what has happened at Santiago de Cuba it appears certain that there were two separate incidents—the Spanish torpedo boat attempt Sunday night and the American bombardment or reconnoisance on Tuesday afternoon. Probably neither will turn out of great importance, except as proving that the entrance to the harbor is better protected by mines and guns than might have been anticipated from Admiral Dewey's experience at Manila.

It is believed here that this is all Admiral Schley desired to discover, and that the Spanish senate had little to exult over. Admiral Cervera is expected to repeat the torpedo boat attempts, with a view of keeping the American squadron as distant as possible, in order to facilitate his escape. Unless he can do this, the Americans are almost certain eventually to capture the three or four Spanish cruisers now known to be inside Santiago.

The anxiety the Spaniards betray in publishing reports as to evolutions of a squadron outside Cadiz leads to the surmise that Admiral Camara is already on the way. This, as the Daily News suggests, may explain Admiral Cervera's torpedo movement on Sunday and also Commodore Schley's tardy action.

SEVENTEEN SHIPS REPORTED.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 3.—A dispatch from Port Antonio says that the British second class cruiser Indefatigable returned there from Santiago de Cuba Wednesday. The cruiser had been ordered to Santiago to assist the wounded in the expected naval battle. The ship's surgeon was on leave of absence and a government medical officer was taken.

From the bridge of the Indefatigable seventeen ships were counted through binoculars in Santiago bay. This is supposed to be the full strength of Cervera's fleet, and some of the seventeen are probably merchantmen.

Six American ships lay off Santiago harbor and ten were circling around.

May Have Supplies for Spaniards.

Halifax, N. S., June 3.—The steamer Newfoundland cleared Wednesday night for Jamaica with a full cargo, consisting of provisions and coal, and it is understood her actual destination is Porto Rico or Cuba. The steamer had 2,000 barrels of flour, 1,000 barrels of potatoes and 500 tons of coal, exclusive of bunker coal for her own use. It is possible the official entry of coal understates the amount carried. The steamer has a large amount of beef, fish, etc.

A PORTABLE ALUMINIUM HOUSE.

It Will Accommodate Four Persons—Only Weighs 130 Pounds.

Yankee ingenuity is to the fore again. Mr. A. F. Howes, of Weymouth, Massachusetts, has secured patents in this country and Canada on a portable aluminium house. Including the kitchen belongings, it weighs only one hundred and thirty pounds, and when packed for storage or transportation it can be divided into three bundles, so that the burden may rest upon more than one person.

Of course the inventor has christened it "The Klondike Home"—everything is "Klondike" nowadays, from winter clothing to bargain sales. But Mr. Howes' invention is worthy of the name, for it will be adopted by a great many who intend to take up their abode in the region of newly discovered gold. The house will accommodate at least four persons, and it is said to be built in such a manner that it will not only keep out the cold, but is also proof against accidents by fire. It will recommend itself, we have no doubt, to the arctic explorers, and to those who would lead a camping life without the many discomforts of the ordinary tent.—Puritan.

An Exchange of Courtesy.

That the courtesies and amenities of journalism are not among the lost arts is apparent from a modern instance, quoted in the Kansas City Journal. It seems that Gomer Davies, editor of Concordia, is minus his left leg. A. D. Campbell, editor of the Hanover Democrat, is minus his right leg. By a singular coincidence these two men wear exactly the same size shoe. When Mr. Davies buys a pair of shoes he sends the left one to Mr. Campbell, and when it comes the latter's turn he reciprocates.—Mail and Express.

ARMY AND NAVY FUNDS

Prompt Action Asked For From Senate and House.

COST OF ONE YEAR'S WAR

Mr. Butler of North Carolina Addresses the Senate and Makes an Attack on the Republicans—Chairman Cannon Reports an Urgent Deficiency Bill to the House—A Bill Extending Franking Privileges to Officers and Soldiers.

Washington, June 2.—In the Senate this morning the House bill to organize the hospital corps of the navy, define its duties and regulate its pay, was reported with amendments from the committee on naval affairs, and was placed on the calendar.

A bill authorizing the appointment of two matrons to serve with each regiment of volunteers during the war was introduced by Mr. Faulkner (Dem., W. Va.) and referred to the committee on military affairs.

A bill extending the franking privilege to officers and soldiers of the army was introduced by Mr. Harris (Dem., Kan.) and was referred to the post-office committee.

The war revenue bill was taken up and Mr. Butler (Pop., N. C.) addressed the Senate. He expressed his regret that such a bill as could have had unanimous support in the Senate had not been brought forward. The responsibility for the delay in passing this bill rested on the shoulders of those who had seen fit to insert in it provisions which had no proper place in it, and who thus forced discussion and protest on the part of those who opposed the financial views sought to be carried out in this bill.

Arraigns Republicans.

A remark by Mr. Butler to the effect that Republican senators were unduly influenced in their support of the bond propositions provoked Mr. Gallinger to demand more specific allegations. The denunciation, he declared, was very interesting, if true. If the senator had any specific charges to make against a senator it would be interesting to the senate and the country to have it made.

Mr. Butler's reply was that in the last presidential campaign immense sums were contributed to the Republican party by "the trusts, the monopolists, the bondholders and money lenders;" that now these interests demanded legislation favorable to them, and that a refusal of such legislation would be a breach of contract on the part of Republican senators and representatives.

The pending bill, he asserted, was in the interest of the very rich people of the country. He calculated that, for every $2,000 of taxes that would fall upon the 69,000,000 people who owned half of the property of this country, not more than $1 would fall upon the 40,000 who owned the other half.

In the course of further discussion, Mr. Kyle of South Dakota, until recently classified as a Populist, asked Mr. Butler what foundation he had for the charge of undue influence made by him against Republicans.

Mr. Butler made a derisive comment upon Mr. Kyle's appearance as a defender of the Republican party.

After further colloquy Mr. Butler continued his argument that the bond section of the bill was inserted at the demand of the moneyed classes who had contributed to the Republican campaign fund, and that it was not in the public interest.

"The chief purpose of this bill," he said, "is not to raise revenue to carry on the war. That is an easy matter. Its chief purpose is to use this occasion to commit the country to a policy of bond issues and bank paper, and I submit that those who strive to put through such offensive legislation under the whip and spur of a war measure ought to be the last people in the world to challenge the patriotism of others. It is an attack upon the masses of the people."

Work in the House.

Chairman Cannon of the committee on appropriations reported an urgent deficiency bill for the maintenance of the naval and military establishments, carrying the following amounts: Contingencies, Philippine expedition, $100,000; Cuban expedition, construction of roads, $25,000; construction and equipment of railroads, $225,000; intrenching tools, etc., $50,000; contingencies, $50,000; signal service, $195,000; subsistence department, $5,000,000; medical department, $50,000; torpedo defence, Manila harbor, $150,000; navy department emergency fund, $10,000,000; bureau of supplies and accounts, $1,000,000; clothing and small stores fund, $1,000,000; total, $17,845,000.

Mr. Cannon made a statement to inform the House of the probabilities as to expenditures on account of the war. The committee on appropriations expected to report a general deficiency bill near the close of the session that would carry about $220,000,000. Owing to the urgent necessity for action on the items carried in the pending bill, the committee had determined to report it now. It covered expenditures contemplated to be made within the next thirty or sixty days. It was the opinion of the committee that, including the amounts already appropriated, it would require at least $350,000,000 to carry on the war until December 31 next.

Mr. Dingley—Then if the war should last a year the cost would be in excess of $600,000,000?

Mr. Cannon—Yes, if it should continue that long.

The bill was passed and the House adjourned.

Thirty Transport Ships Secured.

Washington, June 3.—The war department has secured three additional transports.

This swells the total number of available vessels to over thirty, with carrying capacity of nearly 30,000 men. The ships secured yesterday are: The Commanche of the Clyde line, now at New York; the Louisiana and Knickerbocker of the Cromwell line, one of which is at New York, and the other at New Orleans, 600 each.

THE OREGON WITH THE FLEET.

Key West, Fla., June 3.—The United States battleship Oregon joined the fleet Sunday morning, finishing the most remarkable long distance cruise in the history of modern ironclads.

Her reception by the fleet was worthy of her achievement. Coming along at a fifteen-knot speed, she swept in a majestic semi-circle through the fleet to a point opposite the flagship, cheering sailors manning the sides of each vessel as she passed.

The fleet was on the lookout for her, and when, almost at noon, there loomed up a gray hulk on the northwest horizon, there was vigorous wigwagging from ship to ship

She had a decided list to port from hastily filled bunkers that there had been no time to trim since dashing in and out of Key West for fuel.

The big fighter slowed down to a majestic pace, and then the noise arose. Rank upon rank of white clad sailors broke into yells, which came over half a mile against the wind, and the crew of the Oregon sent them back with interest.

As the Oregon glided between the flagship and the Indiana the latter's band swung into the "Washington Post" march. Then the exchange of visits began, and the officers and men of the Oregon were heartily complimented and welcomed by all.

HAWAII'S FRIENDSHIP.

She Has Cast Away All Pretence of Neutrality and Becomes Our Ally.

Washington, June 3.—The naval officials now calculate that Hawaii has become an ally of the United States in the present war with Spain and that at this moment our government is responsible for the protection of the Hawaiian Islands from the consequences of their friendship for us.

According to the calculations, the United States cruiser Charleston arrived at Honolulu last Saturday. She has probably completed the taking on board of a full coal supply and is now again on her way to Manila.

The coal was accumulated at Honolulu by United States Consul General Haywood, and in allowing the cruiser to take on a supply to carry on operations against Spanish territory, the government of Hawaii has cast away all semblance of neutrality in the present contest and has thrown in her fortunes with the United States, for unless we protect her she is subject to punishment at the hands of Spain.

Moreover, the offence against neutrality is to be repeated, for it is expected that yesterday the advance guard of the transports carrying troops to Manila entered Honolulu harbor to replenish their coal supply.

GIFTS FOR THE RELIEF.

Several Donations Received for Fitting Out the New Hospital Ship.

New York, June 3.—Major George H. Torney, chief surgeon of the Relief, has received a number of donations for the hospital ship. The Woman's National War Relief Association contributed $1,600, to be added to a previous donation of $300, the entire amount to be expended in establishing a carbonating plant on the vessel. The same association also sent Major Torney a check for $250, to be used in supplying the ship with electric fans.

Another donation received was one of $500 from the National Relief Association of Colonial Dames. The gift was made through Surgeon General Sternberg of the regular army. A check for $100 was also received from Mrs. Julia K. Benjamin of Garrison, N. Y.

Three boxes and three barrels, packed on Memorial day by the townspeople of Fairfield and Southport, Conn., and donated through Mrs. Harriet D. Glover of Fairfield, have been shipped to the Relief. The contents of the boxes and barrels are not known, but it is presumably clothing.

ADVANCEMENT FOR BRAVERY.

For advancement for conspicuous conduct in battle, Frank Wildes of the Boston, to be advanced five numbers; Captain Joseph B. Coghlan of the Raleigh, to be advanced six numbers; Captain Charles V. Gridley of the Olympia, to be advanced six numbers; Captain N. M. Dwyer of the Baltimore, to be advanced seven numbers; Captain Benjamin P. Lamberton, staff, to be advanced seven numbers; Commander Asa Walker of the Concord, to be advanced nine numbers; Commander Edward P. Wood of the Petrel, to be advanced ten numbers.

Connecticut Defences Completed.

New Haven, June 3.—The two batteries at Bridgeport, Conn., mounting four smooth-bore Rodman guns, have just been completed, but no troops have been detailed to man them.

The mine field at New London has been finished. Each mine is connected with a separate wire, so arranged that any defect in the system is signalled to the shore, and unless hit by the screwy of a steamer, the mines cannot be injured by passing vessels.

A Permanent Hospital Corps.

Washington, June 3.—Senator Hale, Republican of Maine, from the committee on naval affairs, yesterday reported the bill providing for the organization of a hospital corps for the navy. The bill has passed the House. The naval committee recommends favorable action on the measure, but eliminates the House provision disbanding the corps at the expiration of the Spanish war, thus making the corps permanent.

Rejected Recruit Found Dead.

Lexington, Ky., June 3.—The mutilated body of John Hayden of Battery B, Louisville, was found yesterday on the railroad track near this city. He had been rejected as physically unable to enlist, and became despondent It is believed that he committed suicide.

For War Postoffices.

Washington, June 3.—The House has passed a bill providing for the establishment of postoffices at military posts and camps.

NO NEWS FROM SCHLEY

Washington Officials Still Without Definite Information.

REASON FOR THE DELAY

Impression Among Naval Officials That the Engagement at Santiago Was but a Preliminary Skirmish to Be Followed by a Decisive Battle—Sampson Believed to Have Joined Schley—Rebels Reported to Have Attacked Santiago.

Washington, June 3.—It is the impression among naval officers here that the engagement at Santiago de Cuba was but a preliminary skirmish, to be followed by a battle probably today. This belief is strengthened by the failure of Commodore Scnley to send in a report of the engagement on Tuesday.

It is said by officials that it is probable no report from him will be received until he has finished the work he has cut out. It is also believed that Admiral Sampson and a number of the best vessels in his fleet, including the Oregon, have joined Schley's forces. Sampson will therefore command the joint fleet if a battle takes place.

While an engagement is expected at any hour, yet there are some who say that no more fighting will be done by the navy until the transports land the 20,000 troops ready now for active campaigning, and that the troops, supported by heavy artillery, will attack the city of Santiago and the Spanish fleet from the hills in the rear, while the fleet assails the forts and fleet from the entrance to the harbor.

The official intimation that the action of Tuesday is only the initial phase of a more general movement is strengthened by the view that Commodore Schley would hardly attempt an attack unless he had some definite object in view.

This object, it is believed, was to learn exactly the number of Spanish ships now within Santiago harbor and also to develop the effectiveness of the fire of the Spanish forts at the entrance of the harbor. With these two points established beyond the slightest doubt, the campaign, military and naval, could be executed against Santiago with much greater certainty as to the results.

Port au Prince, Hayti, June 3.—Advices from Santiago received here yesterday say that the American fleet renewed the attack on the forts at the entrance to the bay yesterday morning.

There were 3,000 rebels within three miles of Santiago and the town is in a panic, expecting momentarily an attack by land as well as by sea.

More mines have been laid in the channel by the Spaniards. The bombardment of Tuesday did great damage in the town, around the Alameda and in Michaelson and St. Thomas streets. It is reported that General Blanco threatens to cut the cable between Havana and Key West.

Washington, June 3.—The war department is anxiously awaiting a confirmation of the report that Schley and Sampson have renewed the engagement at Santiago.

Certain officials have given credence to the news from Port au Prince, but the more conservative will not accept any part of the story until something more definite is reported.

It is evident that important dispatches are looked for hourly, and as Admiral Sampson is supposed to have joined Schley by this time, no great surprise would be evinced if a decisive battle had been fought or would take place to-day.

POSTOFFICE NEEDS A LINGUIST.

A Clerk Who Can Speak Only Half a Dozen Languages Will Do.

New York, June 3.—The United States civil service commission announces that on June 15 examination may be taken for the grade of clerk, qualified German, French, Spanish, Italian and Russian languages, at any city in the United States where the commission has a competent board of examiners. There is at present a vacancy in this grade in the war department, at a salary of $1,000 per annum, which it is desired to fill.

The examination will consist of the following named subjects of the first grade: Spelling, arithmetic, letter writing, penmanship, copying from plain copy, copying from rough draft and translation of the languages mentioned above.

LLOYDS' CHARTERS VOID.

New York, June 3.—Justice Russell, in special term of the supreme court yesterday, rendered judgment for the plaintiff in the quo-warranto action brought by the people against Edward V. Loew and sixteen others, "adjudging the defendants to be unlawfully transacting the business of insurance in the state of New York as the 'People Fire Lloyds' and unlawfully claiming and exercising a privilege of franchise not granted by the laws of the state, and for an injunction restraining the issuance of policies by said persons until compliance with the conditions imposed by law, with costs to the plaintiffs against the defendants."

Steam Launches for Hospital Ship.

New York, June 3.—The commissary authorities in the department of the east have ordered from Charles S. Seabury, Morris Heights, two steam launches, twenty-eight feet long, having a speed of eight and one-half knots. They will be attached to the hospital ship Relief, now being fitted out for the use of the army. The launches will be employed in carrying the sick, wounded and dead from the land to the Relief. Dr. George N. Tarney will be the surgeon in charge of the ship.

A Nebraska College Burned.

Lincoln, Neb., June 3.—Fire last evening destroyed Worthington Academy, the Episcopal college of the state. Loss $65,000; insurance $35,000.

MONITOR MONADNOCK FOR DEWEY.

Ordered to the Philippines and Likely to Accompany the Monterey.

Washington, June 3.—The United States monitor Monadnock now at San Francisco, has been ordered to Manila to reinforce the Pacific squadron under Rear Admiral Dewey. The Monadnock will go into dry dock at once to be put in shape for the long journey across the Pacific. Her condition, however, is reported to be excellent. No elaborate repairs are needed, and it is expected that inside of a week, or at the outside, ten days, she will be ready to sail.

She will probably follow closely on the Monterey, but the understanding here is that the two monitors will not make the journey to the Philippines in company. The Monterey will be ready to sail first, and will not wait for her sister ship. The Monadnock is a low freeboard coast defence monitor, with an iron hull and two steel barbettes, in which are installed four ten-inch breech-loading rifles and two four-inch rapid fire guns as her main battery.

In addition to this, she carries a secondary battery of two six-pounders, two three-pounders, and two one-pounder rapid fire guns, and two thirty-seven millimetre Hotchkiss guns. She has a displacement of 3,990 tons, and a coal capacity of about 200 tons.

In making the voyage to Manila the monitor will break the long distance record for vessels of her class, she having made a voyage around the horn many years ago, which is among the proud traditions of the navy, and which ranks with the famous trip of the Miantonomoh to Europe as a demonstration of the seaworthiness of the monitor type. With the two big monitors, Monterey and Monadnock, and the cruisers Charleston and Philadelphia added to his present force, Admiral Dewey will, it is assumed by navy department officials, have a fleet capable of holding the Philippines against any combination of vessels that Spain has to send against him, even if she should make the attempt to reconquer the islands.

PENSYLVANIA REPUBLICANS.

Colonel William A. Stone Nominated for Governor on the First Ballot.

Harrisburg, June 3.—The only semblance of a contest in yesterday's Republican state convention was over the head of the ticket. Colonel William A. Stone, member of congress from Allegheny, was nominated for governor on the first ballot.

The vote was: W. A. Stone 198, C. W. Stone 162, absent or not voting 2.

Frank W. Wheaton of Wilkesbarre was elected permanent chairman of the convention which at once proceeded to the selection of a candidate for governor. Thomas M. Marshall, Jr., of Allegheny was recognized and presented the name of Colonel William A. Stone. He paid an eloquent tribute to the public and private career of his candidate, to whom he referred as the "people's choice."

Mr. Wanamaker Withdraws.

Colonel Stone's nomination was seconded by General B. F. Fisher. Representative Chidsey of Northampton county named General Frank Reeder of Northampton county, and Joseph M. Huston of Philadelphia presented the name of John Wanamaker. When Mr. Huston had concluded his address, A. S. L. Shields of Philadelphia presented a letter from Mr. Wanamaker withdrawing as a candidate. In the letter Mr. Wanamaker asked his delegates to vote for Charles W. Stone.

Mr. Wanamaker was the distinctly anti-Quay candidate, and his backers claim his vote represents the sentiment throughout the state against the organization of which the senior senator is the head.

THE VANDERBILT WEDDING.

Religious Ceremony of Miss Dresser's Marriage to George W. Vanderbilt.

Paris, June 3.—The religious ceremony of the wedding of Miss Edith Stuyvesant Dresser to Mr. George W. Vanderbilt took place at the American church here at noon yesterday. The civil ceremony was performed Wednesday.

There were 150 persons present, including General Horace Porter, the United States ambassador to France, and Mrs. Porter, Dr. Chauncey M. Depew, the Count and Countess of Castellane and the Duchess of Marlborough, formerly Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt.

The only decorations in the church were six clusters of white roses.

The marriage ceremony was of the simplest character and lasted only ten minutes. There was no music except that furnished by the church organ.

Took a Spanish Island.

Los Angeles, June 3.—Captain Waters, owner of San Miguel island, has made the discovery that this bit of land was never ceded to Mexico by Spain. By some oversight it was omitted from the list of islands given up when Mexican independence was acknowledged.

As soon as he learned this fact Captain Waters hastened to his little island, hoisted the flag and took formal possession in the name of the United States.

Temerario Tied Up.

Buenos Ayres, June 3.—The government of Paraguay has informed the United States consul at Asuncion, J. N. Ruffin, who had protested against the continued presence of the Spanish torpedo gunboat Temerario in Paraguayan waters, that permission has been granted the Temerario, which is disabled, to remain at Asuncion under the protection of Paraguay's neutrality, until the close of the war between the United States and Spain.

Glue Trust Capital Increased.

Trenton, June 3.—The American Glue Company yesterday filed with the secretary of state an amendment to its certificate of incorporation increasing its capital stock to $1,800,000. This is divided into shares of the par value of $1,000 each. One million dollars of the capital is in preferred stock and the balance in common stock.

The Scindia Leaves for Cuban Waters.

New York, June 3.—The Scindia, another of the colliers lately purchased by the government and refitted at the Brooklyn navy yard, sailed yesterday for Newport News. She will take on coal there and then proceed to Cuban waters.

America May Fix Fashions.

The hasty and unguarded expression of sympathy for Spain that so many of the French people indulged in may have a more farreaching effect than could have been foreseen by anybody. So soon as the quick sighted Parisians saw what they, and their newspapers had done they could have bitten their tongues off. It is broadly stated and generally believed that leading French newspapers offered their services to the United States for a consideration, said services to consist in creating a public sentiment in our favor. Their disinterested offer was declined with thanks. Then they proceeded in revenge to create a hostile sentiment. Immediately it reacted on the most sensitive part of a Frenchman, his pocket. American women love their country, even if they do buy millions of dollars' worth of French fallals every year.

Our ladies abroad refused to patronize the Paris dressmakers and milliners. Many of them actually came home without Paris wardrobes. The French tradesfolk are in despair. They admit the United States is the best market France has. They say American women have better taste than any others and spend more on their toilets, and that they are well capable of designing and executing beautiful costumes at home. Perhaps the result will be that American women will use their native taste and their money to design artistic costumes of their own, and that in time the United States instead of Paris will set the fashion for women's dress.

Magazine Editorials.

We have been looking over the magazine editorials for the current month. Almost without exception they are disappointing. We mention no names, nor do we intend to, but it is a fact that if the average newspaper editorial writer were even for one week to pour upon the large type page such inanity as most of the magazines inflict on their readers and call it editorial he would lose his place at once.

The newspaper editorial is sometimes unreasonable. In the hurry of composition it is not polished so highly as it ought to be. The person who writes 2,000 words a day of editorial has no time for the fine points of rhetoric. But he is generally in earnest, generally has something to say. His words throb with the warm blood of living conviction and come straight out from his thought.

Your magazine editorial writer sits in his chair and spins out a few pages per month of trifling criticisms or mild humor over something that is of the least possible consequence. The great questions of the time, the issues that fill men with enthusiasm and furnish the mainspring of their actions from day to day, the things that the nation thinks about and talks about, the magazine editorial writer somehow misses. It is as if he were a high school girl writing a composition on friendship. We wish the magazine editorial writers would wake up.

The Cincinnati manufacturing firm that found a way to suddenly turn the sympathy of the French nation over to our side are entitled to the thanks of the American people. Their reply to the French business men in New York, who wrote asking them to exhibit at the French exposition of 1900, settled the matter. They said they would not have anything to do with the Paris exposition while the French people were so unfriendly to us in the war with Spain. The fire of a fine patriotism flashed in those few words. Immediately Frenchmen saw a great light. Straightway the French minister at Washington visited the state department, telling the officials how much France had always loved us and how she had helped us during the revolution. "France always remembers," said the minister. Maybe France has always loved us, but here lately she has taken a queer way of showing it. However, we accept her assurances of friendship in the future and thank her.

VIEWS OF SANTIAGO DE CUBA.

Santiago de Cuba has been quite prominent in matters relating to the war, and the views here presented are of interest on that account. It is the second city of Cuba and was once the capital. The city is well built and the streets are wide. The governor's residence is one of the show places.

So soon as the hurry of immediate war legislation is over congress should turn its attention to the Danish West Indies bill which has already been reported by the senate committee on foreign relations. It is a bill directing the president to purchase from Denmark if he can any one or two or all three of the islands of St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John and utilize them for coaling and naval stations. The need of these purchases requires no argument with the American people.

The Spaniards, having exhausted the common vocabulary in calling us names, have now discovered that the "Yankees are naturally heavy, like all Anglo-Saxon soldiers." They take comfort in believing that our boys will make a poor out at marching through Cuba incumbered with baggage and artillery. These "naturally heavy" Yankee soldiers may astonish the degenerate little Spaniard.

Bravery the Spanish troops show everywhere. But bravery without steady, trained nerves and a cool head is useless, and in these rests the advantage our soldiers and seamen have over those of Spain.

Still it continues. A newly laid out town in Kansas has been named Deweyville. They say there is a great real estate boom there in consequence of the name.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Somerset county may justly indulge in a little self aggrandizement over the result of the preliminary examination for the West Point appointment. If Congressman Howell shall make his selection according to scholastic merit, the honor will be carried off by Somerset. This result is a splendid recommendation for the efficiency of the Somerset schools.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

ROESEL WILL NOT HANG TODAY.

Writ of Error Gives the Murderer of Pitts a New Lease of Life.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, June 3.—Justice VanSyckel came to this city from Trenton yesterday to have presented to him the writ of error taken by Lawyer Frank Bergen in the case of Louis Roesel, the convicted murderer of Farmer James C. Pitts, of Summit, who was sentenced to hang today.

Justice VanSyckel and Judge Vail certified to the writ when it was presented to them. It is made returnable to the Court of Appeals June 11th, and will come up before that court when it meets June 21st. It is not likely, however, that any arguments will be made on it by the State or counsel for the condemned prisoner before the November term of the court.

Fishing in City Streets.

The water under the Clinton avenue bridge yesterday was deep enough to fish in, and several little boys were caught angling in the pool for frogs. The water came up to a horse's body, and there was very little traveling in carriages over the road. The sidewalks were dry, but a misstep in walking would throw the person into the pool below.

Treasurer of Produce Exchange.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

PLAINFIELD'S BUSIEST STORE

We Sell Goods Cheaper Than All Other Stores.

Your Dollar

Often represents hours of toil. When that dollar is spent, it should command its full buying power. To give it that power is one of the principles of this store. Our public knows this and appreciate the efforts which this store is constantly making to give them a bigger dollar's worth than they can get elswhere. We have made it possible for your dollar to do extra duty on

These Lots.

Bargains in Summer Underwear.

We don't think you ever bought reliable underwear at such prices as these. Changing time now and a good time to buy the summer underwear. We tell of five items that are priced at half value.

Ladies' ribbed vests.....5c
Ladies' lisle vest.....13c, 2 for 25c
Ladies' colored lisle vests.....18c
Ladies' ribbed lisle combination suits made to sell for 75c, our price.....59c
A case of children's balbriggan shirts, pants and knee drawers in all sizes.....19c each, value 35c

A Flyer in Ladies' Hose.

We place on sale today one hundred dozen ladies' high spliced, double sole hose for ladies, Hermsdorf dye, 14c pr. No store can match this under 25c.

Shirt Waists.

Never such a season for shirt waist selling. You can afford to pick freely from these lots of cool, fine waists. There will be no more when these are gone. Over one thousand of them are entire manufacturers stock, who wanted cash, and he got it, but only half what the waists cost him.

69c for fine lawn and cambric waists that were made to sell for.....$1
89c for waists that cost.....$1.50
Made of imported organdies and dimities.

Men's Furnishings.

Just a word with you, sir. You may or may not know that we have the most representative stock of men's fixings, but such is the fact, and here you buy them at dry goods store profits. Thus:

Men's fine balbriggan shirts and drawers.....25c
Men's extra fine balbriggan shirts and drawers.... 39c, 50c quality
Men's medium weight natural wool shirts and drawers.....39c
Men's fine cambric shirts, the dollar kind.....79c
Men's fine black half hose, 2 pairs for.....25c
Men's bicycle hose, belts and caps.

Ribbons.

We have bought a manufacturer's stock of short lengths of fine fancy ribbon from 2 to 6 inches wide. Value from 30 to 40c the yard; all go for 19c.

Store Notes.

Some exclusive styles in neckwear for ladies have just arrived. In one of the front show cases is a beautiful assortment of new shirt waist sets, belt pins, stick pins, etc. In another case are some pretty styles in new parasols. A first pick here is worth something. Fifty styles of sheer printed organdies, lawns and dimities. The price argument should make you a buyer. You would price them at 20c, you buy them at 12c while they last. On one of the front counters is a lot of fine India linens and jaconettes, short lengths, value from 20 to 25c. You buy them at 10 and 12c.

While in the store visit the carpet, rug and matting department We are naming low prices on certain lots of rugs and mattings that will be of interest to you.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning June 5. Comment by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M. Topic, The Trial and Triumph of Prayer.

SCRIPTURE READING.—I Kings xviii, 42-46.

At few periods in history has the worship of the true God been more unpopular than in the reign of Ahab, king of Israel. After the revolt of the ten tribes, in the time of Rehoboam, the people of the northern part of the land had forsaken the temple worship of Jerusalem. Idolatry had increased under each succeeding reign. Ahab, by marrying the daughter of the king of Sidon, secured a brilliant political alliance, but sank his people lower in moral iniquity. Jerebel brought the worship of Baal from Sidon and Ahab erected a temple in Samaria and planted an idolatrous grove for the debasing worship of this vile deity.

Elijah, the prophet, denounced the sins of the king and the people. The queen put to death the prophets of Jehovah as far as she could find them and supported hundreds of the priests of the false god at her own expense.

Elijah threatened drought and famine for the wickedness of the nation. For 3½ years no rain fell. The utmost distress prevailed. The king sought Elijah among all neighboring nations, but could not find him. Finally the prophet, at the command of Jehovah, met the king and told him to gather the people of Israel and priests of Baal at Carmel. A test was to be made of the spirit of the people and their religious loyalty.

Most dramatic was the fire test proposed by Elijah and accepted by the Baalites. The "sun god," as Baal was called, would naturally be expected to answer the prayers of his people and send fire to consume the sacrifice offered to him. All in vain, however, were the cries of his devotees for his help.

Elijah calls on Jehovah to send fire and consume the bullock offered on His altar. The fire comes and burns all. The people shout their pledge of allegiance to the God of Abraham, Isaac and Israel. At the command of the prophet the priests of the false god are slain.

Then comes the supreme test of faith. Will the true God send rain on the parched earth? Will the God of heaven who has for long months shut the windows of the sky from dew and rain and shown the people that Jehovah rules the elements, and not the sun god Baal, will this God now send showers and revive the dry earth?

On the hillside of Carmel sits the man of Jehovah with face between his knees in silent, strong prayer, while his servant seven times climbs the hilltop watching for signs of rain from the great sea. At last the cloud rises, the rain comes, the drought is broken, and harvests are assured. The king rides to Jezrael, the capital. Swifter than his chariot horses is the fleet footed Elijah, who, with belted robe, speeds ahead of the king.

Prayer has prevailed. Prayer always prevails. Blessings are not wrung from an unwilling God by persistent petition, but earnest expectancy and faith prepare the human soul to receive the benefits that the Heavenly Father is desirous of bestowing. Jehovah prompts the prayer as well as answers it. "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

Criticism—Just and Unjust.

Since the beginning of the year the Epworth League has been subjected to much adverse criticism. When the statistics of the past year were compiled, it was found that the Methodist Episcopal church had made a net gain in membership over deaths and all losses of less than 20,000. This was startling, since the usual showing in recent years has been from 67,000 to over 100,000 net gain in numbers.

Some have laid this decrease to the charge of the Epworth League and say that the spiritual interests of the church have been hindered by its organization and operation, that the young people have cared for their own services and neglected the regular services of the church.

Others are certain that the League has been helpful to the denominational interests and has done valuable service in the Christian cause. The cause of the decrease is by them found elsewhere and by many it is doubted if any decrease has been seen, but only a crossing from the records of many thousands of members who are not resident in the vicinity of the local church.

Good will come of the discussion beyond doubt. It will spur the members of the League to increased fidelity to Christ and the church. It will call attention to many flaws in our economy, will cause new study of the best methods of work.

Above all this, it is specially desirable to clearly define just what the League is designed to do and what are the limitations of its sphere of influence. To many people it is plain that too much has been expected of it in some quarters and its proper position misunderstood.

Using the Means.

Many would like to be good Christians and possessed of all gentleness and loveliness—at least, they think they would—who never take any measures or use the commonest means to become such. It is one thing to desire the praise and envy the influence of one who is eminently devoted; it is altogether a different thing to love goodness and to possess the spirit of consecration. Whoever longs for the pure and true and craves real love will ever find the path open to the attainment of his soul's longing. Whoever cares more for the applause of men and the title of saint will find it all sufficient for his purpose to pose and act the part. Such a one will never use the means or attain the character of saintliness.

Ahab laid all the blame of the famine on Elijah and would have killed the prophet to cure the drought.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

TOPIC.—Christ's mission on earth.—John x, 7-18.

Christ's mission on earth was to "seek and to save that which was lost;" it was to give divine life to those who had lost it by sin and who could not obtain it in any other way. The one sole object of His coming into the world, by His own testimony, was to give this divine, spiritual life, which would result in man's salvation. "I am come," He says, "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." This divine life was the greatest need of man, and in making it possible Christ became the greatest benefactor of the human race.

Christ's mission to give life was a mission of unselfishness. He came not to receive, but to give. False Christs had arisen, hirelings, but their concern was not for the sheep, who needed life, but for themselves. In a moment of danger they were ready to flee, willing to sacrifice the sheep if necessary to save themselves. They were thieves and hirelings, inspired alone by self advantage and self aggrandizement.

Christ's mission was fulfilled by the giving of His own life. "I am the Good Shepherd; the Good Shepherd giveth His life for the sheep." "I lay down My life for the sheep." He died Himself that others might have life. It was necessary that Christ should die before man could have life. We may differ as to the cause of the necessity, but cannot deny the fact. Christ Himself has testified to this necessity. "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so the Son of Man must (necessity) be lifted up" to give eternal life. To the disciples on the way to Emmaus, after His resurrection, He said, "Ought not Christ to have suffered these things and to have entered into glory?" Thus Christ Himself declares the necessity of His death, and by His death alone was He able to gain life, to accomplish His mission on earth. It was only when He had been lifted up and the end of life was immediately before Him that He could exclaim, "It is finished." Then and then only had He performed the work that God had given Him to do.

Christ's mission should be the mission of all Christians. As His one aim in life was to give spiritual and eternal life to those who had it not, so this should be our aim and our mission. And as in His case it required self sacrifice to accomplish it, so it will in ours. Christians live too much to themselves and for themselves. Our Master lived for others, leaving us an example that we should follow. His last commission to His disciples was "Go and preach to every creature," seek and save that which is lost. Are we doing what Jesus did when upon earth? Are we doing what Jesus would do were He in our places today? Millions are calling for the bread of life. Let us not send them away, but let us hear His voice saying to us "Give ye them to eat," and let us do it.

Bible Readings.—Isa. xl, 11; lxi, 1-3; Ezek. xxxiv, 11-24; Math. xvi, 21; xx, 17-19; Luke ii, 40-52; iv, 16-21; ix, 21, 22; xv, 1-10; xix, 1-10; John xiii, 12-17; Heb. ii, 9-11; xiii, 20, 21; I Pet. ii, 20-25.

A Christian Greeting.

Whether or not a church is marked by a genuinely hospitable spirit is to be determined not by the amount of sociability among its own members, but by their attitude toward strangers. He was a wise pastor who counseled his people the other day not to stop and speak to their friends after the service, but to seek out and extend a welcome to those who were not customary attendants. It sometimes happens that even in a church which has great reputation for sociability strangers come and go without so much as being accosted. The reason is that everybody is so much absorbed in saluting his own friends that, however good his intentions may be, he overlooks the outsiders. There are other places and times which offer opportunities for intercourse with your friends, but when you are in the house of God seize the chance to give a Christian greeting to any who may feel themselves alone and friendless. It requires some courage to approach an entire stranger, whose demeanor in many cases does not invite you to take the initiative. Probably, however, if you tried it oftener you would find it easier. —Congregationalist.

Trust.

Trust is applied faith. It is confidence in a person. The difference between faith and trust may be stated by a preposition. It is often so stated in the Scripture when the preposition in or on is connected with believing. Devils may believe that there is a God, but only disciples of Jesus believe on Him unto everlasting life. We believe a doctrine; we trust a person. What we believe about Christ is one thing, what we trust in Christ for is another. —Christian Intelligencer.

Moderation.

Let us pray for that great—I had almost said that crowning—grace and virtue of moderation, what St. Paul calls sobriety and a sound mind. Let us pray for moderate appetites, moderate passions, moderate appetites, moderate gains, moderate joys and, if sorrows be needed to chasten us, moderate sorrows. Let us not long violently after or wish too eagerly to rise in life.—Reformed Church Messenger.

Self Our Principle.

When self is our principle and end, we rise no higher than ourselves, but when God becometh the life of our soul we follow after Him and rise far above the highest point to which nature could conduct us.—Episcopal Recorder.

Quality, Not Quantity.

Dear hustling brother, it is the quality, not the quantity, of your work that counts.—Congregationalist.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Provinz Ostpreußen.

Königsberg. Neulich Nachmittags sind bei einer Segelfahrt auf dem Pregel der Anstreicher Warschinski und der auf Urlaub hier weilende Pionier Beer vom 2. Eisenbahn-Regiment ertrunken. Ein Boot, in dem sie mit noch zwei jungen Leuten die Fahrt unternahmen, kenterte, als der Wind umschlug. Die beiden anderen konnten sich durch Schwimmen retten. Warschinski und Beer aber fanden im Wasser den Tod.

Allenstein. Die noch jugendlichen Wirthssöhne Langkau und Josef Nerowski aus Abbau Wartenburg wurden von der Strafkammer zu [illegible] beziehungsweise einem Monat Gefängniß verurtheilt, weil sie an einem im Flur einer Gastwirthschaft in Wartenburg stehenden Fahrrad den Gummireifen zerschnitten hatten.

Provinz Westpreußen.

Danzig. Die Strafkammer verurtheilte den Steueraufseher Gustav Somnitz aus Neufahrwasser wegen schweren Diebstahls zu drei Jahren und einem Monat Zuchthaus. Somnitz soll bei dem Konditor Liebig in Neufahrwasser 13,170 Mark in Geld und Werthpapieren gestohlen haben. Auch nach der Verurtheilung leugnete Somnitz, den Diebstahl begangen zu haben.

Rheinprovinz.

Krefeld. Der hiesige Fabrikant Konrad Krahnen, in Firma Krahnen u. Gobbers, stiftete anläßlich seiner goldenen Hochzeit ein Kapital von 50,000 Mark, dessen Zinsen alten und bedürftigen Webern zu Gute kommen sollen.

Belbert. Ein beim Umzuge achtlos fortgeworfenes Fläschchen mit Schwefelsäure fiel dem dreijährigen Sohn des Schlossers Basten in die Hände. Der Kleine trank den Inhalt und verbrannte sich die Speiseröhre und Magen derart, daß er nach kurzer Zeit starb.

Provinz Sachsen.

Erfurt. Dem Johanniterorden war vor längerer Zeit vom Freiherrn v. Seebach ein Vermächtniß von 200,000 Mark gemacht worden, mit der Bestimmung, dafür im Regierungsbezirk Erfurt ein Krankenhaus zu bauen. Das Ordenskapitel hat jetzt beschlossen, aus den Mitteln der Stiftung eine Heilanstalt für Lungenkranke in der Nähe von Erfurt am Saume des Steigerwaldes zu errichten.

Stendal. Auf dem hiesigen Bahnhof überschritt der bejahrte Rangirmeister Gustav Weidner die Geleise, als er von einem von Magdeburg kommenden Güterzug erfaßt wurde. Der Unglückliche fiel zwischen die Räder der Lokomotive, die ihm beide Beine abfuhr und auch noch den Kopf schwer verletzte. Als man den verstümmelten Körper hervorbrachte, war kein Leben mehr in ihm.

Provinz Schlesien.

Sagan. Drei Verbrecher, unter ihnen der in hiesiger Gegend bekannte und gefürchtete Einbrecher Baranowsky, erst 18 Jahre alt, sind Nachts aus dem hiesigen Gerichtsgefängniß ausgebrochen und entflohen. Die Gefangenen hatten den Ofen ihrer Zelle abgebrochen, waren in die Feuerung und durch diese auf einen Hof gelangt, über dessen hohe Mauer sie geschickt kletterten.

Provinz Schleswig-Holstein.

Wilslev. Ihre goldene Hochzeit feierten der frühere Hufner Franz Johnsen und Frau. Als man gegen Mitternacht sich in fröhlicher Stimmung befand, verstarb plötzlich der Goldbräutigam, der ein Alter von 85 Jahren erreicht hatte. Nachdem die erste Ueberraschung sich gelegt hatte, tanzte man ruhig weiter bis zum hellen Morgen(?!).

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

[OFFICIAL]

Adjourned meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, held Thursday, May 19th, 1898, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed all members present—17

The minutes of the previous meeting were, on motion, approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS, PETITIONS, ETC.

From W. Luttgen, A. Knopf, Oscar Gesner and seven (7) others, petitioning that a bridge be built on Gibbons street, in Linden, over the West Brook; said bridge to be of iron and the full width of the street. The present structure was of wood, in bad condition, and but one-third the width of the street; it was also too low to carry off the water that at times passed through said brook.

On motion of Freeholder Farrell received and placed on file.

From Edward L Massett, of Westfield, calling attention to the fact that the bridge on his property which crosses the county road had caved in on his side of said road. The bad condition of said bridge had caused the water during recent heavy rains to back up in the ditch along the road. The Board was requested to take prompt action in the matter.

Collector's Bond — Adams, Miller, McCandless.

Publication — Hulskamper, Adams, Swain.

Discharge of Prisoners—Wahl, Robison, Higgins.

Settle with Collector—Roll, King, Brucklacher.

Audit Accounts—King, Roll, Burnett.

Lunacy—Miller, Tier, Swain.

Public Grounds and Buildings—Farrell, Tier, Scudder.

Jail Inspection—Tier, Wahl, Higgins.

Stationery—King, Wahl, McCandless.

Settle with Sheriff—Robison, Tier, Scudder.

Miscellaneous Accounts and Agreements—Hulskamper, Ehrlich, Scudder.

Legal Questions—Ehrlich, Robison, Higgins.

Appropriations—Farrell, Hulskamper, Roll, Brucklacher, Burnett.

County Roads—Roll, Hulskamper, King, Swain, Burnett.

Elizabeth Drawbridges — Miller, Adams, Brucklacher.

Rahway Drawbridge—Ehrlich, Farrell, McCandless.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the committee on appropriations:

Elizabeth, N. J., May 19, 1898

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee on appropriations, after carefully estimating the probable necessities of the various departments of the county government, providing for the payment of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25 000) bonded debt, maturing during the year, and making ample provisions for the interest charges now falling due on county road and other bonds, are of the opinion that with an economical and business-like administration of county affairs, notwithstanding the yearly increase in election expenses, over which they have no control, would respectfully report and recommend that the sum of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) together with the sum of fifteen thousand five hundred dollars ($15,500) assets now on hand, be appropriated for the current year.

Your committee would further recommend that the amounts above mentioned be certified to the County Board of Assessors, and placed in the tax levy for 1898, as per accompanying resolution.

Resolved, By the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

That the sum of two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) be raised by tax, for the use of said county for the years 1898 and 1899 to be appropriated together with fifteen thousand five hundred dollars ($15,500) of the assets of the county for the following purposes:

For Courts	$ 35,000 00
For County Jail	6,000 00
For Lunatics	38,000 00
For Compensation and Lawful Expenses of Chosen Freeholders and Committees, and Salaries of their Officers	10,000 00
For Fees of Coroners	500 00
For Elections	12,000 00
For Stationery	2,000 00
For Advertising, Publishing and Printing	2,000 00
For Incidental Expenses and Schools, Burial of Soldiers, and Monuments	12,000 00
For Hospitals	5,000 00
For Payment of Principal of Bonded Debt	25,000 00
For Payment of Interest on Bonded Debt	19,500 00
For Payment of Bank Interest on Temporary Loans	1,000 00
For Repairs of County Roads	17,500 00
For Permanent Improvement of Public Buildings and Grounds	7,000 00
For Erection and Repairs of Culverts and Bridges	23,000 00
Total	$215,500 00
Less Unexpended Balance from 1897	15,500 00
Total Amount to be Raised by Taxation, also all Miscellaneous Items	200,000 00

To be assessed and collected in the manner and at the times prescribed by the laws for the assessment and collection of taxes for the use of the State, and the laws for the assessment and collection of taxes in the cities of Elizabeth, Plainfield and Rahway, in said county respectively; and that the board hereby direct the assessors of the respective townships, boroughs and wards in said county to assess the said sum of two hundred thousand dollars on the inhabitants and their estates, agreeable to the law for the time being, for the raising of money by taxation for the use of the county of Union, State of New Jersey; and that said assessors meet at the Court House, in the city of Elizabeth, on the third Monday in July next, at 10 o'clock a. m., to adjust and ascertain the proportion of said sum to be levied in each township, borough and ward in said county, and that the clerk of the board send a copy of this resolution to each of said assessors.

John Farrell, J. Martin Roll, Jacob Brucklacher, W. H Hulskamper, James A. Burnett, Committee.

Freeholder King moved the adoption of the report, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Higgins:

Resolved, That a committee of three (3) be appointed by the Director to ascertain the advisability of building an iron beam bridge over West Brook, on Gibbons street, near Wood avenue, in Linden township, and report at the next meeting of this Board.

On motion of Freeholder Farrell the resolution was adopted without dissent

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Higgins, King and Hulskamper.

By Freeholder Ehrlich:

Resolved, That a committee of five (5) be appointed by the Director to examine into the condition of the Bridge street bridge at Rahway, and ascertain what steps may be necessary to place said bridge in a safe condition for public travel, report to be made at the discretion of the committee.

On motion of Freeholder Swain the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Ehrlich, Farrell, King, Brucklacher and Scudder.

Freeholder Roll said that the county road committee would report progress on the trolley road between Elizabeth and Plainfield. The engineers were preparing cross sectional maps of the road. He suggested that it would be advisable to have two or three competent dicinterested parties to make an estimate of damages to lands and building that would have to be taken or removed for the construction of said road.

Freeholder Miller thought that the committee should appoint such persons.

Freeholder Bruckacher agreed with Mr. Miller, and suggested that the committee nominate three persons for confirmation by the Board.

Freeholder Farrell moved that the County Road Committee present at the next meeting of this Board, for the consideration of the board, the names of three persons whose duty it shall be to make an estimation of damages, etc, as before stated.

The motion was adopted without dissent.

Freeholder Miller moved to adjourn, which was carried.

The director declared the board adjourned until Thursday, June 2, 1898, at 2:30 p. m.

S. RUSLING RYNO, Clerk.

INCIDENTS OF A SHAM BATTLE.

And How a Young Lieutenant Was Given a Quiet Hint to Return Fire.

Illustrating the earnestness which seizes men, even in sham battle, was an incident which occurred near the lower bridge in the engagement between the divided forces of the New York State militia. A lieutenant, with a small detachment, had been sent out to do some reconnoitering. A company upon a hill top had seen the detachmen and had fired upon it. The lieutenant was quite sure that such action was not to be expected, and he resented it hotly. Seeing General Fitzgerald standing near, the lieutenant rushed up to him as the first officer of higher rank he could reach. With great indignation the lieutenant said:

"General, I went down there with a detachment and those men fired on me."

With an impassive face and a manner that did not betray his secret amusement the general replied:

"Do you mean to say they fired on you?"

"Yes, sir, they did."

"Well, why didn't you fire back?"

"Oh!" said the lieutenant, with some confusion and astonishment, and then he drew himself up, saluted, and retired with his men.—Franklin Matthews in Harper's Magazine.

Steamers on the Congo.

Only twenty years have passed since Stanley solved the mystery of the Congo River. To-day forty-five steamers ply on its waters; half of them belong to the Congo State, the others to foreign companies.—Chatanooga Times.

THE BUSINESS WAY

Jack wanted to, but Lady Mary didn't, and that's the way it all came about. Jack swore she was the very daintiest, sweetest, loveliest girl on earth, added a great deal more of love's hyperbole, and—entre nous—even soared into poetry occasionally, when he read to Christopher Columbus, her pet bull terrier.

But as Christopher wrinkled his nose decidedly and his tail did not show the least intimation of a wag, Jack tore it up—the poetry, I mean.

The trouble was Jack wanted to propose and couldn't. For never did he bring up the eventful subject but Lady Mary would go off at a tangent, possibly because Jack was using roundabout ways.

As Jack confided to his chum, (who shall be nameless for various reasons),—

"Do you know, H., if I speak of sunsets, she will immediately have a wild desire to discuss ethnology or irregular Greek verbs, and if I should ever mention love—not that I ever have, you know, but if I ever should, hang me if I don't believe she'd ask me how my liver was."

By which it can readily be seen that Lady Mary and Jack were on the best of terms, and the very intimacy seemed to preclude the possibility of anything more.

One afternoon I was lying on the river bank industriously fishing, while Jack sprawled upon the grass alternately reading and scribbling. Then he looked up and observed complacently,—

"Now, I flatter myself that's rather good. Listen, H.:—

"The weary sun has sunk to rest,
And with him fades the dying day.
Come night, come hour I love the best,
Fit time love's winning words to say.

"Pretty good, eh?"

"Good? Oh, Lord! You want to change those last two lines. You should say:—

"Alas! still lives a love-struck crank,
Who can't say what he wants to say.

"Hang it all, H., Tennyson himself could not please you." Then a long silence which he at last broke with: "Say, do you think she would have me?"

"Oh, take a run around the block! How do I know? There she comes now, and I give you fair warning if you two stay here and scare all my fish away I'll tell about the poetry."

Divinely tall and most divinely fair was Lady Mary. She came tripping sedately over the tender grass, the mountain winds kissing a delicate peach blossom into her cheeks. Jack, with his customary facility, rose to his feet and the occasion to play the gallant. Neither of 'em paid the slightest attention to me. I was supposed to be dead.

"Jack," she said sweetly. "I want you to row me up to the store. Will you?"

Jack is a finished oarsman, at least he generally finishes it in about ten minutes. I knew it was to be interesting, so I gave up the fishing and watched them.

(Mem. later: They have drifted down the river, both behind Lady Mary's parasol.)

Now, Jack being one of those fellows who believe in never losing an opportunity, calmly rowed the boat out in the middle of the river and then, as I predicted, shipped the oars and opened the conversation.

"How well we get along together in a boat," he remarked, gazing sentimentally at the cliffs.

"Yes," abstractedly, "but I wish you'd row up to the store. I don't want to waste the whole afternoon drifting like this."

"No, of course not," waking up suddenly. Two strokes. Then, "I wish we could always——"

"There are a lot of new people coming to-night," she broke in. "Mr. Eggleston told me so."

"Did he? H'm!" Then with a brilliant idea, "Are you ever interested in other people?" he asked in his most beguiling tone.

"Oh, yes—now, there's Christopher Columbus. I'm interested in him. I wish I had him here this very minute. I'd kiss his dear little nose."

"If I were only Christopher Columbus," insinuated Jack.

"I wish you were sometimes," she cried wickedly. "Then I could shut you up occasionally, couldn't I?"

Now, what could anybody do with a girl like this? The end of it was that Lady Mary took the oars and rowed to the store herself.

Jack came to me disconsolately.

"I wish I was dead," he said.

I told him how annoying it would be to me to have him lying around dead. He said I talked like a fool.

"Jack, my dear boy," I said, patronizingly (I am two months older than he), "the next time you try to pop the question be like a bottle of ginger ale. Go off with a bang and let all the fizzle come afterward."

"I never thought of that," he answered thoughtfully. "I wonder how it would work? By George, H., you're a trump. I'll try it."

That evening they were both down by the spring, and I hid behind a tree. I didn't hear the first part of it, but I got there just in time to hear Jack say,—

"Lady Mary, I love you. Will you be my wife?"

"With pleasure," she answered gayly. "You silly boy, why didn't you say so before?"

"Just what I told him," said I, coming from behind the tree.

"Did you? You dear boy, you may kiss me for that. Keep still, Jack."

And I did.

All the members of the Y. M. C. A. baseball team are expected to be on the LaGrande avenue grounds tomorrow afternoon at 3:30, prepared to play the High School second team.

The Crescents will play the Bergen Hill Field Club on the Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon. The game is called for 3:30 o'clock. Stages will run to the grounds from the North Avenue station.

O'Brien, the new fielder for the Crescents, did not play Memorial Day and Hollister filled his place very satisfactorily. There are mighty few balls that come anywhere in the vicinity of Hollister that are not caught.

The High School team will play no more this yeer. An effort was made by Manager B. O. Bowers, Jr., of the Bachelors' Club team, to arrange a game, but the High School boys have decided not to appear on the diamond again this season.

The Fourth Ward Athletic Club, of this city, will cross bats with a nine composed of employes of the Potter Press Works on the Washington avenue grounds tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. A good game is expected, as each team has now one victory to its credit.

Cooney figured in a double play Monday afternoon as the result of an accident. There was a man on first and a hot liner was batted to Cooney. The ball struck his hands and bounded into the air. The runner had started and when he saw the ball bound he paid no more attention but darted for second. Cooney caught the ball before it reached the ground and threw the ball to first before the runner could reach the base.

The members of the Bachelors' Club are very enthusiastic over the showing that their baseball team has made this season. The overwhelming defeat of the High School second team last Saturday was the crowning event. On that occasion, however, the club had the advantage of the abilities of Duncan Bulkley, the crack young pitcher of Columbia College. Though not a resident of Plainfield, Bulkley is a frequent visitor here and has been elected to honorary membership in the Bachelors' Club.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Edward F. Randolph, of Liberty street, has just purchased a new Keating wheel.

Percy Hand, of Liberty street, has purchased an Eldridge wheel of the Eldridge Bicycle Company.

Mrs. Charles Runyon, of Fifth street, has purchased a new Pierce wheel and has learned to ride.

Mr. and Mrs. George Odiorne, of West Fifth street, are learning to ride the wheel. They will ride Crawfords.

The fine weather of the last few days has made a decided boom in the bicycle business. Before that the dealers found things rather slow for this time of year.

William M. McCutchen, of the Yale track team, is now a proud wearer of the "Y," as a reward for his victory in the dual games with Harvard. He has now left training as the racing season for the college boys is over.

Eighteen Y. M. C. A. wheelmen took a ride to Summit last night. The start was made at 8 o'clock, and the party reached Summit a few minutes after 9. The evening was spent in the usual pleasant manner, and refreshments were served before the wheelmen left for home. As many as cared for a bath were given one. So far Plainfield is at the head for the banner.

JAR WAS TOO GREAT.

John Tier, Jr., Thrown Off His Feet in a Freight Car.

This morning, while Manager John Tier, Jr., of the Plainfield Hygiea Ice Company, was assisting in unloading ice from a freight car near Scott's Press Works, he narrowly escaped serious injury. While in the car a drill engine backed up and not knowing that anyone was in the car, attempted to move the car some distance away. The car was struck with much force and Mr. Tier was thrown headfirst over a quantity of ice. Someone stood near and knowing that Mr. Tier was in the car, called the engineer to stop the engine. An examination proved that Mr. Tier's only injuries were a few slight bruises about the body. He considers his escape a most fortunate one.

Last Tuesday afternoon about 4 o'clock while A. Kane, the contractor, was working on Richmond street between Putnam and LaGrande avenues, a trolley car ran into his horse and cart. The horse was thrown down, the cart was totally wrecked and other damage resulted. The horse was quite severely injured, so much so that Mr. Kane is now unable to use him. The man driving the horse at the time was trying to ascend an embankment when the horse missed his footing and backed down on the tracks just as a trolley car was coming around the curve. The car was under such headway that the motorman was unable to stop quick enough. Mr. Kane has not yet decided just what he will do regarding the matter.

Plainfielders at National Capital.

D. C. Joins, of Plainfield, is a guest at The Shoreham, Governor Morton's Hotel, for a few days' visit in Washington.

Miss Helen Bushnell, of Plainfield, was graduated last evening with honor from the McDonald-Ellis School in Washington, receiving a diploma in the English course. Miss Bushnell was the president of the senior class, and accordingly made the address of welcome at the commencement exercises, which were geld in the Church of Our Father.

New Hose Tower.

Concerning the erection of a new hose tower in the borough for the fire department some progress has been made. The fire committee has received bids for the work and the members have also learned that it is not advisable to attempt to raise the old tower and put it in shape for use. It would cost more money than it is worth. A report will probably be made on the subject at the meeting this evening.

Closing Exercises.

The Young Women's Mission Band of Trinity Reformed church held its closing exercises for the season in the lecture room of the church last evening. The president, Mrs. E. Woodruff, presided. The main part of the evening was devoted to questions and answers regarding China This exercise was in charge of Miss Minnie Arnold. Refreshments were served by the entertainment committee consisting of Mrs. Will F. Williams, Miss Etta Krymer, Miss Ada Chandler, Miss Minnie Williams and Miss Mabelle Woodruff. The Band will not meet again until the first of next October.

His Services Appreciated.

As a pleasant reminder of nearly twenty years of faithful service at the Potter Press Works, former Councilman Arthur T. Gallup was presented with a valuable grandfather's clock when he retired from his position last Friday. The present was a gift from his fellow-employes in the office. Mr. Gallup was wholly unaware of the intended surprise and found it difficult to express in words his appreciation for the gift. Mr. Gallup resigned his position to go into partnership with John M. Hetfield in the ice business, and both have the best wishes of all for success.

Increased Store Room.

Woodhull & Martin, now that Doane & Edsall have moved away, are fitting up that part of their store for the summer trade, The floor will be used to store summer furniture until fall, when the partition dividing it from the rest of the store will be taken out and the whole floor converted into one store without any dividing partitions. This will make it one of the largest dry goods stores in the State.

LAST CUBAN CABLE CUT; CUBA IS NOW ISOLATED.

The Movement Against Santiago Progresses Rapidly.

Regulars Sail From Mobile—Spain Pays a Tribute to American Cleverness and Audacity—Insurgents Gaining Strength About Santiago—The Administration Plans to Force the Fighting Now.

THE LATEST.

Three O'Clock.

LAST CABLE CUT.

Cuba Is Now Isolated From the Rest of the World.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Aboard despatch boat, off Santiago, June 3, via Kingston, June 4th, 1:19 p. m—Cuba is now completely isolated. The last strand of the cables connecting Cuba with the outside world was cut this afternoon.

A cable vessel, convoyed by the despatch boat Dolphin, has been for the cables for many hours. The cable to Kingston was first cut.

This afternoon, the Haytien cable was dragged to the surface and severed. The end was towed far to sea. That was the last of the cables.

REGULARS SAIL.

Several Transports Sail From Mobile, Presumably for Santiago.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Mobile, June 4, 9:25 a. m.—Several transports, crowded with regular troops, sailed from this port this morning under sealed orders.

When the transports left the officers had no idea of their destination. It is generally supposed, however, that the troops are to take part in the movement against Santiago de Cuba.

The troops that sailed consisted of the Second Cavalry, and the Third and Twelfth Infantry regiments of the regular army. They were all well equipped for a campaign in the field.

SPANISH TRIBUTE.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Port au Prince, June 4, 1:25 p. m—Great numbers of insurgents are now gathered in the vicinity of Santiago, where they are probably awaiting some decisive action by the American fleet as a signal to attack the town.

The Spaniards pay a tribute to the audacity of the Americans in so cleverly attempting to blockade the channel.

According to the Spaniards, it would be foolishness on the part of the Americans to attempt to force an entrance into the harbor.

The harbor is described as being long and narrow and thoroughly mined, making seemingly an insurmountable barrier.

MADRID CELEBRATES.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

New York, June 4, 10:45 a. m.—A Mail and Express cable from Madrid alleges that the Merrimac was torpedoed in the harbor of Santiago yesterday and that two American ironclads were seriously damaged.

It is considered at Madrid as a brilliant Spanish victory and there is great rejoicing.

GOVERNMENT PLANS.

Peace Expected to Follow Destruction of Fleet and Forts at Santiago.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 4, 12:20 p. m.—The next move that the Administration undoubtedly contemplates is the immediate destruction of the Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera and the fortifications at Santiago, and the capture of that city.

Rear Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley will use their united naval forces to co-operate with the land forces of the Yankees and insurgents.

Those who are in close touch with President McKinley and Secretary Long declare that Rear Admiral Sampson is going to strike a blow at once, probably next Thursday.

Not only does the administration expect that the United States will force the fighting after this but the leaders are extremely hopeful that the war will practically be over with the capture of Santiago and Cervera's fleet.

It is believed that Spain will soon sue for peace and that the two nations will be able to come to an understanding that will bring the war to a close.

SPAIN STILL DEFIANT.

Will Not Agree to Peace Without the Return of Her Possessions.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Madrid, June 4, 12:30 p. m.—There is no confirmation to the rumors of impending peace despite the statement in the Girons that Spain would not refuse an honorable settlement.

It is understood that the only condition that Spain would accept peace at present is the complete restoration to her former status.

SPANISH FLEET DESTROYED.

Mail and Express Despatches Say Schley Has Won a Great Victory.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

New York, June 4, 10:40 a. m.—The Mail and Express despatches from Cape Haytien, Hayti, say that Commodore Schley and the American fleet destroyed the Spanish Armada at Santiago de Cuba, yesterday. The report is unofficial.

Merrimac Dynamited.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Port au Prince, June 4, 11:25 a. m—Advices from Santiago say that the Spaniards have used dynamite to remove the hulk of the Merrimac and clear the channel, anticipating the arrival of Admiral Camara and the Cadiz fleet.

Marietta at Key West.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Key West, June 4th, 12:26 p. m—The United States gunboat Marietta arrived in port this morning after her long voyage around Cape Horn. She parted company with the Oregon at Rio. All of her crew are well and eager to fight.

SOLONS PROVIDE FOR BOROUGH EXPENSES.

Annual Budget Made Up By the Council Last Night.

MONEY FOR GOOD STREETS.

COUNCILMAN WOOLSTON DEFEATED EFFORT TO REDUCE STREET FUND

He Claimed That $4,000 Was Too Small a Sum to Make the Improvements That are Necessary—As a Result $5,400 Was Appropriated—Tax Rate Discussed and Mr. Valiant Said That it Ought Not to be Raised—Several Amounts of Back Taxes Deducted to the Credit of Mr. Spencer.

The members of the Borough Council held a very important meeting last evening, but a greater part of the evening was taken up with the discussion of street work for the coming year. During the evening the appropriations for the year were fixed, and Mr. Woolston objected to an appropriation of $4,000 for the street work, claiming that streets could not be kept and approved for that amount. The discussion arose out of a suggestion offered by Mr. Valiant that no committee exceed the appropriation granted. As matter stands now there is about $1,800 left for the street department, counting the amount already expended. The question of macadamizing Rockview avenue was brought up and discussed at great length. Some of the property-owners were willing to pay their proportionate share while others said that they would not unless compelled to by law. It was thought that inasmuch as the owners feel that way about the matter it would be just as well to let the matter rest for the present.

Mr. Woolston said that the building of the new school house on Watchung and Mountain avenues would compell the Council to do some macadaming and flagging in that vicinity. He also said that there are other streets in the borough sadly in need of attention. Regarding crosswalks, he said that he would not recommend any more for this year, providing the appropriation was left at $4,000. The Council engaged in a general discussion, but no definite action was taken, except to give Mr. Woolston the authority to fix up some of the streets, including Westervelt and Summit avenues.

Another discussion arose of the purchase of crushed stone. Some of the members thought that the Council was not under obligation to purchase the stone from Mr. Wilson, while others thought it would not be fair to go elsewhere when the Council practically agreed to get the stone of Mr. Wilson. No action was taken in this matter after a lengthy talk about it.

Mr. Valiant's resolution regarding the appropriations was that the following amounts be decided upon for the several departments: Streets, $5,400; police, $4,000; fire department, $2,300; macadamizing and cleaning of streets, $4,000; poor, $1,800; water, $1,200; $500 fire bond certificate with interest, $6.50; interest on bonds of $34,000 bonds Watchung avenue improvement, $1,700; incidentals, $5,000; total $26,050.

Mr. Valiant offered another resolution to the effect that inasmuch as $6,550 will be received from back taxes, licenses, etc., the amount of balance to complete that appropriated will be $19,500, and that the assessor assess and the collector collect borough taxes to the amount of $19,500. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Valiant stated that it would be unjust to the taxpayers to increase the tax rate this year in view of the fact that additional sums have been received by the borough through a recent action in having the books examined, and he suggested that no more than the amount appropriated be expended. This step on the part of Mr. Valiant brought out the above discussion. The matter was finally dropped for the present.

Borough, balance, $3,861.89; lights, $731.64; roads, deficit, $81.53; fire department, $1,124.72; poor, deficit, $382: paid county and State, $3,450.85, total balance, $1,803.87. Received from license fees, etc., by Clerk Arnold, $77.85.

Collector Brown reported that during the month of May $1,457.15 was collected. The summary of taxes collected to date amounts to $6,004.50. At present there is a borough balance of $4,047 17, and a balance of $366.21 to the Watchung avenue accounts.

A communication was received from Former Collector H. N. Spencer, in which he asked the Council to furnish CRANFORD IN THE WAY.

OFFICIALS WILL FIGHT THE COUNTY TROLLEY PLAN.

Instructed Township Counsel to Fight "the Threatened Destruction of Property"—Say They are Unalterably Opposed

Not in a long time has such an important piece of news been given exclusively by The Daily Press as the story of yesterday telling in detail of the stupendous changes in prospect in the work of establishing the widened county boulevard with the trolley road on. The news was widely read and commented on.

There is nothing definite as to what the cost of proposed changes will be, but is reported that steps had been taken by some of the Freeholders in an unofficial way to ascertain what the cost of moving buildings on the avenue will cost the county. This work is being done, it is said, to enable the Board to arrive at some definite conclusion concerning the widening plan at its meeting two weeks hence. In the original plan it was proposed to run the cars going in opposite directions on different streets through Westfield and Cranford, this being believed the cheaper way. It is said that the new plan will make a difference of $40,000 or $50,000 in the cost of the improvement.

An action which some think will prove an obstacle to carrying out the plan to constuct a county boulevard was taken by the Cranford Township Committee at its meeting Thursday night. Committeeman McIntire offered the following resolution, which was adopted unanimously:

"Whereas, Great and needless destruction of property in this township is threatened through the proposed widening of North avenue and the building of a street railway upon the same; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That this committee is unalterably opposed to the widening of North avenue, or the building of a street railroad thereon, or any other operation whatever under the provisions of chapter 118 of the laws of 1898, commonly known as the county boulevard act; and be it further

"Resolved, That the Township Attorney be and is hereby instructed to take such legal measures as may be necessary to prevent the threatening destruction of property."

The effect of this resolution will be apparent by the following extract from the law:

"The work of constructing such street railroad shall not be commenced or carried on in any municipality in the county until the governing body thereof shall by ordinance assent thereto."

RELIEF CORPS ENTERTAIN.

The members of the Woman's Relief Corps gave a strawberry festival and entertainment in Reform Hall last night.

A programme consisting of music and literary features was first presented. Prof. Naylor and his orchestra played several times, Frank Whitely sang a solo, Miss Ada Westphal gave a recitation, and a dialogue was presented, in which the following took part: Mrs. Fred Westphal, Mrs. James Radin, Miss Flora Pullen, of Newark; Miss Mamie Devine, Mrs. Dodwell and her daughter, of Dunellen.

There was a piano duet by Miss Ada Nash and Mrs. Lawrence, and a violin and piano duet by Master and Miss Finger. Willie Westphal gave a recitation and there was a flag drill by nine little girls. A solo was also sung by Mr. Turner, accompanied on the piano by Miss Maud Kinsey. Another dialogue, in which Mrs. Edward Bowman, Mrs. James Clawson, Miss Mamie Devine, Miss Jennie Devine, Mrs. Andrew Cox and Miss Dora Bennett took part, closed the programme.

The committee in charge of the affair was Miss Ada Nash, Mrs. Clarence Leland, Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, Mrs. Andrew Cox and Mrs. Edward Devine, assisted by several young ladies.

Too Much Dust.

In spite of the recent rains the condition of West Front street, between Grant avenue and the end of the trolley, is anything but desirable. The dust is almost unbearable and unless the Council take steps to have that street sprinkled there is a possibility that the residents may rise up in their wrath.

The Senior Dance.

The class of '98 of the Plainfield Seminary has sent out invitations for the Senior dance to be held at the Seminary, on West Seventh street, Saturday evening, June 12th. The patronesses are Mrs. George A. String, Mrs. George W. VanBoskerck and Miss Arnold.

A MAIL BAG SOCIABLE.

A UNIQUE MISSIONARY MEETING IN CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH.

Endeavorers Acquainted With What is Going On in All Fields of the World in a Very Interesting Manner.

A unique missionary meeting was held in the Crescent Avenue church last evening under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society, by which the members were made acquainted with what is going on in the missionary fields of the world in such an interesting manner that the subject was void of its usual dry aspect.

The service was called a "foreign mail bag sociable," and the principal part of it consisted in reading missionary letters from missionaries stationed in all parts of the world, and directed to certain members of the Christian Endeavor Society. These letters were very interesting.

Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, who led the meeting, acted as postmaster, not accepting that office very willingly, he said, for two reasons—first, because there was no salary attached to it, and secondly, because it was not a civil service position, and he was likely to be ousted by his successor at any moment. But Dr. Hedges was not deposed during his short term and he made a most excellent official, reading off the addresses on the envelopes with many laughable remarks.

As usual the mail was late, but soon the messengers were seen coming in the room, bearing between them a heavy United States mail bag which was borrowed for the occasion. The messengers were Mrs. I. W. Travell and Walter Cahoone, both dressed in Syrian costume according to their sex. Dr. Hedges claimed that the mail steamer, which brought this batch of mail, had circumnavigated the globe, nearly, and brought letters from foreign fields under every sun. Some of the letters were written by missionaries at these particular posts, to be read at this service, while others were made up for the occasion from magazine and newspaper clippings.

Dr. Hedges' first letter was dated Honolulu, and was addressed to Mrs. Charles Hall, who arose and read it. It told something of the work among the lepers in the Sandwich Islands, as carried on by the good Father Daniel in '65, and something about what is being done there today; Mr. King received a postal from Tokyo, Japan; Miss Mary Miller and Miss Mary Sutton letters from China; Miss Sadie Brown one from Jerusalem; Miss C. R. Yates, Miss Burnette and Miss Marie Newman letters from Syria; M. Voorhees one from Madrid, and Miss Dewey and Miss Sadie Hunter one each from the west coast of Africa.

The most interesting letter was received by I. W. Travell, and was written by Louis Walz, who is engaged in missionary work in North Carolina. Pictures of the lands represented and a number of curios from China were exhibited. The evening closed with a sociable, at which the refreshments consisted of orange glace, chocolates and marshmellows, the latter eaten with chop sticks. The social part was under the auspices of the social committee of which Mr. Travell is chairman.

WARREN TOWNSHIP WINS.

North Plainfield is Responsible for Care of Mulford Ross.

The case of the Overseer of the Poor of Warren Township against the Overseer of the Poor of North Plainfield Township was decided by Judge Bartine yesterday in favor of Warren Township and against North Plainfield. The Township Committees of these two townships entered into a battle royal Thursday last at Somerville, not in a contest for more territory, but for the purpose of getting rid of keeping a pauper named Mulford Ross. North Plainfield was defeated, although she, under the leadership of Messrs. Pope & Runyon, her attorneys, put up a good fight. Warren was led to victory under the careful and experienced generalship of ex-Assemblyman W. B. Codington.

Wouldn't Sign the Pledge.

Patrolman Mattox found Ann Sullivan drunk on West Fourth street last night and locked her up. This morning she had the usual pitiful story to tell about her aches and pains, and how she had to take a little whiskey to get rid of them. He tale stood her in good stead this morning, for City Judge DeMeza let her off with a suspension of sentence. The Judge asked Ann if she would sign the pledge, and while not willing to take that step she said she was determined to stop drinking.

William T. Newman, of West Second street, has gone to Brooklyn to visit relatives.

Israel C. Pierson, of Watchung avenue, has returned from Europe, where he has been on a business trip.

WILL HAVE CLASS DAY.

GRADUATES AT PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL START AN INNOVATION

The Exercises Will Be Held in the Franklin Building on Tuesday of Commencement Week—Class Day Now.

The class of '98 of the Plainfield High School is preparing for an innovation of the old established customs at that educational institution. A "class day," something that has never been held in Plainfield before, is being planned, and the class is preparing to entertain its friends in a very pleasant manner before its members say goodbye to school life forever.

The day set for the exercises is Tuesday evening, June 21st, two days before Commencement. The exercises will be held in the assembly room of the Franklin building. Admission will be by invitation. Three hundred and fifty tickets will be issued.

The programme for the occasion will consist of the class ode, the class history and the class prophecy. Then the members of '98 are preparing for something else which they have not yet announced.

While the matter has been under advisement by the class of '98 for some time, it was not until yesterday afternoon that it was definitely decided that a class day should be part of the graduation ceremonies. A meeting of the class was held yesterday afternoon. The details of the programme have not yet been settled, but they will be announced before the Class Day exercises take place.

WORK OF CHAPTER NO. 1.

The work of Chapter No. 1, Epworth League, of the First M. E. church, for the past year, was reviewed at the annual meeting of that chapter held in Vincent chapel last evening. An increase in membership and a well-filled treasury were among the chief tokens of the activity of the League.

The meeting was presided over by the retiring president, Robert Davis. The report of the spiritual work was made by the first vice-president, Miss Anna H. Smalley. The report of the mercy and help committee was read by Miss Elsie Horne, second vice-president. Third vice-president Miss Ida Angleman gave the report of the literary committee. Miss Persis Snodgrass, as fourth vice-president made the report of the social committee. The report of the treasurer, D. S. Dunavan showed a balance of $42.23 in the treasury.

James A. Stafford, as secretary, reported a membership of 117, a gain of 17 over the membership a year ago.

The election of officers was then held and resulted as follows: President, Harry Gee; first vice-president, Miss Jennie Davies; second vice-president, Miss Elsie Horne; third vice president, Miss Ida Angleman; fourth vice president, Miss Persis Snodgrass; secretary, Chas. Sprague; treasurer, Albert Steiner.

DEATH OF FREDERICK CASPAR.

Born in Germany, But Served for Three Years in Civil War.

Frederick Caspar, the East Front street hotel keeper, died this morning after an illness lasting about six months. He was an old soldier, and belonged to Winfield Scott Post of this city. He was also a Free Mason and this order will have charge of the funeral Monday afternoon at 2:30 from the German Reformed church.

Mr. Caspar was born in Bayden, Germany, 58 years ago. He came to this country three years before the Civil War, and enlisted in the Buffalo heavy artillery, serving all through the struggle. He moved to this city and opened a saloon and hotel on East Front street, which he kept up to the time of his death.

The deceased was a member of Jerusalem Lodge, Free Masons, a member of the Saengerbunds, an exempt fireman, a Red Man, and a member of the Schultz Corps. He leaves a widow and five children, Charles, of Newark, Mrs. Daniel Ball, of Brooklyn, Mrs. A. J. Stiglitz, of North Plainfield, Fred, who is supposed to be in South Africa, and Miss Lucy.

Cleveland Wedding.

An out-of-town wedding of interest to many Plainfielders is that of Collins P. Bliss, assistant professor in the engineering department of the New York University, and Miss Jessamine Coon, of Cleveland, O., which took place in the latter city June 1st. Prof. Bliss spent his boyhood in this city, being the elder son of Rev. Dr. John C. Bliss, former pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

—Rev. Hilton Pedley, of Japan, will give an address in the Congregational church tomorrow evening on "Affairs in Japan." Mr. Pedley married a sister of Miss J. F. Clark, of the Seminary.

SCOTCH PLAINS WILL GET A TROLLEY ROAD.

Township Committee Granted a Franchise Last Night.

ONE TRACK PART THE WAY

IF ROAD IS WIDENED TROLLEY COMPANY WILL PAY FOR IT.

The Point at Issue in Granting a Franchise Was Whether the Property-owners or the Company Should Pay for Expense of the Changes to Allow Double Tracks—Company Finally Agreed to do the Work, and Then the Franchise Was Granted—Committee Consider That They Have a Model Franchise

The township committee of Fanwood township met in the town rooms last evening at 8 o'clock to bring to its second reading the long delayed trolley franchise asked for by the Elizabeth and Westfield Street Railway Company. Chairman T. J. Nicholl called the meeting to order and trolley business was immediately taken up. The committee and their counsel, Wm. R. Coddington, together with Mr. Riker and Mr. Gaddis, representing the company, took up the franchise by sections, making such alterations as were suggested and agreed upon.

The only point that was argued or discussed to any extent was the section calling for a double track. This the property-owners along the route objected to, as the road is entirely too narrow for anything but a single track. But by widening the road to the sixty-six feet limit, called for by the township map, the double track could be laid easily. The property-owners want the trolley but are not willing to tear up their fences and reset them for a double track unless the company will pay all expenses.

The company seems willing to be willing to do this, but the township committee wants the property-owners to agree whether they will have it widened to the sixty-six-foot limit or not. This was the point the property-owners have not agreed upon.

Mr. Nicholl, for the committee, assured the company that Scotch Plains wants the trolley as bad as the company wants to build it, but before granting a franchise the committee wished to be sure that they were protecting the interest of the property-owners, along the route and that all would be satisfied. This was the committee's intentions and the point was argued pro and con without making any changes in the committee.

It was finally agreed upon that the section should be amended so as to read, "A single track only shall be laid from Forest avenue to what is known as Cook's corner, and from Cook's corner to the borough line, until such time, as the road shall be widened to the width of sixty-six feet, and the company shall bear all expense of widening said road."

The franchise was then passed to its third reading and on motion was taken up and the long delayed franchise was granted, all voting in the affirmative. So in nine months from March 1st, 1898, Scotch Plains should have communication with the outside world. It has been rather slow and discouraging work, but the people can rest assured that the franchise, as granted, is a model one and protects the township in every way.

NEW PATROLMAN.

City Guardians Will be Increased by Mayor's Appointment.

With the departure of Patrolman Florence McCarthy to the war there was a vacancy in the city police force. The Police Board has received a number of applications for the place and the canditates have been put through a thorough examination. The two who made the most favorable impression were Michael McCarthy, now conductor for the Plainfield Street Railway, and John Weizenried, a local truckman.

While no regular appointment will be made by the Mayor at the Council meeting Monday night, he has decided after consultation with the Police Board to appoint McCarthy for regular duty on trial. Weizenried will be put on trial at intervals.

An Old Plainfielder Interred.

The body of the late Stephen L. Miles was interred Thursday beside the remains of his wife in Evergreen cemetery, Plainfield avenue. Mr. Miles was the father of James Q. Miles, of Somerset street, Mrs. George Bullman, of Washingtonville, and Rev. E. S. Miles, of Pine Bush, Sullivan county, N. Y. He died at Jersey City March 4th, 1884, and the body was interred at that time in the cemetery at Pine Bush, N. Y. He was a former resident of this city.

SPAIN'S RESERVE SQUADRON

A Washington Despatch Says It Is Preparing to Sail For Manila, While London Says Santiago.

Washington, June 4.—Information which is regarded as entitled to consideration, has been received indicating that the destination of the Spanish reserve squadron being mobilized at Cadiz is Manila, and for that reason the administration is taking steps to hasten reinforcements to Admiral Dewey.

The information as to the destination of the Cadiz fleet is not considered so definite, however, as to lead to the neglect of precautions in the Atlantic, and several scouts are to be dispatched to look out for the fleet if it should attempt to cross the Atlantic.

London, June 4.—Advices received from Madrid would indicate that Camara's Cadiz fleet is well on its way to American waters to reinforce Cervera.

News of the movement of these ships has been guarded most carefully, but it is said that Camara commands a dozen formidable ships, including the battleship Pelayo and five cruisers of the Vizcaya class.

So much misinformation has been purposely permitted to leak out at Madrid that this report is not given much credence here.

AN AMERICAN SHIP SUNK.

Port au Prince, Hayti, June 4.—Yesterday morning at 8 o'clock the American squadron again began a bombardment of the fortifications at Santiago de Cuba, and a lively cannonade ensued for two hours, which extinguished the fire of the Spanish batteries.

An American vessel, the Merrimac, described in the advices from Santiago as an auxiliary cruiser, making a dash to force the entrance, succeeded in passing the first line of defences, but was torpedoed about 500 feet up the channel.

She went down "perpendicularly" (a pic).

An officer, an engineer and six seamen were taken prisoners.

The number of victims is unknown.

There is great excitement in the city.

The American squadron was cruising all the while in the offing.

Madrid, June 4.—The Pais, a prominent Republican organ, says it is rumored that the United States fleet has made a second attack upon Santiago de Cuba and that the Americans forced an entrance into the harbor. In Spanish circles here the report is not believed to be true.

INVASION OF CUBA BEGUN.

Transports Have Left Mobile and Some Troops Have Started From Tampa.

Washington, June 4.—Indications are that the transports at Tampa, Mobile and other places have started, loaded with troops, for Santiago, Cuba. Several dispatches sent by newspapers here to correspondents in Tampa yesterday could not be delivered.

These correspondents were expected to sail with the first tranports for Cuba. The fact that the messages were not delivered is taken as evidence that the transports have sailed, carrying both troops and correspondents.

A Town That Takes the Prize.

Marlboro, Hartford County, Conn., has a population of 582, but only 79 persons voted at the last election. It has no doctor, no lawyer, no clergyman who resides there, and its schoolchildren number only 81. It has silk mills, where the operatives are, presumably, largely unmarried women, which accounts for the disproportion of population to voters. It has two postoffices and sends two members to the Legislature, as many as Bridgeport, and it is reached by stage daily from East Hampton. It voted for no license by a majority of five on a total vote of fifty-five. In some respects it takes the prize for its peculiarities.—New York Tribune.

FOR THE PHILIPPINES

WAR VESSELS FOR DEWEY

The Gunboat Bennington to Be Sent to the Philippines to Augment the American Fleet There—Mines Said to Have Been Sent to Manila to Guard the Harbor Against Spanish Vessels—Getting the Transports Ready.

San Francisco, June 4.—Orders have been issued by General Otis, commanding the Colorado and Pennsylvania troops now at Camp Merritt, to go on board ships for the Philippines next Tuesday. Rations for six months are to be taken and 400 rounds of ammunition will be supplied each man. It is not known definitely when the second expedition will start, but it is believed it will get off by Thursday next.

The work of coaling the transports, China, Zealandia and Colon, is proceeding steadily. The Zealandia will be fully coaled within twenty-four hours, but the other two vessels will not receive their supply before Monday or Tuesday. Patent bunks, convertible into settees, probably will be put in all three vessels. The steamers Ohio and Centennial, now due here, will join the fleet of transports. It is stated that the accommodations for troops on the China are even worse than those on the City of Pekin, which carried away the first California regiment. Military officers here hope to effect a change for the better before the soldiers embark.

It is semi-officially stated that two more vessels will be chartered by the government for the second Manila expedition, but the impression prevails that they will be colliers, one of which will accompany the Monadnock in the event of that monitor's being sent to Honolulu as now seems probable.

Supplies in Immense Quantities.

Supplies for the Manila flotilla are being bought in immense quantities and the stocks of some merchants here have been exhausted.

General Merritt is using every effort to collect reliable information regarding the Philippines as a scene of military operations. Data of every kind are being collected and books and maps are purchased daily. A bureau of military information has been established at headquarters and placed in charge of Major J. F. Bell of the engineer corps.

It is now thought that no cavalry will be taken to the Philippines. Experience has shown that the shipment of American horses would be impracticable, and it would be very difficult to secure enough of the native stock.

The Catholic Truth Society has arranged to erect a tent capable of accommodating 2,000 people close to Camp Merritt, and the priests of this city have arranged to alternate in holding mass on week days as well as on Sundays. Catholic soldiers will be granted full liberty to attend these services.

Washington, June 4.—In addition to the monitors Monterey and Monadnock the navy department wil send the gunboat Bennington to augment Admiral Dewey's forces at Manila. The Bennington is at Honolulu, where she was sent during the trouble between Japan and Hawaii last year. It is probable that she will return to the Mare Island navy yard to undergo an overhauling before starting for Manila.

The Monadnock will be ready in time to convey the third consignment of troops to the Philippines. Under the present plan of the navy department both the Monterey and the Monadnock will be towed most of the distance from Honolulu to Manila. This is deemed necessary for several reasons. If a storm should arise, causing one of the monitors to be cast adrift by the towing vessel, she would have plenty of coal in her bunkers to proceed under her own steam until the storm subsided. Another contingency would be the appearance of Spanish vessels. In that event the monitor would be the main dependence of the transports. She would be obliged to protect them from the enemy, and in assuming an aggressive position could not remain attached to a tow line.

Effective measures said to have been taken by the administration will shortly render Manila harbor impregnable against Spanish attack.

In connection with the defences of that harbor it is said that the City of Pekin carried with her to the far East a large number of mines, containing fifty pounds of guncotton of the same character as those which were sent to the North Atlantic squadron at the request of Rear Admiral Sampson.

CREWS OF PRIZES TO BE RELEASED.

They Will Be Required to Promise Not to Bear Arms Against the United States.

Key West, June 4.—In accordance with instructions from the attorney general, the United States court is arranging for the release of the crews of prizes taken since the war began. The ordinary procedure in war times is to hold the ship and let the crew go, but as many Spaniards now here belong to the naval reserve or the Havana volunteers, and might take up arms on that they be required to sign a parole.

About 300 of them have pledged themselves not to bear arms against the United States. Each has a copy of his parole and a duplicate is filed here in the United States court.

A large number will go to Cadiz and to Barcelona on the release of the prizes Catalina and Miguel Jover in a few days. Others will be turned over to the care of the Austrian consuls at Mobile and Apalachicola.

A Patriotic Chinaman.

San Francisco, June 4.—Kum Shu, editor of the Chinese newspaper in this city, has opened a subscription list for the Red Cross Society among his countrymen and has already secured $100 from the Sam Yup Company. He is writing up the work of the Red Cross in his paper and is confident that a large amount of money can be raised among the Chinese here.

DUNN'S WEEKLY REPORT.

Trade Conditions Continue Favorable Notwithstanding Our War With Spain.

New York, June 4.—May having been the first full month of actual war, the fact that failures in that month were smaller, even though but little, than in the corresponding month last year, and nearly 10 per cent. smaller than in May, 1896, is somewhat encouraging, the more because a year ago the remarkable decrease in May gave proof of the heavy improvement in business which made the year so gratifying in general results. Details given show that large failures were eight in manufacturing, for $2,385,000 this year, against thirteen for $2,659,000 last year, and in trading five for $690,000, against ten for $1,572,077 in 1897. Hesitation in extending usual credits soon after war began naturally affected weak more than strong concerns, but it soon gave place to steady and increasing confidence.

Wheat dropped 74 cents from the highest point after the May deal culminated, and has since been weaker for July because of accounts promising an enormous yield. Those who were nearest the truth last year now predict about 700 million bushels for 1898, and all accounts make acreage much larger and conditions much better than a year ago.

After great exports in May it is gratifying to find that exports from New York begin June with an increase of 49 per cent., while imports here last week showed a decrease of 35 per cent., returns which promise continuance of the imports of gold. Nor is evidence of heavy domestic trade wanting. Clearings at the principal cities show an increase of 17.0 per cent. over last year, for the week outside New York, while including New York the week's exchanges have been $249,000,000, or 30.8 per cent. larger than last year, and $130,000,000, or 14.0 per cent. larger than in 1892. Railway earnings for May to date show a gain of 13.7 per cent. over 1892, and the east bound tonnage from Chicago in May was 390,879, against 199,341 last year.

Of all the great industries, the cotton manufacture only gives some sign of shrinkage, cotton having dropped a sixteenth during the week after a rise in goods averaging for the month about 1 per cent., thus rendering the marketing of accumulated stocks somewhat more difficult. But print cloths have advanced, and in most staple goods the demand is improving.

There is not much demand for wool, which is still held in the main above the views of manufacturers, and prices have declined an average of half a cent for the month. The demand for boots and shoes continues heavy, for although 1,786,109 cases have been shipped this year from Boston, against 1,741,607 in 1895, the largest previous year, according to the Shoe and Leather Reporter, urgent demands are coming in from all parts of the country.

The iron and steel manufacture leads all others in gain over previous years, its consumption of pig being apparently more than a million tons per month, or 228,000 tons each week, against 170,780 tons per week in May, 1892, an increase of 33.6 per cent. Above all others in significance is the wholly unprecedented demand from agricultural implement works, which throw into the shade all their past orders, while the plate and rail manufacturers are beating all records, partly with foreign orders. Failures for the week have been 222 in the United States, against 241 last year, and 16 in Canada, against 32 last year.

TO BUILD A BIG STEEL PLANT.

Land Near Chicago Purchased by H. C. Frick and Other Capitalists.

Chicago, June 4.—A new steel plant is to be built at East Chicago, Ind., by H. C. Frick of the Carnegie Steel Company of Pittsburg and several other eastern capitalists. The concern, when completed, will employ 2,000 men. Three hundred acres of land have been bought on the shore of Lake Michigan and bordering on the waterway leading from the Calumet river to the lake for the site of the mills.

The new enterprise will be supported by capitalists with practically unlimitel resources. The plant is to be one of the finest in the world. It will comprise structural steel mills, steel rail mills and blast furnaces.

The site which has been secured is well adapted for such an enterprise. A harbor will be built at the mouth of the waterway extending from the Calumet river to the lake, in order that ore for the use of the furnaces may be brought by boat from the Lake Superior mines. Other land owners of the harbor have agreed to contribute $100,000 toward the proposed improvement, which, when completed, will be turned over to the government.

A BIG NEBRASKA LOBBY.

Charge That $200,000 Has Been Spent in Fifteen Years to Control Legislation.

Omaha, June 4.—The developments in the trial of the Pacific Express Company's head officers for embezzlement are disturbing some western corporations. The chief bookkeeper of the company testified that for fifteen years the company has spent about $10,000 a year to control the Nebraska legislature, and that something like $200,000 has thus been squandered. He said that this was contributed by various Nebraska corporations.

It is said the express company's stockholders will sue the chief officers to recover this money.

Work for the Vesuvius.

Off Santiago de Cuba, Jamaica, June 4.—It is likely that the latter part of the week will see more serious work here.

The dynamite cruiser Vesuvius is coming down and an attempt will be made by her to explode the triple row of mines extending across the harbor's mouth.

With these out of the way Commodore Schley will sail into the harbor for a death grapple with the fleets and batteries.

Fire in Indiana.

Vincennes, Ind., June 4.—The town of Bicknell, in this county, was visited by a fire Welnesday night which almost destroyed its business portion. The loss is very heavy, but detailed figures cannot be secured. At least twenty-five stores and buildings were destroyed.

SCHLEY WIRES REPORT

Testing the Strength and Finding Location of Batteries.

OUR SQUADRON UNINJURED

The Attack Was Made for the Purpose of Developing the Enemy's Position and Location of Their Defences—No Reason to Doubt That Admiral Cervera's Fleet Is In the Harbor—Operation Entirely Successful and Satisfactory.

Washington, June 4.—The navy department has received an official report from Commodore Schley regarding his recent attack on the fortifications at the entrance of Santiago harbor. It was read at yesterday's cabinet meeting and received with satisfaction.

Commodore Schley says that his attack was made for the purpose of developing the enemy's position, to locate their batteries, etc. In that respect it was, he says, entirely successful and he accomplished what he set out to do.

None of his vessels was touched by the enemy's volleys and there were no casualties or mishaps on the American side.

He says, in addition, that he has no reasonable doubt that Cervera's fleet is inside the harbor of Santiago.

The cabinet meeting was largely devoted to the discussion of present and prospective army and navy movements which cannot be made public.

Attorney General Griggs explained to the members of the cabinet that the several prizes captured by United States vessels which have been condemned by the court can be appropriated to the use of the government without formality or any decree involving advertisement and sale.

To Plan War Movements.

There seems to be no doubt that it is the purpose of the government to push forward with the greatest possible expedition the military and naval movements against Santiago de Cuba and Porto Rico, and for the purpose of making the result of both expeditions absolutely certain, large military forces will be dispatched to both points to co-operate with the navy and the Cuban insurgents. The purpose is to make them overwhelming in strength and numbers, and so crush the enemy at every point and bring the war to a speedy termination.

In view of the fact that the Spaniards are known to have made considerable additions to the defences of Santiago since the outbreak of the war it would become absolutely necessary for a naval commander, before entering upon a general engagement, to take steps to learn for himself and beyond question just what defences he must overcome to succeed in his attack. Otherwise the whole plan of the engagement, carefully drawn in advance, might be suddenly overthrown in the midst of the attack by the unexpected fire by some heavy battery whose whereabouts was unknown to the attacking force.

Opinions of Naval Officers.

The naval officers to-day are giving out the impression that the attack on Santiago is to be postponed until the troops arrive from Tampa. If this is so, then nothing can be expected in the way of an engagement for some time to come, for it was stated at the war department yesterday that no troops have yet boarded the transports, and several days will be required to make the passage from Tampa to Santiago.

The attention of naval officers has been attracted to the positions in the harbor occupied by the Spanish flagship Cristobal Colon and the hulk Reina Mercedes. Lying in the narrowest part of the channel, the ships, when in danger of capture, might be scuttled, and thus absolutely prevent the entrance of the American ships. While this would also prevent the egress of the Spanish vessels, it would tend to make the reduction of Santiago an extremely difficult task, and one requiring a long time, for the Spanish ironclads lying in the harbor could be counted upon easily to repel any attack coming from the land side until such time as the troops managed to secure the support of heavy artillery.

SENT TO U. S. TREASURY.

New York, June 4.—The United States treasury at Washington will receive a unique shipment of money today. A box about two feet square and eighteen inches deep, containing $2,500 in counterfeit coins, left Chief Hazen of the local secret service bureau's office this morning for Washington.

The contents of the box represents the accumulation of about six years in the New York office of the government secret service. The coins are of all denominations, from a cent to a dollar, though most of them are 25 and 50 cent pieces.

The bad money, when it reaches Washington will be inspected by a committee and sent to the navy yard, where it will be melted.

War Balloons Almost Ready.

New York, June 4.—Maurice Malle6 and Anthony Varide, the French aeronauts who constructed the two military balloons for this government, are putting the finishing touches on the airships in the barracks of Fort Columbus. Thursday the pongee silk of which the balloons are made, was varnished and the netting and ropes of the basket put in order. The balloons will be ready for transportation South in a few days.

Monitor Jason Sails.

New York, June 4.—The old monitor Jason, which has been undergoing repairs for the past week at the navy yard, sailed yesterday for New London, where she will do duty in defending the coast.

The Jason is commanded by Lieutenant Tichborne and manned by about 100 members of the Brooklyn Naval Reserves. The Jason passed through Hell Gate at slack water.

THE ST. PAUL IN PORT

Comes Here for Orders and to Get Coal and More Provisions.

New York, June 4.—The United States auxiliary cruiser St. Paul, formerly of the American line of transatlantic steamships, is now lying off Tompkinsville, S. I., after a two weeks' cruise in West Indian waters. The vessel was on guard and scout duty at the harbor of Santiago de Cuba for nine days, from May 20 to May 29. No specially interesting work was done by the St. Paul besides her capture of the British coal steamship Restormel on May 25, almost under the guns of the harbor forts.

Captain Sigsbee, the former commander of the battleship Maine, now in command of the St. Paul, left at once for Washington to deliver dispatches and receive orders. The St. Paul was ordered to this port by Rear Admiral Sampson for coal, water and further minor equipment of her armament. Why she did not get coal and water at Kev West instead of running so far north, is not explained except by the fact that possibly the vessel being so speedy the loss of a few days would be more than commensurate with the needless depletion of the Key West supplies. Another theory advanced is that possibly the St. Paul is to be ordered away under sealed orders as was the St. Louis, which touched here last week, and which has not since been heard from. The St. Paul will lie in the upper bay for four or five days, while 3,000 tons of coal and 200,000 gallons of fresh water are put aboard. Many of the officers were allowed short shore leave, but the seamen were not permitted to leave the ship.

The St. Paul, quite unlike the former glistening first class ocean greyhound, in a coat of dull, leaden-colored paint from water line to topmost truck, and with a battery of eighteen guns, left Hampton Roads on May 15 last for Key West. From Key West she was ordered to scouting duty, and left there on May 18. The cruise: reached the Santiago harbor two days later, after touching at Cape Haytien with and for dispatches. At Santiago the vessel watched the harbor closely and on May 23 she was rewarded with a glimpse of several Spanish boats. Captain Sigsbee is quite confident that he discerned the Cristobal Colon, the Vizcaya and two torpedo boat destroyers.

YELLOW FEVER ON THE GARRICK.

One Seaman Dead, Another Recovering—The Steamer to Be Disinfected.

New York, June 4.—The Lamport & Holt steamer Garrick, which arrived yesterday from South American ports, was held at quarantine for disinfection. Captain Edlin reports that on May 12, at Victoria, Brazil, Wilhelm Collins, twenty years old, a fireman, died of yellow fever and was buried there; also that on the 17th, at Bahia, T. Hanson, a seaman, was stricken with the same disease. On arrival Hansen was convalescent, but was removed to Swinburne Island Hospital for treatment.

Captain Edlin also reports that Captain Black of the steamer Hogarth, who was left in the hospital at Santos, suffering with yellow fever, died there on May 7, and was buried in the cemetery o fthat place. The Garrick will be thoroughly cleansed and disinfected and will probably be released very soon.

FOR COAST DEFENCES.

To Recruit 5,000 Men for This Work—Naval Reserves to Enlist.

New York, June 4.—The auxiliary naval board yesterday inspected the iron sea going tug Zouave. She may be added to the harbor patrol fleet.

Rear Admiral Erben and Lieutenant Commander Jacob W. Miller of the state naval militia, held a conference in regard to the manning of vessels in the coast defence fleet by naval reserves.

Admiral Erben said that about 5,000 men were needed. Of this number 3,000 will be used in the coast defence service and 2,000 will be placed on warships. Recruiting will be begun at once, and the reserves will be mobilized at the coast cities.

The naval reserves will enlist for one year. Their pay will be the same as the regular army private. Admiral Erben expects to have 1,000 men mustered into the service by the first of next week.

THE NEW PRIMARY LAW.

Attorney-General Hancock Gives an Opinion Concerning Paster Ballots.

Albany, June 4.—Attorney General Hancock, in reply to the question as to whether or not "pasters" are allowed on ballots voted at primaries under the new primary election law, writes as follows:

"Nowhere in the law do I find any express provision as to the use of paster ballots. The duty of preparing the ballots to be voted at a primary election is not by law imposed upon the custodian of primary records, but may be printed by any person in conformity with the sample ballot which is prepared by such custodian.

"It would seem that 'paster ballots,' while not expressly prohibited by the act, would not only be unnecessary, but might cause the ballots upon which they are used to be protested as marked for identification."

Spanish Cap ives Released.

New York, June 4.—The passengers and crew of the Spanish steamer Rita, captured on May 8, while on her way to San Juan, Porto Rico, by the auxiliary cruiser Yale, were brought to New York yesterday by the Clyde liner Seminole. There were thirty-seven prisoners and they were in charge of United States Marshal Melton.

The Spaniards will be turned over to the Austrian consul, who will send them back to Spain as soon as possible.

Work on Cruiser Columbia.

New York, June 4.—The work of removing the below water line plates from the disabled cruiser Columbia's hull is still in progress. This is a slow process, and will take a longer time than the other work.

No information could be obtained at the commandant's office concerning the length of time necessary to get the cruiser ready again.

TO COIN THE BULLION

Senate Adopts the Wolcott Amendment by Vote of 48 to 31.

A YEAR'S WAR EXPENSES

Four Million Dollars a Month Authorized Silver Certificates to Be Issued Based Upon the Seigniorage—Debate As to the Length of Time the War Will Last, and the Amount of Money Actually Needed to Carry It On.

Washington, June 4.—The senate has agreed to substitute the Wolcott amendment to the war revenue bill for the finance committee provision in regard to the coinage of the silver seigniorage to the extent of $42,000,000 which is to be the amount first coined. The vote stood 48 to 31.

The amendment as agreed to follows: "That the secretary of the treasury shall immediately cause to be coined, as fast as possible, into standard silver dollars, to an amount of not less than $4,000,000 per month, which shall be of like weight and fineness, and of like legal-tender quality as those provided for under existing law, all the silver bullion now held in the treasury.

"That the secretary of the treasury is authorized and directed to issue, as said silver is coined, silver certificates of similar design and denominations and of the same quality, payable and redeemable in like manner as those authorized by law, to the amount of the gain or seigniorage derived from the purchases of silver bullion by the treasury under the act of July 14, 1890, until the sum of $42,000,000 shall have been issued.

"That all said moneys so coined, including the amounts of the gains or seigniorage so coined, shall be used both for the redemption of the treasury notes heretofore issued under and by virtue of the act of July 14, 1890, and for the redemption of the certificates issued under this act."

Amendments to Be Considered.

In the course of a brief colloquy, when the war revenue bill was taken up, concerning the priority of the amendments yet to be considered, Mr. Jones, Democrat of Arkansas, expressed the opinion that all the revenue features of the bill ought to be completed and passed upon before the bond provision was passed upon, because the amount of revenue raised might have great weight in the determination of some other pending amendments. He was satisfied, he said, that the bond provision would be incorporated in the bill, but held that senators ought to know what the bill would raise approximately before being called upon to vote on the bond question.

Mr. Hale, Republican of Maine, inquired whether Mr. Jones thought the small amount comparatively which would be raised by the pending revenue amendments would be sufficient. "I have no doubt," he continued, "that if this war lasts a year it will cost the government between $700,000,000 and $800,000,000. That is my prediction, and I put myself on record to that effect."

Mr. Jones said that so much money might be spent, but he did not think so. He was satisfied, at all events, that an issue of bonds was unnecessary. "I do not believe," said he, "that the war will last one year, six months or anything like that time. And the cost will certainly be much less than stated by the senator (Mr. Hale). The secretaries of war and the navy each made an estimate of the expenses for one year, and their aggregate estimates were only about half the estimates of the senator from Maine."

Mr. Hale pointed out that no war was so expensive as an expeditionary war. He said he had examined all the estimates made upon the expenses of the war and he was satisfied they would reach certainly $700,000,0000.

Bill a Permanent Measure.

Mr. Teller silver Republican of Colorado, reviewed tariff legislation during the last ten years, and then said it was evident that this bill was not to be a temporary measure. It was to all intents and purposes to be a permanent law. The expenses of the war would be large, but they would not end with the close of the war. The United States, he said, proposed to have a great navy, commensurate with the dignity and development of our country, and in addition, all the cities along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts had a right to demand protection from foreign invasion. The expenses of the government were great now, but they were certain to be greater at the close of the war.

Mr. Aldrich said that careful estimates had been made of the revenue prolucing qualities of the bill, and he was satisfied the amount would be between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000, certainly not in excess of the latter sum.

The expenses of the war would not be less, he said, than $300,000,000, and he believed that they would far exceed that sum.

FOR THE VACATION SEASON.

Subscribers leaving the city for the summer season can have The Daily Press sent to their new address by notifying the buisness office. The address will be changed as often as desired. "Home news" will prove most interesting while you are away.

The Jews Remember!

Hebrew newspapers in America are taking warm interest in the war with Spain and urging the young men of their race to volunteer and fight for the United States. Some of the wealthy Jews have given money to the government to prosecute the war. Hebrew citizens of the United States are always patriotic. They know better than any other people what it is to be persecuted and oppressed, and they appreciate a country where all citizens are free to pursue their callings as they choose. But at present they are unusually enthusiastic for the success of the United States arms. A writer in The Jewish Press says his people in America "pray daily in the sacred language of the prophets for the victorious progress of Uncle Sam, whose disinterested intervention on behalf of freedom and civilization will add a glorious page to history."

The Jews all over the country hope and pray and expect that the present war will result in the downfall of Spain. Why? The Hebrew race does not forget. Four hundred years ago in Spain their people were subjected to the bloodiest persecution that even the Jew had ever known. The writer in The Jewish Press speaks of the bondage in Egypt and adds, "But what is the Egyptian tyrant in comparison with the Spanish inquisitors who roasted us alive for the crime of being born of Jewish parents, who burned our homes and finally exiled us in the name of Christianity, which we have given to them, in the name of the meek Nazarene, the great peasant teacher, who was only a Jew?" The Jewish Gazette says that of the 300,000 persons put to death by the Spaniards then "perhaps the greatest part of the victims were Jews."

These things happened 400 years ago, yet the remembrance lives and burns in the breasts of the descendants of those who suffered. It should be a warning to any nation against doing injustice. The Jewish Gazette is glad that the United States has opened a war on "that hotbed of religious intolerance and bloodthirsty persecution which is known as the kingdom of Spain." It says:

It is sinful to think of revenge, but the Jewish people cannot help remembering Spain. At last this country is at war with Spain! The hour of Spain's end has struck, and its awful career of brutality is nearing an end. It is fitting, indeed, that to this glorious land of liberty should be assigned the duty of punishing that iniquitous land of tyranny, cruelty and bigotry. May the punishment be terrible, for it has been deserved! And in this hour, when freemen are shouldering muskets to fight in a holy cause, what is the duty of our brethren? Can they forget the martyrs of the inquisition? Can they forget the rack, the wheel, the auto da fe, the stake and the flame? Can they forget the holy men and women, the flower of our race, who died with "Shema Israel" on their lips? Can they forget those who died for God and Judaism? Can they forget the expulsion when 80,000 perished in one day? No! No! "They have forgotten to forget—they have forgotten to forget!"

There is no reason to doubt the good will of Great Britain to us. It is not out of place, therefore, to call attention of Canadians to the fact that although that arch spy Polo has gone home he arranged for the secret Spanish service to be conducted precisely the same as before from the safe vantage of Quebec. That Du Bosc, who was first secretary of the Spanish legation in Washington, has taken a house permanently in Quebec should be taken note of by Canada

THE MONITOR MONTEREY.

The Monterey is a steel coast defense monitor with two hooded barbettes, twin screws and a military mast. She was constructed by the Union Iron Works, of San Francisco, and was completed in 1891. Although not intended for long voyages, she proved a good sea boat on her trip to Callao.

land. Du Bosc can send his cipher dispatches to his master in Spain, revealing every movement of this government, the size of our army and fleets, their whereabouts and other facts which can be used to our injury. The United States this moment is full of spies in the pay of Spain. It is Spain's way of doing business. England should not let them make report to their employers through her territory.

President F. B. Thurber makes in the New York Journal a valuable suggestion to the bakers and people of America. The price of flour has been raised, therefore bakers must suffer loss or raise the price of bread. Mr. Thurber says: Mix corn flour with the wheat flour to make a loaf of bread. This mixture makes a sweeter, more nutritious bread than wheat flour alone. It has been tried in Europe with advantage by those who were endeavoring to make a market for our corn there. The corn wheat loaf is delicious, and the people will like it. Corn is cheap and can be ground as fine as wheat flour. If the bakers, with the knowledge and approval of their customers, add it to the wheat flour in mixing the bread, they will not be obliged to raise the price of the loaf.

At the beginning of the century, when we had a navy equal even to that of England, as navies went then, the cost of a large and complete warship, called a frigate in those days, was from $200,000 to $300,000. Our largest and most formidable frigate was the old Constitution, which was of 1,575 tons and carried 44 guns. Our whole navy at that time did not cost so much to build as one first class battleship now does.

There have been nearly a dozen powder and dynamite explosions in various parts of this country in the past two months. Are these a part of the Spanish military operations directed from the safe retreat of Canada by the Polo-Du Bosc combination?

Abraham Lincoln was one of the great men who believed in prayer, and himself prayed habitually, but quite privately to himself.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News, but Just as Interesting.

Although the fact is only known to a few, the search lights at Sandy Hook are plainly visible from Washington Rock. It will be remembered that the search lights are never stationary but keep moving about lighting up different parts of the harbor and the ocean outside. When the light is thrown toward Staten Island and Raritan bay, then it can be seen from the Rock, The light is twenty-three miles away but it flashes as brightly as if close by.

It is not an unusual thing anymore to see a man carrying all sorts of strange things on a wheel. Lawnmowers, bicycles and various parts of machinery and utensils have traveled about in the hands of wheelmen. On West Front street yesterday something new was noticed. A young woman, mounted on her wheel, carried a pet water spaniel under one arm. The canine did not seem to mind the novel ride in the slightest.

One young man in Plainfield has chosen a rather uncomfortable method of showing his patriotism. When the war began he found a blanket of the national colors and made a vow to sleep under it every night until the war ended. That was all right during the chilly nights of early spring but now that the hot weather is here, he has found the patriotic blanket decidedly uncomfortable. He still declares that he will keep his vow but is in hopes that the Spaniards will quit pretty soon.

The workings of the Martin Act have just driven a once wealthy resident of Jersey City from his home where he has long resided. Robert Lundy was one of the pioneer settlers of the Hudson County district of Jersey City. Mr. Lundy, who is eighty-one years old, was at one time worth $50,000, and prominent in real estate business. Lundy's Lane, a well known thoroughfare near the Hackensack River, was named after him. Owing to business reverses and depreciation in real estate prices, he became poor. In course of time he only retained the property he occupied at 395 Central avenue, which he had owned since 1855. It was valued at $3,000, but he had allowed the taxes to go unpaid until they amounted to $3,500. The property was finally sold under the Martin Act, realizing $2,212 50.

When Silas D. Drake called The Daily Press office on the telephone a few days ago and imparted the graphic information that he was going to have his whiskers shaved off as an encouragement for a woman barber to locate in Lincoln, the thought upermost in the reporter's mind who answered the telephone was that it was simply one of Si's occasionally imaginary flights in which he saw a bit of advertising for his booming town. It was food for a breezy item anyway, and so Silas' sayso was given to Press readers a few days ago. A perusal of the Bound Brook Chronicle this week, however, affords us evidence that even if there was a germ of advertising in the Lincoln dignatary's startling announcement it was none the less true, as the following from The Chronicle shows:

A sprightly man, small and somewhat youthful in appearance, was noticed about town last Saturday morning. His figure was familiar but his face was strange. Upon investigation it was really Si. Drake minus his whiskers. Si had made a great sacrifice. When the Lincoln statue was ordered the sculptor had instructions to present "old Abe" with a beard covering that portion of the face where beards ought to grow. When the statue arrived it was beardless. Si. is a man of resources. He sacrificed his own beard to help the statue out of a predicament. If the usually confiding reader don't believe us he can go to Lincoln (the town) and inspect Lincoln (the statue) for himself. It (the statue) has whiskers while he (the Mayor) has none. The story cannot be refuted.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

Special Marshal F. E. Winn was appointed a regular marshal by the Mayor and confirmed by the Council.

Mr. Woolston made a report for the street committee, and stated that during the past month $244.19 was expended on the borough streets.

Mr. MacLaughlin stated that during the past month Delinquent Tax Collector W. W. Rowley had collected $1,100. Later Mr. MacLaughlin moved that Mr. Rowley be allowed the sum of $110.70 for his services for the month of May.

On motion of Mr. MacLaughlin several tax amounts deducted by Mr. Spencer, when he was collector, were allowed by the Council. From time to time the Council will be obliged to make similar allowances according to a recent resolution adopted.

Mr. MacLaughlin offered a resolution that the sum of $39.45 be allowed Mrs. Carney, of Lincoln place, in accordance with her request at the last meeting that she be allowed certain exemption from taxes on account of her being a widow of a soldier.

Mr. Carey stated that he had purchased a water wagon in New York about two months ago and he offered a resolution that the sum of $75 be drawn to pay for the same. Mr. Rogers offered a resolution that the chairman of the finance committee report each month the balance of money in each department. A resolution was offered by Mr. Valiant that the clerk pay to the credit of the borough account all money received. These resolutions were all adopted by the Council, after which the meeting adjourned.

—Communion service will be held at Warren chapel tomorrow morning.

—Tomorrow afternoon at 4:15 the new East Third Street mission will be dedicated.

TO DRINK A DREAM

try Rowley's Soda. A new and perfectly appointed fountain enables us to make even better soda than in the past, though our beverages have always been of rare excellence. The new fountain has unusual ice capacity which insures cold soda. Then, we use the finest fruit juices and plenty of them; our soda is charged just right to be sparkling and refreshing; we are cranks in the matter of purity and cleanliness. You'll need no second urging after trying the soda once.

Coffee Given Away.

O'Donohue Coffee Company, of New York, will give away packages of their "Fifth Avenue" Mocha and Java coffee, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, June 6th, 7th and 8th, at their demonstrations in the stores of J. E. MacDonald, Plainfield, and A. Dealaman, Dunellen, and on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 9th, 10th and 11th at the stores of F. W. Dunn and Geo. W. Rockfellow, Plainfield. Their plan is to get the housewise to visit the store. Giving away coffee is a costly plan, no doubt, but their claim is that once the delicious qualities of their famous brand are known there is no trouble in holding the future trade. The consumers should avail themselves of the chance to learn about high grade coffee, hear the "Singing Girl," and get the benefit of the advertisement.

Ribbons.

We have bought a manufacturer's stock of short lengths of fine fancy ribbon from 2 to 6 inches wide. Value from 30 to 40c the yard; all go for 19c.

Store Notes.

Some exclusive styles in neckwear for ladies have just arrived. In one of the front show cases is a beautiful assortment of new shirt waist sets, belt pins, stick pins, etc. In another case are some pretty styles in new parasols. A first pick here is worth something. Fifty styles of sheer printed organdies, lawns and dimities. The price argument should make you a buyer. You would price them at 20c, you buy them at 12c while they last. On one of the front counters is a lot of fine India linens and jaconettes, short lengths, value from 20 to 25c. You buy them at 10 and 12c.

While in the store visit the carpet, rug and matting department We are naming low prices on certain lots of rugs and mattings that will be of interest to you.

SCHOOL CHILDREN ON HORSES.

Some of the Texas Boys and Girls Ride Eight Miles to School and Enjoy It.

At Manor, Tex., in that sparsely settled country along the line of the Houston and Texas Central Railway, I came to a large wood colored building surrounded by a caravan of horses, says a writer. I counted upward of fifty, all saddled and hitched to a tree. Everything about the house was as still as death. "It must be a funeral," I said. Suddenly the scene changed. The doors of the building burst open and out broke fifty school children. "School's out!" they shouted, and a caravan of children scrambled for the horses. In a moment the youngsters had mounted and were riding helter-skelter over the prairie. The Texas mustangs seemed to scent the frolic and kicked up their heels as they galloped home with the school children. With their dinner pails jingling on pommels of the saddles, and their dresses and jackets waving in the wind, they looked like a mad caravan of Bedouins.

"How far did you come?" I asked a little tot who sat behind his sister on a speckled mustang.

"I toom dood way—I tum—"

"Why, he's come six miles," interrupted his sister. "Jimmy is only 5 years old. He doesn't know how far he does come."

"But I live eight miles," said a little Lord Fauntleroy on a dancing bronco, "but I can ride it in an hour and have done it in thirty minutes." Then he spurred his horse till he leaped away over the prairie.

It is very common to see school children wearing spurs in Texas. Texas has the richest school fund of any State in the Union, but she lacks the children. Some counties have as much as $50,000 laid up for school purposes. They are just waiting for the children to grow.—Atlanta National.

Joel Chandler Harris' Recipe.

In conversation with Joel Chandler Harris a friend said: "You are one of the fortunate authors; everything you touch turns to gold. Life must be a very smooth affair to you."

"On the contrary," was the reply, "life is hard work to me. I get a good deal of enjoyment out of it, but it's more serious than you think."

"But then, your genius"—

"Genius? Bosh!" he exclaimed. "It's hard work, I tell you! While some of you fellows are sitting before the fire, dreaming dreams and building castles that crumble, I'm at a desk—at work! I haven't time to stare the fire out of countenance. I'd rather build log cabins on earth than look around among the stars. And that's what I do. I nail myself to a chair and bend to the work, and when you see it flowing pretty fast you say, 'That's genius!' Go to work, my brother—got to work! Stick to your desk, and you'll win."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Cats as Companions.

The cat, we are told, has been the companion of the great and famous from time immemorial. Petrarch's favorite cat he embalmed, while Andrea Doria, one of the rulers of Venice, not content with having the portrait of his dead cat painted, preserved her skeleton as the souvenir of a happy intimacy.

Cardinal Wolsey used to entertain his cat by his side on the seat of state when he gave audience or received his princely company. Rousseau's attachment to cats is well known. We know also how fond Sir Isaac Newtown was of them, for did he not make holes in his barn door for their accommodation—a large hole for the old cat and a small one for the kitten?

Dr. Johnson loved cats in spite of himself, and his particular pet bore the name of Hodge. The Doctor used himself to go out and buy the oysters on which Hodge doted, lest the servants, from having to wait on the animal, should acquire a dislike to him. Richelieu also was devoted to cats.—New York Herald.

Grateful to Husband No. 1.

A gentleman recently married the widow of a very wealthy man and on the proceeds of the transaction he has built a handsome house. When the house was finished and the moving into it was accomplished, the wife and her mother fell to discussing just where they should hang the portrait of the former husband. They had just decided to hang it in a small room on the second floor, when the new husband came in and heard of the matter.

"Hang him upstairs!" he said. "No, siree. No, siree. That man was my benefactor. I owe everything I have to him. He shall hang in the place of honor."

African Philosophy.

A young colored philosopher was employed in one of the stores at a salary of $3.50 per week. He told his employer one morning that he was going to leave, having found a better place.

"A better place?" echoed his employer. "What wages are you to get?"

"Three dollars a week."

"But that is not as much as you get here."

"No," said the boy, "but, then, it's better to do less and not get so much than do more and not get enough."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A STORY OF PRINCE BISMARCK.

The Cool Manner Displayed After an Attempt Had Been Made on His Life.

Rudolph Lindau, in the Deutsche Revue, tells some stories about Prince Bismarck that have not been told in detail before. In May, 1866, Bismarck, then only Count, was passing through Unter den Linden, when he heard behind him the report of a revolver. He turned quickly around and saw a young man—Ferdinand Blind it was—aiming at him with the still smoking pistol. Bismarck ran toward the man, and seized the hand in which he held the revolver, and with the other hand he grasped the assassin's throat. The latter, however had time to slip his pistol into the other hand, and shot three times in quick succession. Bismarck felt himself wounded in the shoulder and injured in one of his ribs, but he held his assailant fast until several soldiers ran up and secured him. Then Bismarck walked quickly to his house, which he reached long before any report of the affair got there. The Countess, it appeared, had several callers when her husband came in. He greeted them all pleasantly, and asked to be excused for a few minutes on account of a pressing engagement. Thereupon he retired to the next room and rapidly wrote out an account of the attempt on his life, which he sent to the King. Then, returning to the drawing-room, he joked in his usual way about his unpunctuality at luncheon, and ate with a good appetite. When the meal was finished he went to the Countess, kissed her, wished her "mahlzeit" in the old German way, and added: "You see that I am quite well, don't you?" She stared at him, whereupon he added: "Yes, you mustn't be anxious, my child. Somebody has shot at me, but it is nothing, as you see."

SILENCE LAWS IN BERLIN.

Legislation in Force on All Sorts of Everyday Noises.

No other large city is as quiet as Berlin. Railway engines are not allowed to blow their whistles within the city limits. There is no loud bawling by hucksters, and the man whose wagon gearing is loose and rattling is subject to a fine. The courts have a large discretion as to fines for noise making. The negro whistlers who make the night shrill and musical in Washington would have a hard time of it in a German community.

Strangest of all, piano playing is regulated in Berlin. Before a certain hour in the day and after a certain hour in the night the piano must be silent in that musical city. Even during playing hours a fine is imposed for mere banging on the piano.

In Paris, it is only during the carnival and on fete days that the sound of the French horn is tolerated. At other seasons it is rigorously prohibited by the police.

German intolerance of noise is not a recent thing. Wallenstein, who demanded absolute quiet, had 130 houses torn down in Prague and sentries posted all round in the distance, to secure silence. There is a tradition that still further back in time a Bohemian shepherd, seeing the monk Adelbert asleep, blew on his pipe in mischief. The monk called down the curse of deafness on him.—Washington Post.

IT PAYS TO GO HUNGRY IN INDIA.

Debt Collectors Starve Themselves and Debtors Until One Gives In.

The most persistent creditors and bad-debt collectors in the world are said to be those of India. It is not uncommon for them to literally live upon the doorstep of a debtor for days at a time. It is the custom for the dun to sit at the door of his victim's tent and allow no one to go out except by his sanction. During this seige he neither eats nor allows his debtor to eat. This starvation is kept up until either the debt is paid or the creditor gives up the siege, in which case the debt is considered cancelled.

The laws by which this common practice is regulated are well defined. Not even the chief governors of the country are exempt from it. When the debt is large or the case in some other way important, it is the custom for a number of collectors to surround the tent and sometimes even the bed of the debtor to make sure he takes no food. The law, however, requires as a matter of fairness that the collector should not eat during the siege, so the strongest stomach wins.—New York World.

Overworked.

"I think I shall have to discharge my office boy."

"What's the matter with him?"

"All there is for him to do at the office is to tear off the sheets once a month from the various calendars hanging on the wall, and when he tore them off on the first day of March he kicked because February was such a short month."—Chicago Tribune.

Eight Remarkable Marriages.

Eight of the most remarkable marriages on record took place in the parish of St. Marie, Quebec, says an exchange. Two neighbors, named Morin and Rheaume, have each eight children, four sons and four daughters. Rheaume's four sons have married Morin's four daughters, and Morin's four sons have married the daughters of Rheaume.

A Foolish Waste.

Father—What's all this? I'll warrant you've been buying some more useless things, just to keep up appearances.

Linda. Ein heiterer Vorfall trug sich auf dem hiesigen Bahnhofe zu. In einem ankommenden Zuge befand sich ein Brüderpaar Namens Linde aus Jüterbogk, das auf der Reise zu den heimischen Penaten begriffen war. Als der Zug in Linda einlief und der Schaffner ausrief: „Linda aussteigen!" gehorchten die Biederen langsam dem, wie sie meinten, an sie gerichteten Ruf und stiegen aus. Mit verblüfften Mienen sahen sie dann den Zug ohne sie weiter fahren.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Carl Laeisz, einer unserer angesehensten Kaufleute und bedeutendsten Rheder, feierte in voller geistiger und körperlicher Frische seinen 70. Geburtstag.

Cuxhaven. Der Bau des neuen Marinelazareths wurde in Angriff genommen. Zunächst wird die bisherige Krankenbaracke an der Altenwalder Chaussee dazu hergerichtet.

Bremen. Bei dem Dombaubazar wurden im Ganzen an sechs Abenden 119,648 Mark 23 Pfennige vereinnahmt. Der Dombaubazar im Jahre 1896 ergab rund 143,000 Mark.—Für den Nachlaß eines in Bordeaux verstorbenen Heizers, H. Ende, auch Ende, zuletzt auf dem britischen Schiffe „Joy" bedienstet, werden die Erben gesucht. Der Nachlaß besteht aus Geld und Effekten. Die Erben müssen sich beim Amte in Bremerhaven melden.

There must be a cause!

There must be a reason for our unique position in New Jersey. With countless competitors in the field, you would expect that the business of one or two of them would nearly approach in size the business of the largest, but the truth is that ours is many times larger than any other single one.

One of the causes is that we sell Pianos that we know are the seven best, in their different grades, that America produces—CHICKERINGS, GABLERS, HARDMANS, VOSES, STERLINGS, STANDARDS and HUNTINGTONS. These names are a cause unto themselves.

A GUST OF WIND.

BY JACK ROBINSON.

"If you have one scrap of sympathy for miserable mortals, dear Eva, please bestow it upon me, as I am the most unhappy creature in existence. The explanation is contained in five words: Jack and I have quarrelled. It happened last night at Madame Vale's party. I flirted a little, just to make him jealous. He censured me for my behavior, and I laughed in his face, denying his right to interfere. We are not engaged, you know, but I like Jack better than any one else, and I am sure—at least, I think he likes me, but he has not told me so, and I can't very well propose to him. Now he will never come near me again, and I am miserable. I wish——"

Daisy sprang up to answer the summons. It was a warm day in spring and she had moved her desk near the open window. During her absence the wind took unwarranted liberties with the papers thereon. First, it blew them together in a promiscuous heap, then scattered them, and finally lifted one sheet up and bore it out of the window.

Daisy re-entered the room in time to see the paper float beyond her reach.

"Oh, there goes my letter!" she cried in dismay, and fairly flew out of the room and down the stairs.

In another minute she was in the garden, and had rushed almost into the arms of a man who was coming up the path. Upon raising her eyes, she beheld Jack Alexander holding a sheet of paper in his hand.

"Jack—Mr. Alexander—give that to me. It is my letter."

Jack's eyes twinkled.

"Your letter?" he said, holding it beyond her reach. "Well, the wind wafted it to me, so I suppose I am at liberty to read it."

"Oh, no, no! You must not! It is to Eva, and not a word of it is true."

Mr. Alexander elevated his eyebrows.

"Indeed! I am surprised that you should commit yourself to falsehoods on paper. Is that your usual style?"

"Jack, please, give it to me."

But he held the letter aloft. As he was a giant in stature and Daisy the reverse, there seemed to be no way of her getting it.

"See here," he said presently. "I will give you this—ah—letter, on one condition."

"I agree to it," she said, clutching at the straw.

"Well you must say you are sorry for the manner in which you treated me last night, and promise not to flirt any more."

Her face flushed scarlet.

"I will do nothing of the sort!" she responded. "You are the one who should apologize. Your conduct was atrocious."

"You have a strange way of turning the tables. I did nothing which requires an apology. Why, I scarcely looked at any woman save yourself. But to return to this letter. I tell you truly, Daisy, if you do not agree to my conditions I will read every word of it."

"Jack, if you do, I'll never speak to you again!"

"Well, promise what I ask."

"I will not."

"Then here goes!" bringing the paper down to his face.

"Oh! oh! I—I promise!"

"Very good," said Jack.

"Now give me the letter."

"Not so fast. I must see first if you mean what you say. Kindly answer each question as I ask it. Are you sorry for your benavior last night?"

"No—that is, y-e-s.

"Will you ever flirt any more?"

"I did not flirt. I only amused myself a little."

"Well, you agree to cease all such pastime in the future?

She looked rebellious. Jack glanced toward the paper.

"Yes—but—I will promise nothing more."

"An assertion will do quite as well. Say 'Jack, I have loved you for a long time'——"

"Oh, you conceited creature! It is not true!"

The man's face all at once became serious. He looked at the girl so fixedly that her eyes fell.

"Is that really the case, Daisy?" he said.

MET PAGE 1 Galley 5

Again the color flamed into her cheeks

"You have no right to ask me such a question."

"Why not?"

"Because—Jack, end this nonsense and give me my letter."

"In a moment. Daisy, will you marry me?"

"No."

Jack's expression never changed, but he shook the paper threateningly.

"Oh, how tiresome you are! Well, then—yes!"

"My darling!" he rapturously cried, catching her in his arms and kissing her. "Why would you not give me this answer long ago?"

Daisy looked up mischievously.

"How could I, when you never asked me to?" she said.

"Never asked you? By Jove, I believe I never did! But it's all right now. You are my promised wife, and here is your letter."

He handed her the paper. It was a blank sheet.

An Even Thing.

"That coal," said Mr. Tenspot to Mr. Black, who had called for the amount of the bill, was short in weight."

"Then it is in striking contrast to the wait I have had for my money," replied the coal dealer.—New York World.

THE UNITED STATES IS FIFTH.

The Position of This Country Among the Naval Powers.

The United States now ranks fifth among the naval Powers of the earth, and is a tie with Germany. England is first, France second, Russia third, and Italy fourth. The Germany navy is better supplied with torpedo-boats than that of the United States, but we are a little ahead on battle-ships and cruisers. Taking one consideration with another, however, there is very little difference. When the Kentucky, Kearsage, Illinois and the other vessels now building are afloat we shall surpass Germany; but the Germans, however have a magnificent scheme for the development of their navy, and the recent episodes in China were planned for the purpose of stimulating the interest of their Parliament and the people. If the Emperor's programme is carried out, Germany will spend $200,000,000 in naval construction during the next nine or ten years—an average of about $20,000,000 a year for battleships, cruisers, coast-defence monitors and other fighting materials, and will run away ahead of us and take the second place. In 1906 the German navy will be increased to seventeen battleships of the first class, eight coast-defence vessels, nine first-class cruisers and twenty-six second-class cruisers The battle-ships will be the most formidable in the world, and are to cost $5,000,000 each, the cruisers, $3,000,000 each and the small cruisers, $1,000,000 each. The appropriation by the German Parliament for the year amounts to $9,000,000 and will be spent in the construction of three first-class battleships, one first-class armored cruiser, five second-class protected cruisers, two gunboats, eight torpedo-boats, and one torpedo-boat destroyer.

During the present year Russia will spend $7,500,000 for her naval establishment. She has now under construction nine battle-ships, two coast-defence vessel, two armored cruisers, four protected cruisers, four gunboats and forty torpedo-boats.

Great Britain, however, as usual, is outdoing all the nations in naval construction, and during the present year will spend $26,500,000. She has now under construction 117 vessels, and several of them will be completed before next January—viz.: Fifteen battle-ships, twelve first-class cruisers, nine second-class cruisers, ten third-class cruisers, six twin-screw gunboats, fifty-six torpedo-boat destroyers, eight light-draught gunboats and one royal yacht. Great Britain has to-day in this catalogue of ships under construction a fleet as fine as that of the United States, Italy, Germany or any other nation, except France and Russia.—Chicago Record.

WHAT THE BAND PLAYED.

A Dinner Table Episode on Shipboard in Which a French Singer Figured.

An instance of what it calls "transatlantic courtesy" is related by the Gaulois of Paris. One of the greatest singers of France was returning from New York, on one of the German liners. One evening glancing at the programme of the concert that was to be played at dinner, she saw the announcement of a triumphal march celebrating the German victory of 1871.

"I am sure," she said to a fellow-countryman sitting near, "that this is not intended as a discourtesy to us, but I don't care! I'm too much of a patriot not to express my disapproval of it in my own way when they begin to play this piece. Wait and see!"

The captain, having caught the gist of these remarks, and noticing the great artist's agitation, glanced at the programme to see what caused it. Then, without showing any surprise, he spoke to one of the waiters in a low tone.

At the moment when the German triumphal march was due to begin, the French singer, who could hardly control her agitation, prepared to leave the table. The first chord was played, the artist arose—and stood, pale, agitated, amazed, while the officers and other passengers also got up and smiled sympathetically at her. And the band played "The Marseillaise!"

One Congressman Who Saved Money.

The Populist paper at Lincoln gives some account of the prosperity which has come to Uncle Billy Baker, the pleasant old fellow who for three terms represented the Sixth District in Congress He has two fine farms, upon one of which he is feeding 250 head of cattle, and, besides, he owns and occupies a fine home in the town. Uncle Billy demonstrated the error of the belief that a Congressman could not live decently and save money out of his salary. His expenses in Washington were but little, if any, more than the excess sum allowed him for mileage and postage; and had it not been for the necessity of contributing liberally to the campaign fund in his district he might have saved nearly the whole of his salary of $5,000 a year. He was a poor man when he entered Congress, and he is now worth about $17,000.—Kansas City Journal.

Might Have Been Worse.

Father (severely)—My son this is a disgraceful state of affairs. This report says you are the last boy in the class of twenty-two."

Henry—It might have been worse, father."

Father—I can't see how.

Henry—There might have been more boys in the class.

Advantage of Education.

"Bobbie, how many sisters has your new school fellow?"

"He has one mamma. He tried to stuff me up by saying that he had two half sisters; but he doesn't know that I study fractions."

FINDING THE PATH.

Dusk was beginning to fall, and as I looked round over the long level of marsh land that surrounded us and saw no sign of any of our party I felt the first thrill of a not unpleasant uneasiness. I glanced at my companion. She was walking quite contentedly by my side, apparently secure in the assumption that I knew my way.

Suddenly she turned to me.

"What a queer place this would be to get lost in," she said.

I think the serious possibility of such a thing had not occurred to her at all. She threw out the remark merely as a contribution to a flagging conversation.

"Yes," I said. "But you're not afraid, are you?"

"Oh, no; not at all! Of course you know the way, and that makes all the difference."

"Of course it does," I answered with a glimmering sense of shame.

We walked on silently for another five minutes, and then Miss Pascoe stopped and listened, leaning forward slightly with her hair blowing about her face.

"Is that the sea?" she asked.

"It must be the sea," I said, after a show of hard listening.

"But it shouldn't be there," she said.

"Why not?" I answered rather feebly, in order to gain time. "It always has been there I suppose."

"Don't be foolish," she said. "You know what I mean. We must have got on the wrong path. Mr. Thirlmere," she cried, "how could you have been so careless?"

"My dear Miss Pascoe," I said, "if I have made a mistake, I am very sorry."

"And you said all along that you knew the way," she pouted, trying to shoot condemnation from her eyes at me in the darkness.

"You see," I said, "I got my directions from your brother—from Jim—and he's often so very inaccurate, isn't he?"

"Absurdly inaccurate," she admitted. "If I'd known you were relying upon Jim, I wouldn't have come at all."

"And then I should have missed the most delightful walk I ever had."

She turned away from me a little, with a petulant movement of the shoulders that pleased me mightily.

"I wish we had Jim here," she said with pretty fierceness.

"I don't," I said.

"Then perhaps you'll be good enough to find the right path. We can't stay here."

"There don't seem to be any conveniences for camping out," I said. "Will you stay here for a moment while I explore to the right? I may get up to my knees in the marsh. You will be safer here."

"Don't be long, will you?" she said.

"Oh, no!" I said cheerfully. "I shall find the path in no time."

I started off, carefully exploring the ground before me with my stick as I went. There was no sign of a path, and I began to be seriously alarmed for Miss Pascoe's comfort. On consideration I came to the conclusion that I had made rather an ass of myself. Another hundred yards, and still no path. I paused and looked back. I could see a slight, dark figure moving toward me very carefully and slowly.

"Is that you?" I said.

Miss Pascoe answered,—

"Yes. I'd rather come with you if you don't mind. When you left me I felt so lonely that I was almost afraid."

"I am more sorry than I can tell you," I said, "to have got you into such an awkward fix. Pick your way very carefully. Ah!" She had stepped with one foot into a patch of wet moss.

"Take my hand," I said. "It is quite firm where I am standing. Will you ever forgive me for this?" She took my outstretched hand, and I guided her to safety. But because the danger might be renewed at any moment I still retained my hold of her slim fingers, and we went forward together in that pleasant, companionable way.

"Don't talk to me about forgiveness until you have found the path and made restitution," she said. I saw the gleam of her eyes and the oval shadow of her face, and all at once I realized that there was only one thing I could do at that precise moment in my life. I stooped down and kissed her.

"Forgive me if you can," I said, for I love you. I suppose now I have trespassed beyond all hope?"

For a moment she was quite still, and I cursed myself for such blind precipitation by the circumstances, and the time and place had all forced me to this inevitable result.

"You think," she said, after this pause, "that you may as well pile up all your offenses at once and be forgiven or condemned on all counts at one time?"

"Precisely," I said. "I am entirely in your hands."

"I will forgive you," she said very sweetly, "when you have found the path."

"It's a bargain then," I said.

I took a step forward and brought my foot sharply against something white that stood a few inches above the ground.

"Why," I cried, bending to examine it, "this must be the broken post that Jim told me to look out for. What a close observer your brother is? This is the path that leads straight for home."

"You knew it all the time," she said, reproachfully.

"No," I said. "I assure you that I had no idea of it. We shall be in just as the rescue party is preparing to set out." I turned to her and held out my hands. "I claim your forgiveness," I said.

And she forgave me.—Black and White.

The Crescents will play their next game against the Oak Hill Field Club next Saturday afternoon on the Crescent Oval.

At the last meeting of the Bachelors' Club a vote of thanks was given to Benjamin O. Bowers, Jr., for the excellent manner in which he has managed the baseball team of the club. Mr. Bowers is still in charge of the club and will probably arrange a few more games before the team disbands for the season.

Manager Mumford has just completed arrangements with the Bound Brook Athletic Club to have that team play in this city the morning of July 4th. The Bound Brook team will be materially strengthened for that game, as the Bound Brook boys are very anxious to defeat their old rivals from Plainfield. If the Seventh Regiment team does not disband before that time, it is probable that club will play here on the afternoon of that holiday.

Jack McLarty has severed his connection with the Crescent baseball team permanently. In his place Manager Mumford has retained Warren MacLaughlin, of this city. There is no doubt but that McLarty was a great pitcher as long as he retained control of the ball, but there were times, and they were fatal ones to the Crescents, when he lost control of it. MacLaughlin has secured the reputation of keeping his head under any and all circumstances. Those who saw the game he pitched for the Somersets of Somerville last year against the Crescents had that fact greatly impressed on them.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Y. M. C. A. WORK FOR SOLDIERS.

Secretaries and Equipments Follow the Boys Into Active Service.

At the earnest request of the members of the Second and Third regiments, the Y. M. C. A. have sent their secretaries and equipment to the front with the soldiers. The Third regiment, being divided, half going to Pompton Plains and half to Sandy Hook, necessitated the equipment of another tent, so that each section of the regiment now has its secretary and Y. M. C. A. The Second regiment has been ordered to Jacksonville, Fla., and the Y. M. C. A. secretaries with their association material wait on the train with the soldiers, and will start the work again as soon as they arrive. During twenty days at Sea Girt 14,000 sheets of association paper were used, over 400 letters being written in the association tents by the soldiers each day. The tents were entirely too small, men standing in line waiting for a chance to get at the writing tables. Song services were held every evening, in which hundreds of the soldiers joined, often singing for more than two hours. Now that the soldiers are at the front the work has not been stopped; it has simply been transferred. It is still being carried on by New Jersey boys under the supervision of the New Jersey Y. M. C. A.'s.

A MODEL DRUG STORE.

John P. Powers' Business Venture Has Proved a Successful One.

One of the most complete and handsomest drug stores to be found in this vicinity is the one conducted by John P. Powers, at the corner of Somerset street and Craig place. Mr. Powers recently opened this store and the liberal patronage accorded has convinced him that he is located in the right place. The store is an attractive one and presents a neat appearance. There is a place for everything and everything in its place, and accuracy is the imperative rule. The store is well stocked with the purest drugs to be obtained on the market and the popular proprietor will maintain the highest standard. Mr. Powers also has a full line of toilet articles and extracts which are sold at prices that are right—in fact, everything is sold at the right figure.

A Confident Prisoner.

Christopher Maiden has lots of trouble with his colored brethren. Maiden had Jep Dunham, also colored, arrested on a charge of drawing a razor on him last Sunday morning. When the Judge asked Maiden why he couldn't settle his differences out of court, and not be troubling him all the time with complaints, Maiden said that where he came from the men used to fight their own battles. "Why," said Maiden, if me and Dunham should go to fighting, it would be like the United States and Spain, I'd always come out on top." Dunham was discharged.

Looking Into the Future.

JOTTINGS OF THE DAY.

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Newsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—The Saturday special trains on the Central Railroad will be put on today. One leaves New York at 12:45 and the other at 1:20 in the afternoon.

—Rev. Arthur Crane will speak at the East Third Street Mission tomorrow night. Dedication services will be held in the new chapel at 4:15

—A strawberry and ice cream festival will be held on the lawn of the parish house of the church of the Heavenly Rest Thursday evening, June 16th, from 8 until 10. Proceeds to be used for the Sunday-school outing.

—Henry D. Perky, representative of a concern manufacturing shredded wheat, delivered a lecture at the Plainfield High School yesterday morning on the evils of the present method of flour making. The address was full of humor besides containing some very salient truths.

—The removal of the front fence from the residence of Mr. Fawcett and the corner fence from Mrs. Wilson's residence on Grove street almost completed the emancipation of the east side of Grove street from front boundary lines. A wider street and pleasant vista are the results.

—The school census of Cranford Township, just completed, shows that there are 553 children of school age in the township, an increase of fifteen over last year. In the main village there has been a falling off, but in the outside district of Garwood and Aldene there has been an increase.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. White, of Morristown, is visiting at the home of Reuben Knox, of Washington avenue.

John Honeyman, of Knoxville, Tenn., who is visiting Plainfield relatives, left today for Morristown, where he will visit some friends whom he has not seen in ten years.

Miss Florence Kline, of this city, a pupil of Walter Arnold Hudson, of New York, enters upon an engagement tomorrow as contralto soloist of the Westminster Presbyterian church, of New York.

To Furnish Flowers.

The Senior and Junior Societies of Christian Endeavor, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, have voted to send 50 bouquets to Mrs. A. M. Dassori, at the Italian branch of the Mariners' Temple in New York, for Children's Day. The Senior Society will also supply both the Flower Mission of the Judson Memorial church and the Italian branch of the Mariners' Temple with baskets of flowers during the summer. A reading tent is to be provided at Camp Alger, in Virginia, where the First Regiment, N. J. Volunteers, are stationed, and the Park Avenue Baptist Society will send a quantity of reading matter there for the boys.

A General Disturber.

Isaac Randolph, colored, a resident of Race street, was arrested this noon by Chief Marshal Wilson, on a complaint of Mr. Sachar, a Jew, who resides in another house on the same lot. Mr. Sachar charges that Randolph has been disorderly and in addition to using indecent language burned up a fence belonging to him. The offender will probably be given a hearing sometime this afternoon by Recorder Long.

Doane & Edsall's New Store.

Doane & Edsall are nearly "to rights" in their new quarters, corner of Front street and Madison avenue, in the new Stillman building. They are delighted with their new and beautiful store and so were the many visitors who called yesterday and today. It is so light, airy and cozy, and altogether one of the prettiest and most unique stores of its kind in the State.

Look Out for Your Dogs.

If any person in the borough should fail to find their dog today they need not be surprised, for last night the borough dog catcher captured forty-two canines. It is the intention of the Mayor to rid the borough of worthless curs, and the crusade has been started in earnest. The law provides a way for a person to keep a dog, and unless the law is kept the dogs will be confiscated promptly.

Mrs. Lee Young Did Not Appear.

Mrs. Lee Young, who inhabits the alley back of French's mill is charged by her neighbor, Mrs. Addie Frazie, with calling her bad names, and disturbing the peace. Mrs. Young did not put in an appearance at the court this morning, and the case had to be laid over for a week.

Hurt While Playing Golf.

While playing golf on the links of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club yesterday afternoon Miss Edmee Corlies, of Road Ending, was struck on the ankle by a golf ball. A sprain was the result. She was assisted to her home.

Coal Takes a Drop.

The driver of one of Rushmore & Company's heavy coal wagons attempted to drive up a steep bank on Watchung avenue yesterday afternoon, opposite the rink, when a bolt broke and the wagon plunged down the bank to the gutter and there upset. As it was well filled with coal, the contents were strewn over the street. No other damage was done to the wagon.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH AFFAIRS.

Officers Elected and Reports Heard at the Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Christian church was held last evening. The pastor, Rev. H. W. MacKane, presided. Joseph Shultice was elected treasurer; David Bush, deacon, and S. P. Hoffman, financial secretary. The treasurer's report showed a balance of a few dollars in the treasury.

The report of the secretary, Miss Anna Fenner, showed that there has been six additions to the church during the year, making the total membership 86. There have been no dismissals or deaths.

In the Sunday-school there is a membership of 65 with an average attendance of 40. There are thirty members in the Christian Endeavor Society with an average attendance of 22. It is reported that the Ladies' Aid Society had raised during the year the sum of $300. In the Christian Women's Board of Missions there is a membership of twenty. It was stated by the pastor that an application had been made to have the holders of the mortgage on the property paid off and the mortgage transferred to the Extension Fund Board of the denomination. As yet the members have not heard whether the application has been granted.

Another meeting will be held at an early date when the election of officers will be completed.

New Minister Highly Commended.

Rev. Scott Wallace, the new pastor of the St. Peter's A.M.E. Zion church, will read the following letter to his congregation tomorrow:

Belmar, N. J., May 31, 1898.

Rev. Scott Wallace and Dear Brother:

Honor is the acquisition and preservation of ministerial dignity, and dear brother believe us when we herein assembled do extend to you our heartiest wish for your success. And again believe us when we declare that you leave nothing but love behind you, and our sincere regret and grief at parting with you. God says go forth and expound the truth to men, and we know that thou hast the emblem of faith stamped in thy heart and know your pathway will be showered with brilliant stars. We trust your honorable bearing will increase love as you have left it here. Signed by

New Method of Bookkeeping.

The Borough Council has decided to change the methods of keeping books for the borough, and the change will affect Clerk Arnold. As a result all money is to be placed to the credit of the borough and not to each department, as heretofore. The clerk is then to assign to each department the amount voted as the appropriation for that department. Each month a statement is to be made as to how the finances stand in each department. The change is made on the recommendation of Councilman Valiant.

May Build Up "Battle Row."

As yet it is not known whether "Battle Row" will be built up again or not. The insurance companies are figuring on the loss, and E. Frank Vail, the owner, has carpenters making estimates. Some decision will probably be reached in less than a week.

AVENGING A WRONG.

Louis Martelles Fatally Wounded By a Desperate Husband.

Alfred, Me., June 4.—Louis Martelles, who was released from jail here yesterday, having completed a term to which he was sentenced for a misdemeanor, in which Mrs. Joseph Glendon was involved, was shot and probably fatally injured by the husband of the woman as he left the jail.

Officers who witnessed the shooting followed Glendon, who, when he found that he could not escape, placed the revolver with which he had shot Martelles against his own breast and fired a bullet through his heart. He died instantly. The physicians say that Martelles cannot recover.

Regular Service to Colon.

New York, June 4.—The Panama Railroad has resumed the regular sailing of its steamships between this port and Colon. When Admiral Cervera's ships were believed to be cruising about the Caribbean sea the sailings were suspended for a few days, but the bottling up of the Spanish fleet at Santiago has changed the situation.

LARGEST CLOTHING SALE OF THE SEASON!
NOW GOING ON.

FORCED TO THE WALL.

One of the largest wholesale manufacturers was forced to the wall. Every one knows of the depression in every line of business, but none have suffered so much as the clothing manufacturers that were rated away up. They were forced to go under or realize money in some way to save their credit, and we being enabled to offer them the ready cash, they accepted our offer and we secured a very large lot of desirable clothing at our own price. A chance of a lifetime to secureh igh-grade spring and summer clothing at less than one-third its value.

Remember, this stock will be sold without reserve, without restriction and without any consideration of cost of production, and the prices will bring every man and woman within 25 miles of Plainfield to our store in order to show what gigantic bargains will be offered

A few prices are here mentioned, and remember there are a thousand other bargains we cannot enumerate. Cut this out and bring it with you and ask for the following mentioned articles.

Men's stylishly made gray and brown check and plaid cassimere suits, deep French facing, sizes from 34 to 42, strong and serviceable, worth $8, your choice at $2.95.

Men's strictly all-wool fancy cassimere suits, neat checks, stripes and plaids, deep French facing, six different patterns, worth $10, at $3.75.

An elegant assortment of handsomely made cassimere suits, latest patterns of checks, stripes, plaids and over-plaids, stout and regular cut, worth 13.00 at $5.25.

Men's black clay diagonal suits strictly all-wool worsted, color guaranteed, double or single breasted, sacks and frocks, all sizes, stouts, slims and regulars up to size 48 at the same price, worth 16.00 at $6.75.

OREGON'S FATAL SHOT.

It Sunk a Spanish Torpedo Boat With All the Crew on Board.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Kingston, June 6, 1:22 p. m.—One of the fastest of the torpedo boats flying the Spanish flag has gone to the bottom. A shell from the battleship Oregon sunk her with all on board.

The Oregon is now with Sampson's fleet off Santiago. Yesterday a strange steamer was sighted from the Oregon, making for the harbor.

All was activity on the Oregon. The gun crews were ordered to quarters. A closer observation showed the stranger to be a Spanish torpedo boat.

The Oregon signalled to her to stop and fired a small shell. It was without effect. The stranger paid no attention.

One of the great thirteen-inch guns of the Oregon then opened on the speedy Spaniard. The shot went straight at its mark. It struck the torpedo boat squarely amidships.

The shell exploded and all was confusion on the Spaniard. The Oregon steamed toward her, but the little craft sank at once.

It is supposed that all the crew were drowned. There was no clue as to the name of the torpedo boat.

Port Antonio advices are uncertain whether the Spanish torpedo boat sunk by the Oregon was the Terror or the Furor.

Advices from Port Defence, Martinique, say that the Terror is still there disabled. If so, the torpedo boat was probably the Furor of Admiral Camara's fleet.

The Furor and Terror were twin boats of the torpedo boat destroyer type. They both were of steel, of 380 tons burden and carried six rapid fire guns besides torpedo tubes.

Kingston, June 6, 12:35 p. m.—The sinking of the Spanish torpedo boat destrorer, Terror or Furor, by the Oregon, is confirmed at Port Antonio.

DUE IN CUBA TODAY.

The Advance Guard of the Invading Army Should Arrive Today.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 6, 1:30 p. m—It is expected here that the landing of the American troops at Santiago de Cuba will be reported in a day or two.

According to the best information as to the time the advance detachment left Florida, it should arrive at Cuba today.

The War Department still guards the plans of the occupation of Santiago with great secrecy. Nothing can be learned in Washington today regarding the time when the main body of troops will embark.

The fact is well established that the present condition of affairs at Santiago demand the immediate landing of troops there. Little time will be lost in embarking the remaining 12,000 troops that are to go.

The Administration has already designated who shall go and the troops are now rapidly preparing to start.

Secretary Alger has prepared a list of the Spanish prisoners at Atlanta for exchange through the Navy Department for Hobson and his men.

As soon as the list has been approved by Secretary Long, the exchange will take place. The Administration is very anxious to release the crew of the Merrimac as soon as possible.

TROOPS LANDED.

Journal Despatch Says Active Movement Against Santiago Has Begun.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

New York, June 6, 1:47 p. m—A special to the Journal from Cape Haytien says that at daybreak this morning the American troops were landed at Aquadores, a few miles east of the entrance to the harbor of Santiago.

The ships of Sampson's fleet first silenced the guns in the Spanish batteries there. The troops landed under cover of a heavy fire from the fleet.

At 7:55 this morning the cannonading is reported to be increasing.

IS FLEET DIVIDED?

Heraldo Says Three of the Spanish Cruisers are Enroute to Manila.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

London, June 6, 12:30 p. m—A despatch from Vienna to The Central News says that information has been received from private sources at Cadiz that the repairs on the Carlos V. are proceeding in the slowest manner.

The ships are reported to be far from being ready for sea. The report of their departure was incorrect.

The Star correspondent in Madrid says that the Heraldo has started the theory that part of the Cape Verde fleet is enroute to the Phillippines.

It announces that the cruiser Cristobol Colon, a torpedo boat destroyer and three auxiliary cruisers, painted and rigged in imitation of the Almirante Oquendo, Vizcaya and Infanta Maria Teresa, are at Santiago.

The real battleships are reported as having reached Madagascar under instructions from Madrid, to proceed to Manila via the Cape of Good Hope.

The Spanish cabinet has instructed Senor Leon y Castillo, the Spanish ambassador in France, to negotiate a loan of half a billion of pesetas secretly on railway concessions.

HAVANA'S TROUBLES.

Prices Still Rising, Distress Increasing, and Antonomist Rule a Failure.

CRESCENTS WON IN AN ERRORLESS GAME.

Met and Defeated the Bergen Field Club Saturday.

THE SCORE WAS 10 TO 3.

TIMELY HITTING AND GOOD FIELDING WON THE GAME.

The Game Was Close During the First Three Innings and Then the Crescents Ran Away From Their Opponents—MacLaughlin Pitched An Excellent Game and Had the Best of Support—The Visitors Made Only One Bad Error—The Day Was a Cold and Windy One—A Small Audience Present.

In an errorless game the Crescents defeated the Bergen Field Club, one of the crack semi-professional teams of Brooklyn, Saturday afternoon. The day was by no means an ideal one for baseball, being cold and windy, while a few drops of rain promised a greater downfall later. Nevertheless the Crescents were in magnificent form, winning by a score of 10 to 3.

"Warry" MacLaughlin was in the box for the home team. Despite the strong north-east gale blowing, he had good control of the ball. In the first and third innings the visitors were able to hit his pitching somewhat, but when he warmed up to the game his curves were too puzzling. Then, too, he had perfect support.

The visitors were young men and good players, having only lost two games out of the ten they have played this season. They had met their match, however, and were frank in admitting that the Crescents were the best team they had met this season.

The visitors went first to bat. The first ball struck Nolan in the side of the head and he took first to be forced out by Lippert's easy grounder to MacLaughlin. Patterson forced Lippert out in a similar manner. Then singles by Leonard and Price sent Patterson around the circuit of the bases for a run. The Crescents did not score in the first inning.

In the second, errors by second base and short stop filled two of the bases, then a single by Charley Mumford brought them both in. Mac hit for two bases to score with Mumford on a hit by Metz. Four runs were the result.

The Bergens did the last of the scoring in the third, when singles by Patterson and Leonard, a base on balls and two stolen bases netted two more runs.

Two more Crescents rounded the bases in the fourth inning on singles by Hollister and Metz and a two-bagger by Dave Vroom.

In the sixth inning metz was struck on the shoulder. A wild throw of Cavanaugh's grounder by Price sent Metz home. Vroom was also struck by a pitched ball. C. Vroom sacrificed to first. Then an error by Patterson, and singles by Mumford and McLoughlin made the total score for the inning four.

That ended the scoring for both sides and the men followed each other in one, two, three order on both sides.

The wind made it difficult for the fielders to judge the high flies and for that reason several hits were scored that might have otherwise been caught. The batting of the local team was excellent, however. They hit the ball and at timely intervals.

There was barely a corporal's guard in the grand stand and bleechers but the chilly weather was responsible. The game was a good one, and the excellent playing of the Crescents made a profound impression on the visitors.

The detailed score was as follows:

DISGRACEFUL CONDUCT.

SCIONS OF WEALTHY FAMILIES RIDE HORSES IN NUDE CONDITION.

The Daring and Capracious Youngsters Startled the Staid Agriculturists Who Reside Near Lambert's Mill Pond.

The young sons of two or three of Plainfield's most respected and wealthy citizens amused themselves Saturday in a most disgraceful manner. The party of boys, who are old enough to know better, jouneyed to Lambert's mill pond, back of Short Hills, to take a swim.

The boys drove to the pond in two runabouts. After their swim they unhitched the horses from the runabouts, and in a nude condition they commenced a steeple chase through the farmer's orchard and corn fields.

The boys jumped fences with the horses and indulged in all sorts of pranks, and did not stop until they were tired of the sport. Then they resumed their dress, hitched up the horses again and drove home.

The antics of the boys were seen by a number of people, who were shocked at such conduct. It is said that Mr. Lambert will make a complaint to the county authorities.

MINDS SLOW TO DECIDE.

ONE OF THE CHARACTERISTICS OF THE JAPANESE.

The People of the Land of Tea Described by a Missionary Who Has Been Among Them for a Great Many Years.

A very interesting address on missionary work in Japan was delivered by Rev. Hilton Pedley, a returned missionary from that country, in the Congregational church last evening.

He described the different islands of the group and told something of the inhabitants of each and their manners and customs. He gave an interesting account of his own landing in Japan and how he learned the native language. He taught in a private school for boys there, later to begin regular missionary work after he had become somewhat acquainted with the customs and learned something of the language.

His description of the different duties of the missionary were very interesting. He dwelt especially on the work of touring from one native church to another. He referred to the love of the Japanese for consultation, and how they gathered together drank tea and ate cake and settled in five hours what the average American would in thirty minutes.

His stories of his experiences with the interpreters were, some of them, very amusing. In addressing the natives, he explained, the missionary would talk for five minutes and then the interpreter would tell what he could remember and make up the rest. The interpreter, the speaker said, reminded him of the American reporter in that particular.

At the close of the address, the audience was invited to ask questions and man other interesting points were brought out. Then Rev. Mr. Pedley exhibited a number of photograps of Japan and Japanese people.

PORCH FAIR A SUCCESS.

Young Women of the Borough Aid the Red Cross Society Fund.

While the weather was not all that could be desired, the porch fair for the benefit of the National Red Cross Society, held on the piazza at the residence of Edward A. Overton, of 91 Rockview avenue, proved a great success. The attendance was large and everything saiable was purchased even before the end of the fair.

The event of the afternoon was the Punch and Judy show conducted by Miss Grace Elting Overton and Miss Eleanor Thurston VanDeventer. Besides the usual characters, the American and Spanish soldiers were introduced. A number of funny sayings, many of them original, were given by the puppets.

The candy table was presided over by Miss Saidee Mae Howell and Miss Katherine Dwight. Miss Marguerite Burnett looked after the lemonade booth. Miss Eleanor Williams was in charge of the general table. The waitresses at the ice cream tables were the Misses Rita Pond, Virginia Hegeman, Isabel Milne and Dora Waring. Miss Grace E. Overton and Miss Eleanor T. VanDeventer had general charge over the affair.

While returns have not been made from all the tickets, a neat sum has already been netted for the benefit of the Red Cross work among the soldiers of our army.

New Members for Trinity.

At the communion service in Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning there was a very gratifying accession to the membership of the church, nine persons being received, eight by letter and one on confession.

BILLY RUNYON MAY BE A G. O. P. MAYOR

Republican Slate For City Election Being Fixed Up.

J. A. MARTIN FOR COLLECTOR.

HIS SELECTION TO BE MADE BY COUNOIL IN BIRD'S PLACE.

Mayor Fisk is Calculated to Get the State Senatorial Nomination to Succeed Acting Governor Voorhees and Then the Second Ward Councilman Will Probably be Advanced—Calculated That Martin Will Capture Collectorship Nomination, But He Will Have Opposition—In Fire Department.

It is now practically settled that James Martin, first assistant chief of the fire department, is to take the place to be left vacant by Collector Elias Bird, who has just been appointed postmaster. A few weeks ago The Daily Press mentioned Mr. Martin's name as a possibility for this office. Mr. Martin will hold the office until the next election, when it is thought that he will be nominated by his party for an election to that office. That there will be opposit on goes without saying. Among the other candidates for the office is William Abbott, the North avenue insurance agent, and B. T. Barnes.

There is no doubt but what the Democrats will put a ticket in the field, but they may run it as a citizen's ticket, the same as was done at the last election. There is no denying the fact that there are many Republicans who are counting on giving their support to a citizen's ticket, and in this respect the Democrats seem hopeful.

It is stated on good authority that in part the Republican slate is made. It is said that Mayor Fisk will undoubtedly be a candidate for State Senator, and that Councilman William N. Runyon will be a candidate for the office of Mayor of Plainfield.

In taking Mr. Martin from the fire department, that department will lose a valuable man. He has been associated with the department for a number of years and has won merited praise for his excellent judgment, cool head and management of affairs coming under his supervision. It is quite likely that his place will be taken by Second Assistant Chief J. W. Murray, Jr., who has also served the city in that department faithfully for years. This will leave another vacancy, that of Second Assistant. Just who will be placed there is not yet known.

A DAY ON A HOUSEBOAT.

Guests of F. H. Ball Enjoyed Themselves on "Sommerheim."

F. H. Ball, of the borough, entertained a party of North Plainfield people on his sailing houseboat, "Sommerhim," Saturday, in the Raritan Bay. In the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Douglass, Mrs. VanDeventer, Mrs. Miller, of Buffalo; Miss VanArsdale, Miss VanDeventer, Miss Anna Murphy, Fletcher Hallock, John Brower and the members of Mr. Ball's family, the entire party numbering about eighteen.

The boat was sailed out into the outer bay and a very pleasant time enjoyed by all. Luncheon was served on the boat. Next Saturday Mr. Ball expects to take another party of North Plainfie d people out.

Will Not Start Another Church.

Benjamin W. Hand and his wife, of this city, did not resign from the First Church of Christ for the purpose of organizing another church as stated in the News. They simply cannot agree with some of the methods in vogue at that church and they resigned for the purpose of joining another church.

Will Be a Pleasant Trip.

Mr. Honeyman has reduced the time of his foreign tour of June 23d to fifty days and limited it to Great Britain. It includes coaching, the Isle of Wight, English lakes and plenty of time in London. His circulars can be had at 181 North avenue.

Managing Committee Organized.

The managing committee of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital organized at the meeting yesterday. W. L. Saunders was elected chairman and W. R. Cock secretary.

Lawyer Nash Dead.

Stephen P. Nash, the well-known New York lawyer who has a summer home at Bernardsville, died Saturday. He was known to many Plainfielders in a pleasant way.

Appeal Cases Tomorrow.

The appeal cases in the Union County courts will come up at Elizabeth today and tomorrow. There will be a number of Plainfield cases tomorrow.

WIFE FEARS HUSBAND.

HARRY LAVELL SERIOUSLY ACCUSED BY HIS BETTER HALF.

Mrs. LaVell Says She is Very Much Afraid to Stay Home—Husband Held for Examination—Wife Active Christian.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Amelia LaVell, of Putnam avenue, appeared before Justice Newcorn and had a warrant issued for the arrest of her husband, Harry LaVell. She charged that he threatened her life, was abusive, and that at one time she was so much afraid of him that she was obliged to leave home for three days.

The warrant was issued, but LaVell was not arrested until yesterday. Constable Rockafellow made the arrest, and LaVell was held in $200 bonds until Thursday when he will be given a hearing. The defendant claims that it is an outrage that he should be thus treated.

Mrs. LaVell is a prominent and active worker in St. Stephen's church, in Netherwood.

BURGLARS' FIFTH VISIT.

POSTMASTER STOVER'S STORE AT OAK TREE AN EASY THING.

Tools Stolen from George Hunt's Blacksmith Shop Used to Gain Entrance—Mail Matter Was Not Disturbed.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Oak Tree, June 6.—Early yesterday morning the postoffice at this place was broken into and thoroughly ransacked by thieves. Postmaster Stover keeps the office in connection with a general country store. This makes the fifth time the place has been robbed since he has been postmaster. Everything about the place was all right at 12 o'clock Saturday night when George Hunt, the blacksmith at Pumptown, was on his way home.

The robbers stole tools from Mr. Hunt's shop and used them to pry open the shutters at the postoffice. They then had a comparatively easy time in affecting an entrance into the office. They escaped with eight dozen eggs, five pounds of butter, five pounds of cheese, several cans of salmon, and a number of pies and cakes. Fortunately the thieves did not bother the mail or any of the things belonging to the Government.

Postmaster Stover has not the slightest clew as to who the thieves are. He has sent notices to the police in the various places of this section asking them to be on the lookout for suspicious characters.

CHILDREN DAY EXERCISES.

First of the June Juvenile Events Held in the Christian Church.

Children Day exercises were held last evening at the Christian church on Grove street. The church was decorated with flowers and American flags. The exercises were in charge of Superintendent John Staats, of the Sunday-school.

The exercises consisted of singing by the school, an address of welcome by John Baldwin, a two-minute address by the superintendent, and exercises by the infant department. There were recitations by Miss Nanie Ackerman, Helen Woolley and Etta Staats, while a vocal duett was given by the Misses DeMott, and a reading by Miss Belle DeMott. A rally song was given by the scholars at the close while the collection was being taken. There was a very large attendance of members and friends at the church, and a profitable evening was spent by all.

Prize Choristers.

The prize choristers of Grace church for May are: Harry Messerschmidt, Kendall Mason, Douglass Murphy, Raymond Cohen, Edwin Daniel, Roland Chandor, Reginald Chandor, Lynn Adams, Harris Egan, Augustus Feiring and the Misses Mabelle Smith, Clara Woodward, Eleanor T. VanDeventer, Mary Collier. Augustus Feiring received the Grace church cross.

The prize choristers of Holy Cross choir for the month of May are Everit Sherwin, Keneth Stuart, Harold Lucky, Louis Gardiner, Robert Sherwin. Everit Sherwin received the first prize, the silver cross, the others receiving silver medals. These prizes are awarded each month for improvement in singing, attendance and good conduct.

Refused to Prosecute.

The complaint against Henry Smith, of Westervelt avenue, has been dismissed by City Judge DeMeza because of the prosecuting attorney's failure to prosecute. Codington & Swackhamer, who represented Smith, appeared before the City Judge last week and asked to have the complaint dismissed, and this was granted. Smith was arrested on complaint of his wife, who charged him with calling her names and annoying her on Watchung avenue one Sunday.

ANOTHER HAVEN TO SAVE SOULS FROM SIN.

New Building of East Third Street Mission Dedicated.

TO BE CALLED FAITH CHAPEL

THE SERVICES WERE HELD IN THE BUILDING YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

The New Building is a Neat Structure on East Third Street, Near Richmond Street, on the Very Site Where The Mission Tent Was Erected Seven Years Ago—$1,000 Still Needed to Clear the New Chapel From Debt—Eight Clergymen and C. W. McCutchen Made Addresses.

Yesterday afternoon the dedication exercises of the new East Third Street chapel were held, and the occasion was made one of general joy and thanksgiving on the part of the workers and supporters of the mission.

The members held their last service in the old building Thursday evening, and when they entered the new structure yesterday they entered it with a name, for they are no longer the East Third Street mission, but "Faith Chapel."

The chapel has been recently finished and made ready for use. It is a neat structure near Richmond street, right in the midst of a portion of the town where a mission of some kind had long been needed. Seven years ago several members of the First Baptist church got together and erected a tent on the very ground where Faith chapel now stands, and it is fitting that the larger and more substantial structure should stand as a monument to make the spot where the first evangelistic work began.

The chapel contains one large auditorium with a gallery, which will be used for Sunday evening and week night services as well as for Sunday school. There are besides several smaller rooms, a library, etc. The interior is finished in Norway pine, and makes a pretty appearance, especially was this noticed yesterday, when the front of the main room was bright with flowers and green plants, and American banners hung on the walls.

The treasurer's report, which was read yesterday by L. W. Serrell, showed that the mission still needs to raise about $1,000 before it can declare itself free from debt. The total cost of the building, including the lot, carpenter and mason work, furnishings, and an amount of rent due on the old building amounts to $7,879.10. $6,600 was subscribed before the work was begun; the balance will have to be made up, and it is hoped that it can be raised in six months, with the addition of the $400, needed annually to run the mission.

An invitation had been sent out by C. W. McCutchen, L. W. Serrell, R. K. Case, I. L. Brady, and L. W. Randolph, trustees, to several to attend the opening exercises yesterday, and the eight clergymen who responded and occupied seats on the platform were Revs. Dr. Yerkes, Dr. Richards, J. W. Richardson, A. E. Main, M. Cubberly, of South Plainfield, George Bowers, of Warrenville, Mr. Chambers and Arthur Crane.

The services were opened with singing by the congregation led by the choir of the First Baptist church; prayer by Rev. Arthur Crane, and Scripture reading by Rev. J. W. Richardson.

Each of the clergymen mentioned above and C. W. McCutchen spoke a few words, their addresses being limited to five minutes each. They all congratulated the mission on its phenomenal growth and welcomed it into the sisterhood of churches. The suggestion as to what we would do were there no churches in town was made, and the fact emphasized that a chapel such as this meant something to a city.

The services were attended by people from all the churches, every denomination uniting in wishing the new chapel and its members success. During the afternoon Mrs. Ward and Miss Harris, of the First Baptist church choir, sang a duet.

The chapel, although not dedicated until 4:15, was used as a meeting place for the Sunday-school at 3 o'clock. L. W. Randolph is the Sunday-school superintendent. The chapel has no pastor, but the services will be conducted in the future as they have been in the past, under the leadership of several prominent Christian workers of the mother church.

Last evening Rev. Arthur Crane opened the first of a series of evangelistic meetings which will be continued all this week.

Mrs. Morely, of West Second street, is entertaining company from New York.

SPY CARANZA'S LETTER

The Sensational Document Made Public by the Government.

SPAIN'S WEAKNESS SHOWN.

After Speaking Disparagingly of Commander Camara the Former Naval Attache at Washington Says He Was Left in Montreal to Establish a Spy System—Sent Telegrams to Cervera at Santiago—Afraid of Our "Terrible Ships."

Washington, D. C., June 6.—Chief Wilkie of the United States treasury secret service Saturday made public the letter which was recently written by Mr. Carranza, former naval attache of the Spanish legation in Washington, now in Montreal, to a party in the office of the Spanish ministry of marine, and secured by Mr. Wilkie's operatives and brought to Washington.

The letter was received here about one week ago, but for public reasons it was withheld until Saturday.

The letter was secured by an operative who called at the house in the capacity of a health officer while Mr. Carranza was at dinner. The letter was found on his table, addressed for mailing. It was handed by this man to another in waiting, and he to a third who instantly started with it to Washington.

The officials who have had knowledge of Chief Wilkie's moves regard it as one of the most clever pieces of detective work ever done in this country. The letter is as follows:

Text of Carranza's Letter.

Montreal, 28th of May, 1898.

My Dear Don Jose: It was my belief that they would have appointed you to command the Cadiz fleet, and it was my intention to have sent you a telegram asking that you take me with you to meet you in the Antilles or wherever you might say.

The case has not turned out thus, however, and it seems as though God were not on our side, because the election of Senor Camara, I fear, will be fatal, although he may have a good chief of staff. No one could possibly suit him, because he is very capricious and besides is not a hard worker, on the contrary he is lazy and would pay no attention to the advice of anyone. You will not take this for flattery, but no one but you and Don Pasquale (Cervera) should have command of our fleet, and this is the belief of the younger element of the personnel. Now there is no remedy, and may God shed his light upon him and keep him in his hands. I wrote to the minister and with the confidence to my special duties I said to him on sending a clipping from a newspaper containing a cablegram from Cadiz, speaking of our fleet and of its admiral, that it was not Senor Camara but you who should command it, and that we, the lower personnel, who have travelled about a little, know you very well. It may be that this action may have made a bad impression on him, but I don't care, because if I can do so I shall leave the service when the war is finished.

In Montreal to Establish a Spy System.

I have been left here to receive and send telegrams and to look after the spy service which I have organized, or, I had better say, am establishing here, because until a very little while ago I was not permitted to do as I pleased. We have had bad luck, because they have captured our two best spies, one in Washington, who hanged himself—or else they did it for him—and the other day before yesterday in Tampa. The Americans are showing the most extraordinary vigilance. I do not wish to remain here without taking an active part.

I believe that in war one has to tempt fortune. If it had not been because Sampson was afraid that Don Pasquale might go to Havana and that Sch[illegible] would not be there, or our confidence is well grounded that he found himself very short of ammunition after the bombardment through the stealing in the ordnance department, the fact remains that it was logical for him to remain near Santiago and Cienfuegos, and if he could not prevent the entrance of our squadron, to shut it up, and thus close its campaign, as the people over there already believe it closed.

But I cannot believe such a stupid thing possible. I suppose he went to the south of Porto Rico, and that he had ordered a cruiser or two there to cover the Terror, and that he will appear at San Juan the 27th or 28th. He will coal there and will rest a day or two, and will then return to delay and annoy them and delay the invasion. The Vizcaya and the Oquendo at least need to go into dry dock.

I telegraphed to Don Pasquale on the morning of the 20th, when I knew he was at Santiago, saying that the squadrons were at Key West. He did not answer me. That afternoon there came another telegram from Madrid saying he had left Santiago. I continued sending messages to General Blanco in respect to all the movements and now, so far as I know, Don Pasquale has arrived at Porto Rico, where I shall try to communicate with him. If he should have set out for Martinique or Havana, having twenty-four hours' advantage, he would have arrived before now.

"I am much afraid lest they attack Porto Rico by sea and land and put off the attack on Havana. They are not going to do more than try to take the latter, and they think then, if they destroy our fleet, of taking the war into Spain, with Havana already in their power. They have no confidence in their army, but they have in their navy, and they are afraid of our army and of yellow fever, because if the men should begin to lie in Cuba there would be a tremendous row, as they are not like our people.

Anyway, we shall see when there is news of the fleet. I expect it to-morrow. With them cleaning their hulls at the keys, we should be able to clean something in three days at Porto Rico. Each day that passes is worse for us on account of the almost total lack of preparation.

If the Cadiz squadron is to come to bombard Boston, Portland and Long Island they can do it now, but after a few months it will be too late.

I think if we are to have any success in this matter it will be through treating for peace by yielding Cuba and having them recognize the debt. If we do not do this soon it will be too late, and we shall lose Cuba and Porto Rico and all that this war has cost us, and, in addition, we shall be charged with the Cuban debt, for which our treasury is responsible. There is no doubt here that we cannot continue the war, in which we have nothing to gain, and may lose our three colonies and be ruined for 50 years.

In the matter of money there is no patriotism here. Proof is given by the bank, which ought to have bought gold, although at a premium of 100 per cent., and issued notes against it in the same or a slightly greater quantity. With one hundred and fifty millions it has made thirteen hundred millions.

This is the moment of the year at which instead of returning twenty-three or twenty-four per cent., it returns only twelve or fifteen. As regards its buying gold, exchange has gone down, and if in buying four hundred millions it issues five hundred millions, paying six hundred or seven hundred, inasmuch as the state subscribes at the rate of five per cent., this would represent to the bank an interest of about three per cent., and its dividend would have gone down very little.

The bank is the nation, and with the nation it has grown rich by offering paper money, which it did not have in its treasury, and by getting interest on that which it really had never given out. But whatever the bank does, nobody dares object, except those who have no money in their pants if they should call for it.

I have written to the minister, but I did not give him so much news of the fleets as to you, because I had other things to speak of. If you should see him you might give him some news. We shall see when they relieve me and and send some one here to work and not to amuse himself.

I can imagine your anxiety for Francisco and the rest, an anxiety that we share. Their terrible ships do not go as fast as ours by perhaps two and a half miles. As for the monitors, they do not count for much; they can be used only to bombard in a smooth sea, and, besides, cannot go fast, and carry very little coal. They have delayed Sampson the whole voyage.

My regards to Rafael and his daughters and you know how much your kinsman and subordinate loves you.

RAMON CARRANZA.

The Last Cable Cut.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 6.—The last cable strands binding Cuba to the outside world have been cut by a cable vessel convoyed here by the United States dispatch boat Dolphin. This black sea crab delved all day along the coast, hour after hour, and its powerful claws at length brought up the barnacle-clustered cable and snapped the strands, and now Cuba is wholly isolated.

The first cable picked up was that running to Kingston. The coast loop connecting Santiago de Cuba and Guantanamo was then cut. Proceeding to Guantanamo the cable vessel finally grappled and severed the Haytien cable.

This ends the cable cutting operations begun a month ago, when the Marblehead and the Windom lost five men in a fight off Cienfuegos, where three cables were crippled and several hundred Spaniards were killed by shells from the warships. Afterward the St. Louis and the Wampatuck cut the San Juan de Porto Rico cable at Santiago de Cuba.

The strands cut were the only ones remaining, except a few coast loops, and these will probably be severed in a short time.

Dynamite Sent to the Mayor.

New York, June 6.—A package six inches long, two inches wide and two inches deep, with a wrapping of manila paper, and tied with a string, was received at the general postoffice Saturday afternoon, addressed to Mayor Van Wyck. The package happened to break, and a dynamite cartridge four inches long was exposed. A fuse was attached to one end. The package was mailed in the district of Station I, the headquarters of which are at Columbus avenue and One Hundred and Fifth street. A letter carrier discovered the contents and took the package to Superintendent White of the city department, who delivered it personally to the mayor yesterday afternoon. A two cent stamp had been placed on it. Nobody at the city hall later would admit that such a package had been sent there.

The Astor Battery Equipment.

New York, June 6.—The equipment of Hotchkiss guns arrived Saturday night for the Astor battery. With the guns came plenty of revolvers, sabres and blankets. The uniforms that failed to give satisfaction and were returned to the makers, are expected to be replaced to-night.

Soon after breakfast Saturday Lieutenant March inspected the battery at the barracks, at No. 552 Broadway, and afterward announced that all the men would be allowed to spend Sunday at home on condition that every man should report at the barracks Monday morning at 7 o'clock.

Platt Did Not Appear.

New York, June 6.—Because he was detained in Washington to vote for the war revenue bill, Senator Thomas C. Platt disappointed several prominent Republican politicians who expected to have a conference with him at the Fifth Avenue hotel in this city last evening. Among them was Louis F. Payn, the state superintendent of insurance, who is supposed to have been delegated by Governor Black to let Mr. Platt know how far the governor is willing to go in the matter of police legislation if there is an early special session of the legislature.

Spain to Work a Coal Mine.

Madrid, June 6.—A dispatch from Havana to El Heraldo says the government has resolved to work the coal mine discovered at Guanajay in order to secure a supply of coal for the Spanish naval vessels and has also sent a circular to the foreign consuls requesting them to inform their countrymen that food stuffs are free of duty and command high prices in Cuba.

CLOSING IN ON SANTIAGO.

Insurgents Are in the Saddle and it Is Reported the American Troops Have Been Landed Near the City.

Washington, June 6.—This morning officials were anxiously awaiting news from Santiago.

There was a strong feeling among those who are familiar with the administration war plans that something had happened, and a report was looked for at any moment.

A dispatch from Cape Haytien, Hayti, says that all night long the Spaniards were sending their troops to the shore, near Punta Cabrena, five miles from Santiago, where it is thought that American troops and guns have been landed.

Heavy cannonading was reported there early Sunday morning, and twenty American ships were in sight. Several of them were evidently transports.

The insurgent forces are closing in on the city. Signal fires have been burning on the hills for several nights Small parties of rebels have been met very near the city.

Secretary Long is proud of the Santiago heroes. He said: "The sinking of the Merrimac furnishes one of those instances of personal heroism which have distinguished the American navy in every war.

"I am proud of every man among them, and of their brave achievement."

MORE TROOPS FOR PORTO RICO.

Four Big Transports Added Those to Carry the Army to San Juan.

Washington, June 6.—Orders issued by the war department indicate that troops are to be sent at once to Porto Rico. The Gate City, the City of Macon, the Camanche and the Louisiana have been given orders to report immediately at Fernandina, Fla. There they are to take on men and supplies.

The Gate City and the City of Macon can carry each about 1,000 men. They were chartered yesterday. The four vessels named have accommodations for about 3,000 men, so that the war department can now send at once 10,000 more to the front.

Porto Rico is now to be the principal place of operation for the American forces. The obstruction of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba by the sinking of the collier Merrimac will undoubtedly hasten the movement that is to be made on San Juan.

It was said yesterday by an officer high in authority that Porto Rico was now a point for almost immediate attack. The United States will be able to move part of its fleet there from Santiago de Cuba. This is no change in the programme of sending an army to Santiago de Cuba. In fact, it is now en route.

In the opinion of the administration it would be perfect folly to send an army to Porto Rico consisting entirely of volunteer troops. Of course, it will be necessary, owing to the small size of our regular army, to have the army partly made up of volunteers, but a number of regiments will be taken from the Fifth Army Corps.

General Shafter will command the army to Santiago de Cuba and General Lee will probably command the army to Porto Rico, and be appointed by the president as military governor of that island. A large force of light artillery and corps of infantry and cavalry will accompany the Porto Rico expedition.

LIEUT. WHITNEY'S DARING TRIP.

Visits Porto Rico and Ascertains the Condition of Affairs.

Washington, June 6.—It is learned here that Lieutenant Whitney has just completed an important piece of secret work in Porto Rico and has returned to St. Thomas, from which place he started on his mission. Lieutenant Whitney's task, which he has accomplished successfully, was similar in character to that of Colonel Rowan in Cuba.

He was sent across the island, starting at Ponce, and observing the defences and the military strength of various places as he went. He found the people very friendly toward Americans, and ready to aid our army of invasion. At Ponce there are about forty-five hundred Spanish regulars and five thousand volunteers. Discontentment, owing to ill treatment and poor pay, prevails among both regulars and volunteers, and there are many desertions. The troops are in bad condition from sickness.

Lieutenant Whitney reached the north coast of the island of San Juan Food is scarce and flour costs 17 cents a pound and rice 25 cents. He thinks the people will soon expel the Spaniards, even if the American troops do not help them do it.

About four weks ago the lieutenant showed his bravery by taking dispatches from General Miles to General Gomez, landing in Cuba from an open boat, and at one tinme driving off, with the help of his few Cuban scouts, a body of Spanish troops who tried to capture him.

OLYMPIA'S CAPTAIN DEAD

He Was Honored Last Week by Congress for His Work at Manila.

Washington, June 6.—Captain Chas. Vernon Gridley of the Olympia, Admiral Dewey's flagship, died Saturday at Kabe, Japan. He was on sick leave, the terrific bombardment at Manila having aggravated an old rupture.

Captain Gridley, during the engagement, which won him the advancement of six numbers, conferred last week by congress, directed action in the big gun turret.

He was a native of Indiana and served with distinction through the rebellion.

Harrison and Hobart on Lee's Staff.

Jacksonville, June 6.—Major General Fitzhugh Lee has appointed on his staff Russell Harrison, son of former President Harrison, and a son of Vice President Hobart.

Mr. Hobart will be assistant adjutant general and Mr. Harrison probably assistant inspector general.

A Reckless Dash Into Santiago Channel Under Fire.

HOBSON'S PLAN SUCCEEDED.

Official Report from Sampson—He Says Six Spanish Ships Are Unable to Escape—Merrimac Sunk by Design. Hobson and Seven Men Prisoners of War—Cervera's Recognition of Their Bravery—Two Slightly Hurt.

Washington, June 6.—The Spanish fleet is now helpless, being held captive in Santiago harbor. The narrow channel leading into the harbor was completely blocked early Saturday morning, when the United States collier Merrimac was sunk across the entrance. It is now impossible for the Spaniards to get out, and it is equally impossible for any vessel to get into the harbor. Therefore, the Spanish first class armored cruiser Maria Theresa, Cristobal Colon, Viscaya and Almirante Oquendo, with the two torpedo boat destroyers, Furor and Pluton, are no longer of any use to Spain.

This result was accomplished through the heroism of Lieutenant Richmond P. Hobson, assistant naval constructor, and Daniel Montague, George Charette, J. C. Murphy, Oscar Deignan, John P. Phillips, John Kelly and H. Clauson. The latter, a coxswain of the New York, took part in the expedition against orders. They were all captured by the Spaniards, but the Spanish admiral, in recognition of their bravery, sent word to the American admiral under a flag of truce, that he was willing to exchange the prisoners, and assuring the American commander that they would be treated with the greatest kindness. Money and provisions have been sent to them, and the necessary steps are being taken to bring about their exchange.

LIEUT. RICHMOND P. HOBSON.

Montague is chief master-at-arms of the New York. He has served four years in the navy, is twenty-nine years of age, and his home is in Brooklyn.

George Charette is a gunner's mate of the first class on board the New York. He has served fourteen years in the navy, is thirty-one years old and resides at Lowell, Mass.

J. C. Murphy is a coxswain of the Iowa.

John P. Phillips is a machinist of the first class, belonging to the Merrimac. He is thirty-six years of age and his home is in Boston.

John Kelly is a water tender, about thirty-five years old. His home is near Glasgow, Scotland.

H. Clausen, who slipped on board the Merrimac without permission, in order to take part in the expedition, is a coxswain of the New York.

Lieutenant Richmond Pearson Hobson, assistant naval constructor, was born at Grensboro, Alabama, August 17, 1870, and was appointed, after a competitive examination, to the Naval Academy in May, 1885. He was the youngest member of his class, but graduated at the head of his eighteen companions. He has studied engineering under the auspices of the United States government, in France, and was made assistant naval constructor in 1891. He is the author of a semi-political work entitled "The Situation and Outlook in Europe," and was assigned to the flagship New York when Rear Admiral Sampson sailed for the West Indies. Lieutenant Hobson is a nephew of John M. Morehead of North Carolina, and is a grandson of Chief Justice Pearson of that state. He is unmarried, and his father, Judge James M. Hobson, lives at Grensboro, Ala.

The three men from the Merrimac's crew were all green hands, and shipped recently for the war.

The Merrimac had on board 600 tons of coal when she was scuttled across the channel.

Lieutenant Hobson started on his daring errand at 3 o'clock Friday morning. The Merrimac was lying to the westward. Under cover of the clouds over the moon, she stole in toward the coast and made her way to the eastward, followed by a steam launch from the New York, with the following crew on board: Naval Cadet J. W. Rowell of Oswego, N. Y.; P. K. Peterson, coxswain; H. Handford, apprentice of the first class; J. Mullings, coal passer; G. L. Russell, machinist of the second class. In the launch were bandages and appliances for the wounded.

Bold Dash Into the Channel.

In the dark of the early morning the Merrimac, without a light showing anywhere, dashed well within the line of the forts before she was discovered, our ships thundering at the enemy's batteries to divert their attention from the collier.

The eye could not follow the Merrimac, but the ear soon told that she had been detected by the Spaniards, for the fire from up the channel indicated that every possible gun was being brought to bear on her.

The Spaniards may also have endeavored to destroy her by the mines they are supposed to have in the harbor, but if the attempt was made it did not succeed.

For the Merrimac went to the point to which Admiral Sampson had directed Hobson to take her. There she was anchored and coolly swung across the channel.

Blew Up His Ship and Took to the Boat.

Then Hobson blew a hole in her bottom, and with his seven men, only two of whom had been injured, took to the boat.

All that is yet known of that heroic dash, beyond these bare facts, comes from Admiral Cervera himself.

The Spanish commander sent word to Admiral Sampson, under a flag of truce, of the capture of the eight American daredevils.

He gallantly praised their heroism and offered to arrange an exchange of them for Spanish prisoners now in the hands of the United States.

From the boat bearing the flag of truce it was learned that the Merrimac was frequently hit while steaming up the narrow channel, but that none of the shots disabled her machinery.

More than a hundred projectiles struck near her, over a dozen struck home, and two of her intrepid men were bruised by splinters from the woodwork.

When Hobson left the ship in the boat he made an effort to row out of the harbor and regain the American fleet, but he had gone too far up the channel, and he soon saw that the effort to pass all the aroused batteries in the then daylight, would mean the sacrifice of all his crew.

So he turned and rowed straight for the Spanish squadron. Some shots were still sent after the boat, but before long the Spaniards saw that Hobson evidently intended to give himself up, and ceased firing.

The American lieutenant rowed straight to the Almirante Oquendo and surrendered himself to Admiral Cervera, who received the prisoners courteously and treated them with the respect due gallant men who were prisoners of war.

EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS.

Preliminary Work Looking to Hobson's Release Already Begun.

Washington, D. C., June 6.—Naval Constructor Hobson and the men who went with him and the Merrimac will not languish long in a Spanish prison if the authorities here can bring about their release, for half an hour after Sampson's bulletin was displayed on the walls of the navy department, Colonel Carter, assistant adjutant general, had taken the preliminary steps to arrange for an exchange of prisoners, and was learning just how many Spanish officers and enlisted men were still held in captivity at Fort McPherson, Georgia, where they had been taken from the prizes captured by the American naval vessels. In addition to these, the navy has just turned over to the military authorities at Fort Monroe for safe keeping, another Spanish officer supposed to be of high rank, but who has so far managed to conceal his identity. The officials are confident they have more than enough Spanish officers to offer as ransom for the one American officer and seven enlisted men held by Cervera. The officers, one and all, took note of the generous recognition by the Spanish admiral of the bravery of the Americans, and his kindly treatment of the prisoners, and it can be guaranteed that the admiral's lines will fall in as pleasant places as any captive has a right to expect should he be overcome in the end and forced to surrender to Sampson.

SIGNS POINT TO PEACE.

Belief in Washington That the End of the War Is Near.

Washington, D. C., June 6.—Peace signs have been multiplying. There has been a notable change in the tone of the Spanish press and although up to this moment no advances have been made to the state department by any of the European powers, there is an indefinable suggestion in the air that any moment may bring forth overtures of this kind.

For this reason the campaign against Porto Rico will probably be hurried in order to insure its possession by the United States before peace is attained. Of the Cadiz fleet no fear is entertained. Notwithstanding the many publishel reports, probably all ascribable to Spanish ingenuity, to the effect that this fleet has already started for either the West Indies or the Philippines, it can be stated that the government has information, which it regards as reliable, that the Spanish fleet had not left Cadiz up to Saturday. Meanwhile, army preparations go forward without the slightest sign of cessation.

PRIZES AS TRANSPORTS.

Pedro, Panama, Guido and the Argonauta to Be Used to Carry Troops.

Washington, June 6.—The government has decided to take for use as transports at least four of the vessels which have been captured from the Spanish by the United States warships. Authority for this action is found in section 4,624 of the revised statutes. When prize property is appropriatel to the use of the government the department taking it is to deposit the value thereof with the assistant United States treasurer nearest to the place of the session of the court. The money is then subject to the order of the court as to the distribution to be made among the officers and the seamen making the capture of the vessel or other property. The four ships which the government has decided to take are the Panama, Guido, Pedro and the Argonauta.

War Balloons Going South.

New York, June 6.—Orders were received Saturday to send to Tampa the two large balloons recently brought to this country from France by M. Mallet. These balloons, which were constructed especially with a view to being used in naval operations, are now the property of the government, and will be sent to Admiral Sampson for use in the attack on Porto Rico.

M. Mallet and A. Varicle, under whose direction the balloons were hurriedly made in France, have been working on them at Governor's island for the last ten days. They are not quite ready for use, and will be sent South in a special car, so that the work of finishing them for use can be done en route.

A WAR REVENUE BILL

Futile Attempts to Amend the Bond Provision.

PASSED BY THE SENATE.

Ten Million Dollars a Year Expected to Be Raised upon Tea Alone—Taxon Patent Articles and Adulterated Flour—Stamp Tax of One Cent on Every Palace Car Seat or Berth—The Vote in Detail and by Parties.

Washington, D. C., June 6.—With no evidence of excitement and without incident worthy of special note, but with manifestations of deep interest, the war revenue measure was passed by the Senate Saturday evening at 7.05 o'clock. The bill was under consideration eight hours.

A score or more of attempts were made to amend it, but in only three or four instances were the attempts successful. Particular effort was made to amend the bond provision of the measure, but it was futile in every instance.

The most notable amendment made to the measure was that offered by Mr. Tillman, Democrat of South Carolina, placing a duty of ten cents a pound States. The amendment created no deon all tea imported into the United bate, and was adopted by a vote of 38 to 32.

It is calculated by the Senate experts that the duty, if it be finally enacted into law, will raise at least $10,000,000 a year, and probably more.

An amendment offered by Mr. Chilton, Democrat of Texas, a member of the finance committee, provides for a tax, graduated according to price, upon all articles sold under a patent right, trade mark or name, not open to general use, and which are not otherwise taxed by the bill.

Through an amendment offered by Mr. Lindsay, Democrat of Kentucky, the Senate decided not to place a stamp tax upon bundles of newspapers wholly or partly printed, which weigh less than 100 pounds.

A tax of four cents a barrel was placed on adulterated flour and a stamp tax of one cent on every ticket entitling the holder to a seat in a palace or parlor car or berth in a sleeping car, the company selling the seat or berth being required to affix the stamp. On passage of the measure every Republican voted in the affirmative.

The measure was then reported to the Senate from the committee of the whole and the amendments which had been agreed to adopted.

Bond Provisions

Mr. Jones, Democrat of Arkansas, proposed to amend the bond provision of the bill by striking out the words "after ten years from the date of their issue," thus making the redemption of the bonds optional with the government within twenty years.

The amendment was defeated, 31 to 42.

An effort was made by Mr. Jones of Arkansas to make the bonds payable at any time after three years at the option of the government, but that too, was defeated, 31 to 42.

Mr. Cannon of Utah moved that the clause of the bond provision which appropriated one-half of 1 per cent. of the amount of bonds provided for to pay the expenses of preparing, advertising, issuing and disposing of them be stricken out. He maintained that an appropriation was unnecessary.

Mr. Allison accepted the amendment on behalf of the committee and it was agreed to.

Mr. Butler, Populist of North Carolina, offered the proposition to establish a postal saving system in lieu of the bond provision of the bill. The amendment was rejected without a division.

In lieu of the bond provision Mr. Stewart offered a provision for the issue of treasury notes to the amount of $400,000,000, receivable for government dues.

On motion of Mr. Allen, Populist of Nebraska, the amendment was laid on the table, 54 to 18.

Mr. Turpie, Democrat of Indiana, proposed as a substitute for the bond provision a proposition to issue $150,000,000 of treasury notes of denominations of $5, $10, $20 and $50, or multiples thereof, the notes to be redeemable in one year and payable in three years from date of issue, to bear 2 per cent. interest, to be good for public dues and to be used by the government in payment of war expenses. The amendment was rejected, 28 to 45. Several minor amendments were offered and rejected. As finally completed, the bill was placed upon its passage. It was passed by a vote of 48 to 28. The detailed vote was as follows:

The Detailed Vote.

Yeas—Aldrich, Allison, Baker, Burrows, Caffery, Carter, Chandler, Clark, Davis, Deboe, Elkins, Fairbanks, Foraker, Frye, Gallinger, Gear, Gorman, Hale, Hanna, Hansbrough, Hawley, Hoar, Kyle, Lindsay, Lodge, McBride, McEnery, McMillan, Mantle, Mason, Mitchell, Morrill, Murphy, Nelson, Perkins, Platt of Connecticut, Platt of New York, Pritchard, Sewell, Shoup Spooner, Thurston, Turpie, Warren, Wellington, Wetmore, Wilson, Wolcott —48.

Nays—Allen, Bacon, Bate, Berry, Butler, Cannon, Chilton, Clay, Cockrell, Daniel, Harris, Heitfeld, Jones of Arkansas, Jones of Nevada, McLaurin, Mallory, Martin, Mooney, Pasco, Pettigrew, Pettus, Rawlins, Roach, Stewart, Sullivan, Tillman, Turley, White —28.

By parties the vote in favor of the measure was as follows: Republicans 39, Democrats 7, Populist 1, and Silver Republican 1. Against the bill: Democrats 20, Populists 7, Silver Republicans 1.

The Democrats who voted for the bill were Messrs. Caffery, Gorman, Lindsay, McEnery, Mitchell, Murphy and Turpie. The Populist was Mr. Kyle, and the Silver Republican Mr. Mantle.

Mr. Allison moved that the Senate insist upon its amendments and that conferrees be appointed. The motion was agreed to and Messrs. Allison, Aldrich and Jones of Arkansas were named as conferrees.

Russian Women's Struggle.

If a search were made for the most intellectual and forceful women of civilization today, it is by no means certain they would be found in America. It is quite possible they would be Russians. In the United States the highest education a human being can receive is in one university or another open to women. If a state university or school for higher learning in one locality shuts its doors churlishly against ladies, they have only to step across the border to a sister state, there to be welcomed in the lecture rooms of whatever course of instruction they elect, whether law, medicine or theology. The American woman has so many privileges that she does not value them as she would if she considered how many of her sisters, even in so called civilized nations, are deprived of them.

Russian women have had to struggle desperately for that higher education which the American lady may have by simply taking it. For 30 years the brilliant and gifted women of the empire of the north have been making the fight for a right to university education. Their fight is against the Russian government. Occasionally the women are ahead. Then the government lays its iron hand on them and crushes the splendid hope out of their souls. The women students had it the best in 1886, when there were courses in four universities open to them besides a medical academy. Then the government, like any despotism without a parliament, became alarmed and at one stroke closed every one of these courses. Russia knows well that the thing most to be feared by a despotism is education, especially education of the women.

It is to be remembered that in Russia no law or enactment by any legislative body is necessary for anything. A simple arbitrary order from a cabinet minister, and the thing is done. So soon as the Russian ladies began to throng in numbers to the schools and show by their brilliant attainments the activity of a noble order of intellect the Russian minister of education, who ought to be called the minister of ignorance instead, swooped down upon them and abolished the university courses for women. Then began a regular exodus of high bred and brilliant Russian ladies from their own country. To France they went and to America, but mostly to Switzerland, to get the learning denied them at home. Finding that, iron despotism though it was, it could not hold the women in ignorance, the Russian government in 1889 granted in a cramped and crippled way the reopening of the universities to the sex. The women will win yet.

Horse Traders Growing Virtuous.

Devout souls not a few tell us they see in the spiritual sky of today signs that the millennium which Christians have prayed for and believed in so many centuries is near at hand. If so, one sign of it surely must be that horse dealers are growing honest. The National Stockman and Farmer, commenting on the fact that a Boston horse trader was lately sentenced to a year's imprisonment for swindling, declares that the day of the horse shark and bunko man is over. The Boston dealer who was shown to have cheated his customer was sent to the penitentiary just like any other thief and swindler.

It is a fact that the snide horse auctions that for so many years disgraced our large cities are disappearing. In their place are sale stables presided over by men of honor, men with sense enough to know that the best way to get money is to give fair value in your sales.

The improvement in common honesty among horse dealers is a result of the change in the character of the stock bought and sold. The customer who patronizes the city sale stable is now the rich American who buys horses for pleasure. He will have the best. The horse dealers do not dare to cheat him. This demand for fine carriage and saddle horses has brought up the price for such fine stock. Dealers now take pride and pleasure in furnishing the best type of horseflesh, perfectly trained and without blemish. They know it pays in the long run and in the short run.

The pocket will ultimately decide on which side the sympathy of the powers of Europe will lie as between Spain and the United States. They upheld Turkey in the war with Greece because they thought Turkey would be more apt than Greece to pay what she owed them. In like manner they will let Spain alone till they see she is determined to fight to the bitter end and die in the last ditch. Then they will force her to give up Cuba, perhaps other possessions, just so she may save enough of herself to pay European capitalists the money she has borrowed. No doubt some of them are just aching to unite and go in on the side of Spain and all together give us a whipping. But they know that the moment they should make any move in that direction England would declare at once for us. The war vessels of the United States and Great Britain together could destroy the united navies of the earth, especially as in Asia we should have Japan on our side. It would be the most colossal warfare this earth has ever witnessed, a battle of the giants of the earth.

It seems odd now, but one of Gladstone's first speeches in parliament was in defense of negro slavery in the British West Indies.

ON THE BADGER.

New Jersey Naval Reserve Boys in Active Service.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

On board the U. S. S. Badger, Brooklyn Navy Yard, June 4th—At present we are busy getting things stowed away before our departure. The executive officer telegraphed yesterday that we would leave here tonight but I doubt if we get away before tomorrow or Monday morning. We have everything on board now excepting some ammunition for the large guns and part of the coal, which they are loading now.

We will go to Key West eventually but we may go to Newport first for some ammunition and Norfolk for more coal. We are now provisioned for six months. Our next stop will be at Provincetown, Mass.

The Plainfielders in the crew are all well and hearty and have met with no accidents so far. There were several Plainfield people down this afternoon to say good bye.

Bicycling by Moonlight.

A bicycle party was arranged last evening by a number of the young people of the Seventh-Day Baptist church. The party, fifteen in all met at the church and enjoyed a moonlight spin to Scotch Plains and home by the way of Mountain avenue.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to the Daily Press.)

Dunellen, June 6—Mrs. O. B. Chandler, of Church street, has returned from a pleasant visit with friends at Flemington.

This week George VanNess will start for Denver, Col., to bring Isaac Laing home. Mr. Laing has been in that part of the country for a long time in search of health, but after some consideration it has been thought best that he returned to his home. It cannot be said that his health is improved to any extent.

The contractors expect to start work this week laying the trolley tracks through the borough. The iron poles, rails and ties are expected every day. Charles Coriell has the contract to cart the material.

Next Sunday Children's Day exercises will be held in all of the churches and appropriate exercises will be presented by the members of the Sunday-schools.

Edison Brown resigned his position with Dr. Brakeley last Saturday evening, and he is now employed by the telephone company at Plainfield.

Mrs. George VanNess and Mrs. Isaac Laing, of Church street, have returned from a visit with relatives in Plainfield.

Mrs. John Wherley and family, of Somerville, have returned home after a visit with R. J. Swackhamer and family.

Mrs. Harman and family, of North avenue, who have been visiting relatives at Somerville, have returned home.

Mrs. Johnson, of South avenue, is rapidly growing weaker and much anxiety is felt concerning her recovery.

All of the local pastors occupied their pulpits yesterday and at each church the attendance was large.

G. H. Churchill, of Church street, has recovered from a slight illness and is able to return to work.

Harry Terry and family, of Church street, will spend the month of July at Asbury Park.

The Misses Jemison, of Church street, spent Sunday with out-of-town friends.

Miss Nellie Brown has returned from a visit with friends in Newark.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, June 6.—Next Saturday afternoon will be ladies' day on the bowling green at Christian Schepflin's lawn. The club has met twice this year and it is always customary to have ladies' day two or three times during the season.

Tomorrow evening at Friendship Hall the scholars of the public school will repeat the entertainment given recently at the same place. The proceeds will be used to purchase an encyclopedia for the school.

The members of the lawn tennis club hope to be able to play on their grounds in a short time. The grounds are now being put in good condition.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Scotch Plains, June 6.—At the last meeting of the Board of Freeholders, Mr. Robison moved for a committee of three to build two bridges in Fanwood township at a total cost of $450. The resolution was adopted, and the committee appointed comprises Freeholders Robison, Wahl and Bruchlacher.

Scotch Plains came near having a bad fire in the business portion of the town Saturday morning early, but fortunately it was discovered in time and extinguished without calling out the department. It seems Mrs. Wm. Turton had occasion to go to the barn about 5:30 o'clock to speak to Fred Hoagland, who is in the employ of Mr. Turton. She detected the odor of smoke and with the clerk started on a tour of investigation. The fire was located in a clothes closet, burning fiercely. Fred and Mrs. Turton finally extinguished the flames, but not until every article of clothing in the closet was ruined. Mr. Turton's loss is fully covered by insurance. Mr. Turton himself was in Newark at the time, having started very early to buy produce. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a lamp, as Mrs. Turton had occasion to go to the closet sometime before. She carried a lighted lamp in her hand, and it is thought the flames must have ignited some of the lighter fabrics and Mrs. Turton closed the door without noticing it.

The Township Committee are laying a covering of gravel on Park avenue from Stansberry corner to the brook. This is a much needed improvement and when packed will make a fine road.

Samuel and Phillip Radin have a contract to build a new house in the Italian colony on the commons.

John Cook has finished shipping a large contract of 4,000 tons of crushed stone for the town of Seabright.

Mrs. Charles N. Flanders' boarding house is rapidly filling with summer boarders.

Rev. J. S. Braker has returned from a visit with friends in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Wm. R. Buckley is spending a few days with friends in Montclair.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, June 6th—The annual piano recital of the pupils of Miss Ferris was given Friday evening in the Methodist church. About 350 people were present and the programme was carried out in a clever manner. Those who took part were: Misses Lucy Baker, Nellie Horan, Annie Affleck, Nina Baker, Louise Seares, Dorothy Knight, Nola Hoffman, Lillian Davis, Hattie Pearsall, Mary Fink, Lucy Fitch, Miss Ferris, Miss Huffman, Ethel Pearsall, Mabel Hurst, Natalie Brainerd, Miss O'Blenis, and Masters Herbert Knight, Hubert Walworth and Chester Pearsall.

Mrs. Stutzman, whose husband, John M. Stutzman, is reported to have been drowned at Cape Flattery, while on his way to the gold fields, has no official notice of his death as yet.

A number of Westfielders, members, of the Jr. O. U. A. M., will go to Elizabeth tomorrow evening to take the Oriental degree.

A public meeting will soon be held for the purpose of appointing a committee to look after a Fourth of July celebration.

Tomorrow afternoon the W. C. T. U. will be entertained at the home of Mrs. John L. Clayton, on the Boulevard.

Fireside Council, Royal Arcanum, have decided to give another Ladies' Night Thursday evening, June 23d.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Blauvelt, of North avenue, have been entertaining Mrs. Swarts, of Middletown, N. Y.

The meeting of the Township Committee will hereafter be held Saturday evenings instead of Friday.

The Ladies' Missionary Society of the Baptist church meets Wednesday afternoon in the lecture room.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church holds its monthly meeting Thursday afternoon.

Rev. George A. Francis preached on "Considering Christ" in the Baptist church yesterday morning.

Communion services were held in the Baptist and Congregational churches yesterday.

Miss Terry led the Epworth League meeting in the Methodist church last evening.

Fireside Council, Royal Arcanum, will hold a special meeting this evening.

Miss Ella Whital, of East Second street, went to Philadelphia Saturday afternoon to spend several weeks with relatives.

TO DRINK A DREAM

try Rowley's Soda. A new and perfectly appointed fountain enables us to make even better soda than in the past, though our beverages have always been of rare excellence. The new fountain has unusual ice capacity which insures cold soda. Then, we use the finest fruit juices and plenty of them; our soda is charged just right to be sparkling and refreshing; we are cranks in the matter of purity and cleanliness. You'll need no second urging after trying the soda once.

PLAINFIELD'S BUSIEST STORE

We Sell Goods Cheaper Than All Other Stores.

Your Dollar

Often represents hours of toil. When that dollar is spent, it should command its full buying power. To give it that power is one of the principles of this store. Our public knows this and appreciate the efforts which this store is constantly making to give them a bigger dollar's worth than they can get elswhere. We have made it possible for your dollar to do extra duty on

These Lots.

Bargains in Summer Underwear.

We don't think you ever bought reliable underwear at such prices as these. Changing time now and a good time to buy the summer underwear. We tell of five items that are priced at half value.

Ladies' ribbed vests.....5c
Ladies' lisle vest.....13c, 2 for 25c
Ladies' colored lisle vests.....18c
Ladies' ribbed lisle combination suits made to sell for 75c, our price.....59c
A case of children's balbriggan shirts, pants and knee drawers in all sizes.....19c each, value 35c

A Flyer in Ladies' Hose.

We place on sale today one hundred dozen ladies' high spliced, double sole hose for ladies, Hermsdorf dye, 14c pr. No store can match this under 25c.

Shirt Waists.

Never such a season for shirt waist selling. You can afford to pick freely from these lots of cool, fine waists. There will be no more when these are gone. Over one thousand of them are entire manufacturers stock, who wanted cash, and he got it, but only half what the waists cost him.

69c for fine lawn and cambric waists that were made to sell for.....$1
89c for waists that cost.....$1.50
Made of imported organdies and dimities.

Men's Furnishings.

Just a word with you, sir. You may or may not know that we have the most representative stock of men's fixings, but such is the fact, and here you buy them at dry goods store profits. Thus:

Men's fine balbriggan shirts and drawers.....25c
Men's extra fine balbriggan shirts and drawers.... 39c, 50c quality
Men's medium weight natural wool shirts and drawers.....39c
Men's fine cambric shirts, the dollar kind.....79c
Men's fine black half hose, 2 pairs for.....25c
Men's bicycle hose, belts and caps.

Ribbons.

We have bought a manufacturer's stock of short lengths of fine fancy ribbon from 2 to 6 inches wide. Value from 30 to 40c the yard; all go for 19c.

Store Notes.

Some exclusive styles in neckwear for ladies have just arrived. In one of the front show cases is a beautiful assortment of new shirt waist sets, belt pins, stick pins, etc. In another case are some pretty styles in new parasols. A first pick here is worth something. Fifty styles of sheer printed organdies, lawns and dimities. The price argument should make you a buyer. You would price them at 20c, you buy them at 12c while they last. On one of the front counters is a lot of fine India linens and jaconettes, short lengths, value from 20 to 25c. You buy them at 10 and 12c.

While in the store visit the carpet, rug and matting department. We are naming low prices on certain lots of rugs and mattings that will be of interest to you.

THEIR ONLY CRIME.

Death of Two Boys for Shouting "Cuba Libre."

Mr. Stephen Bonsal, in his "The Real Condition of Cuba To-day," describes the execution of two little Cuban boys, whose only sin had been that they always shouted "Long Live Free Cuba." An old sergeant tells him the story. They had been kept imprisoned but "they were very much pleased when the lieutenant said they would die together; he would not separate them. Then the oldest lost his courage a little, whispered imploringly to the captain, and we thought he was going to give way, poor little worm, and I would not have blamed him. He should have been at home with his mother, curled up in her lap. But then the captain answered, loud and sharp, and we knew he had not been wavering. The captain said: 'What you ask is impossible. I cannot have your arms unbound. I must obey orders, and you must be shot just as you are, and like all other prisoners, sentenced to death for rebellion' Then the little chap, who was not a year older than his brother, blew out his chest like the little game cock he was, and said: 'I only asked because Carlito is so young; because I wanted to put my arms about him when you fired to save him all I could when the bullets came; but Carlito is a Cuban; he will be brave.' Then the sergeant made them kneel down, three feet apart, on the ground, with their backs to the firing platoon. It was hardly a second. The file was drawn up, and the lieutenant cried, 'Apuntar!' (aim). But, you know, these little fellows had edged toward each other, working on their knees hard, and were kneeling shoulder touching shoulder, and with cheek to cheek. Then the volley came, and the bullets lifted the poor little feather-weights, that they were, off the ground and blew them against the wall. You know, paisano, I have not been at all easy in my mind about the rights of these things which I see, and sometimes I think that you and I, who sit here and see these things done without trying to stop them, are sin verguenzas (without shame) like all the rest—no better and no worse."

VARIOUS KINDS OF DRUG HABITS.

Many Who Wouldn't Drink Alcoholic Stimulants Addicted to Herbs.

Since many kinds of medicine began to be put into tablet form it is much easier to fall into the habit of giving yourself continuous treatment. The soda mint habit is the most common of all. You will find men nowadays who buy their tablets in quantities, and crave them as the cigarette smoker craves a smoke. The strong peppermint tablet is also in great demand. Then there are cloves and sharp stinging "breath sweeteners"—all intended to calm a disordered stomach or have a biting and warming effect.

A druggist told of one customer who maintained that he would die of dyspepsia were it not for the constant use of peppermint chewing gum. Others will have nothing but the spruce gum and the old-fashioned "rubber" gum.

Men and women who would not take an alcoholic stimulant under any circumstances keep their small pockets stuffed with roots and herbs. The calamus root or the "sweet flag" is the favorite nibble with the herb victims, although the lovage root is more stimulating.

There is a gentian habit and a ginseng habit. It often happens that some astringent root or herb is used as a substitute for tobacco, with the result that the tobacco habit is cured but is succeeded by a craving for the cure. —Chicago Record.

A Boon to Duck Hunters.

It is fortunate that the comments of many sportsmen while attempting to untangle a set of decoy ducks and lines with anchors made from old doorknobs, railroad spikes, chunks of lead and miscellaneous scrapiron, in the teeth of a brisk, icy breeze, are carried away on the wings of the wind. The experience, as all duck hunters can tell, is to the last degree exasperating. A new method of anchoring decoys has been devised, which its inventor claims is destined to be a great moral influence. When this anchor is used the lines can not become entangled, and the setting of decoys is accomplished as rapidly as a sportsman can pick them up from his boat and throw them to the desired position. Another advantage is that when after a day's sport the shooter starts to pick up his decoys he finds the anchors unfouled with weeds. These anchors are made from a single piece of cast-iron of an elliptical shape, open wide enough at the broad end to drop easily over the head of the decoy after winding the anchor line about its body.

Theory About Trees and Tides.

A very curious theory lately revived is that the sap of a living tree ebbs and flows in some way in sympathy with the tides of the ocean. The idea comes from Italy, where a grower of vines and other fruit trees, who is also a chemist, has been experimenting in this direction. He says that no tree should be lopped or pruned except during the hours of ebb tide. He has taken fourteen years to come to this conclusion, and now always acts upon it. The result is his trees and vines have developed beautiful foliage, bear splendid crops and are quite free from the attacks of the insects which devastate surrounding properties.

A WONDERFUL SIGHT.

Effect of Colored Lights at the Crystal Palace of the Paris Exposition.

A brilliant novelty for the exposition in Paris is said to emanates from M. Zowieski, a well-known architect of the Russian National Theater. It provides for the erection of a crystal building, over which will fall cascades of water from hundreds of fountains or jets. The building will be made entirely of glass, and will rival in beauty of construction and originality of design the famous Crystal Palace of London, England. The Paris palace of glass will be shaped somewhat like the minaret-topped structures that are so much admired in Oriental cities. It will cover an area of six thousand square yards. On each corner will be crystal towers, and in the center will rise a minaret of beautiful and original design that will be an appropriate centrepiece to the fairy palace.

The interior of the crystal structure is to be almost as attractive as the exterior, for in this building will be grouped the most interesting exhibits of the exposition. Since it became known that the managers had accepted the idea for a crystal structure, suggested by M. Zowieski, they have been overwhelmed with applications from would-be exhibitors for places in the glass building, the exhibitors well knowing what a center of attraction the building will be, and appreciating also the fact that a structure of transparent material will be flooded with light in a manner calculated to show off the fine points of the exhibits to perfection.

The managers appreciate this, too, and have decided to concentrate in the crystal building the exhibits that are of such exquisite delicacy that the stronger the light the greater their beauty. Here will be seen the art gems that require no shadow to conceal imperfection, the rare paintings, the curios of the earth and the treasures of the ocean.

But it is the outside of the building that will be the greatest wonder by night and day. Wherever water can be conveyed by a line of piping that does not interfere with the interior or exterior beauty of the building there water will be. Wherever a jet can be added or a fountain made to play without destroying the general harmony of the whole, or overdoing the wonderful watery effect, there the jet and the fountain will be placed. The whole structure of glass will be enveloped in a veil of liquid beauty. From all sides the water will spurt up in rows of jets that spring from the ground and rise over the roof in uniform heights, to fall back on the building in graceful showers of spray. These rows of jets will entirely surround the structure, so that the visitors can pass inside the glass case, and see the rising waters through the crystal framework. Meeting these rising jets will be falling fountains, whose water bursts from the roof in graceful showers, mingling artistically with the jets that rise from the ground. There will be flowering devices formed by the bursting waters, wheels of liquid loveliness, trees of glittering spray, new and novel patterns traced in sparkling drops on the glass background of the palace, and fanciful figures innumerable formed of dashing, leaping, falling, bursting spray, each drop of which obeys the will of the designer, so as to bound and fall in conformity with the plan of the master mind that constructed the set of pipes and nozzles through which the water passes on its way to the air. In the daytime, when the sun strikes the gushing waters, and paints them in rainbow colors, making each drop a crystal gem of constantly changing hue, the water palace will be a sight that, for loveliness, will be hard to surpass.

But how can words describe the appearance of the fairy palace in the night time, when the structure is illuminated by the electric light in all the most beautiful colors imaginable. Inside and out it will be a blaze of splendor. Showers of crystal drops will meet the white, blue, green, red and yellow light of electricity in every direction, miniature geysers will burst from the fountains surrounding the foundations of the building, and cross and criss-cross the dazzling rays, appealing to the senses of both sight and hearing.

The designs will be changed frequently, so that on each day and night of the week there will be a different arrangement of watery patterns. Or, if it is desired, the patterns can be changed at intervals during the day or night. This is made possible by the skill of the designer, who has arranged his plans for the pipework so that by shutting off some of the jets and turning on others, floral formations can be turned into pillars of water, and wreaths of crystal flood into wavy twists and turns and figures.—Baltimore American.

Give or Take.

Father—Tommy, why did you beat neighbor Smith's little boy so shamefully?

Tommy—You told me to.

Father—I told you to! Why, my son, what do you mean?

Tommy—Didn't you tell me the other day it was more blessed to give than to receive?

Father—Yes, but—

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Oldenburg.

Hohenkirchen. Neulich Abends stießen auf der hiesigen Station zwei Personenzüge durch falsche Weichenstellung zusammen. Da das Zugpersonal abgesprungen war, lief der eine Zug, der eben eine Steigung zurückgelegt hatte, mit den Reisenden nach Karolinensiel zurück. Der in diesem Zuge befindliche Kaufmann Mertens aus Jever wurde getödtet und ein Reisender verletzt.

Mecklenburg.

Rostock. Auf dem Gute Netzeband, einer mecklenburgischen Enklave in der Mark Brandenburg, hat eine Feuersbrunst 12 Gebäude, darunter die Schule, eingeäschert.

Braunschweig. Waldeck.

Großherzogthum Hessen.

Bodenheim. Hier starb der ehemalige Bürgermeister von Mainz, Karl Racke.

Mainz. Das Schöffengericht verurtheilte die Ehefrau des Tünchers August Gräf zu Ober-Olm wegen Mißhandlung ihres sechs Jahre alten Kindes zu drei Monaten und den Stiefvater des Kindes wegen der gleichen Handlung zu zwei Monaten Gefängniß. Die Frau wurde sofort verhaftet und das Kind dem Waisenhause zugeführt. Die Mutter hatte gedroht, dem Kinde noch „den Hals abzuschneiden."

Worms. Aus allen Weinbau treibenden Gemeinden laufen zahlreiche Klagen über das starke Auftreten des Heu- und Sauerwurms und des Rebstichlers ein. Die Weinberge stehen sonst recht gut.

Bayern.

München. Wenig Lust am Militärleben zeigte der Gemeine Peter Geiger des 2. Pionier-Bataillons. Nachdem er öfter mit seinen Kameraden Streit angefangen, sein Seitengewehr auf den Boden geworfen, daß es in Stücke sprang, und dienstliche Befehle nicht befolgt hatte, hackte er sich eines Tages beim Holzmachen den Zeigefinger zur Hälfte ab. Diese Selbstverstümmelung muß Geiger mit 1 Jahr 2 Monaten Gefängniß und Versetzung in die zweite Klasse des Soldatenstandes büßen.—Im heurigen Sommer wird die bereits begonnene geognostische Untersuchung des Königreichs Bayern durch das königliche Oberbergamt München fortgesetzt und erstreckt sich auf das nördliche Mittelfranken: die Gegend von Burgbernheim, Windsheim und Neustadt und andere.

Ansbach. Zu der am 12. Juni hier beginnenden Anstellungsprüfung der protestantischen Pfarramts-Kandidaten haben sich 42 junge Geistliche gemeldet.

Fürth. Für den auf etwa 600,000 Mark veranschlagten Neubau eines Stadttheaters leistet die Stadt 200,000 Mark und den Bauplatz. Private haben bis jetzt etwa 240,000 Mark aufgebracht.

Gemünden. Auf der Markung der Gemeinde Langenprozelten finden sich mitten im Walde an der Partensteiner Grenze reiche Schwerspatgruben, die eine Berliner Gesellschaft ausbeutet. Nun legt diese Gesellschaft ein Schienengeleise durch den Wald und das Sindersbachthal an die Staatsstraße Aschaffenburg-Würzburg.

Memmingen. Vom hiesigen Schöffengericht wurde der Malzfabrikant Forster wegen Beleidigung des Stadtmagistrats zu einer Geldstrafe von 300 Mark und zur Tragung sämmtlicher Kosten verurtheilt. Er hatte bei einer Unterredung über die hiesigen Schrannenverhältnisse scharfe Ausdrücke über den Magistrat gebraucht, unter Anderem das Wort Esel.

Regen. In Schloß Au bei Regen zog der Mühlgehilfe Andreas Löffelmann bei einem Streite gegen den Bräumeister der Schloßbrauerei das Messer, worauf dieser dem Angreifer ein Bierfaß an den Kopf warf und zwar so unglücklich, daß die Hirnschale verletzt wurde. Der Zustand des Verletzten läßt das Schlimmste befürchten.

A LITTLE EPISODE.

There was a big crush at Mrs. Sinclair's "at home," and people were making slow progress through the rooms, looking cynical or bored or interested, as the case might be.

For vivid, frank enjoyment, there were few faces to compare with one girlish one—a little flushed, with shining blue eyes, and soft curly brown hair clustering about it.

The girl wanted to know who every one was and all about them; she thought them charming, and regretted that she did not live in London.

"Father hates it so," she said.

"Your father had a long spell of it," said a gentleman at her side. "But"—and he smiled very pleasantly—"we shall very soon have you among us, I hope, for more than a flying visit."

The girl blushed and grew shy, and then uttered an exclamation.

"Who is that?" she asked eagerly. "Look at her, there! That woman with the beautiful face and dark hair."

"That is Miss St. Quentin. She writes, you know. Writes well, too; her new book is an immense success, being neither cheap nor nasty."

"Oh, I've read it," Hilda Carson said, the pink flush deepening in her cheeks. "And I liked it ever so much.

"I think she is a woman nobody could help loving, if they knew her," she continued.

He laughed. Her fresh enthusiasm was amusing, and he rather enjoyed it for a change, but before he could speak again two or three people joined them, and he lost sight of Hilda for a little.

A good many people admired Miss St. Quentin, but very few even dimly guessed that, while writing the stories of others, her own life hid one away in an inner and very sacred chamber.

They said she was "not a bit impressionable," and, for all her beauty, very unlikely to break her own heart or any one else's.

There were just two or three people—of whom Mr. Sinclair was one—who doubted this dictum, and wondered if the delicate coldness of her manner did not hide at least as much of her nature as it revealed.

But even those who had so much discernment did not know—nobody knew—of that summer, eight years ago, when she and Jack Tremain had met in the old Suffolk mansion. Nobody knew of the long, long mornings in the orchard, talking over everything and anything, or sometimes sitting in the silence that is only possible between friends.

Six months ago Major Tremain had come home, but society had seen very little of him so far, though it was eager to lionize him and raved over the deed that gained him that coveted V. C.

Miss St. Quentin had not seen him at all, though she knew he was, for the moment, in town, and scanned the faces in park and street, and party, in the hope she was half ashamed of—that of seeing his.

She was always a centre of attraction and had not been many minutes in Mrs. Sinclair's rooms before she was surrounded with a little crowd. She resigned herself to the inevitable, and was trying to forget her one insistent desire when her hostess came up with a bronzed, dignified man at her side.

"Miss St. Quentin, may I introduce Major Tremain to you?" she said, and then there was a little exclamation of mutual recognition, and ten minutes' ordinary chat, and—that was all.

A man's voice broke in upon her thoughts. He was the same who had been talking to Hilda Carson in the evening, and Miss St. Quentin entertained a very kindly feeling for him.

She made room for him beside her, and they began to talk.

Presently Hilda passed by, looking so sunny and animated that Miss St. Quentin paused in her talk to look at her.

"What a dear little girl!" she said. "Who is she, Mr. Cresswell? I saw you talking to her just now."

"Little Miss Carson," he said, following the little white figure with his eyes. "She is General Carson's only daughter, and a very nice girl. A great admirer of yours, by the way, Miss St. Quentin."

"You must introduce us, by-and-by," Miss St. Quentin said smilingly. "She looks so fresh and nice. I don't think I ever saw her before."

"No; but I suppose she will be more in town after her marriage."

"Oh, is she engaged?"

"Why, yes. Didn't you know? She is engaged to Tremain—Major Tremain. It seems he went to stay with the Carsons, and that it was a case of love at first sight. All the other fellows in his regiment thought him a regular hardened old bachelor, so it has been a good bit talked about."

Miss St. Quentin leaned back and fanned herself slowly.

"You know Tremain, I suppose?" Mr. Cresswell continued, not looking at his companion, as he spoke, but watching Hilda Carson as she stood talking to some one, with her sunny smile.

"Slightly," she said. "I used to know him years ago. He is—or was—very pleasant."

"Oh, yes; he's generally popular. "Why," turning suddenly round. "I'm afraid you're not very well. Can I get you anything?"

"Nothing, thank you. It is only neuralgia," she said quietly. "I am afraid I must go. I am subject to it, and it is very bad to-night."

"I'm awfully sorry!"

He was full of sympathy and eager proffers of assitance, and when he put her into her carriage shook hands with reiterated regrets.

"I hope the pain will be gone in the morning," he said.

But the pain did not pass in the morning.—The Sketch.

NATURE'S CHORUS.

Put yo' ear against de bosom
Dat's a haeabin' all aroun',
Ob de beatin', beatin' beatin'
Ob de music in de groun'.
Shet yo' eyes na' hol' yo' breaflin'
Lay yo' heart on nature's bres'—
Den yo' kep yo' soul a prayin'—
Nature'll tell yo' all de res'.

Heah de rustle, rustle, rustle
Ob de leabes up in de trees;
All dar pickaninny fingers
Beatin' time to ebery breeze.
Yo' carn heah dem whisperin' whisperin
Sof' refrains da flutterin' sing.
Lullabys to baby birdies
Sleepin' 'neath dar mammy's wing.

Den dar's music in de flowers—
An' de perfume' dat's a song.
When de fairies shake dem blossoms—
Little bells da goes ding dong.
Den de waves upon de beaches,
Heah de tinkle ob dar feet,
On de sandin' sho' a-dancin'
To a tune dat's awful sweet.

Heah de cows low cross de medders
Heah de little sheep go "bah."
Heah de "cheep, cheep" ob de chickens
An' de "cluck, cluck" ob dar ma.
In de mo'nin' when de sunrise
Play on all dese organ keys -
Dar'am music dat de spirits
Listen to upon dar knees.

When de storm win's join de chorus—
Dan he strike de heaby bars.
Heah an' yo' carn heah dem, chillun,
Echo way up 'mong de stars.
Dah—ob' ocean do some singin'
Heah him rhythmic billow shocks
Roarin' out he mighty anthems
Ober all de soun'in' rocks.

In de twilight when de silence
Gits all tangled wif de moon,
Den yo' heah de sweetes' hymnin'—
Lak a prayer set to er a tune;
Den yo heart it goes ter singin'
Wif de singin 'arth an' sky,
An' yo' feel yo' soul a clingin'
To dat bootiful melody.

When yo' see a glory flashin',
'Tis God's baton lightnin' shod.
When yo' heah de thunder crashin',
'Tis de bass notes ob dat God.
Ebery tain' - de worl's above us
Sing eternal as da' roll,
From de leastest to de greatest,
- allelujahs ob de soul

What yo' say? De storm ain't music,
Nor de roar ob ocean's waves;
Nor de great dream nor de thunder,
Nor de sighin' ober graves?
Go 'way! We ain't got no discords,
Neider heah nor up above—
Fo' de Massa key creation
Wif he tuni.' fork ob lobe.

LIVE FISH AS A TABLE DELICACY.

It is Sliced Up and Down the Sides and Vinegar Poured in Its Eyes.

The Chinese have a dish which simply described, is no more or less than raw, live fish. Usually it appears to be some species resembling the salmon trout, but on occasions it appears similar to the rock fish. If the Chinese chefs are to be believed, these fish are brought alive from China in tubs, and this statement is in a measure corroborated by the statement of local fishmen, who say the fish are unlike anything found in this country.

It is only the favored few of the white patrons of a California restaurant that have had the opportunity to sample this new dainty. Others that have asked to have it served have been received with that blank expression used by the wily Mongolians to confuse the white barbarians. But the favored ones that have tasted it say it is good, even delicious.

It requires at least a day's notice to obtain the new dainty, for not even the regular Chinese patrons can get it off-hand. Then when the dish is ready to be served the patron is notified to present himself at the restaurant.

As a preliminary, the guest or guests sit down to preliminary dinner of the usual bird's-nest-soup order. Then, when this is cleared away, the servants bring in, with much ceremony a tub of clear salt water. In this the fish is swimming about, alive and lively.

Having presented the tub before the guests, the chief attendant, with a dexterous hand, grasps the fish by the gills and lifts it from the water. Laying it upon a long teakwood board, he takes from another servant a thin, curved steel knife, sharp pointed and as sharp as a razor. Turning the fish so that the back of the head lies between the thumb and forefinger of his left hand he inserts a knife with a quick upward movement under the dorsal fin.

Instantly the fish ceases its struggles, and with another deft stroke the knife is run along its back, laying bare the spine and the ends of the ribs. Turning the fish, first upon one side and then upon the other, the headman makes incisions from the gills clear back to the tail. This done, he bends the head and tail together and with a barbed skewer fastens them together. At this point another servant hands the carver a vial of strong Chinese vinegar.

Decanting the fluid so that a single drop hangs from the lip of he vial he taps it gently so that the single drop falls into the eye of the fish.

A single mighty convulsion immediately seizes it. With one writhing shudder, it turns over on its back, the flesh falling on one side and the entire skeleton of the fish on the other. Then the head servant claps his hands, the servants remove the bones and viscera, and with a few more quick movements of the knife the fish is sliced into convenient portions.

After the quivering flesh has been placed upon plates, the servants pour a thick brown sauce upon it, and, still quivering, the fish is passed to the guests.

Those that have tasted it say that the brown sauce thoroughly disguises the fishy taste and at the same time removes the repugnance that one might feel at eating raw fish. Some of the more ardent admirers of the Chinese cuisine say they can readily understand why the Chinese hold the dish in such reverence, but others less enthusiastic say they can see nothing better in it than underdone cod or half broiled mackerel.

The way of life is narrow, but well paved

A CURE FOR POVERTY

BY PERTHA [illegible]

Once [illegible] there, [illegible] very [illegible] poor man [illegible]; and, when he [illegible] had to go hungry. [illegible] loved him very much.

"Ah," said [illegible] frequently to himself, "how [illegible] I am! If sickness overtakes me, or if work does not come, my poor children will all die of hunger." Oppressed by his thought, he sat down one day by the roadside, his head resting in his hands. A physician of the market-town chanced to pass,—a man charitable as he was rich. He saw the poor man, and, fearing that he was ill, he stopped and said: "What is the matter, my good fellow? You seem to suffer."

Thus encouraged, the unfortunate man confided all his story to the good doctor, who said, "Ah, yes; if one does not kill grief, then grief itself will kill. Come with me and I will give you a remedy."

"Look," said he to the workman, "here is an ingot of gold which my father bequeathed to me. My father was very poor, but in spite of his poverty he saved a sou each day, and at the end of fifty years he had a little fortune. I, too, was very poor when my father died, leaving me this ingot, but by dint of toil and economy I have made my fortune. I have never broken into the ingot, but the thought that it was there gave me courage. Now my future is assured, I no longer fear want and poverty, so I am going to give it to you. I hope that you will not have to make use of it, but that the possession of the little treasure will put your soul at rest."

The poor man accepted the ingot with a thousand thanks, and with a light heart he hastened to his hovel to show it to his wife.

"Now we can sleep without fearing the morrow," said he, "and if I do not find work to-day, my children will not go to bed fasting."

Nevertheless, he decided not to break into the treasure unless it became absolutely necessary, and went to bury it in the cellar before going out again to look for work.

His frank and beaming countenance attracted the attention of a farmer, who at once employed him, and, as he did his best for his employer, he received good wages, and was engaged to return the next day. The earnings of each day were sufficient for the family needs, and his wife, who no longer spent her time weeping, cultivated the little garden, sold her products, and, rivaling the doctor's father, laid aside a sou each day.

From time to time, as work was unsteady, it became necessary to break into the mother's little savings, but the ingot of gold remained untouched in the cellar, for the man had remained resolute and had vowed that only the last extremity would induce him to touch it.

Thus the years passed on; the children grew to manhood, and, following the example of their parents, were happy and industrious. They soon began to gain, and were shortly independent, so that the laborer and his wife became richer day by day, and when they were old they had need of nothing.

One day a poor beggar knocked at the door, and, in reply to their questions, he told them of his many misfortunes. The workman then told in return his own story, and said at last, "I have no need of the ingot of gold. See, I have saved so much that I am beyond want and care. Let me give you this treasure, and I hope that it will bring good luck also to you."

After speaking thus to the beggar, he went to dig up the treasure, and, returning, gave it to the beggar. The latter, who had received a very good education in his youth, examined the ingot and said: "This is not gold, it is brass!"

The wife would not believe it,— rubbed it vigorously to show how brightly it shone, and in doing so perceived that it bore some writing. Neither she nor her husband knew how to read, so they asked the beggar to explain what the letters signified.

The beggar then read as follows:—

: "IT IS LESS PRIVATION :
: THAN FEAR OF THE MOR- :
: ROW WHICH CAUSES THE :
: MISFORTUNES OF THE POOR. :
: GO, THEN, BOLDLY AND :
: WITHOUT FEAR, UPON THE :
: ROAD OF LIFE." :

Wifely Conscience in Arabia.

When an Arab woman is tired of widowhood and desires to marry again, she goes the night before the wedding to her husband's tomb and prays him not to be offended. To make quite sure of his forgiveness she brings with her two large goatskins filled with water and with these she waters the grave that the refreshing liquid may soak down to the defunct husband's bones. Having thus done all she can to propitiate his spirit she goes off with a good courage to start life again as a wife.

GOLF.

Tomorrow evening there will be a meeting of the Park Golf Club. The membership is rapidly filling up.

The competition for the girls' handicap prize will take place on the Hillside Tennis and Golf links tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock. Entries for this event will close this evening. The golf committee must have three scores from each competitor as a basis for handicapping.

Saturday was a busy day on the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club links. Two cups were played for and won, the Chapman cup and the Schoonmaker cup. The first round and semi-finals for the Chapman cup were played Decoration Day morning and afternoon, leaving J. H. P. Wharton and W. Wadsworth to compete in the finals Saturday afternoon. After an exciting afternoon's work the contest was decided and Wadsworth won the cup. Both players showed unexpected nerve and great skill in the two preceding contests, and both were therefore even favorites Saturday. It was decided to play eighteen holes for the cup, which was done, but both players broke even at the end of the eighteenth, so nine more had to be played to finish. It was about 5:30 before the contest was finished, and Wadsworth announced as the winner, after hard playing on both sides. This cup was presented by President Chapman in 1896, and was won Nov. 7th of that year by H. Reeve Stockton. June 10th, 1897, it was won by Henry D. West, and Nov. 20th of the same year again by H. Reeve Stockton. Now W. Wadsworth will hold it until fall. The cup is to be played for twice each year until some one person wins it three times, then such lucky one will own it. Mr. Stockton, it will be seen, needs only to win it once more before claiming it as his property. The names of the successive winners and the dates have been engraved upon the cup. The contest for the Schoonmaker cup was begun and finished Saturday and Mrs. C. Wharton, Jr., was awarded it. Although there were a dozen entries, only nine competed. The scores are as follows:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
Miss Holly	92	25	67
Mrs. J. P. Mason	65	10	55
Miss Reinhart	94	30	64
Miss Margaret Tracy	83	9	74
Miss Mary Tracy	91	22	69
Miss Lizzie VanBoskerck	71	8	63
Miss Maud VanBoskerck	62	0	62
Mrs. C. Wharton, Jr.	78	25	53
Miss Whiton	84	10	74

Several played for points for the Mrs. Charles J. Fisk cup. Their results are as follows:

	Gross.	Handicap.	Net.
H. W. Beebe	100	16	84
A. G. Henderson	118	18	100
P. W. Kimball	108	18	90
W. B. Richards	98	5	93
O. Saugstad	111	18	93
H. C. Tracy	111	18	93
C. Wharton, Jr.	115	18	97
O. W. Fisk	100	5	95
Harvey Fisk	117	18	99

The tea was given Saturday by Mrs. W. T. Kaufman, assisted by Mrs. H. Reeve Stockton, Miss Dumont and Miss Cooley.

AROUND THE BASES.

The Y. M. C. A. baseball nine played the High School Second team Saturday afternoon on the LaGrande avenue grounds, and defeated them by a score of 25 to 41. Carman and Clarence Sutphen were the battery for the Y. M. C. A. and Egan and Jose for the High School.

The athletic inclined members of the Bachelors Club again distinguished themselves Saturday afternoon by defeating the nine from the Leal's school by a score of 23 to 10. At no time were the school boys in the game. Manager Bowers received the congratulations of the large audience that witnessed the game on the excellent showing that his team made.

The Westfield Club baseball team played a very interesting game with the team from the Elizabeth A. C. Saturday afternoon on the Clark street grounds. About three hundred people were present to see the home team win by a score of 23 to 11, but it was not no credit to the Westfielders as the visitors didn't seem to know the first thing about playing ball. Squires, of Plainfield, pitched for Westfield, and Cox, of Cranford, for Elizabeth.

A game of base ball was played on the Giraud avenue grounds Saturday afternoon between the Fourth Ward Athletic Club and a team from the Potter Press Works. The score at the end of the ninth inning was 15 to 6 in favor of the Fourth Warders.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Miss M. Callahan, of Richmond street, has purchased an Eldridge wheel.

Harry Burnett, James Taylor and Fred Evert, of Orange, visited Mrs. Sarah Kline, of Chatham street, yesterday. They made the trip on their bicycles.

Edward Garretson, of The Newark Daily Advertiser, accompanied by his friend, Mr. Stewart, also of Newark, rode their wheels to Plainfield yesterday and called on friends.

Among the recent purchasers of Eldridge wheels are Miss Lizzie Arthur, of West Fifth street; Arthur Wyckoff, of West Third street; W. H. Stites, of Whitewood avenue; and Miss VanHorn.

J. Sorenson, of Webster place, who entered the race at Milburn Decoration Day, did remarkably well considering that he is a novice. He had two minutes handicap and there were 110 riders ahead of him at the start. At the finish there were only 29 riders to come in ahead of him.

TO KILL THE EEL GRASS.

Water Drawn Off the South Plainfield Pond for a Few Days.

South Plainfield pond is a pond no longer, all the water having been drawn off. This work was done Saturday night, and yesterday instead of the large lake there was only a thin stream of water flowing through. The pond was drained to kill the eel grass, great quanties of which grow all over it and makes the ice useless. The sun will kill this grass in a few hours when there is no water to cover the roots. The large fish have nearly all gone through to the New Market pond, and this will make fishing fine there for some time.

Appointed Administrators.

Saturday Surrogate Parrot issued letters of administration on the estate of Charlotte Park, deceased, late of this city. Her brother, Meeker Hetfield, of Dunellen, and her legal adviser, Counsellor W. S. Angleman, of this city, were appointed administrators, and gave bond in the sum of $20,000 for the faithful performance of their duties. The estate consists of first-class mortages placed for her by Counsellor Angleman.

A Quiet Wedding.

George Haurand, of Grove street, and Miss Gretchen Schultz, of Montclair, were quietly married last night at the rectory of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church of North Plainfield, by Rev. Father Miller. Otto Keller was best man and Mrs. Joseph Haurand stood up with the bride.

After the ceremony the party went to the new house which the groom had rented and furnished at 225 Grove street where a wedding supper was served. The groom is employed in his brother Henry's cafe on East Front street. The ceremony was witnessed only by the immediate members of the families.

A Home for Church of Redeemer.

As a sufficient amount of money has been received by the members of the Church of the Redeemer, the work of building their new church will probably be started in the course of a month at the corner of Grove street and Prospect avenue. A movement is now on foot among the young people of the church to raise a sufficient amount of money to erect a parish house adjoining the church.

Good Luck Fishing.

Rufus Larew and Benjamin Duvier, of the West End, spent Saturday fishing and came home with a string of cat fish beside four bass weighing 1½ pounds each. Duvier also caught a bass which tipped the scales at 2 pounds, 10 ounces.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Charles A Haynes, of First place, is confined to his home by illness.

Runyon Walker, of Philadelphia, is the guest of friends in Plainfield

Miss Minnie Wilson, of "Tunlaw," is visiting Philadelphia friends.

Mr. Star, of the borough, was the guest of New York friends yesterday.

Mrs. William Pearson, of Vine street, is confined to the house by illness.

Mr. Weinburger, of Somerset street, is spending today with Bound Brook friends.

Mrs. S. T. Wilson, of Crescent avenue, has gone to Caldwell to visit friends.

Mrs. Runyon, of Jersey City, formerly of Plainfield, is in town visiting relatives.

The Misses Ettridge, of Watchung avene, have gone to Sheepshead Bay for the summer.

Miss Katheryn Mitchell, of Philadelphia, is a guest at the home of D. E. Davis, of East Fifth street.

Hewell Hamlin, of Colgate University, was the guest of his friend, Ralph K. Miner, of East Sixth street yesterday.

Saturday Miss Grace Langdon, of New York, will be the guest of Miss Anna Wyckoff, of East Sixth street and Franklin place, for one week.

Miss Marion Hartley and Allan Hartley, of New York, have been spending several days at the home of George P. Mellick, of La Grande avenue.

Rev. Dr. Brown, a former pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, and also of the Stelton Baptist church, assisted at the communion service at the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday morning.

F. H. Ball and family, of the borough, will take their house boat "Summerheim" to the Great South Bay, off the Long Island coast next week where they will spend the summer cruising around the Long Island Sound.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Budd, of Pemberton, are visiting at the home of their nephew, Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, 43 Duer street. They are accompanied by Master Gilbert Collom, a bright little fellow of eleven years, a brother of Mrs. Buchanan.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—A. L. Drake has moved from Orchard place to 335 East Second street.

—Next Sunday morning Children's Day exercises will be held at the First Baptist church.

—A lawn party and fete will be given on the lawn of the Christian church a week from Tuesday.

—Next Sunday is Children's Day in all the Sunday-schools and the day will be celebrated with appropriate exercises.

—The Gold Dust Band of the First Baptist church will meet in the Primary class room Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

—There was no evening service at the First Baptist church last evening owing to the dedicatory service held at the East Third street chapel.

—The last meeting for the season of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will be held next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the lecture room of the church. A full attendance of members is desired.

—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carbone, of North avenue, want The Daily Press to say that it was not their two children whom William Alberts, of the U. S. Express Company, tried to save last week, when he broke a large casting. The children belonged to Mr. Margentino, of Park avenue.

—Last Friday afternoon the members of the Junior Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue church held their last meeting for the season, and as a pleasant closing incident a cycle run was enjoyed Saturday afternoon. There were about twenty-five members in the party.

Trolley Application Tonight.

It is said that the Plainfield Street Railway Company are to introduce an application at tonight's Council meeting for a franchise along East Front street. The property holders have signified their willingness to permit the road to go through, it is said, and there is nothing now standing in the way of the immediate beginning of the work.

Evangelistic Services.

The new chapel on Third street was filled last night and an uplifting service was enjoyed. Evangelist Arthur Crane spoke on "Redemption" and several manifested an interest in their personal salvation. Tonight Mr. Crane will speak to mothers and daughters, but all are invited. Meetings will be held each evening this week at 7:45.

Two Fair Riders Collide.

While riding their wheels on East Front street, this morning, Miss Mabelle Smith, of Westervelt avenue and Miss Evelyn Lewis, of West Seventh street, collided. Both were thrown from their wheels and Miss Smith was injured on her arm and shoulder. She was assisted to her home.

Nathan E. Lewis, of West Eighth street, has returned to Stevens Institue for his final examinations. The Institute closes its regular sessions this week.

REAL BROWNIES IN AMERICA.

Explorer Sullivan Finds a Tribe of Pigmies on the Orinoco River.

Eben J. Sullivan, a South American explorer, claims to have discovered a race of living brownies near the head waters of the Orinoco river in the wilds of Surinam. In describing his find, Mr. Sullivan says:

"The queer child people are about four feet in height. Their skin from head to foot is a brilliant reddish brown, translucent in effect. Their legs are like pipe stems, scarcely the size of a child's arm, while their arms are ridiculously small and thin, and their stomachs are big, out of all proportion to the body, and distended back as well as front.

"I think they number 10,000 to 15,000. They are nomadic, moving over thousands of square miles. It was purely by accident that I came upon some of their roving bands. A traveler might have to search for months in the same region in order to find any of them. All those which I saw were in different parts of Surinam.

"In measuring these little folk I found none over four feet and eight inches, and the women were much shorter. They use the style of headdress so common among African tribes—that of shaping many designs by mixing mud with their hair; both men and women do this. Clothing in their village is worn only by adults, and then seldom more than a cloth over the loins. But they bedeck themselves with many brass and copper ornaments. They have tribal marks that sometimes cover the entire upper body and head. These are made by slits in the skin.

"They live in little houses called massougos, of mud or woven dried grass, entered by crawling on the hands and knees. I went into one and it seemed like a child's playhouse. There were queer little images, idols, fetich gods set up all about. They represented animals mostly and there were many ugly specimens of clay pottery. There were little fetich doctors in clay and many other things of the sort suggesting most depraved, superstitious ideas. They are, I believe, all pagans, though some of them seem to have an idea of a supreme spirit of power."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

HURRAH FOR PRIVATE JONES.

By an Act of Bravery He Saved the Lives of His Comrades.

With his bare hands, Private John M. Jones, of Battery I, regular army, extinguished a fire in a smoldering bag that contained fifty pounds of powder during the time the jubilee salute of twenty-one guns was being fired at Lime Point. It all happened in an instant, but it was one of those brief periods of time that seem an age, and that often make brave men grow gray. The event came about in this way: Lieut. Charles W. Foster, of Battery I, stationed at Lime Point, was detailed to take charge of the firing of the salute from the Marin shore, and with him were Sergt. M. L. Mitchell and Privates Davis, Dunigan, Seigle, Morley, Winters the gunner, and Jones. The squad loaded one of the big 15-inch guns with 50 pounds of black powder. The priming wire was driven down the vent-hole, and the friction primer put in place. At the signal the gunner pulled the string. The big gun was silent. Three times this was repeated, and the lieutenant came to the conclusion that the vent hole had become clogged. He ordered the powder charge, which was sewed up in a woolen bag, to be withdrawn. This was done by screwing a worm, fastened to a primer staff, into the bag and pulling the bag out. This took the combined strength of Privates Davis, Dunigan, Seigle and Morley, for the charge had been rammed home hard.

As the bag of powder dropped to the ground every man turned pale in the expectation of being blown into eternity the next moment. The last primer had set the woolen bag on fire, and in an instant the whole charge would explode. With one bound Private Jones was beside the smoldering bag, and with his bare hands he rolled and smothered the burning wool before it could ignite the powder, and to make sure he plastered some damp earth into the singed edges.

The danger passed, the brave fellow arose, stepped back to his place and touched his cap in salute to his superior officer. His face was white, and beads of perspiration stood out on his forehead, but not with fear. The faces of those he had saved were even whiter, and for a moment no one spoke. Then all broke out in thanks and praise for the noble act that had saved their lives, officers and privates alike.—San Francisco Call.

SPANISH FORTS FALL WHILE MARINES LAND.

Americans Land Under Cover of a Successful Bombardment.

Journal Despatch Claims a Glorious Victory for Sampson at Santiago—Troops Landed—Forts Demolished—Washington Expected a Landing Yesterday—Insurgents Victorious in the Phillipines.

THE LATEST.

Three O'Clock.

SAMPSON'S GREAT VICTORY.

Journal Despatch Says He Has Demolished Forts at Santiago—Troops Landed.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

New York, June 7, 12:29 p m—A special to the Journal declares that Rear Admiral Sampson's fleet has achieved a glorious victory at Santiago de Cuba.

Ten American warships began the bombardment at 7:45 o'clock yesterday morning and continued firing until 11 o'clock. Fifteen hundred shots were fired by the Americans.

Morro Castle and the other fortifications at Santiago were completely demolished by the heavy fire and many of the Spaniards garrisoning them were killed.

The Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes which was anchored in the harbor is reported to have been sunk by the American shells. The other Spanish warships were damaged.

Under cover of the terrific bombardment from the American warships, troops were landed at Daiguire, near Santiago. They were met by a fierce resistance from the Spaniards and a battle ensued.

The Spanish infantry and cavalry who attempted to prevent the landing were routed and driven back on Santiago. Several Spanish generals are reported to have been killed in the engagement.

The Spanish losses are reported to have been very great. No American losses are reported.

SAMPSON SUCCESSFUL.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 7, 11:45 a. m.—No details have yet reached here of the fighting at Santiago yesterday.

Judging from the cablegrams between Blanco, Pando, Cervera and Madrid, Rear Admiral Sampson and his American fleet have achieved a great victory.

They are reported to have inflicted considerable damage to the Spanish warships in the harbor.

The biggest guns on the American fleet were used in yesterday's bombardment, which continued for four hours.

The Spanish reports mention a repulse at Aguadores and a hurried movement of troops from Santiago to the sea coast towns to repel the attacks of the Americans.

WAS EXPECTED TO LAND.

War Department Believes That Marines Were Landed Under Cover of Fleet.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 7, 11:35 a. m—Although nothing official has been announced, it is almost certain that President McKinley has received advices from Rear Admiral Sampson concerning the landing of troops and bombardment of Aguadores and Santiago yesterday.

It is known that the Administration had planned that the American fleet should begin the reduction of the batteries at Santiago at 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

It was also intended to land forces in the neighborhood of Santiago and seize a strong position from whence operations could be begun against the Spanish.

It is believed that the work was instructed to 900 marines who joined the fleet off Santiago on the auxiliary cruiser Resolute.

According to the plans of the War Department the marines were to be landed yesterday, and it is supposed that they were under cover of the fire from the vessels of Sampson's fleet.

SPANIARDS FORCED BACK.

Insurgents Gradually Closing in About Manila Amid Fierce Fighting.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Hong Kong, June 7, 12:54 p. m—The latest advices from Manila say that fierce fighting is now in progress between the Spaniards and the insurgents.

A number of lively engagements occurred from May 29th to June 2d. And although the Spaniards were worsted at every point, they still remain confident of their ultimate victory over the combined forces of the insurgents and Americans.

A fierce fight occurred near Manila on May 13th, in which the Spanish lost 150 killed and a large number wounded. The insurgents finally retired and the Spaniards claim it as a victory.

The Spaniards are fortifying every point about Manila in which they are closely watched by Dewey, who has so far made no attempt to stop them.

There is a steady advance of the insurgent troops all along the coast in which they are supported by the American gunboat Petrel.

The insurgents have gradually forced the Spaniards to retreat towards Manila, where they are now being penned in.

The Spanish outposts were reinforced by 4,000 troops, but on May 31st they were forced back along the whole line. Fierce fighting followed, in which 1,000 Spaniards are reported to have been killed.

SPAIN'S PERIL.

Ex-Minister Moret Tells of Hopeless Muddle of State Affairs.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

London, June 7, 1:30 p. m—The Madrid correspondent of the London Post interviewed Moret, ex-secretary of the colonies, this morning.

Moret said that the government of Spain does not know where it is going. Nobody forsees the outcome of the present situation which is far graver than is openly confessed.

The ship of State, he said, is drifting on and the Cabinet cannot steer it. The confusion is complete. Were the TROLLEY ASKS TO GO EAST IN THE CITY.

Long Delayed Application Finally Appears in the Council.

DAY FOR HEARING TO BE SET

SITE FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT HOUSE CHOSEN IN THE WEST END.

Land on West Fourth Street, Opposite Darrow Street, Bought From E. M. French for the Purpose—Cost of Building and Site Will be $5,000—Mayor Fisk Wants to Make the Position of Policeman Secure From Political Influence—Ordinance Introduced Authorizing Electric Wires Put Under Ground.

The city fathers spent much time last evening in transacting business of more or less importance. There were many new measures and ordinances introduced. Some matters were laid over until next Monday evening when the Council meets again, while other matters went through in a routine manner. All of the members except Mr. Moffett were present. Progress was made regarding the location of a new firehouse in the West End, while the effort to give the city blue coats life tenure was laid over for one week. Nothing was done regarding the collectorship, as was expected, but the matter will probably come up at the next meeting, when it is believed that Collector Bird will tender his resignation to the Council. As soon as he does James A. Martin will be appointed to the place. Other business transacted will be found in the report as follows:

After Mrs. Rosetta Caspar, in a communication, asked the Council to transfer the hotel license, recently held by her late husband, to herself, the regular order of business was suspended, and bids for the construction of storm sewers in the city were received. The only bidder was Patsy Christmas, and it was referred to the street committee. The regular order of business was then resumed, when an application from the Plainfield Street Railway, for an extension of the tracks, was received.

The routes asked for include a direct line through East Second street to Scotch Plains, and another line from the corner of East Fifth street and and Richmond street to the corner of Richmond and East Second streets. This latter line is asked for in case at some future time the company want to run a line out to Hillside cemetery. Mr. Adlemann says that the company has two-thirds of the consents along the line.

President Baker referred the matter to the street and sewer committee, but Mr. Hetfield desired that it should go into the hands of the laws and ordinance committee, as it will be necessary for a suitable ordinance to be drafted. Mr. Hetfield finally waived his claim and concurred in having the matter go to the street committee.

Mr. Barrows offered a motion that an evening be set for a public hearing on the trolley matter, and that the time be advertised as prescribed by law.

Residents on East Front street asked for four electric lights between Leland avenue and Terrill road. A long petition was received from property owners on Park avenue asking Council to take steps toward repaving Park avenue with asphalt pavement. Mr. Barrows stated that the matter would be attended to at the proper time, when all wires are placed underground.

The Plainfield Electric Light Company and the Plainfield Water Supply Company reported to the Council the location of electric lights and fire hydrants as ordered by the Council. They are now 268 fire hydrants in the city.

Mayor Fisk appointed Michael McCarty and John Keller special police, and they were confirmed by the Council.

The Board of Engineers recommended that E. P. Thorn, of Gazelle Engine Company, be placed on the exempt list, and the recommendation was adopted.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported the granting of fifteen permits during the past month, and Street Commissioner Gavett reported the granting of twenty-three sewer permits during the same time.

Mr. Van Herwerden, of the finance committee, moved that in anticipation of the collection of taxes, the sum of $20,000 for the funeral fund, and $3,000 for the fire and poor fund, be borrowed.

Mr. Barrows stated that the work of repairing West Fourth street was

A BURGLARY PREVENTED

OFFICER WATSON SURPRISED TWO MEN IN A BLACKSMITH SHOP.

Probably Planning to Steal Tools With Which to Enter a Dwelling House or Store and Secure Valuable Booty.

Officer Watson surprised two men in Wm. McCready's blacksmith shop at Clinton avenue and South Second street last night about 1 o'clock. The men heard the officer coming, and while he was a hundred yards away ran so fast that he could not follow them or even see what kind of looking objects they were.

It was afterward discovered that the men had gained an entrance through one of the windows, which they had pried open. When they got inside they opened the door, and must have just entered it as they heard the approaching footsteps of Watson, for nothing was taken. It is thought the thieves were after some tools with which to break into a dwelling house near by, as that is one of their old tricks. The timely approach of the policeman probably prevented two burglaries.

A HISTORIC REL'C.

A Section of the Cable Cut at Santiago Now on Exhibition.

There is on exhibition in the front window of the Daily Press office a relic of the present war that has attracted much attention. It is a section of the sub-marine cable that formerly connected Santiago de Cuba and Jamica but which was, on May 18, 1898, severed by a blow from an axe in the hands of Lieutenant T. G. Seagrave, chief officer of the United States auxiliary cruiser St. Louis.

The story of the cutting of the cable was read by many thousands all over the country. The cable was grappled for and finally found by a detail from the St. Louis. A fake cable was first cut and then the mistake was discovered and the right one brought to the surface. The Spanish batteries opened on the small boat that held the cable cutters. The cable was cut despite the hot fire and a large section taken on board the St. Louis.

The cable thus captured, was divived into sections and to Lieutenant Seagrave fell the honor of possessing the end that he cut under fire. On arriving in New York, Lieutenant Seagrave presented the valuable curio to his friends, Mr. and Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, this city.

Through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, The Press is permitted to exhibit this interesting piece of cable, one end of which plainly shows the marks of the axe yielded by the plucky naval officer.

MORE GOLF PLAYERS.

Board of Directors of Hillside Club Elect New Members.

At a meeting of the directors of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club last night, the following were elected into active membership: Sinclair Stewart, Jr., Miss Julia Bodman, William C. Kinnsy, John B. Drayton, James R. Blake, J. Whitney Baker, Irving W. Clark and John Dumont.

The following were made associate members: Mrs. John B. Drayton, Miss Elizabeth M. Cone, Miss Isabella M. A. Duncan, Walter C. Scott, Miss Christina B. Scott, Miss Isabella M. Scott, Mrs. E. W. Hedges, Miss Frances S. Smith, Miss Evelyn W. Smith, Miss Helen Harman and Miss Elsie Harman.

Gospel Services Start Well.

The gospel services at Faith chapel, East Third street, last evening, was very largely attended and three persons decided to lead the Christian life. The service was in charge of Rev. Arthur Crane, the evangelist, who gave a soul stirring talk. The music was a feature of the service. These services will continue every evening this week and a cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

Put Over the Term.

The case of Wallace V. Miller against Mrs. H. E. Rider, demand for a broker's commission, which was to have come up on appeal at Elizabeth, was postponed yesterday until next term.

Baptist Delegates.

Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, Mrs. White and Miss Thickstun, of the First Baptist church, went to Newark today to attend the annual meeting of the East New Jersey Baptist Association.

Conferred Red Cross Degree.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17. K. T., met last evening and conferred the Red Cross Degree on one candidate. Four applications for membership were received during the evening.

An Outing in the Woods.

The Shakespearan Club, of this city, will go to Pottersville next Saturday afternoon and enjoy themselves with an outing in the woods. They will leave Plainfield at 1 o'clock.

THREATENED TO SUE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The Claim of the Dudley Engineering Company Refused.

BOARD MEETING LAST NIGHT

THE BOARD DECLARES THAT COMPANY DIDN'T KEEP ITS CONTRACT.

Report of the Medical Inspectors Showed a Remarkable Percentage of Children Whom They Examined Had Not Been Vaccinated—Mr. Probasco and Mr. Lounsbury Appointed Delegates to Attend the National Convention of School Boards—Committees For Judging Contests Appointed—Some Other Business.

The Plainfield Board of Education and the Dudley Engineering Company, of New York, are not of the same mind regarding the amount of a bill. The Dudley Company has threatened to bring suit, but still the Board sticks to its decision in the matter. The Dudley Company put in the heating apparatus in the Lincoln School by contract. By contract they agreed to do certain things in regard to the foot-warmers. When the apparatus was first put in it did not accomplish the ends promised by contract and some alterations were necessary. The payment for the work was consequently delayed and a check protested.

At the May meeting of the Board, a bill came in from the Dudley Company for $79.92. There was a charge of $7.75 for changing the foot warmers, the remainder being for protest fees, extra labor, interest and expenses to and from Plainfield. The Board laughed at the bill and sent it back.

At the June meeting of the Board, held last evening, the Board received a communication from the Dudley Engineering Company, making a final demand for settlement before the bill was placed in the hands of their attorney. Mr. Lounsbury remarked that he did not see how the company could ever collect the bill and thought the whole affair was a bluff to bulldoze the Board. After a discussion, the Board decided not to be bulldozed. If the charge of $7.75, for changing the foot warmers, was approved by the architect, they agreed to pay that charge, but the rest they declared that they would not pay and the clerk was instructed to inform the Dudley Company of their decision.

All the members, except Dr. Jenkins, were present. The report of the collector, showed collections amounting to $518.20, with interest of $91.94, making a total of $610.14.

Superintendent Maxson reported collection tuitions to the amount of $422.70 for the summer term.

The report of the medical inspectors showed that 343 children had been examined during the month of May, of whom 261 were found to be unvaccinated. There were 15 cases of defective vision and 7 cases of defective hearing discovered.

A communication was received from the Department of School Administration of the National Education Association inviting the Board to send delegates to the National convention of School Boards at Washington, July 8-9. President Probasco and Secretary Lounsbury were appointed delegates.

The committees for judging in the prize contests at Commencement time were appointed by the president as follows: English composition, Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, Mrs. Eugene Hatch, Mrs. J. Everitt Kimball. Penmanship, Dr. M. Long, J. Kirtland Myers, Councilman Wm. N. Runyon.

PECULIAR BICYCLE ACCIDENT.

Charles Nightingale's Ankle Caught Between Crank and Frame.

A peculiar accident occurred to Charles Nightingale, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Nightingale, of 40 Sandford avenue, yesterday afternoon, at the corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue. The little fellow was riding his wheel, when in some way his right ankle became fastened between the crank of the wheel and the frame. The pain was intense, but the little fellow bore it patiently. Finally John Vetterlein was sent for and he removed the crank of the wheel.

The boy was then taken into the private office of J. H. Leggett, the druggist, and Dr. T. S. Davis, of Park avenue, was sent for. The latter came and made an examination and treated the injured member. He learned that no bones were broken, but that the leg and ankle were badly bruised. Today the boy is doing exceedingly well.

BURIED BY THE MASONS

FUNERAL OF LATE FREDERIC CASPAR HELD YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Various Societies to Which the Dead Man Belonged Paid a Marked Tribute of Respect—Large Amount of Flowers.

The funeral of the late Frederic Caspar was held yesterday afternoon from the house on East Front street at 2 o'clock and from the German Reformed church at 2:30. The attendance was large and included delegations from all of the local lodges to which Mr. Caspar belonged. The services were in charge of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M. At the house Rev. George Hauser, chaplain of the Masonic Lodge, and pastor of the German Reformed church, offered prayer and made a few remarks consoling the bereaved ones.

After this service the funeral cortege proceeded to the church on Craig place where a service was held. At this service Rev. Mr. Hauser, pastor of the church, and Rev. Mr. Schamberger, of Newark, a retired minister, and personal friend of the deceased, each delivered a sermon in German.

An impressive part of the services was the singing by the singing section of the Gesang and Turn Verein, both at the church and grave. The society attended in a body.

At the grave the Masonic Lodge took charge of the services and interred the dead man with Masonic honors. B. Frank Coriell, past master of the lodge, was in charge. Rev. Mr. Hauser also took part. Martin Heubner spoke a few words for the Gesang and Turn Verein, while for the Independent Gun Club, H. Schoetlin made a few remarks. As a part of the service performed by the Germans the American flag was waved three times over the grave.

The display of floral offerings was especially handsome. From every lodge to which Mr. Caspar belonged a set piece was presented, while C. Fiegenspan, of Newark, also presented a beautiful set piece. There were eleven set pieces in all and a number of smaller bunches of flowers.

Interment was in the North Plainfield cemetery and those who acted as pall-bearers were George Kesselring, J. C. Pope, J. E. Flennery, M. C. Dobbins, Jacob Blimm and C. W. Krausse.

PLAINFIELD'S AUTHOR-ARTIST.

The art-lovers among Plainfield society women had a treat yesterday afternoon in the informal lecture on "American Painters," given by Mrs. Semms Craig, of New York, in the Casino.

Mrs. Semms Craig said, in opening, that America had no cause to be ashamed of the artistic talent she had produced. The speaker mentioned, one after another, a number of our best known artists, telling a little concerning their lives and their finest pictures.

Of the author-artist resident in this city, George Wharton Edwards, Mrs. Semms-Craig made special mention. She said that while Mr. Edwards was best known as an illustrator, every year he produced at least one notable canvas, and many exquisite water colors. She also spoke of his literary work, and said that in both lines he was a man who had something to say, and who said it. Of his work as an artist, she said, "His pictures give one the impression of great delicacy and reserve strenth, and that God-given something called 'instinct'."

Dislocated Knee Cap.

Gertrude, the oldest daughter of Thomas Martin, colored, warden of the city jail, is suffering from a dislocated knee cap as the result of a fall yesterday at Flemington. Gertrude and her father were returning from a visit in Pennsylvania, and in crossing from the Pennsylvania to the Central Railroad depot at Flemington, the girl stumbled over a rock in her path and fell, cutting her knee, as well as dislocating the knee cap. Dr. Long is the attending physician.

Little Girl Has a Party.

Miss Mildred Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Long, of Summit avenue, gave a birthday party yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock in honor of her fifth birthday. The little Miss invited several of her friends, and the hours were passed very pleasantly in games, etc. Refreshments were served.

To Talk to Children.

Dr. Robert Lowry, of Madison avenue, will speak to the children of the Park Avenue Baptist church at the Children's Day exercises there next Sunday morning.

—Several members of the First Baptist and Park Avenue Baptist churches are in attendance at the East New Jersey Baptist Association conference in Newark today.

SAID HE WAS ON HIS JOURNEY TO HEAVEN.

Strange Hallucination of a Demented New York Man.

HAD TRAMPED ALL DAY.

FOUND IN NETHERWOOD AND TAKEN IN CHARGE BY A POLICEMAN.

Proved to be Daniel Crossingham, a Resident of Fifth Avenue, Who Had Slipped Out of His House Early in the Morning and Could Not Explain How He Got to Plainfield—Taken Care of by Brother Masons Until His Son Arrived Late at Night and Took His Demented Father Home.

Patrolman Higgins picked up a demented man wandering around Netherwood last night, and after bringing him to Chief Grant, it was discovered that he was Daniel Crossingham, a New York man. He was able to tell his own and his son's name. The son was communicated with at once, and later in the night came to this city and took his father home.

Crossingham was well-dressed, and looked as though he was in good circumstances. His address is 1,380 Fifth avenue, New York, where he lived with his son. Early yesterday morning, he said, he arose, slipped out of the house, and while no one was around, locked the door and set off on a journey.

The man could not tell which way he had gone, or how he came to be in this city. He had a little money, and must have ridden some part of the distance, although the police say that his shoes looked as if he had walked every step of the way. He was very tired. He made known to the Chief that he was a Free Mason, and he was at once taken to William Sebring and Frank Coriell. They made arrangements with Jacob Blimm, who keeps a hotel, to care for Crossingham for the night.

In the meanwhile the Chief had telephoned to Police Headquarters in New York, and they in turn notified the man's son, Edwin. The latter came to this city at once, and took the father away on the 2:14 train.

Crossingham was a man of about 65 years of age, and made use of some strange expressions when talking to the people he met. To some he said that he was hungry and wanted some of the nice oysters his son used to get at Macey's. To others he said that he was on his way from earth to heaven, where his son had already gone. He was perfectly harmless and a good talker. The son is a bicycle manufacturer in New York.

A BRAVE BROTHER.

Five-Year-Old Saved From Drowning by Nine-Year-Old Lad.

A narrow escape from drowning and a subsequent rescue by a nine-year-old lad was an exciting event over in the borough Sunday afternoon. Frank Haurand, the five year-old son of Joseph Haurand, was playing by the waters of Stony brook, where it is quite deep.

His brother, Henry, who is but nine years old, was playing with him. Suddenly Frank saw something near the water and reached for it. He missed his footing, and fell into the water.

Henry, instead of being frightened and screaming, bravely jumped in the water to the rescue, and by holding on the bank, was able to seize his brother and hold him close to the bank until help arrived in the shape of the child's mother. Neither one was any the worse for the wetting.

Promised to Leave Town.

Two vagrants, who gave their names as William Smith and Thomas Holland, were picked up by Officer Higgins in the Netherwood district last night and locked up in the city jail for safe keeping. One of them was found asleep in one of Manning's wood wagons, and the other had made a soft bed of his coat on the Netherwood station platform. Sentence was suspended in both cases with the condition that they get right out of the city. This they promised to do.

Death of a Baby.

The death of George Erbeck, aged 2 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Erbeck, of 955 Arlington avenue, occurred last evening. The funeral services will be held from the residence tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Interment will be at Hillside Cemetery.

Promises From the Central.

Dr. Murray, secretary of the Board of Health, has received a letter from the Central Railroad officials saying that they will begin work on the Clinton avenue storm sewer at once.

GEN. FRANK'S REPORT.

It Has Reached Washington but Has Not Been Published.

SAID TO FAVOR MONTAUK.

Regarded as Certain That That Site Will Be Selected—Call Will Probably Go to Governor Black To-morrow for Three New Regiments of Infantry—New York's Quota Under New Call—Railroad Officials at Montauk.

Washington, June 7.—The war department has received the report from General Frank in regard to the change of the camp from Hempstead and its location at Montauk Point.

There is little doubt felt by department officials that Montauk has been definitely determined as the site for the big camp to be located near New York. General Corbin is strongly in favor of this place, which is almost enough to insure its acceptance. The many advantages possessed by Montauk Point make it an ideal place for such a rendezvous, and it is confidently expected that in a few days official orders will be issued designating it as the mobilization point for an army corps.

General Corbin says that the department has reached no determination in regard to the movement of the three New York regiments now at Camp Black. The adjutant general of the army has practically completed the appointment of the troops to be raised under the new call for volunteers. New York's quota will be three regiments of infantry, which are to be recruited after the regiments now in the field from the Empire state have been filled up to their maximum strength. It is probable that the call to Governor Black and the other governors will go out today.

The work of recruiting the regiments to their full number will first be completed, and after the colonels of the different regiments report that their forces have been brought up to the standard required by the Hull law, the new regiments will be organized.

As heretofore announced, probably two-thirds of the 75,000 men called for will be used in filling up the companies and regiments now in the field, and it is thought that the balance, which will constitute about one corps, will be ordered to the camp at Montauk Point.

General Howard Carroll was at the war department yesterday and made a strong effort to have the war department assign to New York's quota some artillerymen. His mission was a failure, and although he told General Corbin that he had a full regiment of light artillery, armed and equipped for immediate service, the department would not agree to accept the troops. General Carroll was informed that the rainy season has set in in Cuba and that it will be impossible to operate artillerymen in the soft roads there.

Railroad Officials Visit the Proposed Camp.

Montauk, L. I., June 7.—President William H. Baldwin, Jr., and a party of ten railroad officials made a visit to the proposed military camp near Fort Pond bay, Montauk, Sunday morning. The party arrived at an early hour on a special train, consisting of the company's inspection car and a parlor coach. They were met at Montauk depot and driven in carriages over the hills and rolling pasture lands near the plains where it is expected the army camp will be located.

If the war department decides this week to order troops to Montauk it is understood that the construction of a trolley line connecting Fort Pond bay with Montauk Point, six miles to the east, will be begun at once.

A Promising Outlook.

Chicago, June 7.—There has never been a time when the railroad situation in the West looked more promising for the summer and fall traffic. Crop prospects are generally as good as can be desired, and while there are isolated cases where the small grains have suffered a little damage from too much moisture, conditions on the whole are favorable for the largest wheat crop on record. The acreage is so large that the crop can be reduced 50,000,000 to 75,000,000 bushels from the present estimated yield and still be a record breaker. Prospects for oats, rye and corn are also fine, except for the latter in bottom lands, which are too wet. With present prospects maintained until the end of harvest, there will be more grain in the West to haul to market than the roads have ever known. This, with the improved financial condition of the farmers and of merchants and manufacturers, will give the western and eastern lines all the traffic they can handle, both East and West bound. Merchants say they have never sold as many goods in advance for the fall trade. Interior retailers are more disposed to place orders, and there is a feeling of decided confidence everywhere, both as to prospects for a continued unprecedented distribution of goods at fair profits, and for good earnings for the railways.

Earthquake in Kentucky.

Cincinnati, June 7.—A severe earthquake occurred in northern Kentucky, between 2 and 3 o'clock yesterday morning. At Paris several persons were thrown from their beds. At Maysville the vibration lasted thirty seconds and was very forcible. At Millersburg the people were panic-stricken, and many fled from their homes. At Twing the shock was felt two minutes, spreading terror among the people. At Cynthiana the shock was accompanied by a loud report and at Owingsville meteors have been falling in the daytime.

To Allow Voting in the Field.

Rochester, June 7.—Senator John Raines of Canandaigua has been directed by Governor Black to formulate a bill covering the election laws, modelled from the laws of 1895, but changed to suit the modern law, so that the absent soldiers or sailors of the state may retain their vote.

Oldest New York Mason Dead.

Saratoga, N. Y., June 7.—Levi Hatch, aged 90, is dead at Hartford, Washington county. He was the oldest Mason in the state, and was treasurer of the Herschel Lodge of Hartford for thirty years. He is survived by a widow and five sons.

REWARD FOR LIEUTENANT HOBSON.

The Question of a Proper Recognition of His Services.

Washington, June 7.—The uppermost topic here is Lieutenant Hobson's exploit in the harbor of Santiago. It has added a little to the spice of the old controversy between line and staff in the navy, as Hobson belonged to the staff, but by his individual skill and prowess has placed his name high up among the heroes of the line. The prominence given to Cadet Powell in the enterprise, which will probably win for him some notable tribute from the department, was attributed by many to the desire of the line to save itself from being left out altogether in the distribution of honors, but reference to the records shows that Powell was himself destined to be a member of the staff, being a pupil in the class in naval architecture that Hobson had in training when the war broke out. He was probably selected by Hobson, for his perilous duty because they were so well acquainted with each other.

The question, what reward will be given Hobson? will have to be answered by Congress. That Secretary Long will make a very handsome recommendation in his behalf is unquestionable. Until an exchange of prisoners can be effected, the message of congratulation and thanks which will be sent him from the department must be withheld, as there is no means of communicating with him in the fortress where he is confined. If the exchange is made on a basis of paroles on both sides, Hobson will be bound to abstain from further active participation in the war, but this would not prevent his being detailed to a first rate place at one of the yards, or at the department, with advanced rank and pay.

Chief Engineer Melville's comment on Hobson's exploit was that it showed the stuff our navy is made of, from the commander on the bridge to the engineer in the bowels of the ship.

"It is folly," he said, "to draw distinctions between the branches of the service to which our men belong. Whatever and wherever they may be, all they need is opportunity."

In this case it is stated at the department that there will be no need of a parole for Hobson or his men, as the Spanish are already in our debt for paroled prisoners.

REPORTED PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

Why Spain Would Not Be Likely to Act Through Great Britain.

Washington, June 7.—Secretary Day was asked yesterday what foundation there was for the reports published in some of the morning papers, of peace negotiations opened by Spain through the mediumship of Great Britain.

"I do not know of any," he answered. Later he inquired more particularly in what papers the account of the overtures could be found. "I shall have to read them," he said, "and see whether I cannot get some information on the subject. I certainly have none now."

In the diplomatic circle here it is considered in the last degree unlikely that if such negotiations were attempted at the present stage, Great Britain would be the agent chosen for conducting them. This is not because Spain would not be glad of the aid of a power standing in such friendly relations with the United States, but because the British government would not, for reasons of its own, care to appear in an attitude of intervention. It would be hardly friendly to our government to propose a cessation of warfare while the plans of the administration for bringing Spain to terms by stripping her of more of her colonial possessions were still incomplete.

Again, all of Great Britain's individual interests lie in the direction of remaining our staunch friend as long as jealousy and ill will are manifested towards us by any of the continental nations. The moral effect of her position would be partly lost, of course, if the situation were changed so as to render her friendliness less valuable. While, therefore, she probably would do nothing to prevent the consummation of peace measures if they proceeded from some other source and were entirely welcome to us, it is not believed that she would act as a go-between herself, except at the request of our government.

Hawaiian Question To-Day.

Washington, June 7.—The Hawaiian question is expected to come up in the House to-day, without a rule for its consideration being reported. Advocates of annexation in the Senate express the opinion that when the minority in that body see that the majority will not yield to a filibuster, and that obstruction is likely to prolong the session indefinitely, they will permit a vote to be taken.

They say, however, that after the House has adopted the annexation resolutions, the islands will be annexed, even if a vote on the proposition is prevented in the Senate.

The opinion is expressed by a number of the leaders in Congress that Congress will adjourn for the session within two or three weeks.

Croker's Filly Wins.

London, June 7.—At the first day's racing of the Brighton spring meeting yesterday, Mr. Richard Croker's bay filly Wantage Belle, by Loyalist-Wanda, beat Mr. Barrow's brown gelding London in the race for the Hassocks plate.

This race is of 200 sovereigns, for two-year-olds, the second to receive ten sovereigns out of the plate; entrance one sovereign; distance the two-year-old course (about five furlongs).

Wantage Belle was objected to for crossing the track, but the objection was afterward withdrawn. London stumbled during the race, yet only a head separated the two horses at the finish.

Victories at Manila.

Washington, June 7.—The navy department last evening made public the following bulletin:

"Admiral Dewey reports, under date of Hong Kong, June 6, that the insurgents have been actively engaged in the province of Cavite during the past week.

"They have won several victories, taken prisoners 1,800 men and 50 officers of the Spanish troops, not natives.

"The arsenal at Cavite has been prepared for the occupation of United States troops upon the arrival of the transports."

Many Troops Expected to Move This Week.

The Operations Against Havana Likely to Wait Until Fall—To Improve Conditions at Tampa—Sharp Reports from Gen. Miles.

Washington, D. C., June 7.—In the war department all signs point to the fact that the troops from some southern camp will mostly be off before the end of the week. One serious obstacle to making better time is the lack of hot climate uniforms. Work is being pushed on these as fast as possible, but the quantities thus far furnished are inconsiderable in comparison with the demand.

The destination of the first troops, as has been generally understood, will doubtless be Santiago and Porto Rico. The serious movement against Havana, unless the president has changed his mind within a very few days, will be deferred till fall. It is the desire of the administration to give the preference among the volunteers sent on the first expedition to those regiments which are already full. Those which still need a great deal of recruiting to bring them up to the numerical standard of strength will probably be allowed to wait, other things being equal, till the later operations.

The war department officials are doing everything possible to improve conditions at Tampa and its vicinity. General Miles has made some pretty sharp reports to the department, criticising conditions there. The general represented among other matters of complaint that railroad cars were stalled for a distance of ten miles from Tampa, making it impossible to get at the supplies that are absolutely essential to the embarkation of troops for Cuba. The railroad officials, however, are doing all they can to assist the quartermaster's department in clearing up this confusion, and Secretary Alger yesterday said he was confident that the matters would be straightened out in a day or two.

A Plague of Caterpillars

Montreal, June 7.—Mr. E. Irving of West Templeton reports that the country surrounding that township is suffering from a plague of caterpillars such as he has never known before. For hundreds of acres these insects have totally stripped the cherry, poplar and saillic trees of their leaves and they have now commenced to devastate the apple trees. In previous years the poplar and wild cherry have suffered largely from this pest, but this is the first time that apple trees have been attacked. The insects are in such swarms that it is impossible to step on the road in some places without crushing them, and fences and tops of posts are covered with layers as thick as a man's hand.

The caterpillars are proving a great impediment to railway travel. A dispatch from Toronto says: "Canadian Pacific Railway trainmen in the Owen Sound district were in a state of great consternation on Friday through a phenomenal visitation of millions of caterpillars completely covering the tracks for thirty miles out of Owen Sound. The caterpillars are like oil on the rails, rendering the movement of all trains a matter of the utmost difficulty. A heavy grade from Holland Center to Owen Sound augments the trainmen's difficulty. The freight trains are being split and hauled over the affected portions, while the passenger trainmen are pressing into service two locomotives on each passenger train."

PRIZE SHIPS TO BE SOLD.

Vessels Captured by the United States Will Be Disposed of June 27.

Key West, June 7.—All the prize ships condemned by the United States will be sold here at public auction June 27, with the exception of the Panama, which has been sent North, and possibly the Guido, which has also been sent North.

It is expected that a large number of buyers will be attracted here by the sale. The cargoes, aside from perishable goods, which are being disposed of as fast as possible, will be sold at the same time.

The released steamships Catalina and Miguel Jover will clear from here for their home ports as soon as the necessary bonds are given to protect the government in case the decision of the lower court is reversed by the supreme courts and the captures held to be lawful prizes of war.

Negotiations for the bonds are being made in New Orleans. In the case of the Catalina bond has been fixed at $350,00, and in the case of the Miguel Jover it will be about the same.

Ambulance Ship Arrives.

Brooklyn, June 7.—The navy ambulance ship Solec arrived at the navy yard Sunday afternoon and her cargo of fifty-four wounded and sick sailors from Admiral Sampson's fleet were immediately taken to the Naval Hospital on Flushing avenue, where they will receive the best of medical treatment and be made as comfortable as possible. The wounded included men who were injured at the bombardment of San Juan, others who were hurt at the perilous cable cutting expedition, and others who have contracted diseases while on blockade duty. Several of the men will be crippled for life, and a number are in pretty bad shape. Among the men, however, the prevailing feeling is a wild desire to get well in order to return to the front.

Cadiz Ships Not Ready to Sail.

London, June 7.—A special dispatch received in this city yesterday from Vienna, says:

"According to private advices from Cadiz, the preparation for active service of the Spanish cruiser Charles V, the Pelayo and the auxiliary cruisers Patriota and Rapido, is proceeding slowly and these vessels are not yet nearly ready to proceed to sea."

The Talk of the City.

It's of Interest to Our Readers Because it Refers to Plainfield People.

It's astonishing how good news will spread. From every ward and street we hear of our people talking about the workings of the little conqueror. Merit and honorable methods receive their just reward. So many cases are cropping up that it is next to impossible to investigate them all, but we have taken a few in hand and give them publicity for the benefit of our readers. Our representative obtained the following statement of facts in a personal interview. They are true in every particular and no stronger evidence can be obtained than home endorsement.

Mrs. Margaret Reville, of 732 W. 3rd street, says:—"For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained a box of Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions. It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back had before pained me and was so weak and sore that I dreaded to bend over and when I had a cold or over-exerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but did not get but little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back. My experience with them has been very satisfactory and I do not hesitate to recommend them to anyone suffering from kidney troubles."

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers, price 50c per box. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

THE MONTEREY AND MOHICAN.

These Iron Clads Will Join Dewey in the Philippines.

San Francisco, June 7.—The Mohican is believed to be on her way to join the American fleet in the Philippines and the Monterey sailed last night. The orders to the Mohican are merely to go to Honolulu, but it is believed that sealed orders, which will be opened at that port, direct that she shall proceed to Manila.

The orders for the Mohican to sail for Honolulu came unexpectedly Saturday night. She was then at Mare island, and the marine guard was taken from the Pensacola and transferred to the Mohican, which early Sunday came down and anchored near the Monterey. A few stores and a large quantity of mail were put aboard. At fifteen minutes past 1 o'clock she weighed anchor. As she passed out the Golden Gate the ship of war was saluted by all the steam vessels in the bay.

The coast defence vessel Monterey and the collier Brutus, which will probably get away to-day, will go to Honolulu at a uniform speed of about ten knots an hour. At this rate it will take them nine days to cover the distance.

TO REORGANIZE THE THIRTEENTH.

A Chance to Be Given to the New Organization to Go to the Front.

Albany, June 7.—Governor Black is now believed to be considering seriously the question of reorganizing the Thirteenth regiment of Brooklyn. He was led to think favorably of the matter as the result of a visit made to him at the Capitol yesterday by a delegation of Brooklyn military officials interested in the rehabilitation of the regiment. The delegation included Colonel Robert B. Woodward, ex-adjutant of the Thirteenth regiment; Colonel William Cary Sanger, formerly its major, and General A. L. Barnes, formerly its colonel. Colonel Woodward and his associates afterwards called at the adjutant general's department, where they further discussed the subject which brought them to Albany.

It is not unlikely that Governor Black will soon issue orders reorganizing the Thirteenth regiment on a war basis, and that to it will be given a chance to volunteer and to be sent to the front under the second call for troops.

NEWS FROM KEY WEST

Gen. Calixto Garcia Expected Thereon.

Key West, Fla., June 7.—General Calixto Garcia, second in command of the Cuban army, is expected here soon. It is stated that the object of the visit of Mendes Capote, the Cuban vice president, to Washington, is to request our government to furnish several guns, and that the Cubans be allowed to fly the Cuban flag.

The junta here yesterday received information from Havana that unusual activity prevails in Spanish circles. Captain General Blanco is forcing all Cubans to enlist, and he is now at work on a trocha south of Havana, running up earthworks and masked batteries.

Spain's New Loan.

Paris, June 7.—The Temps yesterday published a dispatch from Madrid which announced that the Spanish minister of finance, Senor Puigcerver, had submitted to the cabinet the arrangements for the new loan which it is understood is to be made without the guarantee of tobacco monopoly and without the assistance of foreign capital.

The Bank of Spain, it is said, will advance, when necessary, in installments, the sum of one billion pesetas, the amount of the loan, and will undertake the foreign expenses of the army and navy. The government, it is added, estimates that it has sufficient resources for several months.

News of Gridley's Death.

Erie, Pa., June 7.—Late Sunday night the family of Captain C. V. Gridley, residing here, were notified by the navy department of the death of the husband and father in Japan, as a result of the battle at Manila. The blow came with telling effect, and the members of the family are prostrated with grief.

Captain Gridley was the son-in-law of Judge G. P. Vincent of this city, and was the father of three children, two daughters and a son. Mrs. Gridley was in the midst of preparations to go to San Francisco to meet her husband and accompany him across the continent to his home.

A Political Battle.

New York, June 7.—War against Governor Black, it is said by friends of Senator Platt, will begin in earnest today. The first battle will be fought at the primary elections. While the Democrats, well under the control of Tammany, will enter the field almost united, the Republican forces will be divided against themselves. It is generally believed that Senator Platt will make an effort to elect anti-Black delegates to the state convention.

At to-day's primary elections 1,342 delegates to the Republican city committee will be elected, 734 of them in New York county; 221 delegates to the New York county committee and about seventy-five delegates to each assembly district convention. On the Democratic side a county committee and assembly district delegates will be elected.

2,000 Fishermen Lost.

Washington, June 7.—Intelligence has just reached here of a terrific storm off the Japanese coast in which several hundred fishing boats were sunk and about 2,000 fishermen drowned.

A telegram from Morioka says that 200 boats, manned by 1,500 men, were sunk and that all on board were drowned.

Information from Omoto is to the effect that seven boats were lost near there, and sixteen boats from Shimakeshi were sunk off the Mi Yaka coast.

The storm was a veritable typhoon, and destroyed everything that was in its path.

A Gift to the Poor of Paris.

Paris, June 7.—Baron Rothschild, on account of his first victory in a race for the Grand Prix de Paris, with Le Roi Soleil, at Longchamps Sunday, has given his winnings, 200,000 francs, to the poor of Paris.

FIGHTING AT SANTIAGO

News of a Heavy Bombardment Received at Cape Haitien.

AMERICAN TROOPS LAND.

Heavy Cannonading All Day—Madrid Reports No Damage Done—American Troops Affect a Landing Near Santiago—Madrid Hears That Sampson Made a Hot Attack on the Forts at Santiago Saturday Night.

Cape Haytien, June 7.—Yesterday morning strong cannonading was heard from the direction of Aguadores, a little east of Morro Castle, which defends the eastern entrance of the harbor of Santiago de Cuba.

A quarter of an hour later the noise of the cannonading greatly increased, the firing evidently coming from guns of the largest calibre.

Advices from Santiago say the bombardment of the fort, the fortifications and the neighboring landings, particularly Aguadores, continues.

A Havana dispatch to the Madrid Imparcial from Santiago de Cuba says that at 10 o'clock on Saturday evening twenty American warships opened a hot attack on Santiago de Cuba, but that the American vessels were so distant that their shots did not reach the forts.

The dispatch adds that seeing the futility of the enemy's cannonade, the Spaniards made no reply to the fire, awaiting the nearer approach of the ships; but the attacking fleet continued to remain in its distant position.

The dispatch further says the bombardment lasted forty-five minutes and was not resumed. On Sunday, it continues, sixteen American warships were still moored at the same place in sight of Santiago de Cuba.

Late dispatches say that the American troops, under protection of Admiral Sampson's guns, have succeeded in effecting a landing east of Santiago harbor. A heavy battle is said to have been raging all day.

DESTROYER TERROR SUNK

Jamaica Heard the Oregon Had Sunk a Spanish Destroyer.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 7.—News has been received here from Port Antonio confirming the report brought there Sunday by a vessel from Santiago de Cuba, saying the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror (Furor?) had been sunk by an American warship.

It appears that the battleship Oregon saw a large craft sneaking close to the shore and heading toward the harbor. She signalled the craft to turn to and the signals were improperly answered, whereupon the Oregon opened fire upon her. A thirteen-inch shell struck the torpedo boat amidships and she sunk with all hands. The vessel is supposed to have been the Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror trying to make her way from Porto Rico into the harbor of Santiago de Cuba to rejoin the fleet of Admiral Cervera, with which she arrived at Fort de France, Island of Martinique. The Terror was compelled to remain at Fort de France owing to her boilers being out of order.

On the other hand, it is believed by some that the torpedo boat destroyer sunk by the Oregon may have been the Furor, of Admiral Cervera's fleet, as the latest reports concerning the Terror seem to show that her boilers were still out of order. In any case it is believed that all on board the torpedo boat destroyer were drowned.

Thomas N. Rooker Dead.

New York, June 7.—Thomas Newberry Rooker, who helped set type for the first issue of the Tribune on April 9, 1841, and was for fifty-six years continuously in the service of the paper, died yesterday from heart disease at his home in Brooklyn.

He was in his eighty-third year and had been ailing for several months.

On April 9, 1897, Mr. Rooker retired from active participation in the management of the Tribune, of which he had been secretary since 1868. He had always been a trustee and he owned one share of the original stock of the Tribune Association issue in 1849.

Urgent Deficiency Bill.

Washington, June 7.—At yesterday's session of the Senate, Mr. Hale, Republican of Maine, reported from the appropriation committee the urgent deficiency bill, and at his request consideration of it was begun immediately. Some minor committee amendments had been made to the bill, one of which provides for a fund of $100,000 for printing and binding. The other amendments were merely verbal changes.

The bill was passed. It appropriates $17,745,000 for the war and navy departments.

Cruiser Columbia Nearly Ready.

Brooklyn, June 7.—Work on the injured cruiser Columbia is progressing rapidly at the navy yard. All the new plates in the vicinity of the hole made by the sunken steamer Foscolia have been placed in position and several men were at work yesterday hammering home the rivets. To all outward appearances the vessel looks as well as ever. Her hull below the water line has been painted a bright green and there is no apparent reason why she should not be floated before the end of the week.

Conference Committee Meets.

Washington, June 7.—By a vote of 137 yeas to 106 nays, the war revenue bill was sent to conference by the House yesterday.

The first conference on the war revenue bill met late in the afternoon.

The matter presents a number of difficult questions, with considerable stubbornness on both sides, but the expectation is that the conference will be over and the bill be in the hands of the president by the close of this week.

Spanish Bonds Advancing.

London, June 7.—The Spanish gold premium is 79. The decline in the premium and the rise in Spanish 4s is difficult to follow in face of the statement of the Bank of Spain showing a further increase of 3,000,000 pesetas in silver and an extra rate issue of 8,000,000 pesetas.

"Probably no single drug is employed in nervous diseases with effects so markedly beneficial as those of cod-liver oil."

These are the words of an eminent medical teacher.

Another says: "The hypophosphites are generally acknowledged as valuable nerve tonics."

Both these remedies are combined in Scott's Emulsion. Therefore, take it for nervousness, neuralgia, sciatica, insomnia and brain exhaustion.

THE HEROES ARE SAFE.

Hobson and His Companions Are Treated Kindly by Cervera.

Port Antonio, June 7.—The heroes of the Merrimac expedition are safe. The Spanish tug Colon steamed out of Santiago harbor yesterday afternoon bearing a flag of truce. Captain Bustamente y Ovideo, chief of staff of Admiral Cervera, boarded the New York and told Admiral Sampson of the adventures of the gallant eight, and complimented him upon having such sailors. He offered to exchange them as soon as possible for Spanish prisoners.

When the Merrimac, coolly handled under a ferocious fire, anchored in the channel as calmly as a pilot would locate a steamer in New York harbor, her crew exploded seven torpedoes ranged along her side, and she sank just where she was wanted.

It was feared on the American fleet that her crew were drownel or slain. The expedition had seemed to mean certain death to the men engaged in it, and everybody thought they had met it, but the heroic Americans, wonderful to tell, survived the leaden hail from machine guns and the volleys of musketry from the soldiers in the forts and along the banks.

They jumped on a life raft they had towed alongside after lighting the fuses of the torpedoes and coolly paddled towards the Spanish flagship, the Cristobal Colon. Hardly had they left the Merrimac when the explosion came. It threw over them a shower of splinters and debris, while around them shells and bullets whistled.

They paddled on until they reached the cruiser's side, where her searchlight revealed them. Fortunately they were not mistaken for a party with hostile intent, and the warship took them prisoners as they came up the side. Admiral Cervera was overcome with surprise and admiration for the brave fellows. He then gallantly gave them a hearty welcome and asked the details of their daring trip under the guns of Morro. He treated them hospitably and asked what he could do for them.

They replied there was nothing then wanted except clean, dry clothes and a chance to get back to their ships.

Admiral Cervera told Captain Ovideo to be sure not to forget their kits when on his mission.

Admiral Sampson, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, descried a little craft which could be seen steaming out of the mouth of the harbor. It looked at first like a torpedo boat, and every ship in the fleet watched her intently. The Spanish flag was flying at her stern, while something not quite distinguishable was fluttering from the foretop As she drew nearer this latter was made out to be a white flag of truce.

The little Vixen, which always remains near in shore nosing around looking for trouble, was the nearest warship. She steamed up to the tug and found her to be the Colon. As Captain Ovideo outranked the commander of the Vixen, no negotiations were possible, so the Vixen escorted the Colon to the New York.

Every jack aboard crowded to the rail as the Colon puffed up to within a hundred yards and a fine looking officer in full Spanish naval uniform, gold lace, sword and all, was seen standing on the quarter deck. The flagship's launch went alongside and brought him to the iron ladder, up which he clambered, saluting the officer of the deck as he set foot on the New York.

There was great excitement on the flagship and the other vessels and much speculation as to the purpose of the visit, and a thousand eyes followed Captain Ovideo as he was escorted aft by an orderly, who informed Admiral Sampson of Captain Ovideo's presence.

The American admiral first thought the Spaniard came to propose terms of surrender.

Captain Ovideo was received with the greatest courtesy and was shown the seat opposite Admiral Sampson. The other officers remained standing.

After an exchange of salutations Captain Ovideo promptly outlined his mission, saying he was happy to inform Admiral Sampson of the safety of the brave Americans and expressed his wish that their captivity be shortened.

Admiral Sampson replied, expressing in polite language his appreciation of Admiral Cervera's courtesy and assuring Captain Ovideo that the exchange would be facilitated.

The Spanish captain then offered to take a change of clothing to the prisoners, which Admiral Sampson ordered immediately prepared for transportation.

During the delay Admiral Sampson and Captain Ovideo conversed pleasantly. Admiral Sampson desired to convey to Admiral Cervera his appreciation of the kind treatment accorded the prisoners.

Spaniards Arrested.

Montreal, June 7.—Lieutenant Carranza and Senor du Bosc were arrested here yesterday by Canadian government officials.

The Hawaiian Islands.

The group of politicians in congress which has worked to prevent the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands is not confined to party lines. These gentlemen seem to be intrenched in a crystallized conviction. Even the flood of light focused on the situation by the lessons of the present war has not changed their views. That Hawaii pleads to us with outstretched hands, so far as all those dominant interests which make for civilization and progress are involved, falls on deaf ears. The possession of a commanding position as a halfway house on the road to the east is denounced as a fallacy, in spite of the immense prospects and responsibilities opening before us.

Yet these pessimists on the Hawaiian problem freely admit that it would be a most dangerous blow to American prestige and advantage to have Hawaii pass into the hands of any other power. They would provide for this by serving the "dog in the manger" warning on foreign ambition that any movement to acquire this tropical paradise would be the signal for instant war. Even they regard it as ours potentially.

War may come like "a thief in the night" even to a peace loving nation. Captain Mahan in his great book, "Sea Power In History," devotes the whole of one of his most powerful chapters to set this ominous fact in dazzling relief. Who, for example, prior to the destruction of the Maine, would have suspected that we were on the verge of a conflict of worldwide consequences? If war should come with a foreign power, Hawaii would be assailed as promptly and fiercely as we struck the Philippines. To put the Sandwich Islands into a position of defense as an entrepot for our eastern commerce, as a great fortified coaling base for our navy and future merchant marine, is only in the spirit of those wise virgins who kept their lamps trimmed and filled, their loins girt. Matthew Arnold's has ceased to be more than a poetic phrase. Nations are no longer isolated even from war by thousands of ocean leagues. We need Hawaii as Hawaii needs us for the benign uses of peace. We need her, if that need, too, should come, for the uses of war.

Deep, unplumbed, estranging sea

American Fiction.

The difficulty of writing the one great American novel is not hard to find. The reason is plain. We are too great, too vast a country for our varied drama and characteristics to be properly represented by any one novelist, however gifted. We have already story writers equal to any living in any country. In the field of short story and sketch writing they are the superiors of any living, with the single exception of Rudyard Kipling. But those who have succeeded have been content to confine their efforts to given localities. Bret Harte long ago gave the world his unrivaled pictures of western mining life. Cable, in his longer stories, describes old creole life in Louisiana and New Orleans. Hamlin Garland and Octave Thanet give us the local coloring and character of the northwestern states. Miss Murfree, Ruth McEnery Stuart and Molly Eliot Seawall have done the same for the south. In New England are Sarah Orne Jewett and Mary Wilkins. They are particularly happy in reproducing the local thought and dialect of their respective sections. Now, however, we wish some of these gifted men and women would write a story whose characters, just for once, spoke good and grammatical English. We think they could do it.

THE "BOTTLE" OF SANTIAGO DE CUBA.

The illustration makes plain the reason for the phrase, "bottled up in Santiago harbor." The entrance to the harbor is very narrow. In places it is only 300 feet wide in times of peace. On a war footing, with mines in position, the passage for vessels is reduced to about 100 feet in width.

Near Alma, Wis., is a herd of curious animals belonging to Huber brothers. Some of them are pure bred buffalo, the brothers having been interested for ten years in an attempt to rear buffalo in captivity. Besides the buffalo, however, there are on the farm a number of crossbred cattle to which have been given the name catalo. The catalo is the result of a cross between the buffalo and the cow. It is believed that from such a cross can be produced animals better suited to life on the great western ranges than the domestic cattle are. The buffalo is hardier than the cow, and while his meat is as good his hide is more useful and valuable than that of the cow, being long and furry. The buffalo stands the rigors of the northwestern winter without shelter by reason of this furry coat, and the expectation is that the crossbred catalo will inherit the woolly coat and the buffalo hardiness of constitution.

Ordinarily in the propulsion of a vessel the fire is built in the furnace. That turns the water in the boiler above into steam, which expands and drives a rod back and forth, and that forces a set of wheels around, and this moves the boat. A curious boat has been recently built, however, in which there is no furnace or boiler at all. The fuel is consumed in the cylinder, and the expansive power of the heat itself moves the machinery.

During the year 1897 the value of Kansas farm products increased $40,000 over 1896. Much of this great increase came from live stock, chiefly beef cattle. Western Kansas is proving the ideal region for grazing.

The government of a city like London, Paris or Greater New York is more complicated and troublesome than that of an ordinary American state.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News, but Just as Interesting.

Just at present a theme of interest for the boys who are members of the Y. M. C. A. is the summer camp at Northfield. This popular resort is coming more and more in favor, and it is likely that a large number of young men and boys from this vicinity will go there this year. The camp is situated in a most beautiful part of New England, and the accommodations are all that can be asked for. The association here is quite anxious to take a large delegation there this season, and any information will be cheerfully furnished at the building, or by the president, Stephen Cahoone.

While the good people who live in cities, where the sight of green grass is a rarity, find much amusement in the visits of "Uncle Rube" and the rest of his family from the country districts, the sedate country folk find equal pleasure in watching a "city chap" when he invades the country and takes in all the sights so unaccustomed to his eyes. The laugh is then on the other side. This is just the season when the first of the summer emigrants bid farewell to the heat and swelter of the city and depart for some farmhouse hidden away among the hills far from the bustle and noise of the city. While many cannot make an extensive trip, the bicycle now permits them to spend their Sundays amid the pleasures of the country side. There were thousands of wheelmen last Sunday who rode out from New York and spent the day in some secluded nook, to gain strength and renewed energy for the week's work. And, although they did not go to church, the communion with Nature, in all her beauty, may have done as much to uplift them in the right path as a long and admonitory address.

Brave, indeed, was the array that marched against the finny inhabitants of New Market pond at an early hour yesterday morning. The bracing air was invigorating and the invading army felt able to capture anything that came in their path. Equipped with all the modern poles, reels and modus operandi as are considered necessary by the up-to-date fisherman, they made a formidable army. Even the great carp at the far end of the pond fell to trembling at the sight.

An ample supply of bait had been provided, enough to supply the whole of Sampson's fleet. The disciples of Izaak Walton prepared for battle, while the fishes gathered for a council of war.

"You see that big tall fellow with the light hair," quoth the elderly catfish, whose children and grandchildren were hurrying by the score to the scene. "I've seen him before. He used to play hockey while the pond was frozen over. They call him Geo. Snediker."

A sleek eel, a veteran of the pond, smiled on the anxious gathering. "That dark-haired city chap," he lazily remarked, "his name's Jack Auton. He's been in swimming at the bend many times."

"Oh," came the shrill voice of a little shiner, "I know the other one That's Garfield Pike. He fell in the pond once and dropped a card and I read it."

Meanwhile the three fishermen opened their campaign with vigor. The veterans of the pond silently filed away to the dark recesses beneath the other bank. Some of the sportive youngsters remained to watch the worms come curling and squirming down through the placid water.

At length a grandchild of the elderly catfish could resist no longer. He bit and was soon expiring on the bank. All through the morning and afternoon the fishermen continued, with barely an interval for lunch. When they departed five small catfish, ranging in length from four and three-hundredths inches to one and nine-tenths inches, constituted their string.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials Address,

A Chance to Get Coffee Free.

The enterprise of the O'Donohue Coffee Company of New York in giving away hundreds of pounds of their "Fifth Avenue" Mocha & Java coffee for advertising purposes is certainly unique. They want to reach the housewife and are sparing neither pains nor money. The demonstrations at Mac Donald's and Dealman's this week were very successful. Our lady friends have one more chance to get a free package of delicious coffee at the stores of Geo W. Rockfellow and F W. Dunn, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. The "Singing Girl" is a great attraction.

IM-
POR-
TANT!

It is important to be in close touch with the headquarters of Fashion, otherwise the new things as they appear in New York are never brought to this section.

We have a standing order with the most reliable houses to send us as soon as received THE LATEST STYLES, therefore we show the new fashionable articles almost as soon as New York.

It is this fact which puts us in the front rank among the fashionable people.

The stamp of correctness in style marks our merchandise.

You Can Depend On Us.

There is not a piece of goods in our store that is not dependable goods in every sense. Not a piece that we do not stand back of and guarantee that it is just as it is represented to be. That it is perfect in style, quality and price. We are not a cheap store in the sense that we sell cheap goods, you'll find plenty of that kind anywhere, but selling the quantities that we do we are able to offer you reliable goods at quite a price saving. And that is where your interest in our store comes in, the more we sell the closer we can make our margins. We want you to feel that you have an interest in our store as well as us. Make it your shopping home, make use of it every way you can. The more you use it the better you will like it and the better it will serve you. Then, again, you are always welcome to come here and look. There is hardly a day passes but sees something new added to our stock. The very newest things are here, and leaving out the price difference, would it not pay you to at least have a look at the goods?

You will find the assortment just as large here as anywhere you go; you'll find the prices less. We think we are showing the handsomest collection of goods we ever had. We believe the way to get people to come to our store is to give them all that's possible in style, quality and quantity for their money—that isn't always done in every store, but it is here. Everything is sold for a small profit, no matter how much the excellence of the article may suggest or justify a different course. It's done that way because it pays best in the long run, and this store is here to stay.

PLAINFIELD'S BUSIEST STORE

We Sell Goods Cheaper Than All Other Stores.

Your Dollar

Often represents hours of toil. When that dollar is spent, it should command its full buying power. To give it that power is one of the principles of this store. Our public knows this and appreciate the efforts which this store is constantly making to give them a bigger dollar's worth than they can get elswhere. We have made it possible for your dollar to do extra duty on

These Lots.

Bargains in Summer Underwear.

We don't think you ever bought reliable underwear at such prices as these. Changing time now and a good time to buy the summer underwear. We tell of five items that are priced at half value.
Ladies' ribbed vests.....5c
Ladies' lisle vest.....13c, 2 for 25c
Ladies' colored lisle vests.....18c
Ladies' ribbed lisle combination suits made to sell for 75c, our price.....50c
A case of children's balbriggan shirts, pants and knee drawers in all sizes.....19c each, value 35c

A Flyer in Ladies' Hose.

We place on sale today one hundred dozen ladies' high spliced, double sole hose for ladies, Hermedorf dye, 14c pr. No store can match this under 25c.

Shirt Waists.

Never such a season for shirt waist selling. You can afford to pick freely from these lots of cool, fine waists. There will be no more when these are gone. Over one thousand of them are entire manufacturers stock, who wanted cash, and he got it, but only half what the waists cost him.
69c for fine lawn and cambric waists that were made to sell for.....$1
89c for waists that cost.....$1.50
Made of imported organdies and dimities.

Men's Furnishings.

Just a word with you, sir. You may or may not know that we have the most representative stock of men's fixings, but such is the fact, and here you buy them at dry goods store profits. Thus:
Men's fine balbriggan shirts and drawers.....25c
Men's extra fine balbriggan shirts and drawers.... 39c, 50c quality
Men's medium weight natural wool shirts and drawers.....39c
Men's fine cambric shirts, the dollar kind.....79c

Men's bicycle hose, belts and caps.

Ribbons.

We have bought a manufacturer's stock of short lengths of fine fancy ribbon from 2 to 6 inches wide. Value from 30 to 40c the yard; all go for 19c.

Store Notes.

Some exclusive styles in neckwear for ladies have just arrived. In one of the front show cases is a beautiful assortment of new shirt waist sets, belt pins, stick pins, etc. In another case are some pretty styles in new parasols. A first pick here is worth something. Fifty styles of sheer printed organdies, lawns and dimities. The price argument should make you a buyer. You would price them at 20c, you buy them at 12c while they last. On one of the front counters is a lot of fine India linens and jaconettes, short lengths, value from 20 to 25c. You buy them at 10 and 12c.
While in the store visit the carpet, rug and matting department. We are naming low prices on certain lots of rugs and mattings that will be of interest to you.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

For the summer tailor-made suit nothing is so jaunty and comfortable as the charming gown of linen or pique. These gowns are, as a rule, made with the short jacket opening over a vest or shirt waist.

Navy blue pique is the material of the gown pictured. It is trimmed with black braid. The braid on the short rounded jacket is put on in a novel manner while the trimming on the sleeves has the effect of being a continuation of the corsage decoration. A pair of graceful revers, faced with white pique ornament the bodice front, while the belt is of braided white pique. The vest of white lawn is worn with a standing collar and black satin four-in-hand tie.

The skirts of summer gowns are made much longer even in wash goods than in former years and consequently have a more graceful appearance. They are usually gored or are made with the popular apron effect. The five gored model is a great favorite and the Spanish flounce is also very often seen. The skirts are made without a lining and are mounted over a slip of silk of fine lawn, the latter being the most sensible and girlish.

Rows of insertion or tiny ruffles make a lovely trimming on wash dresses, while rows of tucks on a fine muslin gown is a decidedly effective way of enhancing its beauty. These tucks are of every width, and can be put on separate or in groups, either horizontal, vertical or diagonal. A dress of this description in course of preparation for a young girl about to graduate beggars description. The finest of sheer muslin is the material used, with trimming of tucks and insertion. Groups of tucks barely a quarter of an inch in width decorate the skirt from the hem nearly to the waist, with rows of fine lace insertion separating each group. The waist, which is a simple round model, gathered at the neck and shoulders, is also tucked in groups, with the insertion employed in the same manner as on the skirt. The sleeves are quite simple with small epaulets of the material over the shoulders, edged with lace. This gown will be worn over a lawn slip and with stock collar and sash of wide white taffeta ribbon will compose a frock which any girl might well envy.

Another dainty dress of white dotted swiss has the wide skirt bordered at the foot with a deep pleated flounce of the material, headed with a tiny ruche. White satin ribbon constitutes the trimming on the waist, which is made quite plain. The shirred sleeves have tiny puffs at the shoulder and are decorated with rosettes of ribbon towards the front.

A gown which will be somewhat out of the order of the general run of white commencement dresses is to be worn by a girl whose family is in deep mourning. The material is fine dimity, with a white ground, crossed and recrossed with black lines. The skirt is perfectly plain in the front, and is outlined on each side with three graduated rows of white insertion which extend around the back of the skirt, which is made with a deep ruffle. The waist has the blouse effect, opening over a vest of pure white muil. The large collar is of fine lace. A handsome black satin sash will encircle the waist and will give quite an air of chic to this original frock.

Many people favor thin wool materials for graduation gowns and there are many lovely varieties to choose from. Nun's veiling, cashmere, white barege and crepon make up very effectively and have the soft clinging effect which is now so much in vogue. Taffeta, China and Japanese silks are always popular, but as these two latter materials come in such narrow widths and as good taffeta is very expensive, they would have to be classed among the expensive gowns.

Shoes and gloves are important accessories in the costuming of a fair graduate. Black patent leather slippers or ties, with black silk stockings are the most appropriate, though many prefer the white slippers and stockings and these are in thorough good taste, when the gown is white also. In gloves white kid or silk should be donned, the latter perhaps being the most comfortable for hot weather.

HOUSE AND HOME.

A new function has arisen for the lady's maid. In addition to her list of virtues—her capacity for hairdressing and her immunity against sea-sickness—she is required in many instances to ride a bicycle. For the "young lady" skimming among the highways and hedges requires a bicycling chaperone, and this want is met by a maid trained in the requirements of the wheel. The luxurious cyclist, furnished with a biking maid, no longer heeds the collapse of her tyre, for to the wheel-maid belongs the labor of the bellows and the blowing thereof.

At the more important house-furnishing shops, or at the furriers', can be had combs which are useful at this time of year in going over expensive furs, to be sure that all moth eggs are out of them. No amount of preventives will avail if the furs carry with them to their cedar chests or tar-paper-lined boxes the embryo of coming moths. It is a simple matter to keep the furs free if they start free, almost any insect-proof box or bag sufficing for the purpose.

A new use has been found for the sunflower. The sticky substance which exudes from it has been made into a covering for bicycle tires. The homely sunflower is rapidly coming to the front as a useful article. Its seeds make excellent food for cattle, its oil is equal to the best linseed oil, and its stalks are a better heat-producing product than coal.

The best way to clean painted walls is to use a large soft sponge. Those known as "coachmen's sponges" can be had at a very low price. They should be wrung out of warm water in which a little soda has been dissolved, and the walls wiped downward, going over a small space at a time, before it is wiped dry again with clean housecloths. Care should be taken to change the water often, as wiping a wall with dirty water leaves streaks.

The popular apple salad has changed, now that the apple season is over, to pine apple salad used, like is precursor, with chopped celery. The mayonnaise for either of these salads is preferably made with cream rather than oil, although a very little oil may be used to start the egg in its creaming process. A few salted nuts—almonds, peanuts, or walnuts—sprinkled over the top add an excellent flavor to the salad.

A woman who has taken an old-fashioned farm-house for the summer finds some of its wall decorations intolerable. To relieve their hideousness through her occupancy of the place, and yet save the expense of permanent redecoration, she has provided herself with large rolls of cheesecloth, and has filled the first days of her stay in her summer home by covering the walls from ceiling to baseboard with this material laid on in pleats.

There are seen again at the stationery counters various vagaries of the paper-makers' art, which shopkeepers at least are trying to make fashionable. A brilliant red of the conspicuous shade known as cerise and the popular burnt orange are two colors, a deep shade of brown being another manifestation in writing-paper. While there is a certain sale for these bizarre novelties, it is still the smooth, heavy cream white or delicately tinted shades that women of refinement use. W.

Apropos of cyclists, a well-known Chinese gentleman in Shanghai has given his eleven-year-old daughter a bicycle, and she has the distinction of being the first real Chinese girl to ride the wheel. This little girl whose feet were originally bound, is to receive a medal from the Taotai of Shanghai for her bravery in breaking the ice for her fellow-country women. What a revolution has been brought in this girl's life—from tottering on painful and deformed feet to flying about on a cycle! She was born in the nick-of-time.

In using lemons, tomatoes, or oranges as shells for the serving of jellies, salads, or fish mayonnaise, they should be thoroughly chilled. This is best accomplished by putting them in the ice-cream freezer. Pack ice and salt around the can and leave it there for an hour before using.

Taffeta waists, covered with heavy cream and black net, either put on as applique or in accordion pleats, are much worn this season.

Silk waists this season are keeping the designers busy, and the result of their labor is seen on all sides. Among the pretty conceits are those with many tucks and finished with a short skirt, which shows a little below the belt.

Orris root, which is used in so many tooth powders, is the root of a certain species of iris which grows in southern Europe. The yellow iris is used in medicine also, and it was this flower which is supposed to have suggested the heraldic device of the fleur-de-lya.

Caps for aged women are more elaborate than ever. A dainty one is of black Chantilly lace, accordion-pleated, with a lavender bow on top. From the back are two streamers formed of rows of black beading, having a lavendar ribbon run through them, and edged with a narrow lace.

A white chip flare, with three long ostrich plumes of the same color, one standing in the centre and the other two falling gracefully on the brim, forms a pretty hat for young women.

A jelly sauce that is used for meats or game requires that the jelly should be melted to the liquid state, and a tablespoonful of wine added just as it is sent around.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Sandbach. Bei der Zwangsversteigerung eines 74 Tagwerk Grund umfassenden Anwesens in Reisach wurde, obwohl auf dem Anwesen 18,000 Mark hypothekarisch versichert waren, nur ein Strichschilling von 1100 Mark erzielt. Um diese Summe wurde das Anwesen dem ersten Hypothekgläubiger zugeschlagen.

Wörishofen. Aus Unvorsichtigkeit erschoß Direktor Trautwein von hier seinen besten Freund, den Gemeindekassier Moritz Rauch, mit einem Jagdgewehre. Die Beiden wollten sich auf die Jagd begeben und Trautwein manipulirte an seinem Gewehre, das, ohne daß er es wußte, noch geladen war und auf bis jetzt unaufgeklärte Weise sich entlud. Das Geschoß durchbohrte den Kopf von rechts unten nach links oben und tödtete den Rauch sofort.

Aus der Rheinpfalz.

Speyer. Im Stadtrathe wurde die viel ventilirte Frage der Errichtung eines Lagerhauses ihrer Erledigung entgegengeführt, in so fern als mit 14 gegen 11 Stimmen beschlossen wurde, ein Lagerhaus an der Ostseite des Rheinhafens aus städtischen Mitteln zu bauen und in Wie sich die wegen des [illegible] den Baukapitals (200,000 Mark) zu hörende Bürgerversammlung zu dem Projekte verhält, ist bis jetzt nicht festzustellen, da die Arbeiter und viele kleinere Leute nicht einsehen wollen, daß auch sie einen Gewinn haben—direkt und indirekt—wenn Handel und Industrie gedeihen und blühen.

Pirmasens. Hier wurde der 34 Jahre alte Fabrikschuster Schmenger verhaftet. Er hatte in der Nacht dem Schuhfabrikanten Georg Krämer in dessen Wohnhaus aufgelauert und ihn dort durch vier Messerstiche schwer verletzt. Die Ursache zu diesem Attentat war ein Streit der Knaben der Beiden.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Die Ausführung des seit geraumer Zeit viel genannten Zeppelin'schen Luftschiffes ist nun gesichert. Dieser Tage fand hier die Gründung einer Aktiengesellschaft statt, die auf der Grundlage eines bereits gezeichneten Grundkapitals in der Höhe von 800,000 Mark zunächst die Verwirklichung des Zeppelin'schen Projektes in die Hand nehmen wird.—Die Baugewerkmeister haben eine Verbandsorganisation gegründet, der bis jetzt 74 Meister mit zusammen 3800 Arbeitern angehören. Die zur unbedingten Einhaltung der Verbandsbeschlüsse in Form von Solowechseln unterzeichneten und hinterlegten Kautionen belaufen sich auf rund 250,000 Mark.

Ellwangen. Der Bischof von Rottenburg, Dr. Wilhelm von Reiser, der auf Firmungsreisen begriffen an einem älteren Magenübel neuerdings erkrankt war, ist hier gestorben. Dr. v. Reiser erfreute sich nicht nur als Oberhirt seiner Diözese allgemeiner Anhänglichkeit, sondern war auch als Gelehrter geschätzt und während seiner Abgeordnetenzeit von seinen Kollegen geachtet.

Friedrichshafen. Die Arbeiten an der neuen Bodenseegürtelbahn schreiten württembergischerseits rüstig vorwärts. Die Erdarbeiten sind auf der ganzen Strecke beinahe vollendet, so daß mit dem Oberbau begonnen werden kann. Auch der Bau der Bahnhöfe in Eriskirch, Langenargen und Hemmigkofen ist in Angriff genommen worden, ebenso die Brückenbauten über Aach, Schussen und Argen.

Hall. Hier wurde der verheirathete Aufseher Kocher im Landesgefängniß von dem Gefangenen Suir aus Bayern, den er wegen Unbotmäßigkeit dem Vorstande vorführte, mittelst eines Schusterkneips in den Unterleib gestochen und erheblich verletzt.

Rottweil. Der Pulverarbeiter Fußenegger von Laufen wurde bei Streitigkeiten von dem Pulverarbeiter Schaible von da in einen Finger gebissen. Nach zwei Tagen fühlte sich Fußenegger unpäßlich; der verletzte Finger schwoll rasch an und kurz darauf trat der Tod ein.

Baden.

Karlsruhe. Hier fiel am 1. Mai die sonst übliche Parademusik des Militärs aus. Als Ursache wird jetzt angegeben, daß die Kommandantur deshalb keine Parademusik befohlen habe, „weil eine solche Musik auf dem Schloßplatze als eine Verherrlichung des Weltfeiertages betrachtet werden könnte."

Achern. Nach längerem schweren Leiden starb hier im Alter von 55 Jahren der Hotelier Carl Peter. Derselbe war als früherer Besitzer des Erlenbades, das er zu ebenso hoher Blüthe brachte, wie später das Gasthaus und die Weinhandlung „Zur Post," in weiteren Kreisen bekannt und wegen seiner vortrefflichen Eigenschaften allgemein geschätzt.

Mannheim. Dieser Tage feierte die Rheinische Gummi- und Celluloidfabrik ihr 25jähriges Geschäftsjubiläum. Angestellte der Firma wurden ohne Unterschied der Stellung nach Altersklassen gleich bedacht. Wer unter einem Jahr dem Geschäft angehörte, erhielt 10 Mark, bis zu drei Jahren Dienstzeit wurden die Arbeiter mit 20 Mark, bis zu neun Jahren mit 50 Mark, bis zu 14 Jahren mit 100 Mark, bis zu 19 Jahren mit 200 Mark und einer silbernen Uhr, bis zu 23 Jahren mit 300 Mark und einer silbernen Uhr und bis zu 25 Jahren mit 500 Mark und einer goldenen Uhr bedacht.

Offenburg. Vor der Strafkammer hatte sich dieser Tage ein 16jähriger Schuhmacherlehrling zu verantworten, der die Hostie nach der Kommunion aus dem Mund nahm, zerrupfte und wegwarf und die Kirche mit den Worten verließ „Das ist der größte Schwindel!" Er wurde zu zehn Monaten Gefängniß verurtheilt.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Kürzlich starb hier im Alter von 85 Jahren ein letztes, bedauernswerthes Opfer der Beschießung Straßburgs, Fräulein Amelie Magnus. Am 24. August 1870 stand sie früh halb sechs Uhr vor ihrem Bett im Erdgeschoß ihrer Wohnung, Weißthurmstraße 56, als eine Granate in das Gemach flog, explodirte und ihr beide Arme zerschmetterte. Sie wurde auch sonst an mehreren Stellen schwer verletzt und lag sechs Wochen in Folge des Blutverlustes bewußtlos im Spital.

Metz. Die Vereinigung zur Schmückung und fortdauernden Erhaltung der Kriegergräber und Denkmäler um Metz hat die Anregung gegeben, daß sämmtliche bei Metz betheiligt gewesenen Regimenter Ehrentafeln stiften sollten, unter Angabe der Anzahl der gefallenen Offiziere und Mannschaften. Diese Ehrentafeln sollen im Jahre 1900 zur 30jährigen Gedenkfeier an dem auf dem Schlachtfelde von Gravelotte errichteten Aussichtsthurm befestigt werden. Diese Idee hat in den betreffenden Kreisen lebhaften Anklang gefunden.

AMOS H. VAN HORN LIMITED
Note the name "Amos" and "No. 73" before entering store. Get off car at Plane Street.
"The Portland Range" doesn't give you worry—but comfort—and lots of it.
Your Home===
Let Us Help You "Fix it Up"
Spring's the time you give yourself new duds. Better clothe the home too. No better season—none more appropriate. But be chary of what you get and how deep you go into that purse.
Here, you'll find our 40 years' experience a help in picking out sensible things—no chance of poor choosing, for our 3 acres of Furniture and Carpets are best from A to Z.
Mayhap you're not ready to spare but a scanty sum. Then our credit terms of 75c a week will "bridge you over." And none but cash prices, even if it be credit terms!
$10.75 —same as cut. Nothing new about the price we know full well—but there's a lot new about the suit at such a price. Of solid oak, well finished and well shaped—if you want other shapes, we've 100 here up to $150.

But a trifle for so good a Sideboard as this. $13.95 Not a haphazard, thrown-together affair, but as substantial as honest talent knows how to make it. And there are other good boards here too—from $9.75 to $100. A grand showing.
How About Your Refrigerator?
Pay us $5.49—get a hardwood refrigerator that ought to tax your means for one-half more—$5.49 pays for not only one refrigerator, but covers cost of a fine galvanized pick, tongs and pan that go along with it—another proof of "Amos H. Van Horn, Ltd." liberality! As spick and span a refrigerator stock as Jersey ever saw—dozens of kinds, all new in idea and small in price!
Two Summer Cooking Helps
The "Wickless Blue Flame Oil Stove" and the "Monarch Vapor Stove." Two marvels of inventive genius, as easy to run 'em as can be—no instructions—no worrying valves, etc. Call—we'll operate them for you. We've the "Insurance" and "Quickmeal" Vapor Stoves too.
75c. A WEEK WILL DO IF CASH IS SHORT.

THOSE "JOBLINSES."

BY ELEANOR ROOT.

"Miss Stebbins, I'm goin' to git married, an' I brought you over my gravestone money!"

I looked up in astonishment. Saphira Joblins stood before me. She refused the proferred seat, and folding her hands meekly delivered herself of the following:

"Yes, I'm goin' to git married. It aint becuz I feel to hate to be called an old maid, nur yet becuz I feel to be better'n the rest o' the Joblinses girls. 'Taint none o' that a tall. But I got a reason that I been a thinkin' on fur years—an' then, I don't like my name! It don't make so much difference when I'm livin', but you know yourself how it is when you're dead. Not 'at I'm livin', they jes' call me Saphiry, and that's the end of it; but when you're dead—well, you know the row o' Joblinses, father's sisters? Every summer when the summer boarders come to town they go over to the graveyard an' talk about 'em. They say 'Joblins, Joblins, Joblins! Here lies Miss Saphiry Joblins, an' Miss Lucindy Joblins, an' Miss Submit Joblins, an' Miss Hepsy Joblins, an' Miss Roxany Joblins, an' Miss Lycady Joblins, an' Miss Clarissy Joblins, an' Miss Remembrance Joblins, an' Miss Ann Joblins!' And then they laff and say 'Why didn't they change their name some o' them?' An' then like as not they go huntin' around to poor Uncle Billious's grave stone an' talk about that when Uncle Billous couldn't a changed his name if he's been married a hundred times. An' his first name—he wa'n't no more to blame fur that than they were. It was gin to him before he was old enough to rightly appreciate it. An' then they say 'Billious Joblins' in such a way, and laff, 'at it makes my blood boil.

"An' then they hunt up Uncle Billous's first wife's grave over in the corner. An' they look at that carved figger of a hand that's pointin' down, and they read them words above it—'Gone Home'—an' they laff again. I should think that any buddy'd have sense enough to know 'at it don't mean that.

"Now Mis Stebbins, perhaps you don't know it, but my middle name's Eglantine. I've hed it in my mind all my life to have it put on my gravestone. I've saved up considerable from my blackberry money, an' my rhubarb money, and hain't eat no butter this summer nur last, except what I got to the mite societies, and I put it with what father left, and I've got enough to git a handsome stone—and some besides. And I want Eglantine put on it—Mrs. S. Eglantine—but I'll tell you the last name. It's goin' to be Van Wycke—Mrs. S. Eglatine Van Wycke. It sounds kind o' stylish, don't it?

"Do you mind Hi Van Wycke—him that tended Squire Shuttleworth's lawn last summer? Well, he come back this summer but he was too late for a job, and he was around trying to borrow money to git him out west. He come to me. Well, I made a bargain. I hope I hain't demeaned myself—and I know that none o' the Joblinses girls ever done such a thing afore—but it hain't no worse—no it hain't half as bad as them Gould and Asterbilt girls done, a making bargains with their money fur the titled nobility, for all they're thinkin' of is the things o' this world—and my thoughts is set on the next. That's what I'm a doin't it fur.

"It'll do good all around, fur Hiram was jes' tickled to give me his name fur a consideration—that's what he called it—a consideration.

"We're goin' to be married to-morrow mornin' at seven o'clock—so's he kin git the eight o'clock 'commodation. And he haint never comin' back. That's in the bargain, too. He says he don't want to. He's goin' to make his fortune out west. That's what he says. But I don't know. He haint the kind to be forehanded. But I haint no call to worry about him.

"Now about that gravestone money, Mis Stebbins. I feel to believe I'm set when I make up my mind; all the Joblinses be, and I feel to believe that Hiram Van Wycke's honest. But he might ask if I couldn't let him have a little more'n I agreed on, after the ceremony, and my heart might get soft—they say that you never can tell—and so I'd a little ruther hev the gravestone money here where I can't get at it, and I kin tell him so. Here it is." She untied her handkerchief and emptied its contents into my lap. There were two or three bills and a great quantity of small coin.

"There, Mis Stebbins," she continued "that'll jes' make it. I've been pricin' gravestones for a good long while, and I know jest what I want, an' how much it costs. I'll tell you jest the kind the next time I come over, but I got to go home now and do up my lawn dress. It looks bridier'n anything else I got, and it haint been done up sence the last mite society.

Without waiting for a word from me, she departed as noiselessly as she had come. I watched the little limp figure climbing over the back fence, making as much haste as it could to get ready for the bridal of the morrow. I did not know whether to laugh or cry, but I made up my mind that Saphira should indeed have a tombstone "stylisher'n any o' the rest o' the Joblinses."—The Home.

That Accounts for It.

Dixon—I understand that Mrs. Hasher, the boarding house keeper, who died last week, left a fortune of over $50,000.

Hixon—Is it possible? Why, I had no idea there was so much money in keeping boarders.

Dixon—There isn't, as a rule, but, you see, she owned a large prune orchard in California.—Chicago News.

FOR STAMP COLLECTORS.

It Pays to Have Those That Are in a Good Condition.

One of the most noteworthy features ever introduced into stamp collecting and one which bids fair to play an important part in the value of a specimen, will this year make its presence strongly felt among the philatelists. The feature referred to can be explained in the one word "condition." For months past this new criterion of value has been slowly but surely making its way into the good graces of the collector, and unless all signs fail it promises to revolutionize prices before many more months shall have rolled by. That the value of a stamp depends largely upon the order it is in has been admitted for a number of years, but the fact of the matter is the theory has rarely been put into practice. As is well known, the value of a rare coin has always been regulated by its condition; for instance, a piece which would be worth fifty dollars in a good state of preservation would scarcely bring fifty cents if badly worn or mutilated. So it will be with stamps; if a specimen is heavily cancelled, torn faded, cracked or badly centered, it will not bring nearly so high a price as if in good or fine condition. This new condition of things is going to alter the value of a great many stamp collections. The enthusiast who has been careless in selecting his stamps, taking here and there a damaged or otherwise poor specimen, which he secured at a bargain price, will discover his collection decreasing in value year by year; while, on the other hand, he who has used care in the selection of his stamps, substituting a good specimen for a poor one whenever the opportunity offered, will find that his collection has increased in value very materially.—Golden Days.

THE TRANS-SIBERIAN RAILWAY.

The Globe May be Circled in Thirty Days When This Road is in Operation.

Imperial Railway Commissioner Chilkoff has recently made a long report to the Czar concerning the Trans-Siberian Railway. The road will be opened throughout its entire length next summer, and the journey may then be made from St. Petersburg to Vladivostock in ten days. American rolling stock and locomotives will be chiefly employed. The Russian Commissioner has obtained an interesting result by calculating the actual running time of the various railways and steamship lines east and west around the world, and comes to the conclusion that the globe may, in ordinary times and with present facilities, be circled in thirty-three days. The itinerary is as follows: St. Petersburg to Vladivostock, 10 days; Vladivostock to San Francisco, 10 days; San Fransico, to New York, 4½ days; New York to Bremen, 7 days; Bremen to St. Petersburg 1½ days. But by engaging special trains and the fastest steamers the tour may be reduced to twenty-eight days with an allowance of seven hours for delays. This itinerary is as follows: Moscow to Vladivostock, 149.1 hours; Vladivostock to San Francisco, 270 hours; San Francisco to New York, 73.1 hours; New York to Plymouth, 133.8 hours; Plymouth to London, 3.2 hours; London to Moscow, 36 hours; total, 665.2 hours. It is suggested that when the Trans-Siberian Railway be completed that a commission including Russian, English, German, French and American representatives, under the auspices of the Russian Government, make a tour of the world, following the second itinerary.

South Sea Caresses.

When a South Sea Island mother wishes to chastise her child she seldom resorts to slapping and slippers—of course she has none.

Instead of using the forms of punishment customary among civilized mothers, she pulls the child's hair and bites some part of the body, generally the fleshy part of the arm.

In wandering about the villages one sees many children having on their bodies scars produced by wounds inflicted by their mothers' teeth.

When a mother wishes to caress her child she deftly draws her thumb across its eyebrows or cheek, or gently seizes its cheek between her teeth. The rubbing of noses is also a mark of affection among the Kingsmill Islanders, as it is among the Maoris of New Zealand.

Relieved in Early Hours.

A farmer had secured an appointment as lightkeeper in a Maine coast lighthouse. The first night he went on duty he lighted up promptly at dusk, and at 11 o'clock carefully extinguished the lamp. The next day of course there was trouble, and, when he was taken to task, he replied that he supposed 10 o'clock was late enough to keep the light going, as he thought that all honest men should be in bed at that hour.

The Time Limit Motto.

A Parson's father is happy in the possession of a parlor motto which reads, "God bless our home," until 10 o'clock at night, and then, with a clicking noise suddenly changes front, and "Time to skip" meets the gaze of the astonished young man caller. The Parsons boys are said to understand it.—Kansas City Journal.

Worse Than the Other.

PREPARED.

Oft have I wondered at the fearless heart
With which strong men and tender women go,
To meet great Death; but now I seem to know
The secret of their courage. 'Tis a part
Of their whole life, the end of all thou art,
O Nature, to their souls. The steady flow
Of time is ceaseless; thick thy hand doth sow
The void with stars, while from earth's bosom start
The lovely flowers, and there are trees and streams,
And women's faces and love's mystery.
And all these things are influences that give
The needed lesson. They are all foregleams
Of the one strangeness and the last. How be
Of death afraid when we have dared to live!

DEBORAH'S SECRET.

BY MARION F. GIBBS.

Deborah Beal had a secret which she guarded as the miser guards his gold; yet the very air of Connecticut hospitality draped the long piazza around the Beal homestead, lingered in the swaying vines of bitter-sweet, nodded from the creamy sprays of the wild clematis, and breathed in the fragrance of the golden honeysuckles, while the odor of currant jelly streamed through the open windows, across the dusty road, to the solitary figure on the opposite doorstep, a man of perhaps forty summers, who just then was pondering over a passage read that morning.

"'What rights are his who dare not strike for them?'" he repeated musingly, but how could he approach her after a silence of so many years? And then, Deborah Beal had—a secret!

He remembered how, just fifteen years ago, he, John Hastings, had brought a letter from the office addressed in a bold masculine hand to Deborah. He had asked the name of her correspondent, and she had stubbornly refused to offer any explanation.

The golden haired playmate of his schooldays, but for this slight misunderstanding, would have reigned for years the mistress of Willow Farm. Time but enhanced her comeliness, he was fain to confess. Her hair, as golden as ever, was beautiful, as the rays of the sun filled the west piazza, casting a halo around the quaint rocker in which she sat every afternoon, busy with her needlework.

The Plymouth Rocks were running about in their yard, restrained from wrongdoing by a wire fence, while in the creek, down by the tangle of elders the ducks were sailing about, their contentment only equalled by the two colts peering inquiringly through the bars further up the hill.

Yes, she had ordered the netting for fear they might be tempted to wander across the way. What did he care about the hens? It was the secret! Even that might remain forever a mystery if he could but summon courage enough to walk up the path, dazzling with brilliant coleus and scarlet geraniums, and ask Deborah to begin their lives anew.

"'What rights are his,'" he slowly repeated, as if summoning strength, when a scream rent the air, a shrill cry of defiance, a woman's scream—Deborah's—and she alone, unprotected!

For an instant he hesitated, then dashed across the lawn. The sight held him spellbound. In the path, fronting the meadow, stood Deborah, frantically waving a golden wig at a large hawk. Her screams had rendered him powerless to bear away his intended victim, who was trembling at her mistress' feet, cackling in rage and affright.

A thought flashed through John Hastings' mind as he strode past the maples, through the tiny rustic gate, into the dusty road to the meadow beyond, where his fair neighbor now stood, still uttering, hysterical cries and still holding the golden tresses aloft.

"Deborah," he said, apparently not looking at the bowed head before him, which he perceived was crowned with short golden curls, "is this," and he pointed ruefully at the golden locks fallen now in the crimson clover at their feet, "is this the secret?" And with one shy upward glance Deborah whispered, "Yes."

"It happened while you were in Malden that winter, mother's illness and afterward my own," she confessed later. "Almost brain fever, the doctor thought, and I lost the curls you were so proud of. It was the height of silliness, but I wrote to a prominent firm, and upon your return you never imagined that the golden curls you so admired were—detachable. The letter you handed me was from the same firm, telling me of a preparation to insure these short locks," she said laughingly, for the wig had long ago been banished, "a rapid growth. Undoubtedly it proved futile, for these diminutive curls still continue to flourish. And this, John, is Deborah Beal's last secret!"

"Yes," he answered gravely, "Deborah Beal's last secret, for to-morrow is her wedding day."

"Cut-cut-cut-a-dat!" came clear and shrill from the wire netting.

"It's Clover," Deborah said. "How that hawk did frighten me!"

But John Hastings looked immeasurably happy.

Unintentional Injury.

"Young man," said the Senator to the reporter, "you have done me irreparable harm."

"What have I done?" asked the bewildered reporter.

"I got in largely on a temperance platform, as you may recollect."

"Yes, sir."

"And you speak of me in this morning's paper as 'drinking my coffee with gusto.' It will take me more than a lifetime to get it out of the heads of my constituents that gusto isn't some kind of alcoholic beverage."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SPORTING.

GOSSIP OF THE DIAMOND.

CURRENT BASEBALL NEWS IN AND AROUND PLAINFIELD.

Bits of Information and Comment Gleaned From the Great National Game —Latest Scores of the League Teams.

Warren MacLaughlin was a decided success in the box for the Crescents last Saturday. Warry can pitch if he wants to, and evidently he wanted to. Then, too, he was called upon to stop several hot grounders but they did not phase him and he handled the ball without an error.

Charlie Mumford had a surprise for everybody in the game Saturday Collins was ill and unable to play so Charlie went in right field. Now young Mumford always was a good fielder, but his weak point was his batting. Saturday he came up to bat with two men on bases and astonished everyone by a clean hit to right field, bringing in two runs. The next time he came up he batted safely to left field for another hit.

There is a great deal of rivalry among the Brooklyn teams, and many hot games are played. Among them there is special rivalry between the Bergen Field Club, the Oak Hill Field Club and the Brooklyn Heights Club, which are considered three of the strongest teams of the lot. Last Saturday the Crescents bucked up against the Bergens, next Saturday they will try their hand at the Oak Hill Field Club. The latter team is composed of active young men who have played together for several seasons and go into the game for all that is in it They are a strong aggregation and will give the Crescents a warm time of it. Their rivals, the Bergens, expressed their opinion Saturday that the Crescents would win in Saturday's game, but that was to be expected as long as the Cresecents defeated the Bergens. The Oak Hill boys, of course, consider themselves stronger than the Bergens and perfectly capable of taking care of the Crescents.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Horsley Barker, the West Front street druggist, enjoyed a spin on his wheel yesterday afternoon. He rode to New Brunswick and back.

Yesterday afternoon a meeting of girls was held at Miss Kampman's on Sanford avenue to organize a bicycle club to be called the Alfresco Club. Alfresco is Italian and means in the open air. Miss Carol Kampman presided over the meeting. The officers elected were as follows: Marie Kampman, president; Marion D. Woodcock, vice-president; Emily Runyon, secretary and treasurer.

GOLF.

Next Saturday afternoon the golf team from the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will go to New Brunswick and play a match with the team from that place.

Mr. Bendelow, the golf expert of New York, is in Plainfield today, and in company with C. W. McCutchen, W. J. Buttfield and Mr. Hibbard, the green committee of the Park Golf Club, are marking out the course for the new links to be laid out in Hyde's grove.

WHIST.

Although the match was not expected to take place until next Monday evening, the whist team of the Park Club was suddenly called to go to Newark last evening to play for the state trophy. The holders of the trophy were the players of the New Jersey Whist Club of that city. It is sometime since the Parks have done any playing and they were a trifle out of their usual form. As a result the Newark experts Messrs. Otis, Aymar, Eagles and Cameron, won by a score of 13 to 7. This match will end the playing season for the Parks.

Arranging for a Festival.

The associate members of the Catholic Club met their president, George Tobin, Sunday afternoon to talk over matters pertaining to the strawberry and ice cream festival which the club is to give Wednesday and Thursday of next week. A committee of five was appointed to make the final arrangements. The programme will consist of musical features and dancing. Thursday night the associate members will meet again and perfect the arrangements, and several subcommittees will be selected.

Children's Day.

Next Sunday morning at 10:30 the Sunday-school of Grace M. E. church will hold their annual Children's Day service. The programme will be appropriate to the occasion, consisting of singing and recitations, class exercises and a short address by the pastor. Parents having children to be baptized will please present them at this service.

GOOD RACING COMING.

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR MEET OF N. J. DRIVING ASSOCIATION.

The Meet Will Be Held at the Gentlemen's Driving Park June 22d and 23rd—Matinee Races Every Saturday.

After twenty years of quietude, the enthusiasts in the speeding of fast horses are preparing to give Plainfield a race meet equal to any held in the State or Metropolitan district.

The Press has already told of the organization of the Central New Jersey Driving Association. Last night the Association held a meeting in the law offices of Reed & Coddington, President W. A. Coddington, of this city, presiding, to make final arrangements for the race meet that is to be held in this city the afternoons of June 22d and 23rd.

Beginning on Saturday afternoon, matinee races will be held at the Gentlemen's Driving Park in which the local trotters and pacers will take part. They will be held every Saturday afternoon this summer or until further notice.

The committees to take charge of the race meet were appointed and have begun an active campaign to interest the people of Plainfield in the coming races. The committees include a number of prominent Plainfield and North Plainfield business men and residents who are endeavoring to give a race meet that will excel anything of the kind ever held there.

The race meet will be essentially for Plainfielders and will be under the best of management. There will be no objectionable features and everything will be so arranged that women and children can attend and witness the races.

It is necessary for the promoters of the meet to guarantee a large amount of money to bring horses here from all over the State. There will be over fifty participants in the different events and their expenses must be met. While the contests will be for money purses, they will be competitive races from start to finish. With this end in view, the promoters are trying to make it plain that they need the support of the people of this city. With good men at the head, fast horses and clean racing, they deserve the aid of their fellow-citizens in trying to furnish good sport and elevate it as well.

HONORED SOLDIER BOYS

CATHOLIC CLUB RECOGNIZE THE PATRIOTISM OF IRISH BOYS.

Noble Sons of Celtics Made Honorary Members of the Catholic Club—Nominations of Officers for Ensuing Year.

A meeting of the Catholic Club was held last night, and nominations of officers made for the coming year. An honor was also conferred on the members who have volunteered to go to war and who are now serving their country on land and sea, as soldiers or sailors. These were all made honorary members without exception.

The members are James McCormick, Charles Flynn and F. T. McCarthy, all of whom are in the Third Regiment.

D. O'Keeffe, of the Detroit, M. O'Keeffe, of the Topeka, and James Lannigan, who is on the Boston with Dewey in Manila harbor, were also thus honored.

Nominations were then made for the coming year. The present incumbent, George J. Tobin, was nominated for president, but refused to accept.

J. H. Hillman was then nominated, and Michael Nevins was nominated for vice-president, Edward Flynn for financial secretary, and Frank McInearney for corresponding secretary. A board of directors to serve for two years was nominated as follows: Geo. Tobin, P. Traynor, J. Moran and Thomas Comerford. A committee of seven was nominated to act in conjunction with the house committee in arranging for the strawberry festival next week.

DEATH ENDED SHORT ILLNESS.

Mrs. Ellen Dougherty Passed Away Unexpectedly Yesterday.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, June 7—A sudden death occurred yesterday noon, when Mrs. Ellen Dougherty, wife of John D. Dougherty, a repected farmer living two miles south of New Market, was taken ill about 4:30 in the morning, and after lying in an unconscious state until noon passed away. Death was due to apoplexy.

Mrs. Dougherty leaves a husband and one son, William J., who is a special officer on the Central Railroad. Two sons died in their childhood. The deceased was seventy-seven years of age, and had lived in New Market for fifty years. Both the wife and husband came from Ireland. The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock from the Roman Catholic church in Dunellen. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery, Plainfield.

Mrs. Dougherty was in the best of health Sunday night, and was at church in the morning. Her death was a great surprise to her friends and relatives.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING.

started yesterday, in respone to a request of the property-owners on that street. At the request of Mayor Fisk, Mr. Barrows offered an ordinance which provides that no member of the police department shall be removed for political reasons, and so long as he conducts himself rightly and retains his residence in the city. If a member of the police department is absent five days without leave, he shall lose his job.

On Mr. Hetfield's motion the ordinance was referred to the laws and ordinance committee. Mr. Hetfield said that he thought the State laws carried the points mentioned in the ordinance, and he saw no reason for its adoption. However, it will be reported upon at a later meeting.

Mr. Runyon reported on the matter regarding the location of a new fire department house in the West End. He said that the committee had obtained an option on a lot, located on West Fourth street opposite Darrow avenue, 50x113, owned by Elston M. French and that the lot can be purchased for $275. This location, Mr. Runyon said, is not an ideal one, but the many advantages make it desirable. He also said that E. V. French, architect, had furnished plans for a suitable fire house, and the same can be purchased for $50. The building will be erected under the supervision of Inspector Doane, and thus an architect's fees will be saved. Mr. Runyon then offered a resolution that the lot be purchased, also the plans as furnished by E. V. French. The resolution was adopted. Mr. Runyon stated that the entire cost of property and fire house would not exceed $5,000. The resolution offered by Mr. Runyen provides for the receiving of sealed bids for the erection of the fire house, and that bids be advertised for.

Mr. Barrows offered an ordinance which provides for the placing of the electric light wires underground. The ordinance obligates the Plainfield Electric Light Company not to charge more than the present rate, while the city can give any company the franchise to furnish light for the city. At the end of twenty five years the city can purchase the plant if it desires to. If not it can lease the same for terms of five years. All city offices are to be lighted free of cost. Copies of the ordinance will be sent to each member of the Council and at the meeting next Monday night the ordinance will be considered.

Mr. Barrows offered a resolution to the effect that the collector of taxes be authorized to accept assessments levied for the widening of Westervelt avenue, and that payment of the assessments be demanded.

Mr. Hetfield called up the ordinance which amends the liquor ordinance. The matter was very thoroughly discussed, although nearly all the members confessed ignorance as to the meaning of some parts of the ordinance.

Mr. Hetfield wanted the word "arrested" taken from the ordinance and the word "convicted" substituted, where it applied to a saloon keeper being compelled to apply as a new applicant if detected in committing any crime. Mr. Barrows objected to that change, and while he admitted that he did not altogether like the word "arrest" he preferred it to the word "convict." In the latter case it might be very hard to convict a man. There were other members who had views on both sides of the question. Regarding the changing of the hour to 11:30 instead of 11 o'clock as the time for closing the saloon, that section was stricken out. After much tiresome debate the ordinance was finally laid on the table until the meeting next Monday evening. The Council then adjourned.

FORCED TO THE WALL.

One of the largest wholesale manufacturers was forced to the wall. Every one knows of the depression in every line of business, but none have suffered so much as the clothing manufacturers that were rated away up. They were forced to go under or realize money in some way to save their credit, and we being enabled to offer them the ready cash, they accepted our offer and we secured a very large lot of desirable clothing at our own price. A chance of a lifetime to secureh igh-grade spring and summer clothing at less than one-third its value.

Remember, this stock will be sold without reserve, without restriction and without any consideration of cost of production, and the prices will bring every man and woman within 25 miles of Plainfield to our store in order to show what gigantic bargains will be offered.

A few prices are here mentioned, and remember there are a thousand other bargains we cannot enumerate. Cut this out and bring it with you and ask for the following mentioned articles.

Men's stylishly made gray and brown check and plaid cassimere suits, deep French facing, sizes from 34 to 42, strong and serviceable, worth $3, your choice at $2.95.

Men's strictly all-wool fancy cassimere suits, neat checks, stripes and plaids, deep French facing, six different patterns, worth $10, at $3.75.

Men's blue serge suits, color and seams guaranteed, single breasted only, heavy double warp linings, worth $12, your choice at $4.75.

An elegant assortment of handsomely made cassimere suits, latest patterns of checks, stripes, plaids and over-plaids, stout and regular cut, worth 13.00 at $5.25.

OUR SHIPS BOMBARD FORTS AT MIDNIGHT.

Another Engagement While the Troops Capture Aguadores.

It is Reported That the Americans Have Effected a Junction With the Insurgents—Officially Admitted That Troops Sail for Santiago—Madrid's Fairy Stories.

THE LATEST.

Three O'Clock.

JOINED INSURGENTS.

Under Cover of Night and Bombardment, Americans Said to Have Formed Junction.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Cape Haytien, June 7, via New York, June 8, 1:19 p. m.—According to the latest direct advices from Santiago de Cuba, dated Monday at midnight, the bombardment which began at 7:45 o'clock Monday morning and continued to 10:30 that morning, was resumed for a short time at midnight.

It is then believed that the Americans effected a junction with the insurgents near Diaguiri, east of Aguadores, and near the railway to Santiago.

OFF FOR SANTIAGO.

Officially Admitted that the Expedition Sails Today for Cuba.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 8, 12:05 p. m—It was admitted this morning by the officials of the War department that the army expedition to Santiago de Cuba would sail today.

It is believed that next week will witness the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet, the capture of Santiago and Porto Rico.

President McKinley is quoted as saying that he believed that the war would end before the first of August.

SPANISH TALES.

Remarkable Account of Battle at Santiago as Given Out at Madrid.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Madrid, June 8, 12:40 p. m—The Spanish official report of Monday's operations at Santiago de Cuba was communicated to the press this morning. It is as follows:

A bloody encounter occurred at Santiago. The American fleet thrice attacked the forts and attempted to land marines. The batteries repulsed them with heavy losses.

It is estimated that 1,500 Americans were killed and wounded during the encounter by the Spanish fire.

The American sank the Reina Mercedes, the dismantled cruiser that lay in the harbor. Lieutenant Acosta was killed on board.

Colonel Allea and his regiment of Spanish soldiers lay between Santiago and Punta Cubera and sustained the cross fire of the insurgents from the land and the Americans from the sea.

The American fire passed above the Spaniards and fell among the insurgents. The Spaniards were well intrenched and prevented the Americans from landing at Aguadores.

It has been since learned that five sailors and twenty-nine marines were killed on the Reina Mercedes.

St. Paul Sails Today.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

New York, June 8, 12:10 p. m.—The auxiliary cruiser St. Paul sails today to relieve the Yale and Harvard in scouting duty in the West Indies.

MORE FIGHTING AT SANTIAGO

Cannonading Was Continued Yesterday Morning, But No Details Have Come.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Port au Prince, June 8, 12:30 p. m—A wild uncredited rumor is heard here that the Cadiz fleet of eighteen ships has been seen off Jamaica.

There was further cannonading off Santiago de Cuba yesterday morning. No details of an engagement, however, have reached here.

It is rumored that the American fleet has captured Aquadores, where it is thought that the American forces are to make their landing.

SAMPSON REPORTS.

Spanish Yarn of the Death of Captain Phillips is Disbelieved.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 8, 1:35 p. m—The Navy Department attaches no credence to the Spanish reports of the killing of Captain Phillips, commander of the battleship Texas.

Rear Admiral Sampson has wired that no casualties occurred on the American side which is considered conclusive evidence of the falsity of the Spanish reports.

Congress passed this morning a bill providing for the organization of a hospital corps in the navy.

MORE NEW YORK TROOPS

The New Regiments to Be Inspected Tonight, Preparatory to Second Call.

New York, June 8, 9:59 a. m—Three new regiments have been formed in this city to replace those that have gone to the front.

The regiments will be inspected this evening by the adjutant general. The orders to hurry the inspection is believed to be preparatory to the issuance of orders for the President's second call for troops.

War Measure Signed.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 8, 1 p. m—The President today signed the war measure keeping the life-saving stations open throughout the year.

BLOCKADE IS QUIET.

The Layden Makes Things Lively on Spanish Ships and in Shore Defences.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Key West, June 8, 1:45 p. m.—An auxiliary gunboat arrived in this port today from the blockading fleet of Cardenas. Her officers report all quiet there.

The auxiliary gunboat Leyden, formerly an ocean tug, is making things very lively for the Spaniards in the vicinity. She blazes away at them when ever she sees any movement on the Spanish gunboats or at the shore defences.

The British collier Roato, sister ship to the Restormel, was held up Saturday by an American gunboat. Not responding promptly to the blank shot, a solid shot was sent over her bows.

Next day she was held up by a

BOND-KENNEDY NUPTIALS.

BRIDE'S PARENTS IN FAR OFF TURKEY WERE UNABLE TO BE PRESENT.

In Order That Mr. and Mrs. Bond Might See How Their Daughter Was Wedded a Flash Light Photograph Was Taken Immediately After the Ceremony and Will be Sent to Them—The Event Celebrated at the Home of Theophelus Bond, of East Front Street—Groom a Talented Clergymen of Asbury Park.

A pretty home wedding was celebrated last evening at the home of Theophilus Bond, of 503 East Front street, when his niece, Miss Violet Russell Bond, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Lewis Bond, who are missionaries in Turkey, was married to Rev. P. B. Kennedy, of Asbury, N. J.

The wedding was a quiet one, being witnessed only by the immediate families of the two parties. The groom is a Presbyterian clergyman, and is in charge of the church of that denomination at Asbury.

The house was trimmed with daisies, syringas, snowballs and greens.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church. An arch of daisies and greens had been formed at one end of the parlor, and it was under a bell of these white flowers that the two plighted their troth.

The bride was attired in white china silk, trimmed with some rare old crepon imported from Turkey. The maid of honor, Miss Edith R. Bond, a sister of the bride, and the flower girls, Miss Bessie W. Bond, a cousin, and Miss Jeanette Linnett, also wore white. Miss Edith and Miss Bessie Bond are from this city; Miss Linnett is from Newark.

The ushers were three Princeton College men, Benjamin Weld, of New York, who is a graduate; Russell Bond, of this city, and Ned Carter, of Montclair, who will graduate this summer.

The marriage ceremony was performed while soft music was played by Prof. MacClymont. At 8 o'clock a reception was held before the couple left.

The bride's parents are earnest workers in the missionary fields. Although stationed in Turkey, they have often been to this country, and are well known. Miss Bond, their daughter, was educated in Mt. Holloyoke Seminary. The parents were unable to attend the marriage of their daughter, but Harry Coward took a flash light photograph of the group immediately after the ceremony, which will be sent to them.

The groom has furnished a cosy little parsonage for his bride in Asbury Park where they will go after a short honeymoon. The presents, many of them, were sent to Asbury, although there were were a large number of handsome and valuable ones to be seen at the house yesterday. The groom's gift was a ring set with an opal and two diamonds. The ushers were given ring stick pins. The maid of honor and flower girls were given pins by the bride.

The Building Ordinance.

At Monday night's meeting of the Council the question of changing the building ordinance was brought up by Mr. Runyon. He said that the committee was willing to consider reasonable changes, but as yet no one had appeared who desired to have the ordinance remodeled. Mr. Buckle said he knew a Plainfield property owner, now living in New York, who would be willing at any time to appear before the committee. Nothing was done, however, regarding the ordinance, and it is doubtful if any change will be made.

Working on Fourth Street.

Monday the street commissioner began work on West Fourth street between Park avenue and the point where the macadam stops, near Liberty street. This street has been in poor condition for some time, and it is doing the residents good to see prospects of a big improvement. The culvert at the corner of Front and Albert streets is finished.

Gospel Work at Faith Chapel.

The service at Faith chapel last evening was largely attended and interesting. Rev. Arthur Crane had charge, and was assisted by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church, who made a short address, which all enjoyed. The results of the meeting were very encouraging to the workers and a number of conversions are looked for.

WEDDED AT SOMERVILLE

PLAINFIELDER GETS A BELLE OF THAT TOWN FOR A WIFE.

The Marriage of Miss Mabel Cordelia Schenck to Archibald Lawrence Butler—Ceremony Performed Under Floral Arch

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, June 8—Miss Mabel Cordelia Schenck, one of Somerville's fairest young women, was last evening united in marriage to Archibald Lawrence Butler, of Sandford avenue, Plainfield. The ceremony was performed under a floral arch of green and white and was witnessed by some fifty friends and relatives of the happy couple.

The wedding took place at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Benjamin T. Veghte, of 68 Bridge street, at 6 o'clock. Rev. William Stockton Cramner, pastor of the First Dutch Reformed church, of Somerville, performed the ceremony.

The bride was charmingly attired in a gown of white organdie and carried a handsome bouquet of white roses. She wore a bridal veil. Her maid of honor was Miss Hattie C. Praull, of Milford, N. J. The bridemaids were Miss Mattie Merrill, of Plainfield, and Miss Grace Oakey, of Philadelphia. They were all gowned in white organdie and carried white carnations. Smilax and white rosebuds adorned their hair.

The best man was William Henry, of Pluckamin. The ushers were Thos. Albert Runyon, of Plainfield, and Harry Veghte, of Roselle, a cousin of the bride.

The wedding march was played by Miss Margaret Veghte, of Roselle, a cousin of the bride. The bridal party marched into the parlor where an arch composed of daisies, peonies and ferns was placed. Beneath it they were married. The rooms were artistically decorated in white and green.

There were fifty guests present at the wedding, most of whom were relatives. After the ceremony the wedding supper was served and an informal reception followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Butler departed on the 11:05 train amid a shower of rice and old shoes. They will spend a week at Asbury Park and then return to Plainfield, where they will board at 62 Sandford avenue until their new residence at 830 West Fifth street, is ready for occupancy.

The wedding gifts were of value and many were of a useful character.

Among the guests present were Benjamin Schenck and Miss Josie Banks, of Plainfield; John P. Vechte and family, of Roselle; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. R. Taylor and VanDorn Taylor, of Newark; Mr. and Mrs. Henry and Mrs. Isaac P. Runyon, of Pluckamin; Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Serviss, Mr. and Miss McMurtrie, Miss Louise Tunis, Mr. and Mrs. Hardcastle, Mrs. Kate Schenck, Mrs. Cramner, Miss Hattie Kline and Miss Bessie Jamison, of Somerville.

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA.

Membership of Martha Washington Council Nearly One Hundred.

An interesting meeting was held by Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, last evening, at which time a large delegation of visiting members from Elizabeth, Newark, Rahway and other places were present. Among the most prominent members present were State Council Secretary J. R. Rollinson, of Rahway, District Deputy VanCamp, of Newark and the initiatory team from Star of Elizabeth Council, No. 37, of Elizabeth, which team initiated six candidates in the home Council in a very satisfactory manner. This was followed with recitations, addresses, vocal and instrumental solos, after which refreshments were served. Martha Washington Council is now crowding the one hundredth mark in membership, and the second anniversary of the Council will be celebrated the evening of August 4th.

Boy In a Smashup.

Willie Apgar, the young son of Neal Apgar, of Clinton avenue, while driving through town yesterday afternoon with Tim McCarty's horse and open buggy, collided with another carriage at the corner of North and Park avenues and dished a wheel. The horse was caught in front of The Daily Press office, a new wheel was procured and the buggy was taken away.

REPUBLICANS WILL HAVE A HARD FIGHT.

Opponents of the Regular Organization Coming Together.

ANOTHER CITIZENS' PARTY.

KNOWING ONES SAY THE G. O. P. CANNOT WIN.

Those Opposed to the Present Administration Will Try to Overwhelm the Leaders in the Party Primaries, It is Said, But Failing in This the Democrats and Disgruntled Republicans Will Combine Forces, the Same as Was Done Last December—Leaders are Looking for Strong Candidates.

There are little clouds gathering on the political horizon. Already the political workers of the city are getting in line for the election that is now six months away. It will not be a walkover for anybody. As yet, however, the political clouds have not formed themselves into anything very definite, so that there is a great mass of uncertainty hanging about the election and the men whose names are likely to come up before the people as candidates.

The knowing ones declare that the Republican party is going to have a hard row to hoe. By the Republican party they mean the regular organization that has had until last December things pretty well its own way. The last election showed what a vast body of dissatisfied ones there is. Many of them are Republicans who, on local issues, are willing to bolt the party ticket. In unison with the Democrats and the independent voters they are likely to form a formidable party in the coming election.

A leading citizen the other day said that he knew that the leaders in the movement which was known at last election as the Citizens' party were going quietly to work and are preparing to surprise the Republicans when the time comes. He said that an attempt would be made to capture the Republican primaries and nominate the slate chosen by the leaders of the Citizens' party on the Republican ticket. In the wards where that scheme failed, a separate Citizens' ticket would be nominated. There were enough voters, he said, to accomplish that end.

With suitable organization beforehand, the Citizens' movement can assume large proportions. It is well known that there are a number of so-called "kickers" at the present administration. Heretofore organized strength was lacking, but a well-organized campaign could play havoc in the ranks of the Republican party.

The Republican leaders are placed in a peculiar position. While they know where much of the discontent is, there is some of it hidden in the very core of the Republican machine which is not visible on the surface but nevertheless is a powerful influence in the result.

It is not going to be a brilliant campaign. Surface demonstrations are not likely to be many. The current beneath the surface will be strong, however, and there will be much hard work on both sides. With the prospect of a lively fight at the primaries an another at the polls, the campaign promises to be one of the most active for many years. Meanwhile both sides are looking about for the men that they want to run and a score of candidates are looking about for the necessary pull to land them in the coveted nominations.

Engagement of Miss Winton.

The engagement of Miss Mabel Winton, eldest daughter of ex-Senator H. D. Winton, of Hackensack, to Robert Rennie, of Richmond, Va., has just been announced. The wedding will be at the home of the bride's parents today. Rev. Mr. French, president of the Christian Endeavor Association of New Jersey, will officiate. Miss Winton has been closely identified with charitable and church work. Until a few weeks ago she was superintendent of the junior department of the Christian Endeavor Association of New Jersey, and has reluctantly relinquished that work. The bridegroom is the son of a prominent railroad man of the South. Miss Winton is well-known in Plainfield, where she has frequently visited.

Ran Into by Wheelmen.

George Chester, who is employed about the Gentlemen's Driving Park, was run into by two unknown wheelmen near Jones' woods on Park avenue Monday night and badly hurt. It was 9:30 and the night was dark. The wheelmen had no lights, and when they struck Chester, one of them was thrown off. Chester's teeth was knocked out, his eye was cut, and he was bruised around the head.

IN PATRIOTIC COLORS.

FLAG SOCIABLE GIVEN AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Affair Under the Auspices of the Christian Endeavorers—A Clever Literary and Musical Programme was Rendered.

A "A Flag Sociable," an exceedingly patriotic affair, was held last evening at the First Baptist church under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the church. The social committee of the society planned the affair and there was an unusually large attendance. W. O. Chapman was stationed at the door and as each person entered he handed them a small ticket on which was printed the following: "This ticket is not good to eat, but is good for something to eat."

The lecture room was elaborately decorated with large and small American flags, and these, together with a profusion of flowers, presented a pretty effect. The members of the social committee were attired in patriotic colors, while many others displayed the red, white and blue colors.

The first number on the programme was a scarf drill given by Edith DeLong, Jeane Dunham, Ella Serrell, Mabel Pound, Kathryn Rocap and May Batchelor. Miss Ethel King presided at the piano. A feature of the evening were the recitations given by Miss Mary Lucky. A vocal solo was given by Miss Kathryn Overton, accompanied on the piano by Herbert J. Harold. During the evening Miss Ethel King rendered several piano solos.

After the programme refreshments were served by the committee. With each plate of cream a red, white and blue napkin, together with a small American flag, was presented.

The committee in charge of the social consisted of Miss Margaret Harold, chairman; Mrs. W. O. Chapman, Mrs. W. B. Vail, the Misses French, the Misses Woodland, Miss Ella Serrell and Miss Mattison, while George F. Brown, Samuel Case, W. O. Chapman and L. H. Biglow, Jr., assisted. The latter was general master of ceremonies and announced the various numbers on the programme.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT.

W. C. T. U. Conducted Ice Cream and Strawberry Festival.

A strawberry and ice cream festival was given last night in the W. C. T. U. rooms on East Front street, which was well attended and quite successful. The hours were from 4 to 10.

Mrs. J. J. Coard was chairman of the committee who had the festival in charge and she was assisted by the following ladies who waited on the table, served the strawberries and cream and sold the cake: Mrs. Parse, Mrs. R. K. Case, Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, Mrs. M. C Dobbins, Mrs. Emma French, Mrs. J. H. French, Mrs. DeForrest, Mrs. Howlett and Mrs. Stephen Cahoone.

TO CHANGE JOHN KEAN'S ROAD.

Electricity to Take the Place of Horses on the Elizabeth Line.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, June 8—John Kean, who virtually owns the only horse car line in this city, known as the Elizabeth Street Railway, stated recently to a reporter that the road would shortly be changed into an electric street railway, and that it would be in running order before the close of the year. Mr. Kean is anxious to secure the franchise for a trolley line from Elizabeth to Plainfield, and to connect it with the Elizabeth road that he controls. It is announced that his chances now of obtaining this franchise are excellent, and that is the reason why the work of changing the Elizabeth road into an electric railway is about to be undertaken so soon.

Chance for More Reserves.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Hoboken, N. J., June 8—Lieutenant Commander Robert McLean, who was left in charge of the training ship Portsmouth, of the New Jersey Naval Reserve, received a telegram from Adjutant-General Stryker yesterday concerning a second call for volunteers. The despatch said that the Navy Department had called for more men to man the auxiliary cruisers constantly going into commision. Lieutenant McLean wired that all of the 60 men and the four officers remaining of the original batallion are eager to see service, and that he has in hand nearly 100 more applications for enlistment. He thought that fully 150 men could be recruited within a week.

Young Son Buried.

George, the infant son of William Erbeck, of Arlington avenue, who died suddenly Monday night, was buried this morning at 10 o'clock from the house. Rev. Mr. Nickerson, of All Souls church, officiated. Interment was in Hillside.

MOLTEN WAX SET THE FACTORY ALL ABLAZE.

Climax Stopper Company's Work Gutted by Fire.

OCCUPANTS FLED FOR LIFE.

A KETTLE OF MOLTEN WAX OVERFLOWED ON THE STOVE.

The Alarm Was Sent In From Box 23 by Randolph Marsh, An Employe—The Flames Spread Too Rapidly to Permit the Workmen to Do Anything—Books Were Saved By Fred Barker—Loss Will Reach Nearly $5,000—John Day's Home Suffered—Fire Department Responded Promptly.

In the short space of two minutes the factory of the Climax Stopper Company, corner of Washington and East Fourth streets, was transformed from an orderly establishment to a fiery furnace. The workmen in the building fled for their lives, while the valuable contents, machinery and stock, went up in flames or was damaged beyond repair. The rapidity with which the flames spread was remarkable.

The past few weeks have been active ones at the factory of the Climax Stopper Company. The force of twenty employes has been busy these warm days in turning out a large stock of stoppers for milk, beer and other variety of bottles. Then there was a large stock of bicycle sundries and novelties stored away in the store room on the second floor.

In fact, the factory has turned out so much that the officers of the company decided to shut down for a time until the present large stock could be marketed. A few days ago, with that end in view, the working force was reduced to eight, four men and four young women. W. J. Bailey was foreman and Miss Lizzie Houston forewoman.

This morning, work proceeded as usual. The stock of milk bottle stoppers, with the pulp caps, was being completed. It is customary to give these pulp or paper caps a coat of parafine wax. Miss Houston was in charge of the wax. There was a little gas stove standing near the front of the room on the second floor. On this the wax is heated before being used to coat the caps.

Miss Houston placed a kettle of wax on the stove to be melted and then turned to her other work. The wax gradually reached a molten state. Then it began to boil. No one noticed that it was slowly creeping up the sides of the kettle. Finally it overflowed and the molten wax fell on the stove below.

Foreman Bailey was in the other room. He smelt smoke. He inquired its cause. Just then there came a scream from Miss Eva Sergeant who was operating one of the presses. Bailey rushed to the scene. The wax had caught fire and the stream of flaming wax was pouring into a large case of parafine wax, standing beside the stove.

When Bailey first saw the flames they were hardly a foot in height. In the moment he occupied in running across the room the blaze rose to the ceiling and drove him back half blinded. He shouted to Randolph Marsh, one of his assistants, to send in an alarm. Marsh cleared the stairs in three jumps and sprang out of the building. He ran to the corner of Franklin place and Fifth street and sent in an alarm from Box 23, at 9:28, just two minutes after the fire started.

Meanwhile Foreman Bailey had ordered all of the occupants to leave the building. There was no panic, but neither was there delay. The flames spread with wonderful quickness and threatened to block the exit.

Five minutes after the fire started, the chemical engine pulled up in front of the blazing building. It was beyond the efforts of the chemical, however. Dull red flames were pouring out of the front second story windows and several of the side windows. Great volumes of black smoke rolled upwards. The place seemed doomed.

Among the first of the firemen to reach there was Fred Barker, lineman for the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company. He burst through the dense smoke that filled the first floor and made a dash for the books which were in the office. He was assisted by several of the employes. He was nearly suffocated by the fumes.

Four lines of hose were quickly laid and four streams turned on the fire. The telegraph pole in front of the building, which caught fire, was extinguished and the streams were directed in the windows. The flames subsided in a few moments so that

AN AMERICAN VICTORY

Maria Theres Sunk and Santiago Forts Silenced.

GREAT DAMAGE INFLICTED.

Spanish Admit Considerable Loss Both on Land and Sea—Great Holes in Morro's Walls—All News Coming as It Does from Spanish Sources, Seems to Indicate American Success.

Cape Haytien, June 8.—Further advices from Santiago indicate the success of the American arms in Monday's engagement.

It is reported here that the first class armored Spanish cruiser Maria Teresa was sunk by the fire of the American fleet.

It appears that a landing of American troops was effected near Daiquiri, some distance east of Aguadores, and near the railroad station, connecting with Santiago de Cuba. Later an engagement took place between the American force and a column of Spanish troops which had been sent against the landing party. The accounts of the battle obtainable here, being from Spanish sources, do not set forth the result. Therefore it is to be inferred that the Americans were victorious, and that is the belief which prevails here.

The fighting before and in the vicinity of Santiago de Cuba continued the greater part of Monday, from 7.45 a. m. until nearly 11 o'clock. Ten of the American warships maintained a steady and carefully directed fire against El Morro Castle and the batteries at Punta Gorda, Socapa and Cincoreales, in addition to bombarding the Spanish fleet in the harbor. The percentage of effective projectiles was very large.

It appears from the best information obtainable at this place (the cable station connecting with Santiago de Cuba) that immense damage was inflicted on the enemy. The Spaniards admit that the bombardment from the American fleet was most destructive. About sixteen hundred projectiles are said to have been fired by the American warships, and it seems that the responsive fire from the Spanish forts and ships was scarcely felt at all by the Americans.

Fortifications Riddled.

The fortifications near the entrance of the harbor are described as being riddled with solid shot, and shattered by the explosion of the immense shells fired by the American battleships. The Spanish batteries are understood to have been virtually silenced, and El Morro and the fortifications at Socapa and Punta Gorda are reported to have been demolished by the three hours uninterrupted hammering of the American fleet.

The American attack is said to have been specially directed against Aguadores, a small coast town a little to the east of the entrance of Santiago bay. The idea of the American admiral, it appears, was to land troops and siege guns there, after reducing the defences of the place, and thence make a determined and more close assault upon Santiago de Cuba, which, in view of the present condition of its fortifications, may be expected to yield very soon after the beginning of such an attack.

From the information obtainable it cannot be doubted that the net result of Monday's fighting was extremely disastrous to the Spanish defences.

Cubans Attacked by Rear.

It is also understood here that the Cuban trops maintained throughout the greater part of Monday an attack by land on Santiago de Cuba, and the Spanish reports say the garrison lost heavily in killed and wounded.

The military commander of Santiago de Cuba acknowledges the following killed among the land forces:

Colonel Ordonez, Captain Sanchez, Lieutenant Yrizar of the artillery, and Perez and Garcia, both Spanish officers. Their rank is not mentioned, however.

The Spaniards also admit the loss of twenty-one infantry soldiers severely wounded and say one soldier was killed. But it is believed the losses of the Spaniards were much more heavy.

In the naval force the Spaniards say that the officer who was second in command of the partly dismantled cruiser Reina Mercedes and five sailors and an ensign were killed. The wounded Spanish sailors, it is asserted, number sixteen men.

The loss on the American side, the Santiago de Cuba report says, is unknown.

The Spaniards asknowledge that a great deal of damage was inflicted on the Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes, and they say Morro Castle shows great gaping breaches in its walls.

THE SPANIARDS IN MONTREAL.

An Interesting Legal Fight in Prospect Over Carranza and Du Bosc.

Montreal, June 8—The writ of capias issued Monday against Lieutenant Carranza and Senor du Bosc, the Spanish agents here, is not returnable until six days hence, unless the Spaniards move for an immediate return. An interesting feature of the case is that the prosecution has secured seizure before judgment, in the hands of the Bank of Montreal. The legal fight is expected to be interesting when the cases come before the courts, and eminent counsel have been engaged on both sides. The capais case will probably come up today and it is said to be the intention of the defence, if they succeed in quashing the capias, to have Robert, the private detective, rearrested for malicious prosecution.

The Star's Ottawa dispatch says that the government has so far received no communication as to the reported movement for the deportation of the Spaniards from Canadian territory. The matter would be brought to the notice of the government by a communication from the colonial secretary to the governor general, by whom it would be forwarded to the Dominion cabinet. A delay of several days may intervene before the matter comes before the government.

Fleet Still at Cadiz.

London, June 8.—Reports from various sources state that Admiral Camara's fleet is still at Cadiz. It is detained there, it is alleged, because the government fears a revolution in the south of Spain if the Spaniards should be defeated.

REPORTS OF TWO ADMIRALS

Sampson and Cervera Each Tell How the Battle Went at Santiago Harbor.

Washington, June 8.—A dispatch from Rear Admiral Sampson, given out by the navy department late last night says:

"Bombarded forts at Santiago 7.30 to 10 a. m to-day, June 6.

"Have silenced works quickly without injury of any kind, though within 2,000 yards.

"SAMPSON."

Madrid, June 8.—The following official dispatch has been received from Admiral Cervera:

"Six American vessels have bombarded the fortifications at Santiago and along the adjacent coast.

"Six were killed and seventeen wounded on board the Reina Mercedes; three officers were killed and an officer and seventeen men were wounded among the troops.

"The Americans fired 1,500 shells of different calibre.

"The damage inflicted upon the batteries of La Socapa and Morro Castle was unimportant.

"The barracks at Morro Castle suffered damage.

"The enemy had noticeable losses."

DE TH OF COMMANDER STURDY.

Taken Suddenly Ill at Sea—To Be Buried To-day.

Key West, Fla., June 8.—The United States cruiser Pompey, formerly the British steamer Harlech, arrived here yesterday morning from Norfolk, Va., with her commander, Lieutenant Commander E. W. Sturdy, dead on board, and Lieutenant K. C. Norton in charge of the ship. Lieutenant Commander Sturdy was not feeling well when the Pompey sailed on Friday morning. He was taken ill off Cape Henry. He soon became unconscious and died. There was no physician on board.

He was born in Massachusetts fifty-one years ago, and had been in the service thirty-five years. He was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1864, and after his graduation took a special cruise in the Minnesota. He was commissioned a lieutenant in 1871, was temporary superintendent of the Nautical Almanac in 1882, assistant superintendent in 1883 and 1884, and afterward served at various stations and at the Washington navy yard. He reached the grade of lieutenant commander in April, 1892. His family lives at Annapolis. The interment took place here yesterday with fitting naval honors.

Oregon Republicans Win.

Portland, Ore., June 8.—Latest returns from elections show large Republican gains in every county of the state over the vote of 1896. Partial returns from twenty-five out of the thirty-two counties of the state show that Geer, Republican, for governor, will have about 10,000 plurality. Moody, Republican, for Congress, in the Second district, will have a plurality approaching 5,000. Tongue, Republican, is re-elected to Congress from the First district by more than 2,000 plurality.

The Legislature is overwhelmingly Republican, being made up as follows: Senate, Republicans 23, opposition 7; House, Republicans 44, opposition 16. The figures may be slightly changed by later returns.

Coal for Spain's Fleet

St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, June 8.—It has been learned from inside sources, unquestionably trustworthy, that the French trans-Atlantic liner Versailles is about to make an attempt to supply coal to the Spanish collier Alicante.

The Alicante was left behind when Cervera's fleet touched at Martinique, and is believed to have reached Porto Rico later.

The Versailles was loaded from lighters in St. Thomas harbor Monday night with 1,200 tons of coal, intended to be transferred to the Alicante, just outside the three mile jurisdiction of the St. Thomas authorities.

Spanish Ship Tries the Blockade.

Washington, June 8.—The state department has received a cablegram from Consul Dent, at Kingston, Jamaica, in which he states that it is reported there that a Spanish vessel carrying $60,000 to General Blanco, is endeavoring to reach Vera Cruz, Mexico.

It is probable that the vessel has attempted to run the blockade and after several unsuccessful attempts has been forced to seek the port of Vera Cruz for coal.

The cablegram was referred to the navy department, and a cruiser will no doubt be sent after this desirable prize.

Train Wrecked.

Cairo, W. Va., June 8.—The east bound passenger train No. 4, on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, due here at 8 a. m., Tuesday, was derailed a quarter of a mile west of this place. Engineer Hanway was fatally injured. Fireman Grith was slightly injured and two tramps, Dan Reardon and Thomas Peters, sustained broken legs. No passengers were hurt. The derailment was caused by a rock being placed on the track.

Bank Failure at Delhi.

Washington, June 8.—The comptroller of the currency has received a telegram announcing the failure of the Delaware National Bank of Delhi, N. Y.

In its last report the bank had individual deposits amounting to $28,973 and a surplus of $17,746. The capital of the bank was $100,000. The failure is said to be due to excessive loans.

More Bonds for New York.

New York, June 8.—The board of estimate have ordered the issue of bonds to the amount of $17,837,016.66, to pay for public improvements in the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx, authorized by the Strong administration in the closing months of 1897, but never issued, and of bonds to the amount of $2,487,823.66 for the new East river bridge.

EMBARKING FOR CUBA

The Troops at Tampa Are Ready to Sail.

DESTINED FOR SANTIAGO.

Officially Announced That the Men Will Sail Today or Thursday—They Will Reach Santiago Sunday—About 20,000 Regulars Will Go—Officials Speak Guardedly About Monday's Landing at Santiago.

Washington, June 8.—After the cabinet meeting yesterday Secretary Alger announced that he had received a telegram from General Shafter, at Tampa, stating that the troops at that place were being put on transports, and that they would all be embarked by this morning.

The telegram further stated that the vessels would sail for Santiago to-day or Thursday, and that they would arrive at Santiago by Sunday.

It is stated that between 18,000 and 20,000 regulars will be embarked.

This is the first official acknowledgement of the embarkation of troops. It is thought by some that General Shafter's telegram has been delayed several hours, and that the embarking began Monday night, as clearly understood here.

The statement that the regulars were going to sail does not controvert the statement that the siege trains and heavy artillery, as announced in these dispatches yesterday, have already landed in Santiago.

It was announced at the cabinet meeting that a telegram had been received from General Shafter and that the troops were already on board the transports.

No More Delay.

At the cabinet meeting the president expressed himself as dissatisfied with the delay in sending troops to Santiago and Porto Rico. The situation in regard to supplies and equipment, as reported officially by General Miles, was discussed, and it was further determined that there should be no further delay, and that the troops, which have been delayed on account of the blockade on the railroads, must be equipped and supplied speedily, and the movement to Cuba and Porto Rico begun at once.

The cabinet also discussed the situation at Manila, but expressed perfect confidence in Admiral Dewey's ability to handle the conditions there, and as reinforcements are already on the way to him, there was nothing that the cabinet could do but wait for reports from him after the United States soldiers have arrived. The president and his advisers felt great satisfaction over the work of the navy and the conduct of the war up to the present time, and now that every effort is being made to put the army in first class condition, the administration is confident that things will move along with rapidity and success.

The Reported Landing.

While the officials of the war department still deny that troops have landed at Santiago, they are particular to say that the army has not landed. They do not talk about he expedition of engineers, which, as stated in these dispatches, is the one which is supposed to have disembarked at Punta Cabrera, near Santiago. This expedition contained about a thousand soldiers with heavy siege guns, and as these were met by the insurgents, the latter having begun work on the roads leading to the hills back of Santiago, there can be little doubt that the siege guns are now being placed in position, if not already planted.

Grand Lodge of Masons.

New York, June 8.—At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons in the state of New York convened in its 117th annual communication, in the Masonic Temple, corner of Sixth avenue and Twenty-third street, Manhattan. Every seat in the large hall was occupied by representatives of the 743 lodges in the state, which have an active membership of over 85,000 Masons. Seated in the grand east, beside the grand lodge officers, were representative Masons from several states, all of whom were cordially welcomed by Grand Master William A. Sutherland.

Urgent Deficiency Bill.

Washington, June 8.—In the House yesterday Mr. Cannon, Republican of Illinois, called up the urgent war deficiency bill, as passed by the Senate, and moved to concur in the Senate amendments and add two House amendments, providing $70,000 for additional printing in the navy department and for work in the bureau of engraving and printing.

The motion prevailed.

Later the Senate concurred in the additional amendments of the House to the urgent deficiency bill.

Big Sea Going Tug.

Philadelphia, Pa. June 8.—The new sea going tug Dewitt C. Ivens was successfully launched Monday. The new boat takes the place of the old Dewitt C. Ivens, recently purchased by the government. The hull, which is steel, is 92 feet long, 19 feet beam, 10 feet two inches deep. It has been stated that the government may purchase this boat also.

She will be completed in less than a month.

The Belfast Riots.

Belfast, June 8.—All is quiet here today and troops were withdrawn yesterday. During the rioting yesterday 103 policemen were injured and more than one hundred civilians were treated at the hospitals.

A renewal of the disturbances is feared.

To Wed Her Fathers Enemy.

New York, June 8.—Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, the daughter of General Grant, is shortly to be married to General Henry Kyd Douglass of Maryland, at Mrs. U. S. Grant's residence, Bar Harbor, Me.

Mrs. U. S. Grant and Mrs. Sartoris leave for Bar Harbor this week.

are added to your veins by taking one of Dr. Campbell's Red Blood Forming Capsuloids with each meal three times daily. This is the only Natural Iron Medicine known. It is the Natural Iron extracted from fresh Bullocks' Blood.

Another letter from Mrs. Cummings, the wife of the prominent Insurance agent of Main Street, Syracuse, N. Y. She has improved so much by taking Capsuloids since she last wrote us that she has of her own accord sent the following communication:

THE CAPSULOID COMPANY, New York.

GENTLEMEN:—Since I last wrote you I have steadily improved in health, owing to your Capsuloids. The only drawback was due to a fall I got down stairs, but I rapidly recovered from that and feel that I am almost entirely cured, though I have been taking your Capsuloids only two months and my ailments were several years. The Capsuloids have cured my indigestion completely; my stomach, which was so sore that I was afraid to eat anything, will now digest anything I eat; my strength and color have increased. I still feel hot flushes at times, but I am improving so rapidly in every way that I will soon be rid of this. Both myself and my friends are surprised that such a terrible case of dyspepsia and indigestion as mine could be cured so quickly. It is all due to Capsuloids.

ASSIGNMENT OF VOLUNTEERS.

Eastern Regiments to Man Forts Along the Coast.

New York, June 8.—By an order issued at Governor's island yesterday the volunteer regiments now in camp in the department of the East are assigned to duty at various forts along the Atlantic coast. The regiments included in the order are the volunteers of this state, of Connecticut and of Pennsylvania. The commands are broken up and the men distributed along the coast from Delaware City to Bucksport, Me.

The Twenty-second regiment of this city is ordered to garrison the three forts which protect the entrance of the Sound to the East river. Some batteries were also ordered to be transferred from well garrisoned points to fortifications, the garrisons of which are somewhat weak.

Arrangements will be made for the transfer of the soldiers as soon as possible.

The order, which was issued by Brigadier General Royal T. Frank, commanding the department of the East, is as follows:

First regiment New York, Colonel Thomas H. Barber, stationed at Hempstead, L. I., to take station as follows: Colonel, headquarters, two companies, and unassigned field officers at Fort Columbus, Governor's island, to relieve Battery B of the Fifth Artillery; Battery B of the Fifth Artillery to go to Fort Slocum, leaving a detail of reliable sergeant, corporal, ten privates, one cook and sufficient mess furniture for detachment to act as prison guard; the lieutenant colonel, major and five companies to proceed to Fort Hamilton; a major and five companies to proceed to Fort Wadsworth.

The Twenty-second regiment, New York, Colonel Franklin Bartlett, is ordered to stations as follows: Colonel, headquarters, unassigned field officers and three companies to Fort Slocum; Major and four companies to Willet's Point; under direction of major general commanding United States army, one unassigned company to proceed to Willet's Point and report to Major John G. D. Knight, Corps of Engineers at that post, for duty under his orders at the engineers' depot and post at Willet's Point; major and four companies to proceed to Fort Schuyler.

The Forty-seventh regiment, New York, Colonel John G. Eddy, is ordered to stations as follows: Colonel, headquarters, unassigned field officers and four companies to state camp at Quansett, R. I., as a reserve; a lieutenant colonel, one major and six companies to Fort Adams, R. I.; two companies to Dutch island, R. I. Volunteer colonels will designate the majors and respective companies that are to be sent tents, necessary camp equipment and five days' rations to accompany each detail. Chief quartermaster to arrange transportation and hire camp grounds, if necessary.

The colonel, headquarters and unassigned field officers and companies of the First regiment, Connecticut, are ordered to proceed from Niantic, Conn., to Fort Knox, near Bucksport, Me.

Major E. Van A. Andrus and Battery L of the Fourth Artillery, now at Fort Delaware, and Battery M of the Fourth Artillery, now at Washington barracks, are ordered to Battery Point, Delaware City, a small guard of Battery M to be left to guard government property.

The Fourteenth Pennsylvania, Colonel William J. Glenn, now at Mount Gretna, Pa., is ordered to stations as follows: Colonel, headquarters, unassigned field officers and six companies to Fort Mott, N. J.; lieutenant colonel and two companies to Fort Delaware.

The Eighteenth Pennsylvania, Colonel Norman M. Smith, now at Mount Gretna, Pa., is ordered to Delaware City, to take station as soon as camp grounds can be provided. Under command of major general commanding United States army, one company is ordered to take station at Alliance, O., to guard gun plants there and report to commanding general of department of the lakes at Chicago.

The Fifteenth Pennsylvania, now at Mount Gretna, Pa., Colonel William A. Krep, is ordered to stations as follows: Colonel, headquarters, unassigned field officers and six companies to proceed to Sheridan's Point, Va.; Lieutenant colonel and two companies to Fort Washington, Md.

THE BUFFALO SAFE.

Former Brazilian Warship Arrives at Hampton Roads.

Washington, D. C., June 8.—Word has been received at the navy department that the Buffalo, formerly the Nictheroy, had arrived in Hampton Roads yesterday from Brazil.

She will be given a modern armament of quick firing guns and will be prepared for service. Her commander will be Captain Hemphill, now in this city.

War Disabilities No More.

Washington, June 8.—The last vestige of political distinction between the North and the South was obliterated yesterday when the president signed the bill which recently passed Congress, removing all political and military disabilities from men who fought in the armies of the Confederacy.

The passage of the bill in the House was made the occasion of warm expressions of pleasure, both on the part of northern and southern men, that the sections were now thoroughly reunited.

For Thirsty Klondikers.

Vancouver, B. C., June 8.—W. D. Stracey and S. Liebert, rich Englishmen, will start from here for Dawson with a unique outfit in a few days. They are taking up on a river steamer of their own a complete hotel, with a piano and other musical instruments, and an enormous supply of liquor for Dawson miners. The steamer will be towed to St. Michael's and will be run up the river. Much surprise was caused when Stracey made public the fact that he was taking a supply of liquor. He told a newspaper correspondent that he was authorized to take liquor to the Yukon, but whether from the Northwest or Dominion government he would not say. The whole outfit cost $75,000 and is most complete.

Washington Belle Weds.

Washington, June 8.—Miss Alice Belknap, daughter of the late General W. W. Belknap, secretary of war in the cabinet of General Grant, was married yesterday to Mr. Barclay Henry of Philadelphia. Miss Belknap has been a reigning belle and is a beautiful woman.

EXPEDITION TO MANILA

Men Pleased that Gen. Greene Is to Be the Commander.

TROOPS IN HIS COMMAND.

Brigadier General Greene to Command—Fourth United States Cavalry Ordered Ready for Service in the Philippines—Possible That the Red Cross Society Will Send a Ship Along in the Future.

San Francisco, June 8.—The men who will compose the second Manila expedition are pleased that Brigadier General Greene is to be their commander. Besides being a splendid soldier, he has a record as a diplomat and manager of business enterprises. He has been decorated in Europe for bravery, is an author of repute and an active member of several scientific societies. It is surmised that his diplomatic experience will be of service to General Merritt in the government of the Philippines.

The troops which will be under his command are the First Colorado volunteers, the Tenth Pennsylvania volunteers, part of the Eighteenth and Twenty-third United States infantry, and either the Utah Light Artillery or the Third United States Artillery.

General Greene visited the camp of the Tenth Pennsylvania regiment, and, before making himself known to any of the officers of the regiment, inspected the company streets, visited the cook tents, looked in at the guard house and examined the hospital. He then introduced himself to Colonel Hawkins and spent nearly an hour in the camp, seeing about the road, asking about the condition of the regiment, asking about the health of the men, their proficiency in drill and the amount and kind of drilling to which they were daily subjected. General Greene stated that the China would be his flagship and that General Merritt would not accompany the second expedition.

Fourth Cavalry to Go.

Orders have been received at the Presidio for the Fourth United States Cavalry to make ready for service in the Philippines. The instructions given to Colonel Morris were to have six troops go to Manila within two weeks. He answered that the men were ready now. It was finally decided that the cavalrymen should take horses to the number of 400. If the animals are transferred without much loss and stand the climate in the islands, another regiment of cavalry will probably be sent on later.

The court martial appointed by Major General Otis has organized, with Colonel G. B. Patton, First Nebraska, president, and Lieutenant Bener Smith judge advocate. One of the most interesting cases that will come before the court will be that of John Campbell, officer in the Tenth Pennsylvania, who has been under arrest ever since the regiment left Mount Gretna, Pa., for the alleged cutting of the breeches of a negro striker who belonged to Company C of the Pennsylvania Artillery, which was then camped at Mount Gretna.

General Merritt has ordered Company F of the Washington volunteer regiment to go to Angel island for garrison duty. It is only a temporary assignment, as the company has been promised it will be allowed to go to Manila in case its regiment is orderel to that place.

The total amount subscribel to the Red Cross Society of California is now $39,120. Thirteen thousand bandages for the troops going to Manila have been packed, and 7,000 more will be ready by the time the next expedition sails. The women of the entire state are taking an active interest in the movement. Boxes of oranges are daily received from the southern and central counties. The Sam Yup Chinese Society has contributed $112 to the fund.

A Hospital Ship.

The Red Cross Society of Oakland is agitating for the purchase of a hospital ship to be sent to Manila. It would cost about $300,000. The National Society, it is reported, will sanction the plan.

The City of Para, due from Panama yesterday, is likely to be one of the third fleet of transports to leave the city.

IN RECEIVER'S HANDS.

The Arkell and Judge Companies to Go Into Voluntary Liquidation.

New York, June 8.—Justice Lawrence of the supreme court yesterday appointed J. Warren Green receiver for the Judge Publishing Company of No. 110 Fifth avenue, in proceedings brought by stockholders for a dissolution of the corporation. The liabilities are about $425,000.

Bartlett Arkell has been appointed receiver for the Arkell Publishing Company of No. 110 Fifth avenue, on application of William J. Arkell and other directors for a voluntary dissolution of the corporation. Justice Lawrence fixed the bond of the receiver at $150,000. The liabilities are reported to be over $600,000.

Commercial paper of the company was put in the hands of brokers for discount and taken by banks to the amount of $451,000, and $118,245 is due this month. Seven city banks and trust companies hold paper to the amount of from $20,000 to $50,000 each, some secured by bonds of the Arkell Company.

The assets include, among other things, insurance policies for $55,000 on the life of William J. Arkell, Texas lands, Klondike mining stock, a note executed by B. Arkell scheduled as worthless, and a claim of $50 against Russell B. Harrison, and a claim of $331,000 against the Judge Publishing Company.

The receiver will get authority from the courts to continue the various publications, which will require an outlay of $3,000 weekly.

A Successful Expedition.

Key West, Fla., June 8.—The Fanita arrived here Monday night and reports the successful landing on the coast of Cuba of the Rodriguez expedition, which sailed from Mobile, Ala., several weeks ago.

REBELS CLOSING ON MANILA.

Foreigners Not Believed to Be in Imminent Danger.

London, June 8.—A dispatch to the Times from Manila, referring to the fighting of May 30 and June 1, says the Spanish loss in killed, wounded and prisoners was heavy. But, the correspondent adds, the most serious feature of all for Spain is the defection of hundreds of native auxiliaries. He adds:

"One native regiment deserted after killing its officers and massacreing a company of Spanish infantry, and rebels and former rebels on both sides have been shot because they were suspected of treachery to their respective generals.

"The Spaniards are endeavoring by every means to retain the rebels, who are attracted by promises of pardon and high offices.

"But General Aguinaldo's attraction is stronger. He has completely surrounded Manila by cutting the railroads and holding the rivers by which food had previously reached the city. If the city is not starved into surrender the rebels may carry it, having now an increasing number of rifles and field guns.

"General Aguinaldo's treatment of the Spanish prisoners is exemplary. Few excesses are reported except where priests were mutilated before being killed.

"Admiral Dewey is not assisting the rebels, but it is probably due to him that Aguinaldo's forces avoid excesses.

"Foreigners, with the exception of the French nuns, remain in Manila, but are ready to board the refugee steamers as soon as necessity arrives.

CHEERS FOR NEW HAVEN CREWS.

They Will Leave for New London Quarters To-Morrow.

Cambridge, Mass., June 8.—Harvard's 'varsity and freshman crews rowed over the Charles river course yesterday afternoon for the last time this season. To-day both crews leave for New London, where they will at once begin training for the big race.

If cheering has anything to do with a victory, the Crimson oarsmen will make a creditable showing this year. No less than 1,500 men formed in the yard, and, headed by the Harvard band, marched to the river to give the men a send off.

The 'varsity rowed up and down, while cheers were sent up for each individual in the crew and for both crews collectively. Coach Lehmann was given three times three repeatedly, as was also Mr. Willis. After the cheering the band again led the procession and the men marched back to the yard where they concluded their enthusiastic celebrations.

The final order of the crew as rowed was as follows: Dobyns, stroke; Riddle, No. 7; Perkins, No. 6; Harding, No. 5; Higginson, No. 4; Wadsworth, No. 3; Blake, No. 2; Derby, bow.

WAR REVENUE BILL.

Conference Committee May Present Its Report To-Day.

Washington, June 8.—The confrerees of the two houses of Congress on the war revenue bill resumed their sitting promptly at 10 o'clock yesterday.

The impression is growing that the committee is determined to conclude its work promptly and that he report will be presented before the close of the present week.

When the conference adjourned, at noon, Senator Allison expressed the opinion that it would be able to report to the Senate and House to-day. He said that excellent progress was being made, but that it was impossible for the present to give details of the proceedings.

ST. PAUL READY TO LEAVE.

Cruiser Is Still Coaling, but Sailing Orders Are Expected at Any Time.

New York, June 8.—The cruiser St. Paul is still off Tompkinsville taking on coal and supplies. Captain Sigsbee is on board the vessel, having returned from the conference in Washington, and the order "up anchor" is expected at almost any minute. The immense amount of coal and provisions put in the St. Paul's hold since her arrival here last Friday leads to the supposition that the cruiser will be sent out for mid-ocean scouting duty. It is rumored that she will take on heavier guns, and, in company with the St. Louis, Yale and Harvard, sail for Spain. Nothing definite is known, however. 4,300 tons of coal have been placed in storage.

BIG GUNS TO BE MOVED.

Bids Opened for Their Transportation to Various Places.

New York, June 8.—The quartermaster's depot in the Army building yesterday opened bids for the transportation of a large number of breech-loading rifles, weighing in the aggregate 725,800 pounds. The guns are of 8, 10 and 12-inch calibre and are to be sent from the proving grounds at Sandy Hook to their various destinations. The invitations to bid on transportation are as follows:

"Two 12-inch rifles from Sandy Hook, N. J., to Nantucket Head, Mass.; two 8-inch rifles to Hilton Head, near Port Royal, S. C.; two 8-inch rifles to Jerry's Point, Portsmouth, N. H.; one 12-inch rifle to Fort Schuyler; one 8-inch, one 10-inch and one 12-inch rifle to Alliance, O.; one 8-inch rifle to Cleveland, O."

Another Decline in Wheat.

Chicago, June 8.—A further decline in the July wheat delivery, occurred at the opening of trade yesterday morning. The decline extended to the other deliveries to a lesser degree. It reflected a weak English wheat market and very favorable crop reports from the wheat growing districts of the West. The Kansas state crop report, made public yesterday, proved a record breaker, putting the condition of winter wheat at 103.

The government crop report for the entire wheat territory, due on Thursday, it was predicted will show a general condition of about 90.

The Spaniard Must Go.

Ottawa, June 8.—The official notification from the British government that Lieutenant Carranza and Senor du Bosc must get out of Canada has reached the government and it is now under discussion. The order came from the Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary to the governor general, and was by the governor general transmitted to the cabinet.

Returning Confederate Flags.

When there is a family quarrel, a bitter one even, the members of that family after they have made friends do not preserve in their records any traces of the dispute for strangers to obtain possession of and make sneering comment on. They destroy everything which reminds them of the former enmity and are more devoted to one another than they were before to make up for the temporary alienation.

It is in this spirit that Lieutenant Colonel Theodore F. Allen of the Seventh Ohio cavalry during the civil war and now a prominent business man of Cincinnati makes the recommendation that at the coming reunion of the G. A. R. action be taken to return to their original owners the Confederate flags captured in 1861-5. These flags are held as trophies of victory in some of the northern state capitals and elsewhere. The G. A. R. meets in Cincinnati in September. Colonel Allen is of opinion that it will be the last large reunion of the veterans of 1861, because they are dying so rapidly. He believes the ceremony of returning the old Confederate battleflags will mark the final and complete reconciliation of "Yank" and "Johnny" and destroy, so far as the north is concerned, all trace of the difference.

Colonel Allen himself was a brave and honored officer in Wilson's cavalry corps and had his share of hard fighting. It is a graceful act on the part of an officer like this to inaugurate the move to send back the southern flags to those who first possessed them. It will be still more graceful if the Grand Army of the Republic indorses the action and unanimously votes to restore the captured banners. The cause they represent is only a memory now, but a memory which not even a northerner would lose, for from the civil war dates America's real greatness as a nation.

Colonel Allen bases the restitution of the southern flags on the fact that we all are one now and there is only one flag, Old Glory—may she wave forever! Fitz-Hugh Lee and Joseph Wheeler are major generals in the United States army, appointed and commissioned by a Republican president, who knows their worth. There are 50,000 Confederates and sons of Confederates at present in the United States army. We are one, one and inseparable, now and forever. So, says Colonel Allen, give back the flags of the lost cause to fair southland.

In the house committee on election of president, vice president and members of congress there slumbers, waiting a convenient moment to wake up, a bill to extend to four years the term of the representatives. This would be a good plan perhaps, as most representatives require a considerable portion of the first term to learn the business. Then, too, most representatives are honored by a re-election, which virtually gives them a term of four years. It would save trouble and expense to elect them for four years in the first place. Somebody solemnly declares, however, that if representatives be elected for four years then the term of a senator should be extended to eight years. Well, no; not if we know it. More than once in the history of this country after the people had declared by a heavy vote that they desired certain legislation by congress the senate has sat in the way and blocked it month after month, an immovable obstacle. Senators for eight years? No, thank you. If they are useful and popular during the six years' term, each man of them has opportunity to be chosen again.

Real estate belongs in the country in which it is situated. It cannot be taken away. That is the reason why a citizen of one country cannot inherit real estate in another unless he goes to the country where the estate is and becomes a citizen there. This is the law of nations, although there are ways of getting around it. Citizens of Spain who own property here may by international usage have their property confiscated, but it is not at all likely this would be done under ordinary circumstances. It would open the door for violent reprisals. Citizens of Spain who on the outbreak of the war declared their intention of becoming American citizens would be entitled to protection for their property the same as other citizens.

In round numbers 18,000 miles was the distance traveled by the Oregon in her journey round Cape Horn to the West Indies. Counting out stops, she made the trip in two months. That she made it in such time without a break to her machinry is a splendid tribute to American shipbuilding, particularly that of the Pacific coast, where her keel was laid. The fact shows that a vessel of the heavy battleship type can be constructed so as to make very fair speed.

No state can now forbid the sale of intoxicating liquors within its borders or the transportation of such liquors through its territory. The United States supreme court has decided that such a law would be an interference with a citizen's right to earn his living in any way he chose that is not forbidden by generally recognized law and custom.

One of the most pleasing sights in this Union just now is an American millionaire who is a robust patriot and all round manly man and not a dude and a milk and water traitor.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News, but Just as Interesting.

The attention of a Press reporter was called to an interesting fact in regard to the board of managers of the New York Produce Exchange yesterday. Out of the fifteen members who constitute the board of managers, four are residents of this city. E. T. Barrows is vice-president, and Henry McGee, F. H. Andrews and John Valiant are members of the board.

William Montgomery Smith, of this city, whose work as an advertising artist is recognized thoroughout the land by the cleverness and forcibleness of his ideas, is now devoting considerable time in preparing illustrations for The Owl, one of the popular magazines. Monday Mr. Smith finished the illustrated title page for the July number of The Owl. It is ardently patriotic in the idea and displays exceptional artistic taste and ability in execution.

The absence of the wheeling public in this city on Sundays and holidays is very noticeable by the restaurant keepers and druggists who used to cater to this trade, particularly four years ago. On Sunday last, an ideal day for bicycle riding, there were not over 150 wheelmen who took dinner at McVey's restaurant, while five years ago, it was nothing unusual to feed 1000. Then the only good roads led in this vicinity; now there are good roads, better ones than those that lead here, from New York to Coney Island, South Beach and in every direction.

Samantha at Saratoga, in a New Dress.

One of the funniest of all the the funny books is certainly "Samantha at Saratoga." Will Carleton pronounces it "delicious humor" and Bishop Newman says it is "bitterest satire, coated with the sweetest of exhiliarating fun." Formerly published by subscription at the price of $2.50, and sold, it is said, by the hundred thousand, it has recently been issued in an exquisite little cloth-bound volume in the "Cambridge Classics" series by the celebrated cheap-book publishers, Hurst & Co., of New York, as a means of widely advertising that series, and is sold at the fabulously low price at 25 cents. It would seem strange if they should not sell a million of them. They are sold by booksellers, or the publishers direct.

They also furnished the flowers for the Kennedy-Bond wedding yesterday and set pieces for Mrs. Ellen Dougherty's funeral at Dunellen this morning.

About a Plainfield Industry.

The fact that "Scott presses always satisfy" is born out by the experience of Beriah Wilkins, publisher of the Washington (D. C.) Post, who, writing some time ago, expressed his entire satisfaction with the two Scott perfecting presses in use in the office of the Post. That this expression was sincere is proved by his recent order for another three-tiered Scott machine, which is now being installed, making two presses of that pattern to be used in printing the Post. In the advertisement of Walter Scott & Company, on another page, Mr. Wilkin's testimonial to his Scott presses brings out the fact that, in all the years of use, but $50 had been spent on repairs to the two presses, and this through no fault in the presses. This is a wonderful record, but no more so than that made by every machine bearing the name of Scott.—Newspaperdom.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials Address,

IMPORTANT!

It is important to be in close touch with the headquarters of Fashion, otherwise the new things as they appear in New York are never brought to this section.

We have a standing order with the most reliable houses to send us as soon as received THE LATEST STYLES, therefore we show the new fashionable articles almost as soon as New York.

It is this fact which puts us in the front rank among the fashionable people.

The stamp of correctness in style marks our merchandise.

You Can Depend On Us.

There is not a piece of goods in our store that is not dependable goods in every sense. Not a piece that we do not stand back of and guarantee that it is just as it is represented to be. That it is perfect in style, quality and price. We are not a cheap store in the sense that we sell cheap goods, you'll find plenty of that kind anywhere, but selling the quantities that we do we are able to offer you reliable goods at quite a price saving. And that is where your interest in our store comes in, the more we sell the closer we can make our margins. We want you to feel that you have an interest in our store as well as us. Make it your shopping home, make use of it every way you can. The more you use it the better you will like it and the better it will serve you. Then, again, you are always welcome to come here and look. There is hardly a day passes but sees something new added to our stock. The very newest things are here, and leaving out the price difference, would it not pay you to at least have a look at the goods?

You will find the assortment just as large here as anywhere you go; you'll find the prices less. We think we are showing the handsomest collection of goods we ever had. We believe the way to get people to come to our store is to give them all that's possible in style, quality and quantity for their money—that isn't always done in every store, but it is here. Everything is sold for a small profit, no matter how much the excellence of the article may suggest or justify a different course. It's done that way because it pays best in the long run, and this store is here to stay.

No License for Orchetti.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, June 8.—The application of Nicholas Orchetti, of Westfield, for a wholesale beer bottler's license, was refused Monday by Judge Vail in the Union County Court of Common Pleas. The man had been in business for some years, but tavern and hotel keepers in Westfield discovered, they alleged, that he was retailing his beer to people on the sly and that they filed a protest with the Court. Judge Vail's decision drives Orchetti out of the business.

Three ways

in which you can get a Piano from us:

ONE.—You can pay cash for it, and thus save the slight additional charge for time payments. The house that says: "No extra charge for instalments" is insincere; it has a lower price for cash, or else it doesn't want to sell except on time.

TWO.—Easy time payments; in most instances a first payment of TEN DOLLARS will secure a Piano at once. Later payments according to your ability.

THREE.—You can rent a new Upright of your own choosing at as low as $4. per month, and if you decide to purchase within a reasonable time we'll allow all the rent you have paid.

All three ways are good ways.

PLAINFIELD'S
BUSIEST STORE
We Sell Goods Cheaper Than All Other Stores.

Your Dollar

Often represents hours of toil. When that dollar is spent, it should command its full buying power. To give it that power is one of the principles of this store. Our public knows this and appreciate the efforts which this store is constantly making to give them a bigger dollar's worth than they can get elswhere. We have made it possible for your dollar to do extra duty on

These Lots.

Bargains in Summer Underwear.

We don't think you ever bought reliable underwear at such prices as these. Changing time now and a good time to buy the summer underwear. We tell of five items that are priced at half value.

Store Notes.

Some exclusive styles in neckwear for ladies have just arrived. In one of the front show cases is a beautiful assortment of new shirt waist sets, belt pins, stick pins, etc. In another case are some pretty styles in new parasols. A first pick here is worth something. Fifty styles of sheer printed organdies, lawns and dimities. The price argument should make you a buyer. You would price them at 20c, you buy them at 12c while they last. On one of the front counters is a lot of fine India linens and jaconettes, short lengths, value from 20 to 25c. You buy them at 10 and 12c.
While in the store visit the carpet, rug and matting department We are naming low prices on certain lots of rugs and mattings that will be of interest to you.

Edward White.

In Steel Blue Taffeta.

The blouse minus its basque, and with open front, filled in with a loose pouched vest, and with broad revers turned back on either side, forms a charming bodice which bears no resemblance to the Russian blouse, yet is characteristic of the baggy type that is now so fashionable.

A decidedly elegant confection is of steel blue taffeta, the skirt is cut in two parts, upper and lower part added in a flounce. The flounce is attached to the yoke with an embroidered band of taffeta, and the skirt is made over a separate lining of soft taffeta. The corsage is of the taffeta, while the vest is of cream colored embroidered satin.

Lovely Picture Hats.

Full broad ostrich plumes in black, white, yellow, pink, mauve, or gray are used on round hats of chip, Milan braid, Leghorn, or Cuban straw. There is no conglomeration of trimmings on hats from Paris thus decorated, a band of broad satin or velvet ribbon around the crown, and perhaps a few handsome loops and a costly buckle, being the only additional garnitures. These elegant hats stand out in marked contrast to the majority of greatly overladen head-coverings of the season, and are decidedly the most desirable and beautiful models among the vast exhibit of summer styles. Notably handsome are the fine French Leghorn picture hats trimmed with pure white ostrich plumes and Venetian lace, white satin loops, and a buckle of scintillating French brilliants.

Airy feather aigrettes and Paradise plumage are still used on large round hats.

Some of the new sailor hats are finished with a roll of straw all around the edge of the brim.

This promises to be "a white summer" in dressy gowning, just as black, touched up with a becoming color, proved a very favorite style of dress during the winter and early spring seasons.

How to Preserve the Teeth.

A very little time spent each day in the care of the teeth will more than amply repay one for the trouble that may be taken. White teeth are within reach of everyone, and it is only the people who object to taking any trouble who suffer from this neglect. It is not only personal appearance that is concerned, but also health, as indigestion and various other ills follow in the train of badly-kept teeth. Everybody should consider it a duty to brush the teeth twice a day at least, in the morning and evening. Some people who are noted for the beauty of their teeth brush them after every meal; while if a man who is a smoker makes a point of brushing them after every pipe he indulges in, he will avoid that yellow tint so frequently seen on the teeth of inveterate smokers, besides keeping that disagreeable smell of stale tobacco at a distance.

Dainty Little Capes.

Dainty little capes for piazza wear and summer evening fetes and concerts are made of satin brocade—often a cream or cameo-pink or palest seagreen ground figured with small exquisitely tinted flowers and leaves. These are made in Cavalier or Henri II shapes, short and full about the shoulders, and finished with a standing collar of jewelled passementerie en applique, with very full pleatings of tulle or chiffon above and below this collar, with a huge scarf of the same to tie under the chin. The capes are gayly lined with a contrasting color, and the smart little head covering has garnitures that match the lining—the soft, Suede gloves are in tint.

Turquoise Blue Evening Waist.

A lovely evening corsage which would be youthful and becoming to nearly every style of figure is of turquoise blue china silk cut with a round decolletage. The material in the front is tucked in groups of three and a full frill of white chiffon outlines the top of the blouse. The ruffle which is used in lieu of a sleeve is of the material tucked. The waist is girdled by a sash of chiffon which ties at the side with full loops and the ends fall gracefully nearly to the hem of the skirt. A large bunch of flowers is worn on the left shoulder.

You Should Speak Correctly.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Frances, "I've had such a wearying ride. I had to pump up my bicycle six times during the afternoon."

"Indeed!" said Ethel, "I've never pumped up my bicycle once since I've bought it."

"Well, you were lucky to always have some man near to pump it up for you."

"No, that isn't it, either. It has never been pumped up, although I've had it a year."

"I never heard of a bicycle which didn't require pumping up frequently. You must have remarkable tyres never to need inflating."

"Oh, I have to inflate my tyres, but that was not what you said. You spoke of pumping up your bicycle."

Blue and White China Silk.

A dainty gown for home wear is made of figured blue and white china silk, combined with plain white silk. The skirt, of the figured material has a flounce of plain white, made quite deep in the back and coming almost to a point in the front. This flounce is headed by two tiny ruches of blue satin ribbon.

The corsage is quite unique, being of the plain material, shirred at the top to form a yoke. Bands of the figured silk edged with the ribbon trimming crosses the bodice twice, ending under the arm. The sleeves are of the plain, shirred goods with three small epaulets, trimmed with blue satin ribbon.

Where Good People Go.

The Sunday-school teacher had reached a point in the lesson where she was dwelling upon the future reward of those who behaved properly here, when the audacious small boy, who frequents most Sunday-schools, spoke up and asked if all good people went to Heaven.

"Certainly," replied the teacher.

"Well, has my grandmother gone to Heaven?" persisted the youngster.

"Surely she has, my boy, if she was a good woman."

"No, she hasn't," declared the fun-loving youngster, "there she is over there!"

The teacher turned to other phases of the lesson.

Lace on Gowns.

The great diversity in ways and means of manipulating lace or any other variety of trimming which can be applied to gowns, is certainly an expressive tribute to the versatile genius of the dress designers this season. Everything which has ever been used for this purpose has been revived, in addition to all the real novelties, and the new possibilities have already been fully demonstrated. It would be impossible to describe the latest styles of even a small portion of the garnitures which have gained place and favor of this error of toleration, for the effects, as a rule, are too intricate and elaborate to make a description of them understood.

The Photograph Fan.

To the monogram fan have now succeeded fans ornamented with small photographs. These are usually blue prints taken by a pocket kodak, and are not so often of individuals as of some article or scene about which associations linger. A young woman who has been a very popular maid of honor during the spring wedding season has on her fan pictures of no less than six bridal bouquets, each interesting to her because of the distinguished service she rendered on the auspicious occasion upon which it was carried.

Cooking Asparagus.

The most approved cooking of asparagus prescribes that the bunch should be stood in a saucepan with the green tops fully two inches clear of the liquid. The steam will cook the tender part of the stalk sufficiently, while the tougher end is thus longer under the influence of the boiling water.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Oesterreich.

Wien. Nachdem die Herzogin Luise von Coburg-Cohary als geisteskrank in der Döblinger Irrenanstalt untergebracht worden ist, hat man ihren Begleiter, mit dem sich ihr Gemahl geschlagen hat, den sogenannten Grafen v. Mattachich-Keglevich, in Ungarn wegen riesiger Wechselfälschungen auf hohe Namen und wegen Betrugs verhaftet.—Hier ist der Baurath und Bankdirektor der Wiener Baugesellschaft, Carl Schumann, im Alter von 70 Jahren gestorben. Der Verstorbene, bekannt als Erbauer des Wiener Staatsbahnhofes, stammte aus Eßlingen in Württemberg.—In vollster körperlicher und geistiger Frische feierte der bekannte Mechaniker Herr Hermann Schörß seinen 80. Geburtstag.

Baden. Das Denkmal, das die Kaiserin für den Kronprinzen Rudolf in ihrem Schlosse Achilleion auf Corfu errichten ließ, wurde jüngst mit vielen anderen Kunstschätzen nach Oesterreich gebracht, da das Schloß zum Verkaufe gelangt. Dieser Tage traf das Denkmal hier ein und wurde dann nach Mayerling transportirt, wo es vor dem Kloster auf einem Hügel aufgestellt wird.

Bozen. Der Gemeinderath hat beschlossen, die Zinsengarantieleistung von 15,000 Gulden für das von hier aus verfochtene Projekt der Fleimsthalbahn zu bewilligen.

Brüx. Am Jupiterschacht bei Kommern erfolgte durch Verbruch zweier ausgeförderter Abbaue ein Schlammeinbruch in die Grube, wobei ein Steiger und ein Pumpenwärter tödtliche Verletzungen erlitten.

Budapest. Hier wurden die Inhaber der Zündholzfabrik von Markus Klein u. Co. zu 100 Gulden Strafe verurtheilt, weil sie ihre Fabrikate in Schachteln in den Handel gebracht hatten, welche die Bildnisse Lassalles und Marx' sowie die Aufschrift „Proletarier aller Länder, vereinigt Euch!" trugen.

Graz. Der Ehrenrath des hiesigen Offizierskorps hat die Degradirung von 47 Reserve-Offizieren zu gemeinen Soldaten verfügt, weil sie sich nachweislich an den stürmischen Anti-Badeni-Demonstrationen im Monat November v. J. betheiligt haben.

Salzburg. Aus Gram über gegen ihn ausgestreute Verleumdungen hat der Rabbiner Bach seinem Leben ein gewaltsames Ende gemacht. Als Werkzeug zur Ausführung des Selbstmordes hat er sich des von ihm so oft gehandhabten Schächtermessers bedient.

Tysmienica. Hier sind 300 Wohnhäuser durch eine große Feuersbrunst vollständig in Asche gelegt worden. Man vermißt eine Anzahl Personen, die vermuthlich in den Flammen umgekommen sind.

Schweiz.

Bern. Der Jahresbericht des rund 14,000 Mitglieder zählenden Schweizerischen Gewerkschaftsbundes verzeichnet für 1897 im Ganzen 51 Lohnbewegungen und 21 Strikes. Von den Bewegungen um Lohn verliefen 18 erfolgreich, 25 mit theilweisem Erfolg und 8 ohne Erfolg; von den Strikes waren 9 erfolgreich, 6 brachten theilweisen Erfolg und 6 verliefen erfolglos. Der größte Theil der Ausgaben der Bundeskasse entfällt auf Strikeunterstützungen.

Zürich. Die Direktion der Nordostbahn hat die Frage untersucht, ob nicht die bisherige Beleuchtung des Bahnhofes Zürich, die ganz vorwiegend durch Gas geschieht, nicht durch ein einheitliches System der elektrischen Beleuchtung ersetzt werden soll, und sie beantragt nun beim Verwaltungsrath, daß er ihr hierfür einen Kredit von 550,000 Francs gewähre. Es soll der Bahnhof Zürich durch eine Kraftcentrale (Dampfanlage) mit Elektrizität beleuchtet werden und durch eine Ladestation auch die Beleuchtung der Personenwagen erfolgen. Die einmaligen Anlagekosten werden auf 75,000 Francs beziffert und gleichwohl soll die Neuerung eine Ersparniß bedeuten.

Graubünden. Für die Deutsche Heilstätte für minderbemittelte Lungenkranke in Davos hat ein im Februar d. J. in Berlin verstorbener Arzt aus Hannover als Betriebsreserve 100,000 Mark letztwillig hinterlassen. Das Davoser Heilstätten-Komite verfügt außerdem zur Stunde über ein Baukapital von 116,000 Mark und bedarf zum Bau aus Deutschland noch weiterer 100,000 Mark. Hierdurch darf die Verwirklichung der Deutschen Heilstätte in Davos heute schon als gesichert angesehen werden.

Your Home---
Let Us Help You "Fix it Up"
Spring's the time you give yourself new duds. Better clothe the home too. No better season—none more appropriate. But be chary of what you get and how deep you go into that purse.
Here, you'll find our 40 years' experience a help in picking out sensible things—no chance of poor choosing, for our 3 acres of Furniture and Carpets are best from A to Z.
Mayhap you're not ready to spare but a scanty sum. Then our credit terms of 75c a week will "bridge you over." And none but cash prices, even if it be credit terms!

$10.75 —same as cut. Nothing new about the price we know full well—but there's a lot new about the suit at such a price. Of solid oak, well finished and well shaped—if you want other shapes, we've 100 here up to $150.

But a trifle for so good a Sideboard as this. $13.95 Not a haphazard, thrown-together affair, but as substantial as honest talent knows how to make it. And there are other good boards here too—from $9.75 to $100. A grand showing.

How About Your Refrigerator?
Pay us $5.49—get a hardwood refrigerator that ought to tax your means for one-half more—$5.49 pays for not only one refrigerator, but covers cost of a fine galvanized pick, tongs and pan that go along with it—another proof of "Amos H. Van Horn, Ltd." liberality! As spick and span a refrigerator stock as Jersey ever saw—dozens of kinds, all new in idea and small in price!

Two Summer Cooking Helps
The "Wickless Blue Flame Oil Stove" and the "Monarch Vapor Stove." Two marvels of inventive genius, as easy to run 'em as can be—no instructions—no worrying valves, etc. Call—we'll operate them for you. We've the "Insurance" and "Quickmeal" Vapor Stoves too.

THE UNSEEN SINGER.

I was alone in the little seaside town, the solace of work being denied me because of the illness that had brought me there to seek for health

I had been perhaps a fortnight in the place when first I saw the lady of whom I would tell you. It was only for a moment as she drove past in the company of an older woman, but that moment's sight was enough to fill my thoughts until I saw her again upon the morrow. She was beautiful beyond all words; I fancied she could hardly have passed the age of twenty; and speech and hearing had been denied her. She was talking with her fingers to the elderly lady, her companion, in whose eyes as they looked on the girl I saw an infinite pity expressed.

On the next day, at about the same hour, the carriage passed along the length of the promenade. She was still innocently glad to be alive, and content to accept her burden. It was with a gentle smile that she looked into the pitying eyes of her companion, and I could fancy that the messages she was conveying with swiftly moving fingers were humorous appreciations of what she saw around her.

My earlier questions had been addressed to a quaint, elderly waiter at the hotel—a man who had in some sort made it his especial task to see to my well-being, and who was the nearest approach to a friend I possessed within a hundred miles of the place. It happened that I was lunching at the open window one day when the carriage passed, a little earlier than usual.

"That is the lady of whom I was speaking," I said to him.

He looked out of the window with quick interest. A dear little maid, if I may say so. Yes, and the girl is deaf and dumb; she's talkin' upon her fingers. Well, I thought from what you told me they must be strangers in these parts, and so they are. I don't even know the horses nor the carriage."

Thus passed a period of several days. I had, on divers occasions, set forth on foot and explored the coast and the inland lanes for myself. I went alone, but never felt the absence of companions, for my expeditions always took place before or after the hour at which she might be expected to pass along the promenade, and so my thoughts were always busy, whether with anticipation or remembrance.

Never once did she fail me; never once did her affliction seem to mar the beautiful gaiety of her mood. It appeared that she saw and enjoyed every little thing that could be seen; nor was it altogether a young man's vanity that made me wonder whether she had noticed the fact that a certain sallow invalid was always idling on the promenade at the hour when she drove by.

I had come to understand the routine of their daily outing. They were manifestly living somewhere to the West of the town. Every day they went through the inland lanes at the back of it until they were a mile or two to the east, and then, descending seawards, drove home by the promenade and the road that skirts the sea.

Some dozen or so cottages and a little pier stood at the margin of the sea. Inland a few houses were seen among the fruitful orchards. But at the edge of the slope there was a little space of wild woods, and this, as I looked across the flower-grown hedge, tempted me to rest. I climbed the intervening barrier and lay down in the shelter of a little oak tree. The sunlight flooded a wealth of bracken, foxgloves and golden harvest-weed. I lay at ease, content to watch stray butterflies that went lazily from flower to flower.

It may be I slept. Certainly I was a long time under the oak before I became aware that I was not the only occupant of the wood. Some one was singing softly through the fern. I could tell by the sound that the newcomer was stopping here and there to pick flowers.

Now, I had enjoyed the solitude, but even at the first the person who was coming toward me did not strike me as an intruder. Her singing was in absolute concord with my mood; it was as if one had thought of a poem and a moment later found oneself humming the melody that would make of it a perfect song. I lay and waited, and the singer came nearer.

The song ceased when she presently appeared. She was a little startled, but not nearly so much as I.

"Then you are not dumb!" I cried involuntarily, as I started to my feet.

She hesitated, and a little smile played about the corners of her pretty mouth.

"It is my aunt who is dumb," she said. Then, with a sudden recovery of her dignity, "I don't know why you should ask."

But that was a matter of no great difficulty in explaining ere I came back to London the happiest man on God's earth.—Black and White.

A Long Dog.

"Don't be afraid," said the owner of the very attenuated dachshund; "he won't hurt you."

"I can't help being suspicious of him," was the reply. "If he is good natured why doesn't he wag his tail when I go to pat his head?"

"He will pretty soon. You know it takes even thought some little time to travel."—Washington Star.

TOWERS OF SILENCE.

How the Parsees of India Dispose of the Bodies of Their Dead.

The most unique and impressive feature of Zoroastrian customs is their method of disposing of the dead. According to their religion, earth, fire and water are sacred elements, useful to mankind and hence not to be polluted in any way. They are strictly enjoined that dead bodies shall not be thrown into the sea, burned in fire nor be buried in the earth. Therefore the only practicable course open to them is to expose the naked bodies of their dead in the open air, so that they may decay and disintegrate under the ordinary action of the elements or be devoured by birds or beasts. This exposure, however, is made with the confident expectation that the corpse will be speedily eaten by vultures, which are numerous and voracious in oriental countries, and especially so in the vicinity of a tower of silence.

These towers, or Dokhmas, are not as numerous as is generally supposed. Outside of Persia and Russia the only ones in use at present are those in Bombay and one or two in China. Those in Bombay are located on the summit of Malabar hill, a picturesque elevation on the eastern boundary of the city, from which a magnificent view of the surrounding country can be had. The Parsees own about fifteen acres of the hill, and have transformed the place into a veritable paradise. There is nothing suggestive of death about the place. It is a luxurious garden of flowers, ornamental shrubbery, palms, cypresses, bamboo and other tropical trees, laid out with smooth, well-kept gravel walks. There are comfortable benches in shady nooks, secluded trysting places and fragrant corpses, where birds of brilliant plumage sing and mate.

There are six of these towers located within less than 100 yards of each other, and partially hidden by the overhanging foliage of palms and cypresses. Five are used for the exposure of the bodies of Parsees in good standing in their community, while the sixth receives the bodies of criminals and outcasts. The first was built in 1669 and the second in 1756.

Each tower is about 30 feet high, 150 feet in circumference and constructed of blocks of trap rock and sandstone cemented closely and covered smoothly on the outside by a heavy coating of chunam or stucco. A stone parapet about three feet high rises above the three concentric circles of corpse receptacles which slope sharply toward the central well and seem to be hewn out of solid rock.

When a death occurs the body is wrapped in a white sheet and placed on an iron bier. Within twelve hours thereafter it is taken in charge by official corpse bearers, called khandias, and a procession is formed, headed by one or more mobeds, or Parsee priests, followed by the mourning relatives and friend of the deceased in couples, each couple holding the opposite ends of a white handkerchief. All the participants are attired in new white robes which are never worn afterward. No carriage or other wheeled vehicle is ever used and the procession marches slowly, and in silence, from the Parsee quarter of the city to Malabar hill and up the long flights of stone steps to the tower garden on the summit and to a point within thirty feet of the particular tower selected for the exposure. Here the mourners, mobeds and khandias leave the body and retire to a sagree or prayer temple, near the entrance to the garden, where the sacred fire, fed with sandal wood and incense, is kept constantly burning. While prayers are being said for the safe passage of the departed soul over the "Chinvat bridge," the corpse is taken into the tower by two official bearers, called nassasalars, who strip it and deposit it naked in one of the open receptacles.

During all this the watchful observer will notice evidences of excitement among the numerous large vulturers perched among the palms and cypresses near the tower. They utter no cries, but move restlessly on the branches and indicate plainly heir impatience to begin the feast prepared for them.

The nassasalars having performed their task, emerge from the tower, closing the door with a sharp bang. The instant this sound is heard there arises a loud whir of wings and a low roar as of a fierce wind through a dense forest. A cloud of vultures darken the air and settle down upon the tower. In from one to two hours the bones of the dead man are picked clean and the gorged birds fly lazily back to their perches or roost upon the parapet of the tower, with their heads turned inward as if contemplating regretfully the remains of their recent banquet.

The bearers, upon leaving the tower, retire to a small inclosure near by, remove all their clothing, burn it and bathe their bodies thoroughly. Not an article they have touched or that has touched the corpse during the ceremony is permitted to leave the garden, and they are supplied with new garments for each funeral. As these bearers are supposed to contract impurity in the discharge of their duty they are forced to live quite apart from the rest of the Parsee community, and are therefore well paid.

The bones of the deceased are allowed to remain exposed in the receptacle from two to four weeks. Then the nassasalars, with gloved hands and implements resembling tongs, throw them into the central well, where they ultimately crumble and pass into the underground drains. "Thus," says the Parsee, "the rich and the poor meet together on one level of equality after death."—Moulvi Iskander, in Washington Star.

A GAME FOR LIFE.

It was night in the camp of Maximilian's army, and sounds of merriment were heard upon all sides.

In a tent in the inner circle of the camp sat two officers at a rude table, upon which was marked with lead pencil a draughtboard, while black and white buttons served for the "men."

They were prisoners—soldiers in the service of Juarez, captured the day before—but their appearance indicated that they were not Mexicans.

Capoul Monteith, the light haired officer, was a young man of wealth and good family.

Garnet Weston, the brown haired, was a young lawyer of good though poor parentage. He was fast winning a name when he crossed the path of Mabel Monteith, the sister of Capoul.

One day a pretended friend told him that Mabel was his promised wife, but that their engagement had not yet been made public.

Three months later found him a cavalry captain in the army of Benito Juarez, where in a few weeks he was surprised to be joined by Capoul Monteith, who had also offered his services to the Mexican president.

Suddenly a heavy tread resounded without the tent, the sentinel challenged, there was a response, and three of Maximilian's officers entered, one of whom was an American, another a Frenchman, the third a Mexican.

"Gentlemen," said the American, "I am sorry to disturb you, but news has come to-night that Benito Juarez has executed a captain of our army, and I have orders to select one of you, and march you forth to die in retaliation."

"You cannot mean that one of us must die for an offence against Maximilian by Juarez?" said Capoul and Monteith, rising.

"Such are my orders, but I know not which of you to select."

"Let the gentlemen play a game for the chance, the loser to die," suggested the young Frenchman.

The two friends sat down. Ten minutes passed, twenty, and the game was won by Capoul.

The second game, too, was won by him

"Great heaven! Garnet! old fellow, I feel for you from my heart!" cried the winner, the tears starting to his eyes.

Garnet pressed his friend's hand as he said quietly,—

"I was ever a poor, unlucky dog, Capoul; but, my friend, when I am dead, look in my saddle roll, hanging there, and the papers you find please deliver to the proper address, and—and—Capoul, say to—to Miss Mabel I left a farewell for her. Gentlemen, I am ready."

An hour passed, and the American officer stood before him.

"Well?" said Capoul.

"He is dead."

"Heaven have mercy upon him!" groaned the sorrowing friend.

"Yes, Captain Monteith, he is dead, and, though I have seen many men die, I never saw one face death with such perfectly calm indifference as did your friend. He gave the order to the platoon to fire and fell instantly, but ere he died he wrote this note to you."

In Garnet's bold hand was written:—

"I could have won those two games, but I gave my life away to save you, for I loved Mabel too dearly ever to let her brother die where I could be sacrificed instead. I dare tell you this now, for I stand on the brink of my open grave. Farewell!"

Three years passed, and one pleasant evening a horseman was riding slowly along a highway traversing a fertile English valley.

Three years had added more dignity to the face and perhaps saddened it, but otherwise no change had come over Capoul Monteith's fine features.

Upon his right hand, setting back from the road, was a pretty farmhouse, surrounded by fertile fields, and, the sight promising well for a night's lodging for man and beast," Capoul turned in at the white gateway, rode up to the front door and dismounted.

The owner of the house descended the steps to greet him, and Capoul Monteith stood face to face with Garnet Weston!

"Great heaven, has the grave given up its dead?" cried Capoul in dismay.

"No, old fellow! You find me flesh and blood, ready and willing to give you a hearty welcome to this my home, left me by and old bachelor uncle a few months since. But come in. I will tell you all.

Around a well spread table that evening he heard how Garnet had been carried forth to be most bunglingly executed, how a squadron of Juarez's cavalry had appeared and frightened off his executioners ere the first platoon had retired and how a watchful ranchero had seized him and borne him to his ranch, where, after months of suffering, he recovered.

"But, old fellow, why did you not write to me?" asked Capoul.

"I did write to my old law partner, and he said you had moved away, none knew whither."

"True. Poor Mabel failed in health, and I took her to the continent, but we soon returned. Mabel is contented if not happy."

"She married——"

"She married? Fiddlesticks! No; she never had any idea of marrying any man excepting yourself, and you went off to Mexico and nearly broke her heart."

Teacher (of juvenile class)—"Johnnie, what was the first thing the Purians did when they landed at Plymouth Rock?" Johnnie—"They fell on their knees." Teacher—"That's right. Now Tommy, what was the next thing they did?" Tommy—"Fell on the aborigines."—Chicago News.

GOSSIP OF THE DIAMOND.

CURRENT BASEBALL NEWS IN AND AROUND PLAINFIELD.

Bits of Information and Comment Gleaned From the Great National Game —Latest Scores of the League Teams.

The Leal School team and the Y. M. C. A. team are arranging a baseball game for Saturday afternoon.

For the first time in ten years, Somerville is without a baseball team. The discouraging results of last year's season with the Somervilles has put a damper on the National game in that town.

The Bound Brook Athletic Club will not appear here Fourth of July morning after all. Manager Mumford has been dickering with the management of that club for a date and thought that the game was all arranged. It seems it was not, however, for now the Bound Brook team declares that they will be unable to play the Crescents this year at all. Manager Mumford is of the opinion that they are afraid to meet the Crescents.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The Plainfield High School will, for the first time since the organization of the athletic association there seven years ago, give up its usual spring field day. It has been the custom of the association to hold open games in the spring which have been a feature in local athletic circles. This year the High School boys decided to devote all their spare energies to the baseball team and make no attempt to hold a meet. The lack of much talent in the High School was a large factor in this decision. Then, too, the expenses of a field day are large and the boys did not feel like asking the local tradesmen for aid at this slow season.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Paul Radford, of Park avenue, is riding a new Crescent wheel.

Rev. T. Logan Murphy, of the borough, is riding a chainless Spalding wheel.

Harry Lister and the Sorenson Brothers rode to South Beach on their wheels Sunday. Albert Springer rode to Coney Island. All report the roads fairly good.

W. H. Rogers, the North avenue wheelman, is manufacturing a fine thing with which to plug up punctures in old tires. The new discovery is called "Plug 'Em Up," and is meeting with great success. It will make an old tire impervious to punctures.

GOLF.

There was no girls' contest on the Hillside Tennis and Golf links yesterday, as no entries were received. The contest was open to girls under sixteen, and a prize was to be awarded to the winner, but as there were no entries the contest was given up.

Spalding's golf expert, Mr. Bendelow, began work this morning superintending the laying out of the links of the Park Golf Club in Hyde's meadows. The work on the links will be rushed so as to open them for playing at the earliest possible date.

PATRICK WAS TOO DEFIANT.

Got Gloriously Drunk and Abused Everybody That Came His Way.

Patrick Kearns hadn't anything to say when arraigned before the City Judge this morning except to tell court to do whatever he liked with him. This Judge De Meza proceeded to do, and fined him $5, which his son paid.

Kearns finds it hard to keep a civil tongue in his head, so the police say. Yesterday he drank some whiskey, and attempted to sleep it off along the roadside near Netherwood. Kearns' dreams were interrupted by Officer Nick Myers, who awoke him about 7 o'clock, and started him on his way home. Kearns held up a trolley car, informed the conductor, A. Burril, that he had no money, but got on just the same. A strange gentleman, who happened to be the car, paid his fare for him.

When Kearns reached North avenue he began to abuse Conductor Burril, and use bad language in front of the passengers, so Burril ordered Myers to arrest him. Kearns was in a defiant mood this morning, and tried to laugh off the charge, but the Judge warned him that any more such conduct would land him in the county jail.

NO EXTRA SESSION.

Governor Sees No Occasion for Assembling the Legislature.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, June 8—Governor Voorhees was at the State House yesterday. He came here with the intention of taking up the eighty-five bills awaiting the action of the Governor, but he had little opportunity to consider any measure, owing to the number of callers.

The politicians were here, too, and with each politician were at least three persons anxious to obtain commissions in the volunteer army in the war with Spain.

The question in which the politicians appeared to be most interested was whether or not there would be an extra session of the Legislature. To this question Governor Voorhees emphatically replied that up to this time he saw no reason for an extra session, and it was his opinion that no occasion for an extra session would arise.

Suing For Slander.

The suit for slander which was brought by Frank Neal against Mrs. Anna Sherman, will come up for trial at Elizabeth on June 22d. Neal claims that Mrs. Sherman has circulated reports about that he committed some of the burglaries so frequent in the West End a year ago. Senator Marsh represents Neal, while Mrs. Sherman's lawyer is City Judge DeMeza.

Coachman Sues for Wages.

The appeal case of I. Brolenski against Mrs. Annie Gwynette, of Prospect avenue, will come up for trial before Judge Vail at Elizabeth June 15th. The plaintiff, who is represented by City Judge DeMeza, sues for wages which he claims for working around the defendant's place. The defendant's lawyer is R. M. Clark.

A Bicycle Squad of One.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

ladders could be raised to the windows. The firemen then gained control of the flames rapidly and after twenty minutes hard work had the fire about out.

The residence of John Day, 303 East Fourth street, caught fire. The fire spread under the cornice of the house and the firemen had to tear off the cornice to extinguish it. The side of the house was badly scorched. The furniture was badly damaged by the water. A dozen bags of flour were stored away on the upper floor, but the firemen rescued them without damage. The house was owned by Mr. Day. The loss to the house was $300, and $100 to the furniture, all of which was covered by insurance.

In the store room on the second floor of the factory was $2,500 worth of bicycle sundries. This was scorched and partially ruined. The salvage will be about seventy five per cent. $1,500 worth of stock of bottle stoppers and the like was ruined. The machinery, valued at over $1,000, was not destroyed owning to the quick response of the firemen who did not give the flames a chance to remain there long.

The building is the property of Charles T. Nightingale, who is the head of the Climax Stopper Company. The upper floor was gutted by the fire while the first floor was flooded. The loss to the building will amount to $1,000. Mr. Nightingale is out of town and the exact amount of the insurance is not known. The loss will undoubtedly be fully covered, however.

A RACE WAR.

A Negro and a Hebrew Family End Their Differences in Court.

There was a warm time in the borough court room this morning when for an hour Recorder Long sat on the bench and listened to the troubles of three families. It was necessary that all the evidence be heard to determine the case and some of the evidence was like a ram's horn.

It appears that Kussell Sachar, a Jew, Isaac Randolph and Mrs. Anna Freeman, colored, occupied two houses located on the same lot on Race street. The colored people claimed that they put up the fence that borders on the property. A short time ago when Sachar went home he found that the colored family had moved several pickets from the fence. This action caused some hard words. Sachar felt his duty to make a complaint. He did so and both Issac Randolph and Mrs. Freeman were arrested and were told to appear this morning. All hands were present. The plaintiff was very much mixed in telling his story, but the defendants related a clear story. The three participants were found guilty of using indecent language, but it was proved that the colored folks had the right to use their own fence. After much discussion and argument on both sides, Recorder Long dismissed the case, finding nothing in it. They were warned, however, to behave themselves in the future.

SERENADE ENDED IN A FIGHT.

Westfield Young Couple Who Didn't Like to be Disturbed.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, June 8—There was a hot time on New York avenue last evening, when a crowd of small boys gathered in front of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Moreland T. Townley to give them a serenade as they had just returned from their honeymoon trip. Mr. Townley not being in the practice of serenading did not go to the door when the boys knocked. This made the latter angry and they at once began stoning the house.

Joseph B. Crosby, the father of Mrs. Townley, arrived on the scene about this time, and he is said to have used his walking stick with good results on the heads of the young ruffins. Charles Kimball, it is said, was quite badly hurt, and then the gang proceeded to give Mr. Crosby a good pounding before he was rescued and taken into the house next door.

Jersey Editors to Gather.

The New Jersey Editorial Association has completed the preliminary arrangements for a reunion and tour by the State editors and their families, to take place during the week of June 27th and July 2d, the tour to be made to the Thousand Islands, in the St. Lawrence river. Somerset and Union counties will be represented by W. B. R. Mason, of Bound Brook. It is now six years since the editors of New Jersey enjoyed a summer tour together, and no dobut there will be a large delegation to make the tour.

Appeal Was Discussed.

Some months ago Brooks Carson obtained a judgment in Justice Moffett's court for $150 against the New Jersey Central Railroad Company, for damages to a boiler while being conveyed from Jersey City to Plainfield. The company appealed the case, and the matter came up yesterday in the Common Pleas Court at Elizabeth. Counsellor W. S. Angleman, who is Mr. Carson's lawyer, obtained a dismissal of the appeal, and the company must now pay the judgment.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, June 8—Fred Hughes, a popular young man of this place, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his birthday yesterday and last evening about fifty of his friends gathered at his home and had a jolly time in celebrating the event. Prof. Guttman's Plainfield Cornet Band, in charge of Prof. Whitney Frazee, was present and discoursed popular airs. The evening was devoted to dancing chiefly and at midnight supper was served. The celebrant received a number of useful gifts as pleasant mementoes of the occasion.

City Flag on Hand Again.

The city's new flag was received by Edward White, the dry goods merchant, this morning. An entire new field had to be put in the flag at an expense of about $12 to the city. Chief T. O. Doane was ready to put the flag on the pole when the alarm of fire was sounded this morning, and was called away. It will probably go up tomorrow morning at sunrise.

Word From Soldier Boys.

D. F. Stewart, of John street, has received a letter from his son, William, who is in the Sixth New Jersey Cavalry, stationed at Tampa, saying that he is well. Frank Marsh, who is in the same place, has been ill.

Mrs. Albert, of East Fourth street, is convalescing from a serious illness.

LARGEST CLOTHING SALE OF THE SEASON!
NOW GOING ON.
FORCED TO THE WALL.

One of the largest wholesale manufacturers was forced to the wall. Every one knows of the depression in every line of business, but none have suffered so much as the clothing manufacturers that were rated away up. They were forced to go under or realize money in some way to save their credit, and we being enabled to offer them the ready cash, they accepted our offer and we secured a very large lot of desirable clothing at our own price. A chance of a lifetime to secureh igh-grade spring and summer clothing at less than one-third its value.

Remember, this stock will be sold without reserve, without restriction and without any consideration of cost of production, and the prices will bring every man and woman within 25 miles of Plainfield to our store in order to show what gigantic bargains will be offered.

A few prices are here mentioned, and remember there are a thousand other bargains we cannot enumerate. Cut this out and bring it with you and ask for the following mentioned articles.

Men's stylishly made gray and brown check and plaid cassimere suits, deep French facing, sizes from 34 to 42, strong and serviceable, worth $3, your choice at $2.95.

Men's strictly all-wool fancy cassimere suits, neat checks, stripes and plaids, deep French facing, six different patterns, worth $10, at $3.75.

Men's blue serge suits, color and seams guaranteed, single breasted only, heavy double warp linings, worth $12, your choice at $4.75.

An elegant assortment of handsomely made cassimere suits, latest patterns of checks, stripes, plaids and over-plaids, stout and regular cut, worth 13.00 at $5.25.

Men's black clay diagonal suits strictly all-wool worsted, color guaranteed, double or single breasted, sacks and frocks, all sizes, stouts, slims and regulars up to size 48 at the same price, worth 16.00 at $6.75.

HAS MANILA FALLEN? LONDON REPORTS IT.

Fearing a Massacre By Insurgents, Garrison Surrendered.

Madrid Has Received Bad News From the Phillippines—Englishman Arrested and Then Banished From Porto Rico—To Ask Blanco Today For Hobson's Exchange.

HAS MANILA FALLEN?

Reports in London That Her Garrison Surrendered, Fearing a Massacre by Insurgents.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

London, June, 9, 1:03 p. m.—A rumor is current here to the effect that Manila has fallen at last.

The Westminister Gazette has issued an extra this afternoon saying that Manila has fallen, but whether into the hands of the insurgents or Americans is unknown.

Despatches to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Paris and Madrid say that it is rumored that the Spanish garrison at Manila, fearing a massacre by the insurgents who are rapidly gaining in strength, had surrendered to the Americans.

Foreign securities are greatly depressed today. Spanish fours are one and one-half points lower. It is known that the public feeling in Spain is the worst since the war began.

Premier Sagasta is searching for an opening in the direction of peace while the opposition is resisting, threatening a revolution.

Madrid, June 9, 1:29 p. m—Bad news has been received here from the Philippine Islands which has made a deep impression.

The public is still calm but there is latent an intensity of dissatisfaction that is only repressed on patriotic grounds. How long before it will burst forth no one knows.

ENGLISHMAN BANISHED.

Summary Proceedings of the Spanish Authorities at San Juan Reported.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

New York, June 9, 11:05 a. m—Sill, The Journal correspondent at St. Thomas, cables this morning that Walter Bett, secretary of the British Consulate at San Juan, has been banished from Porto Rico.

Bett was first imprisoned for fifty-six hours, and then grossly maltreated by the Spanish authorities before the order came from the Governor-General for his banishment.

The reason for his banishment was that he was suspected of having informed the Americans of the mining of the harbor of San Juan.

After San Juan was bombarded by the American fleet under Rear Admiral Sampson, Bett and thirty other Englishmen were arrested on the charge of giving information to the American forces.

TO EXCHANGE HOBSON.

Application For His Exchange Made to General Blanco Today.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 9, 10:03 a. m—Application for the exchange of Naval Constructor Hobson and the rest of the crew of the collier, Merrimac, will be made today to Governor General Blanco at Havana.

Captain Phelps, commander of the battleship, Texas, cabled Secretary Long this morning that he was alive and well. He was entirely ignorant of how the report of his death started. The department has never credited the rumor.

NO WORD FROM FLEET.

Haytian Ports Have Received No News Today From Sampson or Santiago.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Cape Haytien, Hayti, June 9, 1:25 p. m—Up to 9 o'clock this morning there has been no cable communication with Santiago today.

No further news from any source has been received from the American fleet. All is quiet here.

Port au Prince, Hayti, June 9, 1:25 p. m.—Nothing has been heard from Santiago de Cuba this morning. It is reported that the cable communication between Santiago and Kingston has been interrupted.

The West India Cable Company is reported to be still using its cable from here to Santiago.

SPANISH AT HAVANA.

Report That Three Spanish Ironclads Have Arrived There.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Key West, June 9, 1:16 p. m.—There is unusual excitement here over a rumor that a fleet of three Spanish warships have reached Havana.

Naval officers of high rank here credit the persistant rumors that three Spanish ships have forced their way into the harbor of Havana.

One report says that the three ships consist of two cruisers and one battleship. There are no details to the report.

WANTS HAWAII.

President to Send Special Message That It Be Annexed at Once.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 9, 1:29 p. m—According to the statement of one Senator who was in consultation with President McKinley today, the President is contemplating the submission of a special message to Congress.

The message calls for immediate action on the annexation of Hawaii as a military necessity.

The message, it is believed, will be delayed for a few days to await the action that may be taken by Speaker Reed and the rules committee of the House.

It is probable, however, that the special message of the President will be issued to Congress early next week.

No More Orders.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Madrid, June 9, 1:11 p. m—Senor Correa, minister of war, refuses to send further instructions to Senor Agusti, captain general of the Phillippines, saying that he has already cabled him to protect the honor of Spain and resist to death.

EASIER SAILING FOR FOSTER VOORHEES NOW

"Logical Candidate" of Jersey Republicans for Governor.

HAS GEN. SEWELL'S FAVOR.

ESSEX POLITICIANS MAY BE AGAINST UNION COUNTY MAN.

Senator Sewell Has Said and Done Things Which Leave no Doubt as to His Support of Voorhees—During His Service in the Chief Executive Chair Voorhees Has Demonstrated His Ability and Fitness for High Position—Some of Kean's Friends Think That Voorhees is in Way of His Aspirations

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, N. J., June 9—The inside developments of the past week make it quite clear that, barring some slip at present unforeseen and improbable, Foster M. Voorhees will be the Republican candidate for Governor this fall. The one thing that has stood between the acting Governor and the nomination has been the expected opposition of Senator Sewell and the Republican leaders who train with the Camden chieftain. It has been made apparent, however, within the past few days that if Senator Sewell ever had any intention of opposing the candidacy of Governor Voorhees that that intention has been abandoned. Senator Sewell, on the other hand, has said and done things which leave no doubt that he favors the nomination of Voorhees, and this, with the influence that the Governor can summon on his own account, would seem to finally dispose of the matter, although, of course, the other aspirants may remain in the field until the convention has done its work.

That Senator Sewell is in favor of Governor Voorhees receiving the Republican nomination is evidenced by several recent occurrences, one of which is that Judge J. Frank Fort, of Essex, who has been counted as a candidate, has been advised that he could not expect any support from General Sewell, because the General was of the opinion that Voorhees was the logical nominee, and that it would be the height of political folly not to nominate him. Bank and Insurance Commissioner Wm. Bettle and other prominent Republicans close to General Sewell also openly say that they favor the nomination of Voorhees. It may not be in the case of all of them that they favor Voorhees because they most want him; but they are dropping into the view taken by Senator Sewell that it is the logical thing to do.

During the few months he has been in the executive chair as Acting Governor, Senator Voorhees has demonstrated his ability and fitness for the place, and to turn him down would be to make a martyr of him and promote party discord. Whether his nomination will promote party harmony is another thing. There are other aspirants who are anxious for the nomination, and then Senator Voorhees, despite his affable manner, is not without enemies. Major Lentz, the chairman of the Republican county committee of Essex county, is not disguising the fact that he is opposed to Voorhees for Governor. Major Lentz is an intense Kean man, and he is one of those who fear that the advancement of Voorhees may in some way interfere with the candidacy of John Kean for the United States Senatorship to succeed James Smith, Jr. Then the Major has never forgiven the Governor for not throwing the weight of his influence as Republican leader of the Senate in 1897 in for the anti-spring election bill, for which Lentz worked so assiduously only to have the law declared unconstitutional afterward by the courts.

Flowers for Children's Day.

The social and flower committees of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church will meet at the chapel of the church tomorrow afternoon at 2:45 and will go on their wheels in search of flowers to be used at the church next Sunday for the Children's Day exercises. Saturday afternoon the flower committees from the Sunday-school and Christian Endeavor Society will meet at the church to decorate for the event Sunday.

To Hear a Wife's Charges.

The case of Mrs. Lavell against her husband, whom she charges with threatening her life, will come up for trial this evening at 6 o'clock in Justice Newcorn's court. Counselor Swackhamer will represent Mrs. Lavell, while Lawyer McNabb will appear for the defendant.

—Next Saturday the regular monthly business meeting of the Young Women's Club will be held at the rooms on Madison avenue, and every member is urged to attend.

A SUCCESSFUL SOCIETY.

THE ENDEAVORERS OF THE SEVENTH DAY CHURCH REVIEW THE YEAR.

The Annual Meeting of the Society Was Held Last Night—Increase in the Membership—$300 Raised During Year.

Never since the organization of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-day Baptist church, has it been in such a flourishing condition. At the annual meeting of the society held last evening in the chapel of the church the reports of the officers and committees showed where they stood.

The report of the secretary, Miss Ida L. Spicer, showed a substantial gain in membership over the past enrollment. The report also showed an increased activity in all lines of work. The treasurer's report, given by Dr. Frank T. Clawson, told of the raising of over $300 during the year, the greater part of which had been expended.

Then came the reports of the different committees showing an increase in the interest and attention given to all the different branches of the Endeavor work.

The election of officers was held and resulted as follows:

President, Miss Luella Clawson; vice-president, William R. Mosher; recording secretary, Clarence M. Rogers; corresponding secretary, Asa F. Randolph; treasurer, Frank M. Maxson; auditors, Dr. F. T. Clawson and Frank J. Hubbard. The chairmen of committees were chosen as follows: Lookout, William B. Mosher; prayer meeting, Miss Elizabeth Allis; music, Miss Jessie M. Utter; social, Miss Ida Randolph; missionary, Miss Nancy Randolph; temperance and good citizenship, Miss Ida L. Spicer; good literature, Miss Mabel Mitchell; flower, Mrs. W. C. Hubbard.

HAD PRESENCE OF MIND.

Mrs. Newton Drake Prevented a Serious Conflagration at Her Home.

Through presence of mind, Mrs. Newton Drake, of Duer street, prevented a serious conflagration at her home last evening. It was 6 o'clock and dinner was being prepared. Three large oil stoves were used. As Mrs. Drake came into the kitchen she saw that the central stove was wrapped in flames which threatened to set fire to the room. Seeing a pail of water standing near-by she quickly dashed it on the flames before the woodwork caught. The force of the water extinguished the blazing oil. In some manner the oil in the stove had caught fire and would have probably exploded but for Mrs. Drake's quickness of thought.

STOLE THE DOCTOR'S STEEL STEED.

A Bicycle Thief Plied His Trade on West Front Street.

While Dr. Marc L. Clawson, of West Sixth street, was making a professional call in the Manning flats, West Front street, Tuesday evening at midnight, some one appropriated his wheel. It was a brand new '98 Spalding wheel that Dr. Clawson had ridden less than a month. He left the wheel at the curb when he went in. His call was a short one but when he returned there was nothing to be seen of the wheel. The lantern was lighted when he left it. He did not notice anyone about when he went into the house.

Objection to Administrator's Report.

On June 15th Counsellor William M. Stillman will proceed to take testimony in the case of Miles et al against H. N. Spencer, surrogate for Somerset county. Mr. Spencer, the administrator of the Miles estate, on Front street, filed papers to which the heirs, William H. and Frank Miles, took exceptions. The lawyers are City Judge DeMeza, Craig A. Marsh and W. H. Apgar, from Trenton.

Hand Cut at a Fire.

Frank Putnam, the West Front street dry goods merchant, and a member of Gazelle No. 1, cut his hands quite badly with a piece of glass while handling hose at the fire yesterday. The order came to move the hose, and Mr. Putnam picked it up and with it a piece of sharp glass which cut his hand in several places. One cut was very deep and bled profusely.

The Big Flag Floats Now.

The new city flag was raised for the first time this morning since the accident by which it was torn the day following Decoration Day. The flag came back from Newark early this week, and was to have been raised yesterday, but just as Chief Doane was ready to perform the work the fire gong blew and that put a stop to the business.

Guns For the Government.

A train of flatcars passed through this city yesterday afternoon carrying ten 12-inch mortars consigned to the commanding officer at Sandy Hook, from the Bethlehem Iron Works.

MAYOR FISK WANTS TO GO HIGHER IN OFFICE

But There Are Many Who Are Not Quite So Ambitious.

THE REPUBLICAN OUTLOOK.

CITY JUDGESHIP WILL BE STRUGGLED FOR.

Fred C. Lounsbury, it is Said, is Wanted to Head the Citizens' Ticket—Judge DeMeza May Try Again for His Present Position. But at All Events There Are Several Others Who Would Like to be Cadi and Will Strive to Secure the Republican Nomination—Justice Newcorn Will Fight Hard.

A mayor, a city judge, a tax collecter and four ward councilmen are the municipal officials who are to be chosen at the city election in December. Already the excitement of the campaign is beginning to be felt.

Everybody knows that Mayor Fisk is not hankering after a second term. His ambitions, it is said, run highter. What he is credited with wanting is the county nomination for State Senator. Councilman William N. Runyon has been mentioned as Republican candidate for mayor, but the genial young Republican laughs at all mention of his taking the chief executive office of the city. The name of Fred C. Lounsbury, president of the Board of Trade, has been heard mentioned by many as a likely candidate for the office. It is even said that he has begun his campaign to secure the Republican nomination. Mr. Lounsbury denies this, however. It has been said that the leaders of the Citizen's movement are anxious to head their ticket with his name. The work that Mr. Lounsbury has done in connection with the Board of Education and the Board of Trade has shown him to be an excellent business man and successful manager. Whether he would make a successful Mayor remains to be seen.

The fight in the Republican party will be particularly warm over the nomination for City Judge. It is for that office that Councilman Runyon is said to be on the still hunt. So far the young office holder has not announced himself as being in the race. There is little doubt, however, that he will make the rest of the candidates hustle for the nomination. The present incumbent, Judge DeMeza, will, it is claimed, try for a renomination. The Judge, himself, has said nothing in public as yet.

One of the most active candidates, and one who is going to give his rivals a hot chase, is Justice Wm. Newcorn. An active worker in the Fourth ward, he has so far received little recognition from his party when it came to the division of the spoils. His claims on the party are strong and will be apt to have substantial backing from leaders in the G. O. P.

Harry C. Runyon must not be counted out in the race for the nomination. He is credited with having greatly increased his strength during the last few months and will be able to prove a formidable rival. Winfield S. Angleman is also a candidate. Nobody knows at present whether he will make a strong bid for the office or not.

The campaign is not of sufficient length as yet to tell how the different candidates stand or their relative strength. Then, too, there may be other candidates in the field who have not yet spoken.

PLEASANT PLACE FOR YOUNG WOMEN

The New Club to Open Its Quarters on Madison Avenue Tomorrow.

Tomorrow afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock the Young Women's Club rooms on Madison avenue will be opened with tea and a musicale. Bright and well-adapted quarters have been secured for the young women and in the new home much good will be accomplished. Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen and Mrs. Martin I. Cooley will preside at the table in the dining room, and they will be assisted by other interested women. The musicale will consist of vocol solos by Mrs. Ward, of the First Baptist church choir; violin selections by Miss Burnett; recitations by Miss Mary Lucky and vocal selections by the ladies' sextette, composed of Mrs. J. K. Myers, Mrs. George Chapman, Mrs. Wm. L. Saunders, Mrs. Irving Brown, Mrs. Robert Lowry and Mrs. Clawson. Nearly fourteen hundred invitations have been issued for the opening, but a cordial invitation is extended to all interested to attend.

Greeted on Her Birthday.

Mrs. A. M. Ross, of West Seventh street, was tendered a surprise party last evening at her home. About forty of her friends assembled to greet her on her birthday.

EDITOR'S PLAIN WORDS.

THE SUMMIT RECORD STIRRED UP ABOUT EXCISE MATTERS.

Editor Lane Wouldn't Stand Abuse of a Hotel Keeper and Had Him Arrested—Jury Disagreed—Libel Suit Threatened.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Summit, June 9.—Because Editor Thomas F. Lane, of the Summit Record, published an article about the Spring Lake Hotel in his paper, and in the article referred to it as a "disreputable resort" its proprietor, A. C. Hahr, had some hot words with Editor Lane which resulted in the hotel proprietor's arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct. The trial was held yesterday afternoon at Summit in one of the largest halls of the place, and excited great interest.

The plaintiff, because of his wide social connections and his high standing in the community, had many friends in the crowded court room, and so had the defendant, who is known all over the country as a hotel proprietor. Assemblyman O'Brien, of Morristown, represented Lane, while Counselor Samuel Swackhamer, of the firm of Codington & Swackhamer of Plainfield, looked after the defendant.

The trouble arose May 7th, when the subject of licenses came up at Elizabeth. Hahr secured his with no trouble, while other people, who, Lane said, kept better and more orderly resorts, were refused licenses. Lane did not hesitate to refer to this in the Record, and used some strong language in the article.

The article which caused so much dissatisfaction was published May 7th. A few days after the paper came out Hahr called on Lane and asked him to retract what he had said in reference to the Spring Lake Hotel being a disreputable place. This Lane refused to do and the men had hot words. Lane says that Hahr called him bad names, and Hahr says that Lane made use of profane language. The result was that Lane had Hahr arrested and tried before Justice Kelly yesterday.

The defendant demanded a jury of twelve men. Several witnesses were called on both sides, and it was late before the trial was ended. The jury, after being out some time, could not agree, and were discharged. Whether the matter will be tried again or not, is not known. The friends of both parties want the men to settle their difference outside court.

Hahr may now sue Editor Lane for libel.

PLAINFIELD BOY HONORED.

Won an Editorship of the Williams Weekly at College.

Louis Squires, of Watchung avenue, who graduated from the Plainfield High School last June, and who is now a student at Williams College, has won new honors in his college career. He was among the contributers for the Williams Weekly, a little paper published by the students. It is customary to elect the editors for the Weekly from the Freshman class just before they become Sophomores. The selection is made by a committee from the faculty according to the merit of the contributions sent in during the year. Squires was chosen by the faculty committee as an editor and will also receive a cash prize for the excellence of his contributions.

What Gladstone's Life Taught.

Gladstone, England's "Grand Old Man," was the theme of the mid-week prayer meeting at the Congregational church last night. The meeting was in charge of the pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, who drew some excellent excellent lessons from the life of the aged statesman. Then others who were present had some things to tell about, which made the meeting an interesting as well as novel one. On the blackboard Mr. Goodrich had written some of the attributes of Gladstone, among which was his skill as a scholar, as a debator, statesman, orator, financier, reformer, and his faith as a Christian. All these points were touched upon by the speaker, as well as by those who spoke afterwards.

Graduated as a Physician.

Among the students who were graduated from Columbia University, New York, yesterday, was Norman H. Probasco, of East Front street, who received the degree of Doctor of Medicine. The young doctor has received the appointment for surgical practice at Bellevue Hospital, beginning July 1st.

Synod Expresses Sympathy.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Asbury Park, June 9—The General Synod of the Reformed Church of America, in session here, adopted a report yesterday declaring the war a righteous one and expressing loyalty to the country and its President.

Miss Margaret Rand, of the Babcock building, left this morning for a four months' visit in Amherst, Mass., and St. Johnsbury, Vt.

SOLDIER DIDN'T KNOW HIS FATHER WAS DEAD

A Pathetic Incident Enacted in the Dark Hours.

WANTED TO SEND FAREWELL

FREDERIC CASPAR, JR., HEARD BAD NEWS ON HIS WAY TO THE FRONT.

The Young Man Has Been a Bit Wild, and Had to Leave Bayonne to Escape the Police a Short Time Ago—Enlisted to Serve the Country While His Father Lay Dead, But He Didn't Know it—Found Out the Terrible Truth in the Central Railroad Baggage Room Early Yesterday Morning.

The present war has developed many romantic and pathetic incidents, and one of the sadder sort was enacted in the dark and gloomy hours of the early morn in the baggage room of the North avenue station yesterday.

Frederic Caspar, Jr., formerly of this city, but late of Bayonne, played the chief role. Caspar has been a bit wild in the past and a short time ago he committed an act in Bayonne that caused him to flee from that place for fear of being arrested.

A few days ago the matter was reported to Chief Grant by the police authorities of Bayonne. The Bayonne officials had heard of the death of the young man's father, and thought that he would more than likely be in this city. A search was instituted but Caspar could not be found.

Yesterday morning on the arrival of the 1:17 Philadelphia train in this city, Roundsman Flynn, who was at the station, noticed a young man get off the train attired in one of Uncle Sam's uniforms. He saw that the fellow avoided him as much as possible. He watched the soldier and saw him approach Henry Hansen, the night baggagemaster. In a few minutes the train pulled out and the apparent stranger got on board.

Roundsman Flynn then inquired of Hansen who the person was. Hansen said that it was Frederic Caspar, Jr., and that he gave him a message to tell his father that he had enlisted in the Third U. S. Calvary, and was going south to join the other members of the company.

Mr. Hansen, with some hesitancy, told young Caspar that he could not deliver the message as his father was dead. The news shocked the son, and he hurriedly inquired about the circumstance of his father's death. He expressed great sorrow and told Hansen to deliver the message to his mother.

Of course, the Roundsman knew that Caspar was wanted, but the fact that he wore one of Uncle Sam's uniforms prevented him from touching him before the train pulled out, and he was obliged to let him go. The message left by young Caspar was delivered to the mother by Mr. Hansen.

It has been several years since the young man was in this city, and he still has many friends here who will be glad to hear of his whereabouts.

A HOME WEDDING.

Miss Thompson Becomes the Wife of an Elizabethan.

A pretty home wedding was celebrated at the residence of Mrs. C. Thompson, of 241 East Fourth street, Saturday last, when Miss Jensene Thompson was married to S. P. Peterson, of Elizabeth. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. Menges, of Philadelphia, before only the immediate relatives of the popular young couple. The bride was becomingly attired in white. Miss Marion Thompson, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and J. Thompson, of Port Reading, was best man. After the ceremony a reception was held and a wedding supper served. There were many handsome and costly gifts received. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson have taken up their residence in Elizabeth.

For a Good Cause.

This evening and tomorrow afternoon and evening the members of the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters of Trinity Reformed church will hold a strawberry and ice cream festival in the lecture room of the church. Mrs. Buckley's Ladies' Orchestra will be present this evening and render a pleasing programme. The object of the affair is to assist in the work of the City Union King's Daughters, and it should be liberally patronized.

Muddy Spot Caused a Fall.

ARMY HAS EMBARKED

The Indiana and Other Cruisers to Escort the Troops.

WILL LAND ON MONDAY.

Now Positively Known That a Large Part of General Shafter's Corps Has Already Embarked for Santiago—War Department Anticipates No Difficulty in Making a Landing—Plans for the Attack.

Washington, D. C., June 9.—There is no doubt whatever at the war department that the vanguard of the main body of troops forming the expedition to Santiago has left Tampa.

In fact, it was learned at the department that information had been received here stating that transports have left the docks at Tampa and have sailed for Key West.

It is thought that the embarkation will continue all day. It is a big task to get on the transports the large amount of supplies and equipment necessary for a trip of this sort, and with the limited dock facilities at Tampa the progress will be unusually slow. It is known, however, that some of the stores and unperishable rations had been placed on board the ships days ago and unless unlooked for delay is encountered in making the final arrangements the last transport should sail from Tampa by noon to-day.

The fleet of transports will rendezvous at Key West, where it will be met by a strong naval convoy, of which the battleship Indiana will be the flagship. This powerful war vessel has been waiting at Key West for the past six days, together with several other ships, mostly small cruisers.

It is the programme to have he transports steam in fleet formation, as they can be protected in this manner better than if strung along over a large amount of territory. The trip to Santiago should not require more than four days. The troops will, therefore, be before the doomed city by Monday at the latest, unless some unforseen accident should occur.

Transports All Ready for Sea.

The transports have all been inspected and pronounced perfectly safe and seaworthy, so little apprehension is felt lest they should break down. Although Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley did very effective work on Monday in battering down the defences of Santiago, there will be another bombardment after the arrival of the transports. The last vestige of the fortifications will be destroyed and every gun within reach will be silenced.

After this has been accomplished the warships will move in closer and cover with their rapid fire guns the landing place for the troops.

Little doubt is felt that our men will be able to land safely and without much opposition and that they will not encounter Spanish soldiers until they move inward from their point of embarkation.

As to the result of the engagement that will doubtless take place between the American and Spanish troops, the officers at the war department have little fear. It has been clearly shown that the gunners on the ships and in the fortifications of the Spanish are entirely incompetent and it is believed that practically the same condition will be found with the Spanish soldiers.

Shafter's Men Fighters.

A large portion of our soldiers on the Santiago expedition are regulars and men who have been under fire. The balance of the force is made up of experienced and wll equipped volunteers. Under the command of General Shafter they will make a good showing.

Secretary Alger yesterday positively declined to say whether or not the United States troops had left Tampa.

He holds that, notwithstanding the bottling up of the Spanish squadron in Santiago, there are still good and sufficient reasons why every precaution should be adopted to prevent the Spaniards from obtaining information as to the departure of our troops, the place selected for their debarkation and the strength of the expedition. He was a good deal annoyed at the attempt of some of the newspapers to indicate the very point selected for landing the troops and siege guns in the neighborhood of Santiago.

If it were true that the department had selected a place where there is a strong wharf upon which the vessels may discharge the heavy siege train directly, the publication of that fact, if authenticated, might very naturally lead the Spaniards to destroy that particular wharf and thus seriously hamper the operations of the troops.

Careful inquiry at other places in the war department, where information as to the movement of troops might naturally be expected, developed the fact that no word had yet come of the departure of the military expedition from Tampa.

As the troops are unler orders to go to sea just as soon as they can be made ready, without further direction from the department, it is deemed probable that they will get off some time during the day and that notice to that effect will be the next news received.

Shelled Spanish Cavalry.

Key West, Fla., June 9.—A government dispatch boat brings news of two auxiliary gunboats shelling a squad of Spanish cavalry last Monday at Cardenas.

One gunboat went close to shore, and right under the guns of the batteries, firing effectively. Not a single man of the Americans was hurt, and the ships were not injured in the least. Twenty-five Spaniards were killed and many wounded. The Spaniards are now so frightened that they run away at sight of an American boat.

Landed Messenger to Gomez

Key West, Fla., June 9.—A torpedo boat destroyer made a safe landing on the north coast of Cuba on Monday, placing ashore John F. Jova, who carries dispatches to General Gomez. Not a Spaniard was seen and there was no need of shelling the place. Gomez is in good fighting trim and eager to begin hostilities.

MANILA REPORTED FALLEN

Aguinaldo's Forces on Land and Dewey's on the Sea Have Conquered the Dons

London, June 9.—The following dispatch has been received at Singapore, signed Aguinaldo:

"We have taken all the province of Cavite and several towns in the province of Batangas. We have captured ten guns, 600 rifles and 1,200 Spaniards from Spain, with 800 Philippine Spaniards, killing 300.

Hong Kong, China, June 9.—A report has reached here that Manila has fallen.

It is said to be now occupied by the Philippine insurgents, commanded by General Aguinaldo.

The rebel junta and wealthy Philippine islanders, resident here, are jubilant over the news.

The United States consulate has been crowded all day.

The American consul, Mr. Wildman, has been the recipient of hundreds of congratulations.

SHIPS FOR THE PHILIPPINES.

Second Fleet Will Put to Sea This Week or at Latest Monday.

Washington, June 9.—Assistant Secretary Meikeljohn has chartered the steamships Indiana, Morgan City and City of Para for transport of troops to the Philippines; has closed a contract for the Victoria, Olympia and Arizona, of the Northern Pacific Seamship line, and secured the privilege of acquiring the Tacoma and the Columbia if needed—all five on condiion ha hey are given an American register.

He has also ordered impressed into service the Senator, Queen and City of Puebla, of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, if found satisfactory.

The second fleet of transports may put to sea on Saturday afternoon, but will not get away until Monday. The Colon was fumigated yesterday and the stores will now be put on board. The China will begin taking on stores to-day and can be loaded by Saturday. The Zealandia is ready to sail at short notice, so the departure of the expedition within a few days is now a certainty.

The men of the Colorado and Pennsylvania regiments have been supplied with ammunition for target practice. All the troops now in camp will shoot over the Presidio ranges in turn. They began yesterday. The Utah cavalry carry heavy intrenchment knives instead of sabres. The knives are about a foot long and their blades are as wide as the base of a mason's trowel. They are very formidable weapons at close quarters.

General Merritt has ordered that a battery of six mountain howitzers shall be taken on the next expedition to Manila. To move the guns, carriages and ammunition in the Philippines a pack train of mules will be required. It is understood that Lieutenant Carson, Fourth United States Cavalry, will command the battery.

HUNTING NEW CAMP SITES.

Tampa to Be Abandoned and Another Point Selected.

Washington, June 9.—The war department took steps yesterday toward the establishment of permanent camps in the South intended for the encampment of our troops during the summer.

A special board, composed of Colonel Charles R. Greenleaf, Major Frederick G. Hodgson and Major George H. Hopkins, was appointed, with instructions to proceed to Columbia, S. C.; thence to Savannah, Ga.; thence to Fernandina, Fla., and thence to Miami, Fla., with a view to ascertaining suitable camp ground for "forces now in the field." Tampa is to be abandoned entirely as a camp and the troops now in the South will be located at more convenient and pleasant points for the summer.

General Corbin has not had a chance to take up General Frank's report on Montauk Point, but an announcement of the designation of this place as a camp is expectel any day.

Sergeant Charles E. Pellew of Troop A, now at Camp Alger, has been ordered to report to Major J. E. Maxfield of the Signal Corps at Tampa.

Mrs. Atkinson Cleared.

Glenville, W. Va., June 9.—The jury Tuesday night returned a verdict of not guilty on the indictment in which Mrs. Atkinson, wife of the governor, was a co-defendant. This ends the long and noted case in which Mrs. Atkinson was charged with forgery. The jury had previously acquitted Owens, who was also charged with forgery in the case.

Tea Raising in South Carolina.

The only tea plantation in the United States is located near Summerville, S. C. It is the property of Dr. Charles U. Shepard, who has undertaken to prove that tea, one of the greatest staple articles used by Americans to-day, can be raised by our farmers profitably. This attempt to add to our now widely diversified list of industries a new one Dr. Shepard made partly as an experiment and partly as a regular business enterprize. And it is very interesting to note that in a business way it has been quite successful. Last season Dr. Shepard sent to market upward of 1,100 pounds of the finest tea obtainable, and this year's crop, he states, will amount to more than 2,000 pounds.

Stirred to His Depths.

For the first time in his life the man of business, freed for a brief season from the grind of his daily toil, and spending his vacation amid the glories of the Yellowstone, stood with bared head in the presence of El Capitan. Stern, majestic, appalling, it towered before him. He gazed at its rugged front in silence, and with emotions never felt before. At last he spoke. "Gosh!" he exclaimed, "I wonder what it would cost me to rent that whole business for a billboard for my $2 shoe!"—Chicago Tribune.

TO COIN MORE GOLD

Gage Wants $250,000 For Extra Mint Expenses..

THE TREASURY NEEDS COIN

Secretary Alger Asks for $40,000 to Make Spare Parts of Rifles—Senate and House Pass Numerous Bills—Other Proceedings in Congress Yesterday—Some of the Bills That Were Passed.

Washington, June 9.—Secretary Gage sent to the House a recommendation for an appropriation of $250,000 for wages and contingent expenses at mints in coining gold and subsidiary silver during the next fiscal year. He also sent a statement of gold bullion now in the treasury and the need for its conversion for use.

The secretary called attention to the $97,000,000 in the treasury on June 1 and the necessity for its conversion into coin. He said:

"On July 1, 1897, the amount of gold bullion held by the treasury was $25,575,028; on June 1, 1898, $96,998,864, an increase of $71,423,836. The coinage of gold from July 1, 1897, to June 1, 1898, aggregated $57,730,930, which about equals the domestic production for the period. The increase in gold bullion in the treasury is due to the large importation of foreign gold deposited, amounting from July 1, 1897, to June 1, 1898, to $72,437,500.

"The mints at Philadelphia, New Orleans and San Francisco are now working eight hours a day. Of the gold bullion in the treasury, $92,000,000 is at the assay office at New York and the mint at Philadelphia, and to reduce materially the stock in a reasonable time, it will be necessary to run overtime at Philadelphia for several months. While the gold bullion at San Francisco is now about $4,500,000, it will be increased in July and August by receipts from the Klondike of probably not less than from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000. It probably will be necessary to work the mint at San Francisco overtime for two or three months, especially should further importations of gold be made from Australia."

Later Secretary Alger sent to the House a request for an appropriation of $40,000 for machinery, etc., for the Springfiell, Mass. arsenal, for the manufacture of spare parts of rifles and carbines, now in the hands of troops, without interfering with the present manufacture of complete rifles and carbines.

Bills Passed in the House.

In the House yesterday these Senate amendments to the sundry civil bill were agreed to:

Improving the harbor of Wilmington, and Christiana river, Delaware; continuing improvement of the harbor at Oakland, Cal.; appropriating $250,000 for the protection of the Sacramento and Feather rivers, California.

THE SOUTHERN VOLUNTEERS

The Majority Recruited from the Country District.

Raleigh, N. C., June 9.—It is a notable fact that the class of men who have enlisted for the war in North and South Carolina are nearly all representatives of the "working class"—machanics and farmers. Fully 90 per cent. of the regiment now in camp in this city is composed of that class. utside of the commissioned officers very few of the young men known as the representatives of the "best families" are to be found in the regiment. The majority of the men are farmers. This city ,the second largest in the state, and Wilmington, the largest city in the state, the two cities having a population of about 20,000 have only one company each, and some trouble was experienced in recruiting those two up to the full quota, while such little villages as Waynesville, N. C., and other little towns (especially in the mountains) have furnished two or more companies each, and enough applications for enlistment for another company from each village.

THE YALE CREW.

List of Those Who Go to New London To-day.

New Haven, Conn., June 9.—The Yale freshman crew, as finally decided upon, is: Waterman, 1901, bow; Occott, 1900, S; Newport, 1901; Stillman, 1901; Gilett, 1900, S; Brown, 1901; Captain Mitchell, 1901, and Cameron, 1901, stroke. The substitutes are: Auchincloss, 1901; Atkinson, 1901; Ireland, 1900 S; Wheeler, 1901; Keppelman, 1901, and Patterson, 1901. The crew and substitutes will leave for New London this afternoon. J. O. Rodgers, '98, will accompany them as coach. H. C. Neal, 1901, has been made coxswain of the crew, in place of G. P. Chittenden, 1901, who has been barred out by faculty enforcements

The new cedar shell built by Davies of Cambridge, Mass., will be used for the first time upon the arrival of the crew at Gales Ferry. The average height of the crew is 5 feet 11 3-4 inches, the average weight 168.9 pounds, and the average age 20 years 8 4-7 months.

Large Brewery Combination.

Cincinnati, June 9.—A combination of local breweries is announced. Twenty million dollars is involved, and options have already been secured on several large plants.

John A. Persch is the promoter. He is an Englishman, who represents English capital, and has been here several days. Persch has already paid $120,000 for the Banner brewery plant. There are twenty-six breweries in the six counties, and Persch declares that options on the majority are in the hands of his Cincinnati attorneys.

Fight Reported Near Cardenas.

Key West, June 9.—Things are lively again around Cardenas, according to reports brought in here yesterday morning.

A report was circulated that two auxiliary gunboats had had a desperate engagement with Spanish cavalry on Monday and had killed twenty-five Spaniards and wounded many more with their shells, but the report has not been verified.

HOUSE CONFEREES FIRM.

Unyielding Opposition to Coinage of Seigniorage.

Washington, June 9.—The Senate's conferees on the war revenue bill are showing a surprising stubbornness in connection with the coinage of the seigniorage. Instead of yielding gracefully, as it was supposed they would do, to the demands of the House conferees, the Senate conferees are holding out for this iniquitous scheme that has been thrown as a sort of pap to the western free silver senators.

The friends of sound money, however, have valiant champions in the House conferees, who are standing firmly and unyieldingly in opposition to the coinage of the seigniorage and it is thought the Senate conferees will be forced to yield.

It is probable that the bill will be out of conference by Friday morning. The Chilton amendment extending the provisions in regard to proprietary medicines and other articles will most likely be knocked out in conference.

Among the changes that have been practically agreed upon by the conferees is one in the beer tax provision, making it definite that the stuff on hand exempted should be the stock in the hands of dealers and not of brewers.

The conferees were engaged yesterday in discussing the amendment referring to a license tax of $12 a year on insurance agents. Doubtless the conferees will decide to remit the tax.

Senator Hanna, when asked whether the Republican sound money victory in Oregon ought not to have the effect of strengthening those conferees who are opposed to the coinage of the seigniorage, replied:

"I certainly think that it ought."

Capt. Philip's Reported Death a Fake.

Washington, June 9.—The report which gained currency yesterday that Captain Philip of the Texas had been killed, appears to have arisen from the fact that one of the officers of the war department to whom duplicate copies of all important telegrams about the conduct of the war are turned over fresh from the wire, had received the Spanish story of Philip's death, and had turned it over to a senator who was calling on him at the time. The senator, visiting the White House, informed some of the functionaries there of what he had read, and from that point it spread all over as a White House confirmation.

At the navy department considerable indignation is felt at the report of Captain Philip's death, the department saying that no basis whatever for it exists and that it is calculated needlessly to alarm his family and friends.

TO LEAVE FOR MANILA.

Two Batteries at Willets Point Ordered to the Philippines.

Willet's Point, L. I., June 9.—Batteries K and L of the Seventh Artillery, camped here under command of Captains Hamilton and White, have been notified to have themselves in readiness to leave for the Philippines on June 20. They are mostly recruits and are kept drilling upon the big disappearing rifles mounted upon the parapets here. Twenty-six new recruits for the batteries arrived here from New York on the packet steamer Mary Morgan which has taken the place of the government steamer General Meigs. The recruits arrive here very slowly in twos and threes. The engineer service is recruited from the ranks of mechanics only, hence the slowness.

LIVELY TIMES AT PLUM ISLAND.

The First Connecticut Volunteers Now Quartered at the Eastern Sound.

Greenport, L. I., June 9.—Plum island is now presenting a lively appearance, particularly since the arrival of the First Connecticut volunteers, which are now stationed at the island. Colonel Hammond was seen here yesterday by a reporter, having arrived on the island from the steamer Manhattan, which stops daily at the latter place. Colonel Hammond said that not a single case of sickness was as yet reported among the troops, and that general good health and spirits prevailed. He said the elevated surroundings of the rock bound island made the greatest difference imaginable to men associated with camp life. The troops are quartered in tents, as at Camp Black. Colonel Hammond said the First would remain at Plum island until further orders were received by him.

He would say nothing regarding the progress of the work at the fortifications, claiming such information could not be publicly imparted, but assured the reporter that no time was being lost in hurrying along the work of preparing for war.

To Feed Soldiers at Camp Alger.

Buffalo, June 9.—The Evening News of this city has chartered a refrigerator car with the privilege of as many more as may be required, and has placed it at the service of the citizens of Buffalo and vicinity who may desire to contribute a dinner for the members of the Sixty-fifth regiment at Camp Alger. The News has also offered to ship free of charge all contributions by citizens of Niagara Falls, Medina, Olean, Hornellsville, Tonawanda and Geneva, for members of the separate companies composing the Third regiment. The train will leave here this evening via the Pennsylvania railroad and will reach Camp Alger in ample time for distribution for a big Sunday dinner for the soldiers.

A Plainfield Factory Burned.

Plainfield, N. J., June 9.—The factory of the Climax Stopper Company, at the corner of East Fourth and Washington streets, was badly damaged by fire yesterday by a pot of paraffin wax boiling over and spreading into a box of cold wax near by. The mass ignited and made a fierce fire, which spread rapidly, and before the firemen arrived the factory was nearly gutted. The employes, mostly girls, escaped unharmed.

Lost at Sea.

Philadelphia, June 9.—A dispatch to the Maritime Exchange from Charleston, S. C., says the U. S. steamer Leonidas put in there yesterday en route from Norfolk to Key West and reports that on Saturday night she lost an iron water barge which she was towing.

The barge had a crew of five men on board. Nothing is known of their fate.

SAMPSON STILL AT IT

A Fort Captured and Old Glory Flung to the Breeze.

A DAY TO TAKE SANTIAGO

United States Troops Are Intrenched at Aguadores—Junction With Garcia's Men Was Made Monday—If Spanish Admiral Does Not Surrender the Town Will Be Taken by Storm—The Reina Mercedes Sunk by Our Shells.

Washington, June 9.—The Stars and Stripes now float over the dismantled ruins of one of the Spanish forts near the entrance of Santiago. Rear Admiral Sampson has taken possession of the fortifications, and "Old Glory" has been run up and the Spanish flag hauled down.

Admiral Sampson has landed marines and he is now preparing the fort for the occupancy of American soldiers, and remounting the guns to be handled by the accurate American gunners. The navy department is much pleased at this news.

Just what Sampson's immediate plans are cannot be even hinted at here, but naval men think that after intrenching his men and getting ready to take Santiago, Cervera will be given a short breathing spell to think matters over.

If the Spanish admiral prefers a fight to surrender, a fierce attack will be made and the city reduced.

It is argued that the Spaniards cannot resist the American and Cuban forces longer than twenty-four hours.

Naval experts say that the alternative left to Admiral Cervera is "starve or surrender." With our fleets making it impossible to escape from the harbor in which he is caught, and with the rebel and American troops investing the city, it is only a question of a short time when the Spanish commander must give up. His position is hopeless. With the arrival of the big body of the army of invasion his supplies will be cut off effectually and if he does not surrender he must starve.

The question is, will he surrender? Naval men think he will, but not until he has blown up all his fine ships rather than let them fall into our hands.

At any rate the end is in sight. Spain knows of her crack fleet's helplessness and the movement among European powers seems toward peace at our terms.

It is believed that the city of Santiago can be taken in one day after the arrival of the United States troops, and this summary of the situation voices the opinion of nearly all naval officers on the twenty-two great men of war now circling around the entrance to Santiago harbor.

The fleet has accomplished all it can thus far. When it sunk the Merrimac and "bottled up" the Spanish fleet so that it could not leave port, it also cut off its own chance of running in over the mine fields and giving Almiral Cervera battle on his own ground, for the Merrimac is doing its work well.

Despite all rumors that the Spaniards are going to blow her up with dynamite, so as to remove the obstruction to the exit of Cervera's ships, she is still there and there to stay. Her smokestack and masts are plainly visible from the sea. Nothing can get by her. Of course, in time of peace, she could be blown up, but even then it would be no easy task when the great cargo of coal in her hold is considered.

The American fleet here now is strong enough to take Barcelona, but it has done its work and must now await the arrival of the troops. Cervera is securely hemmed in by the Merrimac on the sea side, and the channel cannot be cleared; the land attack is the next move.

The officers of the fleet are still talking of the visit of Admiral Cervera's chief of staff to the flagship. It is generally conceded that it was a wonderfully diplomatic move on Admiral Cervera's part to put himself in as good a light as possible with Admiral Sampson before making that surrender of the Spanish fleet which he now sees is an inevitable necessity.

The admiral undoubtedly sees the utter hopelessness of his position, walled in like a fly in a bottle in a town where food is daily growing scarcer, and cut off from land supplies by hostile troops. He surely realizes that the agony cannot be prolonged much longer, and that the surrender of his fleet means the fall of Cuba.

If the object of Captain Ovideo's visit to Admiral Sampson was to find out the strength of the American fleet his curiosity was certainly gratified. It was done in such a quiet way, too, as if entirely accidental, which must have made the exposition all the more striking. While Admiral Sampson was receiving the message of Admiral Cervera and transmitting to him an equally courteous reply, a signal was given for all the ships to concentrate near the flagship.

The order was promptly obeyed and when Captain Ovideo was ready to leave the flagship he saw file before him in splendid procession the finest fleet of war vessels the Caribbean sea ever held. From the deck of the stately New York he saw the Brooklyn, the Texas, Iowa, Oregon, New Orleans, Marblehead, Massachusetts, Yankee and others in seemingly never ending procession file silently by, their grim guns backed by their crews, equally silent and grim.

Chicago and Atlanta Nearly Ready.

New York, June 9.—At the Brooklyn navy yard it is learned that the cruiser Chicago, which has been in dry dock for the last two weeks, will be ready for service within the next ten days.

Work has been hurried on the cruiser while she has been in dry dock, and her main and mizzen masts have been taken out.

The other cruiser Atlanta, which has been at the yard for several months, and which has been in dry dock No. 1, was floated out yesterday afternoon.

Kentucky's Good Wheat Crop.

Frankfort, Ky., June 9.—The crop report issued by State Agricultural Commissioner Moore shows the state's average for wheat to be 104 per cent., the best record in the history of the state. Other crops are proportionately flourishing.

There are three conditions:
When the blood is poor;
When more flesh is needed;
When there is weakness of the throat or lungs.
There is one cure: that is Scott's Emulsion.

It contains the best cod-liver oil emulsified, or digested, and combined with the hypophosphites and glycerine. It promises more prompt relief and more lasting benefit in these cases than can be obtained from the use of any other remedy.

ANNEXATION OF HAWAII PROBABLE.

President May Urge Congress by Special Message.

Washington, June 9.—The president does not intend to let Congress adjourn without taking action upon the annexation of Hawaii.

It is stated that should Speaker Reed and his lieutenants on the floor continue their present tactics of pushing privileged questions to the front and preventing the consediration of the Hawaiian resolution, President McKinley will send a message to Congress on the necessity of action at once.

It is said that if President McKinley becomes satisfied within the next few days that Congress is contemplating a speedy adjournment after the adoption of the war revenue bill, he will not delay his message longer than the first of next week.

Several senators said yesterday openly that they did not think Congress could be held here after the passage of the general deficiency bill, the last appropriation bill yet unfinished. The friends of Speaker Reed say that his only object in opposing the resolution is because he does not think it policy to pass the bill now.

The annexation senators say that should Congress send the customary committee to the president to inform him that hey had finished their work and were ready to adjourn, the president would announce to this committee that Hawaiian annexation was of such importance at this time that he would feel justified in calling an extra session. This intimation, it is believed, would bring speedy action.

ATTACK MANILA BY SEA AND LAND.

Governor Gen. Reports to Madrid That the Situation There Is Very Grave.

Madrid, June 9.—The captain general of the Philippines says the situation at Manila is very grave. Aguinaldo has succeeded in stirring up the whole country. Manila is to be attacked by land and sea. There are many desertions from the Spaniards. The insurrection has reached great proportions.

The minister of war, General Correa, received news from the Philippine islands yesterday and communicated it to the premier, Senor Sagasta, saying the governor general of that colony, General Augusti, asked for full liberty of action. He added that Aguinaldo, the insurgent leader, continues to excite a general insurrection in the archipelago.

A dispatch from the commander of the Visayas says that official sent two gunboats to the island of Luzon with instructions to try to communicate with Manila, but they were compelled to return unsuccessful.

The government, it is added, replied instructing the commander of the Visayas to restore communication with Manila at all costs.

General Correa declined to furnish the text of the dispatches for publication, on the ground that it would be prejudicial to the country's interests; but a member of the government, whose name cannot be used, admitted that the dispatch of Spanish troops to the Philippine islands could not change the situation. He addel:

"We could send 6,000 troops, but if the natives are against us such a force would be inadequate. If they were with us it would not be necessary to send troops to the Philippine islands."

THE CUBAN BLOCKADE.

Gunboats Making Matters Lively for Spaniards at Cardenas.

Key West, Fla., June 9.—An auxiliary gunboat which arrived here yesterday morning from Cardenas, reports all quiet there, except that the auxiliary gunboat Leyden is making things lively for the Spaniards by blazing away at them whenever she sees a movement on the Spanish gunboats or on the defensive works.

The British collier Reath, a sister ship of the Restormel, was held up on June 4 by an American gunboat. Not responding promptly to a blank shot, a solid shot was sent across her bows. Next day she was held up by a second gunboat and obeyed immediately. She was in ballast, bound for Mobile from San Juan de Porto Rico, where she had discharged her cargo of coal.

Caimanera Shelled for Two Hours.

Cape Haytien, June 9.—Five American warships began the bombardment of Caimanera at 5.30 Tuesday morning. The firing was heavy and continued until 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The shells fell in the town of Caimanera, doing great damage and forcing the Spanish artillery to retreat.

There will undoubtedly be a fierce struggle there, as the Spanish troops expect an effort will be made to land troops and they are prepared to stand their ground to the last, when the Americans debark.

Caimanera is thirty miles east of Santiago. It is the point where the shore cable from Santiago leaves the south coast of Cuba.

Admiral Sampson has been instructed emphatically to destroy this cable connection and it was undoubtedly to completely shut off Santiago from cable connection that five ships from his squadron were sent to bombard Caimanera.

FOR THE VACATION SEASON.

Subscribers leaving the city for the summer season can have The Daily Press sent to their new address by notifying the buisness office. The address will be changed as often as desired. "Home news" will prove most interesting while you are away.

A Hint for Mr. Marsh.

One thing which the astute minds of the municipal administration did not foresee, and therefore made no legal provision against in drafting the ordinance, when the franchise for the operation of a trolley road was put into effect, was the inconvenience which the public suffers from a whirlwind of dust that fills the air in the wake of a trolley car in dry weather.

Aggravating as is this condition of things, it has had to be endured by a suffering public, principally because the capitalists who secured a valuable franchishe for nothing have not been inclined to undergo a slight expense in providing a plan whereby the streets can be sprinkled along the route of their various lines. The treatment of the public by the Plainfield Street Railroad Company in this direction has been very much the same as is usually accorded the people by corporations solely dependent upon them for existence—constant complaints have been heard and listened to, promises have been made, but up to the present time no remedying force has ever been applied.

Now, however, we think there is something pending that ought to be used to bring the company to terms, and satisfactory ones, too, in the matter of sprinkling the streets. That particular thing is the application for a franchise which the railway company has asked for along East Second street. Before that valuable privilege is granted there should be inserted in the provisions governing its use a clause making it absolutely obligatory on the railway company to obviate this great public nuisance of stirring up clouds of dust wherever their cars speed along in the summer months. It can be easily done, and The Daily Press, in behalf of oppressed and exasperated householders, merchants, and all conditions of citizens, calls the attention of the Corporation Counsel to the matter.

Explanations Needed.

Half hearted Americans who write for newspapers in Europe are able to do this country much harm at present by their misrepresentations of our people and their toryish attitude toward their fellow countrymen. Such a creature is Mr. George W. Smalley, so called American correspondent of the London Times. He lived in London too long, did Smalley, and that was the trouble with him. He is no American.

The nations of Europe do not understand us or our motive in making war in behalf of Cuba. Even the governments of the continental nations are disposed to be fair where their own interests are not concerned. It is reasonable to suppose, therefore, that they would look on us at least as favorably as on Spain if they knew the truth. Not knowing our language, it is hard for them to find out the truth. The emissaries of Spain have worked industriously to poison them against us. It is part of the high minded and chivalrous system of Spanish state policy.

GENERAL ELWELL S. OTIS.

Major General Elwell S. Otis, who has been selected as second in command of our forces in the Philippine Islands, has an admirable record as a soldier. He has been in the service of the United States for 36 years. He was born in Maryland and began his military career in 1862. General Otis is subject to retirement in 1902.

It would be worth while if the United States government were to secure in each country of Europe the services of accomplished newspaper men who understand both our cause and our language and have them speak for us through the columns of leading European journals. Well written, patriotic articles might be sent to them for translation, and it would not be beneath the dignity of the United States government itself to attend to the matter. It would be justice, and it would be good diplomacy.

Governing the Philippines.

The United States is face to face with a new problem—that of governing a distant dependency peopled by a different race. Great Britain has succeeded better than any other country in that task, except indeed in case of that dependency nearer home and inhabited by white people like her own, Ireland. There England has made illustrious mistakes.

There is no reason to doubt that the United States can govern a foreign dependency as well as it has done everything else, although it will be trying our hand at something altogether new to undertake the administration of the Philippines. Reports of the people of those islands are so conflicting that we cannot yet tell whether to consider them a race of fierce barbarians or a gentle, half civilized people. We do not know, therefore, whether we shall have to hold them in hand with troops or simply govern them according to our laws in force in other United States territories. We shall find out soon.

One thing the United States government will at once look out for, and that a most important one—the revenues of the Philippines. Even with her familiar methods of cruelty and extortion, Spain drew large profits from these islands. Under the humane and enlightened administration of Uncle Sam they will increase rapidly in productiveness, population and civilization.

Those old ladies of both sexes in Boston and elsewhere who are whining and scolding about the iniquity of this war and our meddling with what does not concern us are the Levites who pass by on the other side while highwaymen beat and rob the stranger. There are times when war is justifiable and necessary. To oppose a tyrant who is taking away the liberties of a people; to defend, in the name of humanity and Christianity, the weak when they are being starved and butchered, whoever and wherever they are—for these ends it is right to go to war and give the party that is in the wrong a good sound thrashing. The United States could not have maintained its own self respect or its prestige in the eyes of the nations had it refrained from intervening in Cuba. It would have shown itself like those Americans who are opposing the stand the people of this country have taken for Cuba.

We note that members of one of the regiments in camp regard it as a mark of high living that they are able to get "fresh bread" every day. There speaks the true American. Nobody on this round earth but a native Yankee would wad his stomach full of fermenting dough and expect Providence to digest it for him. A lump of putty would be as wholesome. Germans are famous for their perfect cookery of substantial, nourishing food, and a German would almost as soon swallow a mouthful of shot as chunks of soft, doughy, fermenting bread. There is a city ordinance in Berlin that no bread shall be sold until it is a day old. The person who eats warm dough takes his life in his hand.

The Spanish government professes not to like our blockade because it is ineffective. Spain wants the powers, therefore, to intervene and stop us because our blockade does not block. How odd it is that the Madrid government should protest against its ports being only half blockaded! If such were really the case, it would be exactly what they would like.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The auxiliary cruiser Badger, manned by the Battalion of the East of New Jersey Naval Reserves, is in need of a stand of colors. Nothing could be more appropriate than the presentation to the cruiser of such a gift by the women of New Jersey. The Badger is manned exclusively by Jerseymen. The authorities at Washington paid a particular compliment to the State in this respect, and in the selection of the three regular Navy officers to aid the battalion care was taken to pick out officers whose homes are in the State. The Badger will probably be near New York for several weeks, and there is still time for the patriotic women of New Jersey to show in a substantial manner their appreciation of the gallant young men who have enlisted in their country's service.—Tribune.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News, but Just as Interesting.

It was on one of the main streets of the city that a handsomely dressed woman approached one of Plainfield's finest of the force, and inquired of him if he knew where there was a haberdasher.

"A what?" questioned the bluecoat.

"Why, a haberdasher!" replied the woman.

The policeman shook his head and replied, "There ain't none in the city."

Just then a citizen, who happened to hear the conversation, stepped up and directed the woman to J. R. Blair's store on Park avenue. After the fair questioner had passed on, the bluecoat remarked, "Wall, I think I'll go back to ould Ireland and take lessons in the English language."

* * * * * *

A woman writer in the Evening Sun says:

At the meeting of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, held in Plainfield not long ago, there was present a Denver woman, whose accounts of the club goings-on in the breezy Occident were all that was inspiring. The accounts are especially welcome just now, when all club eyes are turned toward Denver, and to which place upon June 16th all club feet will commence a forward march, the biennial meeting of the General Federation being held in that city during the third week of June. "We're going to give you a splendid time," said the Denver woman. "And by 'we' I don't mean the Denver women alone, or just the 1,000 members of the Denver Woman's Club. Denver men are perfectly devoted to women's clubs, they pin their faith to anything we do or say, and they're determined to show our visitors just what that means. Those few of you who may perhaps hail from towns or cities where the men still look askance at the club movement, may open your eyes when you get to Denver, but it will be a not unpleasant opening. Why, when our City Council or Board of Education or Police Commission or any of our public or private bodies of men contemplate any reform or innovation, the first thing they say is "What will the Woman's Club think about it?" and the first thing they do is to get the opinion of the Woman's Club upon it. "But what about the Legislature?" here put in a Plainfieldite. "We New Jersey women have had such a dreadful time with our Legislature. We have presented bill after bill and we can't get it to do one thing we want it to." "Trouble with the Legislature!" repeated the Denverite. "Well, I should say not. I'm a member of the Legislature myself."

IMPORTANT!

It is important to be in close touch with the headquarters of Fashion, otherwise the new things as they appear in New York are never brought to this section.

We have a standing order with the most reliable houses to send us as soon as received THE LATEST STYLES, therefore we show the new fashionable articles almost as soon as New York.

It is this fact which puts us in the front rank among the fashionable people.

The stamp of correctness in style marks our merchandise.

You Can Depend On Us.

There is not a piece of goods in our store that is not dependable goods in every sense. Not a piece that we do not stand back of and guarantee that it is just as it is represented to be. That it is perfect in style, quality and price. We are not a cheap store in the sense that we sell cheap goods, you'll find plenty of that kind anywhere, but selling the quantities that we do we are able to offer you reliable goods at quite a price saving. And that is where your interest in our store comes in, the more we sell the closer we can make our margins. We want you to feel that you have an interest in our store as well as us. Make it your shopping home, make use of it every way you can. The more you use it the better you will like it and the better it will serve you. Then, again, you are always welcome to come here and look. There is hardly a day passes but sees something new added to our stock. The very newest things are here, and leaving out the price difference, would it not pay you to at least have a look at the goods?

You will find the assortment just as large here as anywhere you go; you'll find the prices less. We think we are showing the handsomest collection of goods we ever had. We believe the way to get people to come to our store is to give them all that's possible in style, quality and quantity for their money—that isn't always done in every store, but it is here. Everything is sold for a small profit, no matter how much the excellence of the article may suggest or justify a different course. It's done that way because it pays best in the long run, and this store is here to stay.

PLAINFIELD'S BUSIEST STORE

We Sell Goods Cheaper Than All Other Stores.

Your Dollar

Often represents hours of toil. When that dollar is spent, it should command its full buying power. To give it that power is one of the principles of this store. Our public knows this and appreciate the efforts which this store is constantly making to give them a bigger dollar's worth than they can get elswhere. We have made it possible for your dollar to do extra duty on

These Lots.

Bargains in Summer Underwear.

We don't think you ever bought reliable underwear at such prices as these. Changing time now and a good time to buy the summer underwear. We tell of five items that are priced at half value.

Ladies' ribbed vests.....5c
Ladies' lisle vest.....13c, 2 for 25c
Ladies' colored lisle vests.....18c
Ladies' ribbed lisle combination suits made to sell for 75c, our price.....59c

A Flyer in Ladies' Hose.

We place on sale today one hundred dozen ladies' high spliced, double sole hose for ladies, Hermsdorf dye, 14c pr. No store can match this under 25c.

Shirt Waists.

Never such a season for shirt waist selling. You can afford to pick freely from these lots of cool, fine waists. There will be no more when these are gone. Over one thousand of them are entire manufacturers stock, who wanted cash, and he got it, but only half what the waists cost him.

69c for fine lawn and cambric waists that were made to sell for.....$1
89c for waists that cost.....$1.50
Made of imported organdies and dimities.

Men's Furnishings.

Just a word with you, sir. You may or may not know that we have the most representative stock of men's fixings, but such is the fact, and here you buy them at dry goods store profits. Thus:

Men's fine balbriggan shirts and drawers.....25c
Men's extra fine balbriggan shirts and drawers.... 39c, 50c quality
Men's medium weight natural wool shirts and drawers.....39c
Men's fine cambric shirts, the dollar kind.....79c
Men's fine black half hose, 2 pairs for.....25c
Men's bicycle hose, belts and caps.

Ribbons.

We have bought a manufacturer's stock of short lengths of fine fancy ribbon from 2 to 6 inches wide. Value from 30 to 40c the yard; all go for 19c.

Store Notes.

Some exclusive styles in neckwear for ladies have just arrived. In one of the front show cases is a beautiful assortment of new shirt waist sets, belt pins, stick pins, etc. In another case are some pretty styles in new parasols. A first pick here is worth something. Fifty styles of sheer printed organdies, lawns and dimities. The price argument should make you a buyer. You would price them at 20c, you buy them at 12c while they last. On one of the front counters is a lot of fine India linens and jaconettes, short lengths, value from 20 to 25c. You buy them at 10 and 12c.

While in the store visit the carpet, rug and matting department. We are naming low prices on certain lots of rugs and mattings that will be of interest to you.

OMAR KHAYYAM SET TO MUSIC.

Its Author, Not Content to Rest Upon the Laurels Already Won.

Liza Lehmann's musical setting of Fitzgerald's version of the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, which has become an extraordinary fad among fashionable folk, has aroused much pardonable curiosity regarding the composer—a curiosity not hitherto gratified.

In private life the writer of the song-cyclus, "In a Persian Garden," is Mrs. Arthur Beresford, no relative, however, of the Beresford family to which the former Duchess of Marlborough has allied herself.

She lives in London, and remains there much of the time. Her home life is delightfully domestic, although she lives in an atmosphere of art and music, and enjoys great social distinction. Her father, Rudolph Lehmann, was a painter well-known throughout Germany, and her mother was a composer of songs which always bore the signature of "A. L."

It is small wonder that the child of such parents early developed genius.

Miss Lehmann's early songs, written some years before the song-cyclus, bore the unmistakable stamp of creative power, and attained considerable popularity in England, although little known in this country. Before her marriage Miss Lehmann was a concert singer and possessed a beautiful lyric soprano voice. Of late, however, she has devoted herself to her home and compositions, and seldom sings in public.

To most persons the accomplishment of a work like "In a Persian Garden," at the age of 31 years, would be glory enough, but Miss Lehmann is not content to rest upon laurels already won and is busy now with other compositions.

Miss Lehmann has a striking personality. She is of medium size and modest as a flower, her fair hair falls in light, fluffy curls about her forehead and frames a girlish face. Her eyes express the poetic and soulful nature which is apparent in the music she has written and which adapts itself so appreciatively to the verse. Not the least of her charms is the absence of pretense. She is the personification of amiability and has none of the affectations which frequently accompany success. She is a charming hostess, and, being a remarkable linguist, the talent and genius of many lands are to be found at her house on her days at home.

A New Style Bicycle Dress.

Bicycle dresses, the choicest, are made of double-faced woolen material. Oftenest it is plaid on one side, plain on the other. The right side is the one which My Lady fancies. Often the faces contrast. And the most pretentious tailors dare to make up, say, a fabric of plaid red and black doubled with hunter's green, so that the skirt is of the red and black and the jacket green. But such vivid contrasts are intended mainly for country use. Less gay colorings in plaid and plain are chosen for city bicycling.

The plaid especially approved is formed by simple cross lines of one line against another. For example, gray against black. The skirt of the gray and black plaid, the jacket of black. A French design illustrates this mode. The circular skirt is of rich navy blue, with gray lines; the coat of navy blue lined with lighter blue taffeta, and worn over a wash waist of sky blue pique. The shoes and stockings are black, and the softening bow at the throat is of fine white linen. The French woman cannot forsake her feminine frill, even on the wheel. Nor need any American woman, if she is sure she is sufficiently chic in her style. The trouble with many women who try to be pretty on the wheel is that they only manage to be dowdy. But some women would scorn a plaid bicycle costume. Such select tan or plain navy heavyweight stuffs.

For the Tea Tables.

The easiest way to manage the tea-table for an afternoon "at home" is to have the tea made in a fairly large china teapot, putting the tea-leaves in bags that may be removed at the proper time. This pot of tea may be made as strong as is consistent with good flavor and hygienic brew, and on the tea-table should be an urn of hot water kept at the boiling point by an alcohol lamp, this to be used for diluting purposes for such as prefer the beverage weak. The tea-balls are dainty and pretty, but their constant use interferes with the reception duties of the hostess. In large establishments, where plenty of maids are at hand, there may be a fresh brew for each caller and for each cup, but the method suggested secures the greatest economy of time and service.

One of the latest achievements in chemical science is a pellet containing the concentrated elements of coffee, sugar, and milk.

THE SPANISH PEASANTS.

A Patient and Long Suffering Class—The Cream of the People.

In the Spanish lower classes you will find poverty and appalling ignorance—a neglect of the intelligence which is positively animal—yet nevertheless not unallied with an obvious capacity of education and improvement, an actual and admirable pluck and cheerfulness, a temper grateful, hospitable, and affectionate, and a marvelous sobriety of living.

There is one especial word particularly applicable to this gente baja. It is the Spanish word sufrida, which we must render in a single English word by patient; but it means more than patient; it means patient and unvindictive under grievous injury and wrong.

Such are the Spanish peasantry—the cream of the Spanish people. Their only province in relation to their government is to pay. They are a passive vehicle for ministerial extortion. The contribuciones are already heavier than they can bear, and grow more merciless as each successive administration plunges the country deeper deeper into debt. In return for this continuous disbursement they receive nothing. Their lands are without a road, their children without a school; their navy is furnished with ships contracted for at double the price of ours, whose only quality is to go to the bottom without the shadow of a cause; their army is unpaid, unofficered, and undrilled, and absolutely incompetent to engage with any European power. The last Spanish census shows that of a total population of 18,000,000 over 6,000,000 can neither read nor write, while over half have no determined occupation. This statement is in itself so damaging that it appears hardly necessary to inquire further.—Westminster Review.

A USEFUL ANT-EATER.

Nearly Exterminated the Caterpillar from the Trees.

When a horde of hairy, yellow caterpillars infested the linden trees in the Philadelphia Zoological Gardens the superintendent was much troubled for a way to get rid of the pests. Poisonous sprinkling mixtures, tar and coal oil were all applied to the trees, but the results fell far short of what had been hoped. The caterpillars flourished in spite of all, and seemed to increase in numbers.

Then the ingenious head keeper had a happy idea. He took the South American ant-eater from its cage, and securing it with a collar and a long cord, started it up one of the trees. The way the creature laid about with its long, sticky tongue, scooping in caterpillars by the dozen, more than realized the keeper's greatest expectations. It took to them with as much relish as though they were its natural food, and in the course of half an hour completely cleaned the tree.

Then the ant-eater was put up another tree, and it ate until it was gorged. Since then it has been turned out three times a day, and so great have been its industry and appetite that the caterpillars are nearly exterminated.

THROWN OFF THE SCENT.

Device by Which Burglars Fooled the Bloodhounds.

Sometime ago a bank in Shipshewana, Ind., was visited by burglars, who blew open the safe and secured a large sum of money. A famous pack of bloodhounds was brought from Indianapolis and turned loose upon the robbers' trail. The man hunt lasted only a few minutes. Suddenly the leading dog began howling dismally and refused to go farther, and it was impossible to continue the chase.

Later a prisoner in jail at Ligonier, Ind., turned State's evidence and gave the police all the facts concerning the bank burglary and the subsequent escape of the men. He said the bloodhounds were thrown off the scent without any trouble by rubbing an onion on the shoes worn by the burglars. He added that no bloodhound can be induced to follow an onion trail.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Compressed Flour.

The importance of lightness and compactness in the kit of soldiers has stimulated the manufacturers of army food stuffs to produce all manner of concentrated products for use on the march or in camp. Of these the latest is compressed flour, which is now being tested by the British War Department. The objection to the establishment of national granaries is the impossibility of storing wheat for any length of time. The grain soon germinates and is ruined. The flour is now molded into bricks by hydraulic pressure, in which shape it is unaffected by damp, is mold-proof and sweet and wholesome. The compression is said to destroy all forms of larval life, and the flour becomes immune against the attacks of insects. Since the cubic space occupied by 100 pounds of loose flour will hold more than 300 pounds of the compressed flour, it will be seen that the saving in storage is immense.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Inherited the College Yell.

"My dear," said the young wife, "there was a time when I was proud of the powerful voice you put into your college yell, but now I wish it had been merely a whisper."

"Why, dearest?" asked the astonished young husband.

"Because," she replied, "the baby has inherited it."—Chicago News.

Berlin. Der Redakteur der „Korrespondenz des Bundes der Landwirthe," Johannes Hoffmann, der vor der Steuerbehörde sein Einkommen auf 1500 Mark jährlich angegeben hatte, während sein festes Gehalt 4500 Mark beträgt und er noch mehrere Tausend Mark an Nebeneinnahmen bezieht, wurde vom Landgericht I zum fünffachen Betrag der defraudirten Steuer, das ist insgesammt 760 Mark, verurtheilt. — Der Staatssekretär des Reichspostamts, General von Podbielsky, ist dem Verein „Berliner Presse" beigetreten.—Mit Arbeit überhäuft sind zur Zeit die Berliner Schuhfabriken. Eine so günstige Geschäftskonjunktur hat das Schuhgewerbe in Berlin schon seit Jahren nicht zu verzeichnen gehabt.

Dornum. Während eines orkanartigen Sturmes lief neulich das Baltrumer Fährschiff trotz aller Warnungen von hier aus. In der Nähe der Insel nahm das Schiff eine starke See über, die es zum Kentern brachte. Zwei Passagiere aus Baltrum und der Schuhmachermeister Claasen aus Nessemersiel, fanden hierbei ihren Tod in den Wellen. Dem Schiffer gelang es, die Insel zu erreichen. Der Tod des Schuhmachermeisters Claasen ist ein besonders trauriger und mitleiderregender; die Frau befindet sich schon längere Zeit im Irrenhause, so daß jetzt eine Anzahl kleiner Kinder hilflos und verlassen dasteht.

Let Us Help You "Fix it Up"
Spring's the time you give yourself new duds. Better clothe the home too. No better season—none more appropriate. But be chary of what you get and how deep you go into that purse.
Here, you'll find our 40 years' experience a help in picking out sensible things—no chance of poor choosing, for our 3 acres of Furniture and Carpets are best from A to Z.
Mayhap you're not ready to spare but a scanty sum. Then our credit terms of 75c a week will "bridge you over." And none but cash prices, even if it be credit terms!

$10.75 —same as cut. Nothing new about the price we know full well—but there's a lot new about the suit at such a price. Of solid oak, well finished and well shaped—if you want other shapes, we've 100 here up to $150.

But a trifle for so good a Sideboard as this. $13.95 Not a haphazard, thrown-together affair, but as substantial as honest talent knows how to make it. And there are other good boards here too—from $9.75 to $100. A grand showing.

How About Your Refrigerator?
Pay us $5.49—get a hardwood refrigerator that ought to tax your means for one-half more—$5.49 pays for not only one refrigerator, but covers cost of a fine galvanized pick, tongs and pan that go along with it—another proof of "Amos H. The Talk of the City.

It's of Interest to Our Readers Because it Refers to Plainfield People.

It's astonishing how good news will spread. From every ward and street we hear of our people talking about the workings of the little conqueror. Merit and honorable methods receive their just reward. So many cases are cropping up that it is next to impossible to investigate them all, but we have taken a few in hand and give them publicity for the benefit of our readers. Our representative obtained the following statement of facts in a personal interview. They are true in every particular and no stronger evidence can be obtained than home endorsement.

Mrs. Margaret Reville, of 732 W. 3rd street, says:—"For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained a box of Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions. It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back had before pained me and was so weak and sore that I dreaded to bend over and when I had a cold or over-exerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but did not get but little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back. My experience with them has been very satisfactory and I do not hesitate to recommend them to anyone suffering from kidney troubles."

PATRIOTISM IN WAR.

CONVENT AT KEY WEST TO BE USED AS A HOSPITAL.

The Mother Superior of the Mary Immaculate Institution Has Placed It at the Government's Service—Sisters of the Convent Will Serve as Nurses.

Patriotism runs high in time of war, and it is patriotism of the real sort too. There is another kind which takes to cover at the sound of the first shot, and remains there unseen and unheard until the danger is past. Both kinds are conspicuous now—one for its presence and the other for its absence.

A few weeks ago the press of the United States reported the offer of the mother superior of the convent of Mary Immaculate, Key West, to place the institution and its inmates at the service of the government for use as a hospital. On behalf of the United States Commander Sampson of the north Atlantic squadron accepted the offer. Late reports from Key West state that work is being pushed forward looking to the completion of a field hospital there, evidently with the idea that it may not be long before it will be needed. Captain J. E. Sawyer, assistant quartermaster general United States army, has awarded contracts for frame outbuildings, including kitchens, dining rooms, dormitories for stewards and attendants and storehouses for medical supplies. The buildings are to be erected on the grounds of the convent named above and are to be used in conjunction with the permanent convent structures.

Major William R. Hull, surgeon United States army, who will be in charge of the medical and surgical staff, is already in Key West. He will have four staff assistants. Among the nurses who will serve in the hospital are the sisters of the convent, all of whom have volunteered for that service. It will be large enough to accommodate 300 patients.

The Convent of Mary Immaculate is the coolest, cleanest, prettiest and largest dwelling place in Key West. There are doors and windows open to every breeze and wind, for it stands in the center of a ten acre tract which is covered with semitropical trees and flowering shrubs. It is the home of the Sisters of the Holy Name and is really a school for the sisters are teachers. They came to the island 30 years ago, and 10 years later work began on the convent building, which had a woman for its architect—Mother Theresa of Jesus, who drew the plans. The structure is modeled after a Cuban villa, and it, with two commodious schoolhouses near at hand, will be able to accommodate hundreds of sick and wounded men.

Each of the school buildings is 100 feet long by 40 feet wide. Each of the two floors of each school building is one immense room. It would seem that the builder of the schoolhouses had in mind the present emergency, for they are admirably suited for hospital purposes. Wide galleries or piazzas gird each floor, and they can be transformed into hospital wards by hanging canvas or reed curtains along the open side. The convent is 150 feet long by 40 feet wide, but the piazzas add at least 30 feet to the length and width. Running back is a wide one story extension, used for the kitchen, dining room and storerooms. The lower floor of the main building may be thrown into one large room, for the schoolrooms are separated by wide folding doors. When these are thrown open, there is a room 150 feet long, varying from 30 to 40 feet in width. The generous galleries of the convent may easily be converted into wards by canvas curtains. The eight acres of the convent and the two acres in which stand the school buildings furnish ample cleared space for hospital tents. Of course the hospital service of the army and navy will have to furnish cots, operating tables and the other paraphernalia of modern hospital service, and a large shipment of these necessaries has been made at Washington.

Father Friend, pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and the head of this parish, is co-operating with Sister Mary Florentine and the other 22 Sisters of the Holy Name in this work of love and mercy. With the broad charity that always characterizes the church in its conduct of institutions for the relief of suffering humanity church lines will be obliterated and the convent hospital will make no creed distinction in receiving sick and wounded men. Protestant and Catholic alike will be welcomed, nursed and restored to health if willing hearts and gentle hands can do it.

Besides the convent hospital the marine hospital and the army hospital of the military post at Key West will be ready for real service.—Standard and Times.

Nuns Embroidered Their Flag.

Ten thousand persons gathered about the Seventh regiment armory in Chicago the other night to cheer the Irish boys as they started for Springfield. Next to Colonel Kavanagh, the most popular man in the regiment was Father Kelly, the chaplain. It was Father Kelly who opened the proceedings in the evening with a little speech, in which he called on the regiment to do its duty. The regimental flag was embroidered beautifully by the nuns of the House of the Good Shepherd, and ex-Judge Prendergast spoke of this to emphasize the fact that the Catholics are loyal to the country.—Standard and Times.

Often the Best Source.

Difficulty, adversity and suffering are not all evil, but often the best source of strength and virtue. Some men only require a great difficulty set in their way to exhibit the force of their character, and difficulty, once conquered, becomes one of the greatest incentives to their progress. It is not prosperity so much as adversity, not wealth so much as poverty, that stimulates the perseverance of strong and healthy natures.—Catholic Universe.

CATHOLICS ON THE KONGO.

The Great Evangelization Centers Are What Are Called the Farm Chapels.

In the course of a very interesting lecture delivered a few weeks ago at Ghent the Rev. Pere Liagre, S. J., a missionary in the Kongo Free State, furnished some details respecting the progress of Christianity in that part of central Africa. For missionary purposes the country has been partitioned among three religious orders—the White Fathers, the Congregation of the Immaculate Heart of Mary and the Society of Jesus, the portion falling to the latter embracing an extent four times the area of Belgium. Before making any attempt to convert the negroes the fathers endeavored to give them some elementary notions of civilization by habituating them to labor, which it seems is not quite an easy task, the negroes in their native state being averse to exertion, leaving all the hard work to the other sex. At Boma and Matadi some conversions are being made among the adults, but the great hopes of the missionaries, says Pere Liagre, lie in the training of the children. When the youngsters come to the fathers, they are addicted to thieving, lying and kindred vices, but once they are admitted to baptism and approach the sacraments a very remarkable change is noticeable.

The great centers of evangelization are what are called the "fermes chapelles" (farm chapels), the nucleus of the Christian villages in course of formation. When the missionary has got together a group of grown up lads sufficiently instructed, pious and industrious, he purchases near a pagan village an extent of land ample enough for the needs of the future Christian village. These youths are trained in the practices of tillage, and when they are of an age to marry they choose a partner who consents to embrace Christianity. The girls are received into the establishment of the Sisters of Notre Dame, where they remain six or seven months to be instructed for baptism and taught household work. Each couple is provided with a cottage, a garden and a plot of land in the new village. Pere Liagre remarks that the regular life, the industry and the religious practices of these families make an excellent impression on the negroes around and gradually render them more disposed to abandon paganism. In the Stanley Pool district there are 33 of these "fermes chapelles," each having cost about 2,000 francs, and the greater number of them have been established by means of contributions from the students of the Jesuit colleges of Belgium. On religious grounds Pere Liagre would wish to see the charge and administration of the Kongo Free State taken over by the Belgian government when the question comes up for decision two years hence.—Father Mathew Herald.

CATHOLICITY IN AUSTRALIA.

The Number of the Converts Approaches to Nearly a Million.

Of Catholicity in the south seas, its past, present and hoped for future, The Annals of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, in speaking of the recent opening of the new missionary college at Kensington, Sydney, says:

"The Catholic population of Australia approaches to nearly 1,000,000. Up to the present Europe has furnished the greater number of her priests, and particularly the religious orders, who aid the parochial clergy by preaching, missions and retreats. The scarcity of sacerdotal vocations in the past may be ascribed to the lack of opportunities for their fulfillment in the early history of the church in Australia. But from henceforth she will be in a position to recruit her own pastors, for since the foundation of the noble ecclesiastical College of St. Patrick's at Manly the church is no longer under the necessity of seeking in the old world seminaries for the education of her secular clergy. May it not be that the glorious mission of evangelizing neighboring pagan lands is reserved for Australia? Earnestly we hope that she may be faithful to the holy charge committed to her, and that from the midst of our Catholic families God will raise up generous souls, who will joyfully follow in the footsteps of St. Francis Xavier, blessed Peter Channel and Bishop Verious, the heroic apostle of New Guinea, who, before he left Australian shores for the last time, blessed the spot where the missionary college at Kensington now stands. Australia also requires zealous missionaries who will be ever ready to assist the parochial clergy by preaching and conducting missions and retreats. The missionary college at Kensington has also this object in view and will gather into the Society of Missionaries of the Sacred Heart the youth of Australia who are called by God to exercise the apostolic ministry among the faithful."

Patriotism at a Banquet.

At a banquet tendered Archbishop Corrigan in New York recently Bishop McQuaid of Rochester said: "This nation is now at war, and with a Catholic country. This is our country, and we will stand with it, ready to shed our blood, and the Catholics of the United States will be the first in the struggle." Four hundred men stood up, 400 clergymen of the Catholic church, waved their napkins and shouted at the top of their voices. Then they sang "America" with a tremendous swing.—Boston Herald.

Imple Superna Gratia.

Fill us with thy grace supernal,
Holy Spirit! Save, oh, save,
While assaults of foes infernal
Threaten us with woe eternal!
Light our pathway to the grave—
Saving grace we humbly crave!

Let thy grace and influence lead,
Guide us, bless and sanctify,
Manna in life's desert feed
To thy children in their need.
All pure longings satisfy,
Our aspirings satisfy!
Lead, oh, lead, to light eternal,
Holy Spirit, grace supernal!

—Hattie Hosford Daley in Father Mathew Herald.

COUSIN EVELYN.

A long shaft of sunlight crept through the rose-briar shading the study window, and fell across the table where the rector sat writing.

He moved aside a little, and finished the last sentence of his letter somewhat hurredly.

"I told Constance last night that her Cousin Evelyn was coming. Her first remark was, 'How delightful to have a girl living here!' You may expect a demonstrative welcome! Constance is very impetuous. She sends you her love, and is longing to see you."

The rector smiled as he wrote, especially when, after a moment of deliberation, he affixed a postscript. Then he folded his letter, and put it into his breast coat pocket with a good deal of care.

"I must not let Constance question me about her cousin too much," he thought, as he pushed open the French window and walked across the sunny lawn. "A little mystery"—here he smiled—"will only add a charm to the coming of Evelyn Dudley."

A tall girl was walking in the garden, reading and dreaming by turns, as she paced between the rows of heavy white lilies which bordered the garden path on either side. She was Constance Daere, the rector's orphan niece, and the acknowledged beauty of the neighborhood.

The rector joined her.

"What a glorious afternoon, my dear!"

Constance closed her book, and took his arm.

"If it wasn't so insufferably dull! This is such a lonely paradise!"

"But you will have Evelyn soon."

"I don't forget. What a joy it will be! I am nineteen, Uncle Gerard, and have never had a real companion of my own age yet!"

"You will like Evelyn.

"I am sure of it and"—a little smile of pleasure parted her lips.

"It is strange to have heard nothing of her before! She is your own niece, is she not?"

"Yes; but my sister married a man whom we all detested, and went away to India with him. She never wrote to any of her family afterwards. I did not know of her death, or even of Evelyn's existence, until the other day."

"And is Evelyn like her?"

"Very much. Constance, do you remember my aversion to the form of catechism, even though I do happen to be a clergyman?"

The rector's face was quizzical. Constance sighed.

"I feel so dreadfully curious about her," she said apologetically.

"So I see. But in a week from today she will be here; then you can learn all you desire."

The rector stooped to kiss his niece, then left her, and went into the village to post his letter.

* * * * * * *

The day of Evelyn Dudley's expected arrival had come. Constance, as the afternoon wore on, became excited, and hovered from room to room in a state of indecision. Finally she went up to the room she had prepared for her cousin.

Constance sat on the end of the little white bed, and remembered all this with a smile.

"Uncle Gerard said she would be shy at first, but I think my letter would dispel much of that. I hope she won't be disappointed in me."

She went to the glass, and arranged the dainty ruffles at her throat.

She turned from the glass suddenly, at the sound of the rector's laughing voice in the hall.

"It's all right Evelyn. We've come in quietly, and Constance hasn't heard us, but I know she is on the lookout somewhere."

Constance rushed down-stairs, and into the study.

"Evelyn!" she cried.

But only a man was there. A dark, handsome man, who came forward looking a little shy, as the rector, with infinite gravity, introduced them suavely.

"Constance, my dear—your cousin, Mr. Evelyn Dudley!"

* * * * * * *

"But I'm awfully sorry for your disappointment; I am, really!"

"Being sorry doesn't mend matters. It was very cruel of Uncle Gerard, and you, too, I expected 'Evelyn' would be a girl, naturally."

"And a mere man turned up! I've been here three weeks, Constance, and I've never dared to sympathize with you. You've looked such daggers at me!"

"It serves you right!"

"Does it?"

"Certainly. I thought I should have a companion. Now, you're going away soon, and I shall be as lonely as before."

"Will my going make any difference?"

"You're—better than nobody."

Evelyn Dudley looked down at the lovely, petulant girl he was swinging in the hammock.

"That's sweet of you."

"When are you going, Evelyn?"

There was something in the voice now that caused the man's heart to beat. He bent down suddenly, caressingly.

"Not till you tell me something that you once wrote—that you love me. Now!"

He caught sight of her blushing, tell-tale face—then laughed low at her struggle for freedom, as he held her in his arms.

"I insist that you make good all your protestations," he said.

And she had to obey him.

CYCLING COMMENT.

A party of young people are preparing to take a bicycle ride to Cranford tonight. They will stop at a hotel and return by moonlight.

The next Y. M. C. A. bicycle run will take place Thursday. So far Plainfield is in the lead for the banner, and a large turnout is hoped for Thursday so as to keep up the good record.

E. W. Mills, manager of the U. S. Express Co., rode his wheel to Coney Island and back yesterday. He says that the roads are in fine condition. He was accompanied by some friends from New York.

ROD AND GUN.

Fred Snyder and John Vroom went gigging Tuesday evening in Stony Brook. They captured a nice mess of large eels, seventeen in all.

J. Haberle, of Somerset street, caught a 3½ pound bass in New Market pond yesterday. Monday Tom Randolph pulled out one weighing 4 pounds.

GOLF.

Saturday, June 18th, the Morristown Field Club will come to Plainfield and play a match at golf with the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club team.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Ex-Judge W. A. Coddington has purchased a new stepper.

A New Kind of a Sociable.

A union Endeavor sociable is one of the new things that the Local Union of the Christian Endeavor Societies is preparing. Tuesday evening a meeting of the chairmen of the social committees from all the societies will be held in the Y. M. C. A. building to arrange details for the affair. It is proposed to have a literary pragramme, refreshments and a social hour. The place where the sociable is to be held is yet to be selected. It is the first of its kind ever held and every effort will be made to make it something out of the ordinary.

Using the Steam Roller.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett has practiced a new scheme this year in reference to the steam roller, and instead of keeping it at work only on one part of the city, has made it serve two districts at the same time. It was found out by careful study that the roller could work with two gangs of men and keep both gangs busy, while formerly one gang was served with the roller at a time and there was a part of the day when the roller was idle.

Big Shirt Waist Purchase.

VanEmburgh & Son place on sale today two of the biggest bargains in fine shirt waists ever offered to the public. Lot No. 1, 39 cents; lot No. 2, 69 cents.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

The funeral services will be held at the Millington church tomorrow at 2 p. m.

FAST HORSES MEET HERE

FIRST RACE MEET OF THE CENTRAL N. J. TROTTING ASSOCIATION.

Rules of the National Association Are to Govern—Dates are June 22d and 23d—Plainfield Roadsters Will Have a Special.

Extensive preparations are now in progress for the opening meet of the Central New Jersey Driving Association that is to be held at the Gentlemen's Driving Park on June 22-23. For the first time in twenty years there will be a gathering of fast horses from all over the State.

According to the rules of the National Trotting Association, under which the meet will be conducted, any races left unfinished on one day must be finished the next. This preludes the possibility of holding the meet Friday or Saturday as they could not not be completed Sunday. So Wednesday and Thursday afternoons have been selected. On account of the lengthy programme, it will be necessary to start the races at 1 o'clock sharp.

Wednesday, the 22nd, the first day of the meet, the first race on the programme will be the 2:25 class, trotting, for a purse of four monies. The purse will be divided with 50 per cent. to the winner, 25 per cent. to second, 15 per cent. to third, and 10 per cent. to fourth. The entrance fee will be 5 per cent. of the value of the purse and those finishing in the first four will pay 5 per cent. extra. These rules will prevail for all the events.

The second event will be the 2:35 class, pacing, for a purse of $150. The third event will be the Plainfield Special, for road wagons, owners driving. This event will be open to the horsemen of Plainfield and North Plainfield. The first prize will be a silver cup, valued at $75, donated by Robert A. Fairburn, of Westfield. The second prize will be $50 in cash, donated by J. E. Beerbower, of Plainfield. Third gets $25 in cash, donated by A. C. Vail, of Plainfield. To the fourth goes $15 in cash, donated by N. B. Smalley, of North Plainfield.

Even if the heats are won in one, two, three order, as is not probable, that will mean nine heats for the afternoon which will continue the racing up to 6 o'clock or after.

On the second day of the meet, Thursday, the first event will be the 2:17 class, open to trotters with a record of 2:17 and pacers with a record of 2:20. A purse of $150 is offered. The 2:30 class, trotting and pacing, will be the second event. A similar purse will be offered for that event. The last event of the meet will be the 2:40 class, trotting, for a purse of $150.

Refreshment stands and other small attractions will be erected at different parts of the grounds. A good brass band will be at the track both days to furnish music.

The grand stand, which seats about 400, is being thoroughly overhauled. The judge's stand is also being put in excellent shape. The track is receiving plenty of attention, and will be in the best of condition at the time of the meet.

Arrangements have been made to have plenty of stages to convey the audience to the grounds for 10 cents each way. The admittance to the grounds will be 25 cents. There will no extra charge for carriages and horses.

The entries for the event close Tuesday of next week. It is expected that there will be ten or twelve starters in each event.

RED MEN'S PICNIC.

Miantonomo Tribe Will Have a Big Time on the Fourth of July.

The picnic committee of Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., held its first meeting in the office of Justice Newcorn last evening and organized as follows: Chairman, W. A. Westphal; secretaray, C. L. Holstein, treasurer, Chas. Fulmer. The chairman appointed the following subcommittees:

Printing, Allen and Leahy; musical, Houseman, Allen and Newman; Refreshments, Holstein and Fulmer; police, Allen and Newman.

The committee have made up their minds to put forth every effort to give an enjoyable time to every one who may see fit to attend the picnic to be held July 4th, afternoon and evening, in Mountain Side Park grove at the end of the Somerset street trolley.

Little Girl Hurt by Reckless Rider.

The six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Knowland, of East Front street, was run over Tuesday night by a colored man who was riding a wheel. The little girl was knocked down but not badly injured. The rider picked her up and took her into her house close by. The police should see that cycle riders do not scorch when riding through the city. This rider in question was riding altogether too fast and the accident might have resulted seriously.

Test of Welsbach Light for Streets.

There will be a test this evening of the new Welsbach light and five lamps have been erected in various parts of the city. The lamps were illuminated last evening but the councilmanic committee on lights and trees were not out to see them burn. The committee has been notified that they will be lighted this evening for inspection.

One of the things that many people are always "going to get" is a Piano. Somehow, while they recognize the need of having one, they keep waiting, like Micawber, for something to turn up. Meanwhile they are depriving themselves of the source of great enjoyment.

For these procrastinators we have a little book, entitled "How To Buy a Piano;" it gives pointers on Piano buying, and incidentally explains our easy payment system, and the reason of our immense popularity as Piano sellers. We will mail it free to any address.

Pay us TEN DOLLARS and you shall have a Piano at once.

THE WHITEHALL FERRY.

Central Railroad a Said Never to Have Paid Anything For It.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New York, June 9—As a result of the investigation of departments made by the new Tammany administration, it has been discovered the Central Railroad of New Jersesy is operating a ferry between Jersey City and Whitehall street without a franchise from the city.

S. M. Williams, second vice-president and controller of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, said his company, through its counsel, was negotiating with the city, and that, while the process was a bit slow, arrangements to pay for the franchise would be made in due time. The company, he said, leased its dock privileges at the foot of Whitehall street from the Staten Island Ferry Company. As a matter of fact, Mr. Williams added, the city could not enforce payment for a franchise in this particular case, as the company did not conduct a regular ferry.

This new line, he declared, was of no pecuniary benefit to the company, being used merely to carry passengers to and from trains. But, he said, the company would rather pay for its franchises than have trouble about them.

NEW BANK BUILDING.

Bound Brook's Banking Institution to Build New Quarters Shortly.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, June 9—The First National Bank of this place has now completed a deal for the purchase of a lot on Hamilton street, where a handsome new bank building will be built. The increase in the business of the bank has rendered the present quarters on Main street too small. The new building will be constructed on modern lines and will include all the up-to-date banking appliances. The contracts for the new building have not yet been awarded, as the plans are not completed.

—The members of Warren Engine Company are thinking of purchasing new uniforms. No doubt some scheme will be adopted to raise the amount of money required.

LARGEST CLOTHING SALE OF THE SEASON!
NOW GOING ON.

FORCED TO THE WALL.

One of the largest wholesale manufacturers was forced to the wall. Every one knows of the depression in every line of business, but none have suffered so much as the clothing manufacturers that were rated away up. They were forced to go under or realize money in some way to save their credit, and we being enabled to offer them the ready cash, they accepted our offer and we secured a very large lot of desirable clothing at our own price. A chance of a lifetime to secureh igh-grade spring and summer clothing at less than one-third its value.

Remember, this stock will be sold without reserve, without restriction and without any consideration of cost of production, and the prices will bring every man and woman within 25 miles of Plainfield to our store in order to show what gigantic bargains will be offered.

A few prices are here mentioned, and remember there are a thousand other bargains we cannot enumerate. Cut this out and bring it with you and ask for the following mentioned articles.

Men's stylishly made gray and brown check and plaid cassimere suits, deep French facing, sizes from 34 to 42, strong and serviceable, worth $8, your choice at $2.95.

Men's strictly all-wool fancy cassimere suits, neat checks, stripes and plaids, deep French facing, six different patterns, worth $10, at $3.75.

Men's blue serge suits, color and seams guaranteed, single breasted only, heavy double warp linings, worth $12, your choice at $4.75.

An elegant assortment of handsomely made cassimere suits, latest patterns of checks, stripes, plaids and over-plaids, stout and regular cut, worth 13.00 at $5.25.

Men's black clay diagonal suits strictly all-wool worsted, color guaranteed, double or single breasted, sacks and frocks, all izes, stouts, slims and regulars up to size 48 at the same price, worth 16.00 at $6.75.

TROLLEY EXTENSIONS.

Soon Trips Can Be Made to Somerville and Plainfield on Trolley Cars.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, June 9.—Contractor McElroy, of the firm of McCarney & McElroy, of New York, has been directed by the Brunswick Traction Company to begin at once the work of finishing the line between this city and Bound Brook. When that is completed the road from Bound Brook to Dunellen will be commenced and finished as rapidly as possible.

It will connect with the trolley road running to Plainfield and when it is completed it will be possible for residents of this city to make the entire distance to Plainfield on the trolley. Contractor Connell is now engaged in completing the line between Somerville and Bound Brook, which was commenced last year by the New York and Philadelphia company.

TWO YEARS FOR A SWINDLER.

Jones, Alias Simmons, Convicted and Sentenced in Elizabeth.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, June 9—Charles Jones, alias Fred Simmons, a notorious check swindler, was sentenced in the Union County Court yesterday to two years in State Prison on each of three indictments. He pleaded guilty to two charges, but stood trial for the other and was convicted.

He has plied his operations in Newark and Elizabeth and served two terms in State Prison.

He has a wife, but no children. It is said that she will now apply for a divorce.

PEAPACK BOY A DOUBLE WINNER.

Henry D. Aller Beats All Competitors in Two Scholarship Examinations.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, June 9.—Henry D. Aller, of Peapack, has made a remarkable record in two competitive examinations in the last two weeks. The first was to help Congressman Howell decide whom he would appoint to a cadetship at West Point. In this Aller came out ahead of all other competing applicants in Somerset, Middlesex and Monmouth counties, making 543 points. E. Llewellyn Bull, of Basking Ridge, was second, with 536 points, and Asher Lipman, of Bound Brook, was third, with 495 points. Aller and Bull are so near together that the appointment will probably go to one or the other.

Last Saturday there was on examination at the Courthouse conducted by County Superintendent Mets for a scholarship at the Stat Agricultural College at New Brunswick. Aller also took a band at this and distanced all other competitors. Those who tried the examination besides Aller were Asher Lipman, of Bound Brook; William Van Nest Garretson, of Somerville, and Henry W. Badeau, of Three Mile Run.

Death of John Brown.

John Brown, of Newport, R. I., died at the home of his sister, Mrs. John Lindsay, of 424 West Front street, yesterday. The funeral services will be held tonight at 8 o'clock, from the house. Interment will be at Newport. The deceased was in his seventieth year. Mr. Brown leaves one son and two daughters. He had been ill for about a year with stomach trouble. He was a Free Mason.

Port au Prince, Hayti, June 10, 12:55 p. m.—Cable communication with Santiago de Cuba is now disconnected. It is supposed that the Americans have at last been successful in cutting the cable.

Cape Haytian, June 10, 1:17 p. m—It is reported here that cable communication with Santiago de Cuba has ceased.

London, June 10, 12:40 p. m—Premier Sagasta's denial that Spain is seeking for peace is ridiculed here. It is well-known in diplomatic circles that Spain has been making every effort to end the war with the least possible loss of territory and dignity.

It is generally believed here that the Queen Regent of Spain has made another appeal to Austria and the Vatican to hasten the cessation of hostilities.

Santa Barbara, June 10, 12:35 p. m—Captain Debrey, of the steamship, Panama, reports having sighted the moitor Monterey in tow of the Brutus.

The vessels were sighted fifteen miles off Gairola, which lies forty miles to the west of this port. They were apparently heading for the passage between Santa Cruz and Santaca Island, and thence seaward.

It is the general supposition here that the monitor was compelled to seek quiet waters to make repairs.

New York, June 10, 11:40 a. m—A Journal extra publishes a despatch from Cape Haytien saying that The Journal despatch boat, Ely, was shelled by the auxiliary cruiser, Yankee, and the despatch boat, Dolphin, while reconnoitering Santiago and Caimanera.

A train loaded with Spanish soldiers, supposedly enroute to Santiago, appeared within sight of the fleet. The Dalphin opened fire on the train.

One of the shells struck a passenger car squarely, wrecking the train and killing many of the soldiers. The exact loss could not be ascertained.

LESSON TO WIFE BEATER

EDWARD KOBER GOES TO STATE PRISON FOR A YEAR.

Judge Bartine Unmercifully Scored the Prisoner—If it Was Not for His Wife He Would Have Got Two Years.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, June 10—This morning Edward Kober, of North Plainfield, charged with wife beating, was arraigned before Judge Bartine for sentence. The Judge gave the prisoner one of the severest talks listened to in many a day. He recited in forcible language the deeds committed by Kober, and then sentenced him to one year in State prison at hard labor. The Judge stated that if it had not been for the earnest pleadings of the prisoner's wife he would have given him two years. The prisoner had nothing to say.

The case of James McAuliffe, of Lambertville, who is charged with stealing property belonging to the Western Union Telegraph Company, and a horse and wagon from a contractor at Bound Brook, was called this morning, but was laid over until next Wednesday for trial.

Songs—Swing Song, Owl and the Pussy Cat, Battle Hymn of the Republic.....School
Butterfly Song.....Children
Rudyard Kipling's Recessional.....School

The music was conducted by Professor Lewis, whose training was evinced by the conscientious care of the pupils and whose fine voice added to some of the measures. The Battle Hymn of the Republic, sung by Professor Lewis to the tune of "John Brown's Body" was most soul stirring, the audience joining in the chorus. The Star Spangled Banner was also sung with spirit, the audience standing. The encore of "Our Flag" was most gratifying, as it resulted in the waving of ALL the flags and was a proof of the saying that "perseverance commands success." The audience was charmed with the Butterfly drill, in which girls and boys with silken wings imitated the flitting and poising of butterflies. The "Recessional" sung by the school and Prof. Lewis was full of pathos and warning, "Lest we forget! Lest we forget!"

The French recitations were very pleasing, showing the careful drilling of their teacher, Miss Caroline Minturn Hall. The whole entertainment reflected great credit on the teacher of this department, Misses Rambo and Ayme MacCready.

An exhibition of maps drawn by the children and sewing in all the stages from "over and over" to button holes was proof of much patient drilling on the part of the instructors and much persevering labor on the part of the little untrained fingers that have learned to command the pencil and the needle with such success.

HOW TO GET RICH QUICKLY.

Patrons Didn't Learn from Elizabeth Man and He is Arrested.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, June 10—Edward A. Somerville, manager of the Somerville Company, was arrested in his home in Orchard street, yesterday, by United States Marshal Byrnes and taken to Newark, charged with violating the postal laws. It is alleged that Somerville has been soliciting business of a questionable character through the mails.

The firm has been extensively advertised throughout the country, asking readers to send a certain number of names of well-known persons in their county, and to purchase one of their books, which tells how to get rich quick, etc., for 10 or 50 cents.

Chief of Police Tenny, of Elizabeth, has received many complaints about the concern. Several of the writers allege that they sent money but never received a reply. It is said that Somerville was rapidly amassing a fortune. He will be arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Whitehead.

A SMART PLAINFIELD BOY.

Lucius M. Gilbert Took a Prize in a New York Law School.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New York, June 10—The Commencement exercises of the New York Law School were held last night in Carnegie Hall. The class numbered 145. Of the class, nine took the degree of LL. M., Master of laws. Lucius L. Gilbert, of Plainfield, took the first prize of $100 in this group for competitive examination and essay.

John Beekman, of West Eighth street, is home from the School of Technology in Boston.

LAVELL UNDER BONDS TO BEHAVE HIMSELF.

Husband and Wife Cannot Live Together Happily.

WIFE IS A CHURCH WORKER

CAUSE OF LATEST TROUBLE WAS OVER THEIR SON.

Lavell is a Well-to-do New York Business Man, But When His Wife Wouldn't Permit Him to See His Boy he Became Exasperated, Chased Her For Several Blocks and Then Made a Scene—Police Wouldn't Interfere—Lavell Left Town For Sometime, But When he Came Back He Was Arrested.

Henry E. Lavell and his wife, of 1121 Putnam avenue, have not lived happily together for some time, and there have been frequent quarrels between them. Their differences finally culminated in a complaint by Mrs. Lavell before Justice Newcorn the other day in which the husband was charged with breaking the peace. He had a hearing last night and was held in $100 bonds to behave himself hereafter.

Mrs. Lavell, who is a prominent member of St. Stephen's church, Netherwood, claims to be affected with extreme nervousness and heart trouble, which have been intensified lately by her husband's actions. Lavell is a well-to-do New York business man.

Lavell says the trouble started through a neighbor, who, he vigorously says, constantly had his wife under her influence. He and his wife agreed to separate some time ago, he to live out of town and to pay her weekly stipends. In this agreement, Lavell was to be allowed to see his young son, Harry, occasionally.

All went well until the latter part of May on Harry's birthday. On the evening of the 26th Lavell came home bringing with him a birthday present for his son in the shape of a baseball outfit, mask, bat, ball, gloves and all. Finding the lad asleep, Lavell laid the birthday gifts beside the bed and went to the Revere House where he spent the night. He says he tried in various ways during the following two days to get a chance to see his boy, but that Mrs. Lavell hurried the child from one place to another and finally turned him over to Bert Littell to keep. Lavell hung around the house trying to get in, and was several times addressed by policemen who wanted to know what was the matter. When Lavell explained that he wanted to get into his own house, he was not disturbed.

An afternoon or two after the birthday visit to the house, Lavell saw his wife and another lady driving down Park avenue. As they did not stop at his call he broke into a run and pursued them as far as Front street, got on a trolley car and rode as far as Liberty street, when a policeman, who thought something was wrong, stopped the carriage at Lavell's repeated demands. Even this did not gain for him the long-sought interview, for as soon as the policeman found out what Lavell wanted, he let go the horse's head in disgust, and the women drove triumphantly away.

Mrs. Lavell was represented in court by Counselor Swackhamer, and Lavell by Lawyer Charles J. McNabb.

INSTALLATION EXERCISES.

New Pastor for Mt. Olive Baptist Church to be Welcomed.

Installation exercises will be held in the Mt. Olive Colored Baptist church Thursday evening, June 23d, when the new pastor, Rev. D. E. Jackson, of Petersburg, Va., will take charge of the organization. Mr. Jackson comes highly recommended, and there is no doubt but what his relations with his people will be the most pleasant. In the meantime Mr. Jackson will preach to the congregation and minister to their needs, although not taking complete charge of them as their pastor until after the installation exercises.

Repairs are to be made about the church and the Christian Endeavor Society are planning to give an entertainment soon to raise money enough to pay for kalsomining or papering the basement of the church. The upper floors are being thoroughly overhauled and cleaned. Estimates are also being received for work in the parsonage for papering, painting, etc.

WERE WEDDED QUIETLY

THE CEREMONY TOOK PLACE IN ADVANCE OF PARENTS' PLANS.

Mrs. Gibbons Learned of Her Daughter's Intended Marriage and Was Present—Tried to Dissuade Them Unsuccessfully.

Miss Minnie Ethel Gibbons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney F. Gibbons, of East Sixth street, and Frederick Earl, son of Principal Earl, of the Bayonne public schools, have been engaged for some time. Their marriage took place quietly and rather unexpectedly last Saturday afternoon, at the rectory of the Church of the Transfiguration, 28th street, New York, familiarly known as "The Little Church Around the Corner."

Miss Gibbons is nineteen years old and the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons. Her lover was a young bank clerk in New York and has attained his majority a short time ago. Earl has been a a frequent visitor at the Gibbons home in this city after the latter moved here from Bayonne, where the young people met.

While the parents of the young people favored the match, it was not expected that the marriage would take place for some time. The young couple decided otherwise, however, and planned to go to New York and be quietly married. The mother of the prospective bride learned of the little plan in some manner, and when Miss Gibbons announced that she was going to New York Saturday, Mrs. Gibbons said that she was also going.

They met the young man in New York and the couple told Mrs. Gibbons of their intention. Mrs. Gibbons, while not averse to Earl as a son-in-law, tried to persuade the young people to wait and be married at home as had been planned. They were fully determined, however, that the hymeneal knot should be tied that very afternoon. So the party of three went to the rectory where Rev. Dr. Houghton, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony. Mrs. Gibbons was the only relative present. After the ceremony the young couple returned to Bayonne where the wedding was announced at the home of the groom and the new wife was welcomed by his parents.

RECEIVED A DEGREE.

Ralph Campbell Honored in the New York University.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New York, June 10—The combined schools of the New York University, with the exception of the Medical College, held commencement exercises last night at the Metropolitan Opera House, and nearly two hundred and fifty degrees of bachelor and master of arts, philosophy, science and of laws, and honorary degrees of doctor of laws and divinity were conferred by Chancellor McCracken.

Chancellor MacCracken opened the exercises with a prayer and with a few introductory remarks.

Among those to receive the degree of bachelor of arts was Ralph Campbell, of Plainfield.

At the conclusion of the conferring of the graduates' degrees came the awarding of prizes, fellowships and scholarships for the University College and the Law School.

Professor George A. Miller made the address to the graduates of the School of Law.

ANNIVERSARY SURPRISE.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Spiegel Celebrate Their Sixth Wedding Day.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Spiegel, of Somerset street, celebrated the sixth anniversary of their marriage, and last evening a pleasant surprise was given to them by twenty-five of their friends. The surprise was arranged by Charles Steuerwald, Charles Scherrer, William Claassen, George Voegler and Paul Postler. The merry party met at the corner of Front and Somerset streets and proceeded to the home of the popular celebrants, where they took them by storm. The evening was passed in dancing, singing and having a good time in general. At a late hour the guests sit down to a bountiful repast prepared by the hostess and all did full justice to the excellent menu provided. The guests, before departure, wished Mr. and Mrs. Spiegel many happy returns of the day, long life and success.

Anxious About His Partner.

Daniel Dodge, of the firm of Dodge & Overbaugh, the North avenue merchants, has been out of town since Monday, and his partner is quite anxious to know his whereabouts. Monday morning, Overbaugh says, Dodge told him he was going to Newark to buy some goods, and that is last he has seen of him. It is thought he is visiting friends out of town.

WILL REMIND RIKER OF PAST PROMISES.

Washingtonville Trolley Extension May be Laid.

CONSENTS ARE SECURED.

WHEN LABOR WAS AT HAND, PRESIDENT RIKER AGREED TO BUILD.

Now That the Scotch Plains Extension Will Probably be Laid Shortly, The Washingtonville People Think That Their Chances Will Come Too—They Have Secured a New Ally in Phillip Rorich—Rorich is Starting a Suburban Settlement to be Called Somerset Park—He Will Guarantee Fares For Five Years.

Soon Plainfield will be invaded by a gang of Italian laborers and the incessant sound of the pick and shovel will prolude the laying of the new trolley line. When the good people of Washingtonville tried to have the present trolley line extended out Somerset street to reach them, President Riker, of the Plainfield Street Railway, explained that it could not be done then but when he had plenty of labor here building another line, the tracks for the trolley could then be extended through the gap in the mountains.

Remembering that promise, the residents of Washingtonville and vicinity are now agitating the proposed trolley line once more. The necessary permits have been secured, it is claimed, so that the road might follow Somerset street through the gap to Washingtonville and thence up the back of the mountain to the Mountain Park Inn.

Since the advent of the trolley in that neighborhood was first advocated, the promoters of the line to Washingtonville have secured a powerful ally who is willing to do his share toward inducing the company to extend its lines in that direction.

Phillip Rorich, of New York, recently purchased a tract of land, north of Washingtonville, 400 acres in extent, which he has named Somerset Park. It is his intention to cut it up into building lots and form a pretty little suburban settlement for weary New York business men. Mr. Rorich was the man who so successfully boomed Sherman Park, New York, and built it up.

One of the necessities for the success of his scheme is that he should have an easy means of access to his proposed settlement. The trolley offers it and he is fully satisfied that the trolley ought to come there. He has been interviewed by some of the citizens of Washingtonville regarding what action should be taken to bring the company there.

Of course, one of the principal objections that the company will have to extending its lines in that direction will be that the branch will not support itself. Mr. Rorich is aware of that argument, and has declared his willingness to guarantee the company a certain number of fares for a term of five years and make up the amount if the travel does not come up to the mark agreed upon.

Mr. Rorich has completed the plans of Somerset Park, and they include lots which will be donated for the building of a church and of a schoolhouse.

REFORM CLUB.

Interesting Addresses, But no New Signers of the Pledge.

The regular weekly meeting of the Reform Club was held last night, and was attended by a good-sized audience in spite of the heat. Mrs. Newton Honeyman sang, and Henry T. Smith spoke. There were no signers to the pledge.

A movement is on foot to open the club rooms again through the day and evenings, so as to provide some place when the young men and boys can go to spend a part of their time. A few years ago these rooms were open all the time as reading rooms and places where the young men could play games, but because of lack of means the rooms were closed.

Another scheme is to hold Sunday evening meetings again. These, too, were given up some time ago because it was thought that the services interfered with the regular church service.

Knocked Out the Democrats.

The Supreme Court at Trenton has knocked out the Democratic Board of Freeholders of Salem county, by confirming the decision of Judge Ludlow, which declared Joseph N. Mayhew, Republican, to be legally elected Freeholder from Upper Pittsgrove Township, over Thomas Y. Hackett, Democrat. The Republicans of the Board yesterday elected new officers.

A JUNE DAY WEDDING

LOUIS E. EATON TAKES A BROOKLYN BELLE FOR A WIFE.

Miss Bessie V. Cushing the Bride—Ceremony Performed by Rev. William Ivie in a Church in Brooklyn

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Brooklyn, June 10—A pretty wedding was celebrated last night in Grace P. E. church, on Conselyea street, near Lorimer, when Miss Bessie Vera Cushing, only daughter of Mrs. Henrietta M. Cushing, of 50 Maujer street, and Louis Eldridge Eaton, of East Fifth street, Plainfield, were united in marriage by Rev. Wm. Ivie, pastor of the church.

The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock in the presence of a large assemblage of friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was unattended, while H. J. Brewer, of Plainfield acted as best man. The Episcopal service was used. The bride was gowned in gray satin, trimmed with lace and ribbons. She wore a hat to match. The bride was given away in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Hand, of Brooklyn.

Following the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Eaton returned to the home of the bride's mother, where an informal reception was held. Only the very near relatives were present. Supper was served and during the evening the bride and groom left for a honeymoon trip. They will return to Plainfield Sunday evening, and for the summer will board at Netherwood.

The bride is a niece of Mr. and Mrs William Hand, of Park avenue, and is a most estimable young woman. The groom is employed at the office of the Sabbath Recorder, where he is foreman of the composing room. Both he and his wife have a host of friends in this city who wish them happiness and success through life. Those from this city who attended the wedding were W. B. Mosher, James Niles, H. M. Hall, C T. Coon and Mrs. William Hand.

A DIFFICULT JOB.

Quicksand Hinders the Work of Laying Clinton Avenue Drain.

The engineer in charge of the storm sewer at Clinton avenue is having a hard time of it. Although the work is no worse than he expected, it is very trying, as most of it has to be done in quicksand and water. The work on the drain was begun yesterday, and already the men have the pipe laid part of the way. As soon as they reached a depth of three feet the quicksand began to show its treacherous nature, and made further haste difficult.

The old drain is probably in position still, but is so choked with dirt as to be useless. The new one leads to a point further west before emptying in the brook. Street Commissioner Gavett said that if the railroad company had begun this work a year ago it could have been done at one-third of the expense necessary now.

Prevented a Runaway.

Quick action on the part of Alvin E. Hoagland, the North avenue express man, prevented a serious runaway this morning which might have caused a great deal of damage. Mr. Hoagland's team was tied in front of his place of business, when a piece of paper was blown by the wind directly in front of the horses. The animals made a plunge and then pulled back with fright. The result was that one bridle was broken in four pieces and the horses were just about to make a wild dash when Mr. Hoagland caught them. When the horses backed up the truck crashed into Alva Carey's front wheel and thoroughly demolished it.

Funeral of John Brown.

The funeral of the late John Brown, formerly of Newport, R. I., was held last evening at 8 o'clock from the residence of his sister, Mrs. John Lindsey, West Front street, where he died a few days ago after a long illness. The services were in charge of Rev. T. Logan Murphy, pastor of the Church of the Holy Cross, who knew Mr. Brown when he lived at Newport. The body was taken to Newport this morning for interment.

Mr. Titsworth Better

Last Tuesday afternoon while Alex. Titsworth, of West Second street, was crossing the street at the corner of Second street and Park avenue, he slipped and fell. He bruised his side considerably and fractured a small rib. The injuries were not serious and Mr. Titsworth was able to be out again.

Assigned to Ambulance Train.

Daniel C. Main, son of Rev. A. E. Main, of this city, writes from Tampa, Fla., that he has been assigned to the Ambulance Train of the 1st Division of the Army Corps. They were packing up getting ready to start for Cuba, and transports were being loaded and were pulling out in the harbor as fast as possible.

TASTED DELICACIES UNDER OLD GLORY.

Pleasant and Profitable Affair in Trinity Church.

KING'S DAUGHTERS GAVE IT.

GENERAL EFFECT OF THE DECORATIONS WAS PATRIOTIC.

Good Things to Eat Were Not the Only Attraction of the Evening—A Recruiting Tent Where Lemonade was Served—A Flower Booth Set in the Centre of the Room—A Novelty was a Book of Recipes for Summer Desserts, Especially Prepared for the Occasion—Miss Laura Emmons in Charge—Those Who Assisted.

Under the Stars and Stripes, the good people of Trinity Reformed church gathered last evening and partook of various delicacies in which strawberries formed a prominent part. The new lecture room of the church was bright with patriotic and floral decorations. The occasion of all this was the strawberry festival of the Whatsoever Circle of the King's Daughters, which began last evening and will be continued this afternoon and evening.

Like other affairs that the progressive people of Trinity have conducted, the usual methods were departed from and novelty lent an added attraction to it. The general effect was decidedly patriotic, for a multitude of small and middle-sized flags were arranged over the heads of the guests and were grouped about the walls.

Now the strawberries was not the only attraction of the evening. At the left of the entrance was the "recruiting tent," where the army of visitors recruited on the cooling lemonade that was for sale. The tent was composed of several American flags, that was flanked on either side by a stack of rifles. Inside the tent a little fire blazed away under the kettles that hung on the crane in a very realistic fashion.

In the centre of the room was a veritable flower bower. Its pillars and counters were of white, but the evergreen decorations and the profusion of flowers and potted plants on exhibition there, nearly hid it from view.

There was a candy table on the right, on which was displayed in tasteful array a fine assortment of home made goodies, together with the best confections in the market. The table was in white and green.

In the background, surrounded on all sides by the refreshment tables, was the cake table, groaning under the goodly show of fancy and plain cakes of all styles and descriptions.

At the refreshment tables, strawberry short cake, strawberries and cream and ice cream were served by a host of fair young waitresses, gowned in white and red. The menus were little cards, decorated with the American flag on the front and a very real-looking picture of a tempting bunch of strawberries inside, the artistic work of Mrs. R. A. Meeker.

Over at the candy table, there was something new that found particular favor with the housekeepers among the visitors. It was a book of recipes for summer desserts, prepared and printed for the affair. The recipes were excellent and the purple binding very pretty.

There was a fair attendance during the evening and the promise of a better one tonight. The booths were well patronized, while the new idea of serving strawberry short-cake was found to meet with general satisfaction.

At the head of the affair, as general chairman of all the committees, was Miss Laura Emmons. The flower booth was under the charge of Miss Mabel Woodruff, assisted by Miss Evelyn Taylor. Miss Minnie Williams and Miss Etta Krymer were in charge of the "recruiting station" and the accompanying lemonade. At the candy table was Miss Lillian A. Force, assisted by Miss Nevius and Miss Quick. The refreshment committee was composed of Mrs. Will F. Williams, Mrs. J. F. MacDonald, Mrs. Frank Woodruff and Mrs. Emily Cory. The cake table was under the joint charge of Miss Emma Gillem and Miss Minnie Arnold.

The waitresses were the Misses Bessie Martin, Lizzie Dencklau, Emma Line, Laura Wyman, Lizzie Cutter, Grace Emmons, Sadie Holmes, Martie Anthony and Nettie Young.

The young women of the Circle were greatly assisted in the work of decorating the room by Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Anthony and Henry Seader. Most of the flags used in decorating were kindly loaned for the occasion by George F. Brown.

Mrs. Buckley's ladies' orchestra was present during the evening and rendered a number of delightful selections. Their playing was excellent.

TO INVADE PORTO RICO

This Will Be the Next Step Taken After Santiago Falls.

GEN. COPPINGER TO LEAD.

The Invading Force to Be Concentrated in Florida, Beginning at Once—Tampa to Be Abandoned as a Point of Mobilization and Jaksonville or Fernandina Selected. Probable That the Porto Rican Army Will Embark from Fernandina.

Washington, D. C., June 10.—The army authorities are turning their attention to the Porto Rican expedition now that the troops for Santiago are off. Official information has been received here stating that the last of the transports had embarked its troops and passed down into the lower part of Tampa bay.

It is thought at the department that by this time the transports have arrived at Key West, where the naval convoy is waiting, and that no further time will be lost in proceeding to Santiago.

The war department is to send additional instructions to Major General Shafter before the latter lands his men at Santiago. These telegrams will be forwarded by cable to Cape Haytien and will be delivered to the major general by dispatch boats in the Windward Passage.

The war department does not expect to hear again from General Shafter and his men until they are communicated with in the Windward Passage, and it may be that the first news will be to the effect that he effected a landing and that the fortifications of Santiago are in actual possession of the American troops.

To Concentrate Porto Rican Force.

The department is to slowly concentrate the troops for the Porto Rican expedition in various camps in Florida.

It is practically certain that Tampa is not to be the point of embarkation of the men to be sent to San Juan and the extra supplies now at the former place will shortly be removed to Jacksonville or Fernandina. Six or seven good sized transports are already at Fernandina and General Lee is at Jacksonville at the head of about 6,000 volunteers.

The general force will much resemble that dispatched to Santiago. A battalion of engineers, with field and siege guns, will be on the transports and the whole will be convoyed by naval vessels.

San Juan Forts to Be Shelled Again.

The latter will first reduce the batteries of San Juan, and cover the landing place of soldiers. From the information gathered by Lieutenant Whitney of the army in his mission to Porto Rico, the government has little to fear from the Spanish soldiery of that place.

Lieutenant Whitney is understood to have reported that there are less than 3,000 Spanish soldiers at Porto Rico, and that they are poorly armed. In addition to this the majority of the populace is understood to be favorable to the United States. The only trouble of a serious nature likely to be encountered is in the fortifications protecting San Juan. These are known to be very formidable, but it is confidently expected that Sampson will be able to completely demolish them.

General John J. Coppinger, it is confidently stated, will be military governor of Porto Rico and will head the invading army that will go to that island. General Lee will be second in command. General Coppinger is the ranking officer now at Tampa, and naturally was selected for that place for that reason instead of General Lee, whose report has placed in the position. General Coppinger was called to Washington three weks ago, when, it is understood, the details of his expedition were arranged.

The Fourth Army Corps, General Coppinger's command, will be concentrated here and will be in readiness for the invasion of Porto Rico. Several regiments from Chickamauga are also expected here soon.

It is the wish of the president to have the Porto Rican campaign started within a few days. But it is understood that no movement will be made until the result of the Santiago expedition is known. It is understood unofficially that a part of the artillery force used in the Santiago campaign will be utilized for the Porto Rican engagement. This plan, however, is not definite, and much depends on the work to be done at Santiago. In case the occupation there is accomplished without great loss or delay, the artillery will be withdrawn and sent to Porto Rico. On the other hand, should the campaign prove troublesome, the Porto Rican expedition will be pushed independently.

It is believed that when General Shafter and his troops arrive off Santiago there will be left comparatively little for them to do, except to disembark and take possession of Santiago and the surrounding fortifications. If this proves to be the case the place will be garrisoned and our fleet will be free to begin operations against Porto Rico.

Missionaries Murdered.

Vancouver, June 10.—The steamer Empress of Japan brings news from China that three missionaries of the International Missionary Alliance have been murdered in the province of Hunan.

The name of one of the victims is given as Mr. Chapin, son of a former missionary of the American board.

A French missionary named Pere Barthelot has been murdered by bandits at Kaniyum, Kuangsi.

A Supposed Spy Arrested at Tampa.

Atlanta, Ga., June 10.—George Edward Vanderbilt, supposed to be a spy, and giving his address as No. 251 Fourteenth street, East Side, New York, was brought to Fort McPherson late Wednesday night under guard. He was arrested at Tampa on Monday as a suspicious character, and being unable to give a clear account of his movements, was sent to the military prison at Atlanta.

Phillip Says He Is Alive.

The navy department has just received a dispatch from Captain Philip of the Texas saying that he is alive and well, and that there was no truth in the dispatch that he was killed.

HAS THE BLOCKADE BEEN BROKEN?

Key West Disturbed by Report That War Ships Have Entered Havana Harbor.

Key West, June 10.—The report reached here last night that a United States auxiliary gunboat sighted four Spanish warships in the middle of Nicholas channel Tuesday evening.

The officers of the gunboat are said to be positive they were the enemy's ships.

There is one rumor current here which finds credence among many naval officers that in the past 24 hours some formidable Spanish warships have succeeded in entering Havana harbor.

More than two weeks ago it was told in these dispatches that Morro Castle light had again been put in operation, and it was thought to indicate that the Spaniards in Havana had information leading them to expect some friendly visitors.

The gunboat saw the ships in the distance and signalled. The signals received no answer, which would surely have been the case had the strange vessels belonged to our navy.

They were two large cruisers and two torpedo boats. As near as could be made out the squadron was headed in the direction of Havana.

There is much speculation whether the ships supposed to have entered Havana harbor are part of Cervera's fleet which did not enter Santiago, or some of the ships from Cadiz. No official advices have yet been brought in by any of our blockading ships and there is much anxiety in consequence.

Washington, June 10.—Unmistakable signs of apprehension and nervousness were exhibited by the army officers who saw the Associated Press bulletins from Key West giving currency to the report that three Spanish men of war had run the blockade into Havana. The very first question that arose was as to the identity of these ships, if the report be true, and more than one officer immediately recalled the fact that the department was in some doubt as to the exact whereabouts of the Spanish warships, not only of Cervera's fleet, but of others that had preceded it into West Indian waters.

Schley's Tribute to Hobson.

Jamaica, June 10.—Commodore Schley paid a beautiful tribute to the valor of Lieut. Hobson and the gallant crew of the collier Merrimac as he sat on the after deck of the flagship Brooklyn, lying five miles off Santiago de Cuba on Sunday afternoon, talking with a correspondent of the Associated Press from the dispatch boat Dauntless.

Pointing toward the gray walls of Morro Castle, where Lieut. Hobson and his brave men were said to be incarcerated, the commodore spoke as follows:

"History does not record an act of finer heroism than that of the gallant men who are prisoners over there. I watched the Merrimac as she made her way to the entrance of the harbor, and my heart sank as I saw the perfect hell of fire that fell upon those devoted men. I did not think it possible one of them could have gone through it alive.

"They went into the jaws of death. It was Balaklava over again, without the means of defense which the Light Brigade had. Hobson led a forlorn hope, without the power to cut his way out.

But fortune once more favored the brave, and I hope he will have the recognition and promotion he deserves. His name will live as long as the heroes of the world are remembered."

The Insurgents Active.

Communication between the insurgents and the fleet is constant. The Cubans are active, and arms, ammunition and supplies for them were landed by the Suwanee Wednesday in great quantities. The insurgents and the Spaniards fight daily.

The Marblehead, on Monday, when the insurgents had pressed forward, west of Santiago, shelled the Spaniards, who fled to the mountains, leaving many dead and wounded.

Santiago is on the verge of starvation. All the food has been seized for the army and navy, and the troops and sailors are on half rations. Rear Admiral Sampson has officially declared that the purpose of the bombardment was to clear the way for the troops. The object has been attained.

The admiral has personally commended Ensign Palmer for approaching within 150 yards of the Spanish batteries at night and learning that the Spaniards were remounting guns.

LONGEVITY AND THE BRAIN.

The Necessity of Working On Until the Close of Life.

In a discourse of Sir James Crichton-Browne's, he dwells on the dangers to health involved in indolence and disuse of the brain. The medical profession, he says, adapting itself to the needs of the times, has felt it incumbent upon it during the last decade to insist mainly on the evils of misuse of the brain, on the excessive strain not seldom imposed on it in these days in the fierce struggle of the race to be rich, and more especially on the overpressure imposed on it in the name of education when in an immature state, but they are not less keenly alive to the correlative evils of the disuse of the brain.

Elderly persons who give up business and professional men who lay aside their avocations without having other interests or pursuits to which to turn, are in many cases plunged in despondency or hurried into premature dotage. He does not know any surer way of inducing premature mental decay than for a man of active habits to retire and do nothing when just past the zenith of life; and, on the other hand, he does not know any surer way of enjoying a green old age than to keep on working at something till the close. It has been said that one of the rewards of philosophy is length of days, and a striking list might be presented of men distinguished for their intellectual labors which they never laid aside, who far exceeded the allotted span of human life. Galileo lived to 78, Newton to 85, Franklin to 85, Buffon to 80, Faraday to 76, and Brewster to 84 years. Sir James Crichton-Browne drew special attention to the great age generally attained by our Judges.—London Lancet.

A SECOND EXPEDITION

Will Leave For Manila Next Week.

THE STEAMERS CHARTERED

Total Capacity of the Vessels the State Has, or May Charter, Is 12,700 Men—Army Recruiting Goes on Slowly—Many Applicants Are Rejected—Transports Being Loaded—City's Health Is Threatened.

San Francisco, June 10.—It has been semi-officially announced that the transports Zelandia, China and Colon, conveying the second Manila expedition, would sail next Wednesday.

It appears that the steamers Senator, City of Puebla and Queen, owned by the Pacific Coast Steamship Company, were not chartered, but impressed by the government as transports. The company hopes that the City of Topeka will be substituted for the Queen, which is now in Alaskan waters. The city of Para arrived last night, and will at once be fitted out for Manila.

The capacity of the transports already engaged, or likely to be chartered, is as follows:

China, 1,000 men; Colon, 800; Zelandia, 750; Senator, 800; Morgan City, 700; Ohio, 1,000; Indiana, 1,000; Victoria, 850; Olympia, 850; Arizona, 850; Tacoma, 850; Columbia, 850; Queen, 800; City of Puebla, 800; City of Para, 800.

This makes a total of 12,700 troops to go in the next expedition. There were 2,600 men in the first expedition. It is understood that the government intends to send 20,000 men to the Philippines. At least five more transports will be needed to carry all the troops.

The United States artillery encampment at the Presidio has been named Camp Miller in honor of Brigadier General Miller. There are now here 682 officers and men. The batteries are G, H and K of the regulars, and M and B of the First Battalion of California, United States Artillery volunteers. Battery K, in command of Captain Hobbs, arrived last night from Alcatraz island. The Third Artillery will be recruited up to the limit of 200 men to a battery.

Nearly 75 per cent. of applicants for enlistment are rejected here. The principal causes are impaired vision and insufficient chest expansion. Several natives of the Philippines have applied for enlistment, but all have been rejected. One who was very anxious to go to Manila with the troops was suspected of being a Spaniard.

The transport vessels of the second fleet are being slowly loaded. The Zealandia is nearest ready.

The board of health of this city will confer with General Otis to obtain better sanitary conditions than now exist at Camp Merritt. It is feared that the presence of 14,000 men in camp may threaten the city's health.

H. H. Sergeant, Tenth Pennsylvania, a victim of appendicitis, will be discharged, as he must submit to an operation.

REINFORCEMENTS FOR SAMPSON.

Believed That Marines on the Panther Are Now at Santiago.

Washington, June 10.—It is believed here that the first reinforcements for Sampson's fleet arrived off Santiago yesterday. These are the 800 marines under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Huntington, who sailed three days ago from Key West on the steamer Panther. These marines are intended not for distribution among the fleet, but as a landing force, pure and simple.

Naval officers are confident that with this small but well disciplined landing force Admiral Sampson will be able immediately to take possession of a base for the occupation of the regulars when they arrive. With the marines in possession of the beach, and the American warships with their shells clearing the country behind of Spaniards, there will be little danger in landing the troops.

THE YALE LAW LIBRARY.

Additions from the Collection of the Late L. A. Bradley.

New Haven, June 10.—The Yale law school library has received from the estate of the late L. A. Bradley, '55, of New York city, a gift of a considerable part of his professional library. For many years he had offices in New Haven as well as New York, and his books consisted largely of statute digests and reports of Connecticut and New York and treatises chiefly upon matters relating to real estate and probate law, which will be a valuable addition to the collection of the Law school. The gift comes through Dr. William L. Bradley, '60, of New Haven.

Cornell University Crews.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 10.—The Cornell freshmen crew took its first morning practice yesterday. Captain Colson took the coxswain's seat and gave the men many points, while Courtney, the coach, watched the work from the banks of the inlet. The freshmen showed good form and rowed well. Two changes were made, Vanderhoef has displaced Tryon at No. 2, and Fay, Thomas at bow. The other seats were occupied as follows: English, stroke; Hartly, No. 7; Lyon, No. 6; Ball, No. 5; Cross, No. 4; King, No. 3. Beginning to-day both crews will row twice each day.

Valuable Information Given.

Washington, June 10.—Lieutenant W. H. Whitney, who has just returned from a trip to Porto Rico, had a conference with Secretary Alger yesterday. He gave him valuable information relative to the Spanish province soon to be invaded by American troops. The knowledge obtained by Lieutenant Whitney is of great value to the war department at this time.

New Generals Named.

Washington, June 10.—The president yesterday sent these nominations to the senate:

To be major general—J. Warren Kelfer of Ohio.

To be brigadier general—John P. S. Gobin of Pennsylvania.

SUFFERING IN MILITARY CAMPS.

The Cry for Bread Comes Up from Every Camp Where Troops Are Gathered.

Washington, June 10.—Political pap is being served out to volunteers in the field, when the requisitions call for substantial food.

This, in brief, explains, in a measure, why the volunteer troops are to-day suffering for the necessaries of life at the various encampments.

The cry for bread and supplies comes from Tampa, Chickamauga, Key West, Mobile, and even Camp Alger, which is under the shadow of the Goddess of Liberty looking down from the dome of the Capitol.

The complainings pouring in at the war department but emphasize the state of "rattledness" prevailing at army headquarters. There is no intention on the part of the war department to neglect the trops in the field, nor is there any desire on the part of the commissary of subsistence or the quartermaster general to put the troops on starvation rations. The trouble seems to lie in the rank inexperience of the newly appointed members of the staff departments, and the utter physical inability of the few seasoned officers to perform the gigantic duties imposed upon them in equipping and supplying a vast army of 125,000 men. The real trouble seems to be that the army was tardy in realizing that war with Spain was inevitable. While the navy was scanning the horizon for Spanish ships and stripping the battleships for action, the army was doing dress parade duty and misreading the war indications, which were distinctly written on the wall. Even when war was deemed to be inevitable, the ruling spirits in the army stroked their military whiskers and said: "Oh, this is to be a naval war, and the army will cut but little figure in it."

Within a few weeks the whole plan of the war has undergone a complete change, and the army is required to play a very important part in the war with Spain. The call for 200,000 volunteers to aid in expeditions to Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines imposed upon the head of the army duties for which it was illy prepared.

The utter inadequacy of the equipment necessary for the newly assembled army was soon manifested. The inappropriateness of many of the places selected for encampments and the lack of facilities for supplying the troops with suitable rations has impressed itself upon even those who are most anxious to overlook the shortcomings of the war department under existing pressure.

Brave and patriotic sons of the nation are languishing in some of the encampments at this moment for want of proper food and a decent place to rest their weary forms after going through the exacting duties of camp life. The complaints of the soldiers have been heard beyond the war department and vigorous methods will be resorted to if necessary to locate the responsibility and remedy the existing evil.

North Carolina Cotton Crop.

Raleigh, N. C., June 10.—The crop report of the state agricultural department, issued to-day, says that the cool nights of the past two weeks have been unfavorable for the maturing of cotton, and that wind and hail storms have done considerable damage to all crops. In the eastern district cotton is looking better and promises to grow well, although the stand is poor, and in the northern tier of counties needs chopping badly. In the central district cotton is not in a promising condition, but in the western district the crops are looking clean and healthy. Cotton is growing only fairly well, and poor stands are complained of in every county. It is estimated that with the most favorable conditions possible hereafter, the cotton crop will fall far short of an average one this year. The cotton acreage has generally been reduced, also, all over the state, more food crops being put in.

How They Feel in Madrid.

Madrid, June 10.—The bad news received here from the Philippine islands has caused a deep impression.

The public is calm, but there is a latent intensity of dissatisfaction which is only repressed on patriotic grounds.

A long cabinet council, to clear the situation, especially the resources required for he campaign and the war plans was held yesterday.

The minister of marine, Captain Aunon, submitted important documents for the consideration of the ministers. It is announced that he will proceed shortly to Cadiz, ostensibly to inspect the defences of that place. But it is said he "may possibly make an important decision during his stay there."

The minister of marine will also devote considerable attention to the available naval reserves.

Wreck on the West Shore.

Rochester, N. Y., June 10.—In a wreck on the West Shore road at Petty's Crossing, yesterday, one man was killed and five injured.

Dead—James Callahan, Newark, fireman.

Injured—James Walsh, Clyde, engineer, badly wounded about the head; Peter Martel, conductor, leg sprained; C. S. Davis, scratched face and back bruised; A. B. Ryan, Syracuse, slightly bruised on arms and back; Michael Feeley, foreman of workmen, thought to be seriously injured internally.

The accident is supposed to have been caused by the track spreading.

Powder Found in Coal.

Springfield, Mass., June 10.—While unloading a carload of coal Wednesday, a shoveler discovered a can of giant powder in the coal. The coal is understood to have come from mines in Pennsylvania from which the government obtains a part of its coal for the navy and it is thought that any number of such cans may have been put into the coal by Spanish sympathizers in the hope of disabling an American warship.

Misery of Spanish Wounded.

London, June 10.—Countess Casa Valencia, wife of the former Spanish ambassador to Great Britain, who started a Spanish fund in London which only realized a thousand pounds ($5,000), has received from Madrid a dispatch describing the shocking misery of the Spanish sick and wounded.

Filibuster Hart Pardoned.

Washington, June 10.—The president has granted a pardon to Captain John D. Hart, now serving a sentence of two years for engaging in a filibustering expedition to Cuba.

REVENUE FOR WAR

The Conference Report Has Been Submitted.

A $400,000,000 BOND ISSUE

The Conference Report Makes Same Charges—Silver Seigniorage to Be Coined Slowly, Without Forcing the Treasury—The Tobacco Tax Altered—Tea Tax to Remain—All Differences Settled.

Washington, June 10.—The conference committee on the war revenue bill has practically settled all differences, and a report was submitted to the House yesterday afternoon.

The compromise in the bond clause fixes the amount of bonds at four hundred millions, striking out the provision for fifty millions of certificates of indebtedness, which were to have been issued before any bonds were sold.

A compromise on the coinage of the silver seigniorage provides for the coinage, but states that the treasury is not to be hampered as to the amount to be coined in a specified time, the silver being turned into coin as soon as the treasury can do it under ordinary conditions.

The tobacco tax is modified as to stock on hand, so that dealers carrying less than 1,000 pounds of tobacco and 20,000 cigars will be exempt from the tax.

The ten cents a pound duty on tea after July 1 will stand.

The excise tax of 1-4 of 1 per cent. on receipts of sugar and petroleum, which is levied at the Sugar Trust and Standard Oil Company, also remains in the bill.

Sleeping car berths will be taxed, but it is probable that parlor car seats will be exempt.

The House accepts these Senate provisions:

Allowing rebate of 7 1-2 per cent. on the sale of stamps for fermented liquors, instead of 5 per cent., as provided by the House.

Imposing special taxes, etc., with an amendment striking out insurance agents and also making the tax to theatres apply only to cities exceeding 25,000 population.

The amendment striking out the House provision imposing a special tax on retail tobacco dealers.

The provision relating to stamp taxes on life insurance policies to eight cents for each hundred dollars of insurance to be paid only once, at the inception of the policy; and a corresponding reduction on weekly payment insurance.

The proprietary medicine and perfumery amendments of the Senate, with a reduction of the tax of about one-third. The Senate amendment providing that stamps may be affixed on medicinal articles held in stock, or when such articles are sold by the retailer.

The Senate amendments imposing an excise tax of one-fourth of one per cent. on corporations refining sugar or petroleum, measured by their gross receipts exceeding $250,000; and also the Senate amendment imposing a tax of one cent on the sale of each sleeping and parlor car ticket sold by the company issuing the same; and also the Senate legacy and inheritance tax.

The House recedes from its tonnage tax provision.

It accepts the Senate amendment imposing a duty of ten cents per pound on imported tea, with an amendment providing that the duty shall take effect on the passage of the act.

The Senate amendment relating to mixed flour with a substitute embodying the bill on the same subject, as reported by the committee on ways and means.

The Senate recedes from its coinage of the silver seigniorage amendment and a substitute is agreed to simply authorizing and directing the coinage of not less than one and one-half millions silver dollars per month from the silver bullion held in the treasury, such silver dollars to be applied as provided by the act of July 14, 1890.

The Senate accepts these House provisions: Placing the increased tax on fermented liquors stored in warehouses. The certificate of indebtedness and loan provisions of the House with a reduction of the amount of bonds authorized to four hundred millions.

The House accepts the Senate rates on cigars and cigarettes and the Senate accepts the House provision imposing an additional tax on stocks on hand, but reducing the tax on such stocks one-half and excepting from its operation stocks not exceeding one thousand pounds of tobacco, twenty thousand cigars and cigarettes.

The House accepts the Senate amendment imposing a stamp tax on all speculative sales on stock and produce exchanges.

The Senate accepts the House exemption of receipts from stamp taxes.

The Senate recedes from its amendment imposing stamp taxes on articles sold under a trade mark or any name or designation not open to general use.

A New Professor for Lehigh.

South Bethlehem, Pa., June 10.—It has been officially announced that Professor John L. Stewart of the Northeast Manual Training school of Philadelphia has been elected professor of history and economics in Lehigh University.

Professor Stewart was graduated from the Central High School in Philadelphia in 1887, and from the Wharton School of Finance and Economy of the University of Pennsylvania in 1889, in which year he was also elected to a Wharton fellowship in political economy and history, which he held until 1893. He was appointed assistant professor of history in the Central Manual Training school in 1890, and professor of history and economics in the Northeast Manual Training school in 1891.

Off for Camp.

New York, June 10.—The Astor battery broke barracks in the building at No. 552 Broadway yesterday morning to take up new quarters in Pelham Bay Park, Westchester county, where they will remain until definite instructions are received from the war department regarding the transfer of the men and their fighting paraphernalia to the Philippines.

Deschanel Re-Elected.

Paris, June 10.—M. Deschanel yesterday was re-elected permanent president of the Chamber of Deputies by 287 votes against 277 cast for M. Brisson.

DESPERATE AT MANILA.

Reports in Madrid That Spanish Garrison Will Surrender to Americans.

Madrid, June 10.—It is rumored that the Spanish garrison at Manila, rather than be massacred by the insurgents, prefers to yield to the Americans as prisoners of war.

General Correa, minister of war, declares that Captain General Augusti will defend himself to the last.

Senor Silvela says: "The moment has arrived to take supreme resolution."

General Lopez Dominguez believes that the intervention of the powers is imminent, "because the fate of the Philippines interests all Europe."

The bad news received here from the Philippine islands has caused a deep impression. The public is calm, but there is a latent intensity of dissatisfaction, which is only repressed on patriotic grounds.

The newspapers are printing violent articles, demanding that the responsibility for the present situation be determined.

Political circles express themselves as being "satisfied that the powers will not permit the United States to hold the Philippine islands."

MCKINLEY WANTS HAWAII.

He Will Urge Congress to Act in a Special Message.

Washington, June 10.—The president has in contemplation, according to a senator who was in consultation with him yesterday, the submission of a special message to the two houses of Congress calling for immediate annexation of Hawaii as a military necessity.

According to the Senator the message will be delayed for a few days to await the action that may be taken by Speaker Reed and the committee on rules, but it is likely to go in with as little delay as possible.

The purport of the message is a special plea for favorable action, calling attention to the strategic importance of the islands, the great advantage that would accrue in the present war situation through securing them and other points in the Hawaiian policy already well known.

LATEST FROM SANTIAGO.

All Cables Are Reported Cut—Insurgents Are Active.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 10.—Communication between Cuba and the outer world has been severed. The Kingston-Santiago cable was cut on Monday, and the Marblehead, Yankee and St. Louis cut the Haytien cable, running into Guantanamo bay, Wednesday. The ends were buoyed and Rear Admiral Sampson can establish direct communication with Washington.

The Marblehead also engaged and drove a small Spanish gunboat into Guantanamo harbor and shelled and reduced the antiquated fortifications. The insurgents co-operated on the land side. The place is being held until the troops arrive. It is contemplated to establish a general base here.

A Riot at Tampa.

Atlanta, June 10.—A family in Savannah has received a letter from a soldier in the Second Georgia regiment at Tampa, giving an account of a bloody riot, which the censor has kept out of dispatches. The letter states that on Tuesday night, at Ybor City, there was a riot between negro regulars and southern volunteers. Four negroes were killed and several wounded. The Second Georgia regiment was called out to restore order and was on guard all night. It is believed that this trouble led to the determination to break up the camp at Tampa.

For Hobson's Exchange.

The American commander is anxious to effect the exchange of Lieutenant Hobson and his gallant companions. The admiral sent the Vixen, with a flag of truce, to the entrance of the harbor yesterday, offering to exchange for the lieutenant and his party some prisoners taken from a prize of the Marblehead off Cienfuegos. Admiral Cervera considered the matter all night and then sent word that he was powerless to act. He referred the matter to the military governor and the latter in turn referred it to Captain General Blanco. A long delay is probable.

Miss Cisneros Married.

Baltimore, Md., June 10.—Captain Carbonell and Evangelina Cisneros were married here yesterday.

Miss Cisneros was confined in the city prison in Havana for months as a political prisoner, charged with aiding a conspiracy to kidnap the governor of the Isle of Pines, near Cuba.

She was rescued by an American, and has since been in Washington under the care of Mrs. John A. Logan. The engagement was announced some days ago.

Captain Carbonell is on General Lee's staff.

To Guard Rhode Island.

New York, June 10.—Eight companies of the Forty-seventh regiment, en route from Camp Black to man fortifications along the Rhode Island coast arrived at Long Island City yesterday afternoon and were greeted by an enthusiastic crowd of admirers, mainly composed of relatives.

Under Lieutenant Colonel Hubbell are Companies B, F, G and I of the Second Battalion, and D and K of the Third Battalion. These go to Fort Adams. Major Barthman takes Companies E and A of the Third Battalion to Dutch island.

Newspaper Man's Sudden Death.

New York, June 10.—Mr. James T. Watkins, for some time attached to the editorial staff of the Evening Sun, died yesterday while on his way to work. He was in his sixtieth year and was a son of the late Commodore Watkins of the Pacific Mail Company's China fleet. He was an alumnus of Harvard. He was an accomplished writer and was for many years in the newspaper profession. He was a contributor to the Overland Monthly when Bret Harte was its editor.

FOR THE VACATION SEASON.

Subscribers leaving the city for the summer season can have The Daily Press sent to their new address by notifying the buisness office. The address will be changed as often as desired. "Home news" will prove most interesting while you are away.

A Few Words for Plainfield.

Plainfield has long enjoyed a high reputation as one of the healthiest as well as one of the most attractive of New Jersey towns, of which no stronger evidence could be afforded than the fact that a large proportion of its residents do business in the great commercial capital of the country. Although twenty-four miles from New York, the railroad facilities bring it nearer to the business centre of the great metropolis than many of the districts within its immediate boundaries. To the signal advantages it possesses in its admirable railroad service, as well as its established character as a sanitary resort, may be attributed its rapid increase within a comparatively few years in its population, and the fact that it is second to no other place in our State in regard to the varied architectural beauty of its residences. Plainfield is a model city in this respect, and although it may not aspire to rival in palatial magnificence the mansions of the wealthy in other localities, its people may feel a just pride in the style and elegance of their houses as well as in the picturesque character of the suburbs in which they are located. Take it altogether, Plainfield is not second to any town in the State in all those essential features that render it desirable as a place of residence.

The best policy for both England and the United States seems to be to have an alliance in the air instead of on paper. Nobody doubts the sincere friendship of the British nation toward us now, and we are glad to have it in the present crisis. It will keep the continental powers from forming a coalition against us, as it has done already. On the other hand, our publicly expressed good will toward England will do the same for her in case of the unanimous hostility of the other European nations to her. But a formal alliance would mean that if England became involved in a war we would be bound to help her out of it if called on to do so. It would be awkward to send ships and men across the sea to fight a nation with whom we desired above all things to cultivate a profitable trade, a country in which we wanted a market, not a war. England, too, would find it extremely unpleasant under like circumstances, especially as Queen Victoria's descendants are intermarried with all the leading Protestant royal houses of Europe. It is enough for other countries to know that each of the great English speaking nations of the globe has the sincere friendship and moral support of the other.

With wheat at top prices of civil war times it is unfortunate that those who are getting the most benefit of the rise are not the ones who grow the wheat, but the men who gamble in wheat. There was more than a speculative reason for the high price of wheat. The crop is short in all parts of Europe, in Australia and in Argentina.

When Gladstone was prime minister of England, he raised revenue to carry on war by taxation. He always opposed adding to the government debt by borrowing money and issuing time bonds.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News, but Just as Interesting.

A Bayonne colored man yesterday got out a warrant for his wife's arrest, and then requested that it be not served as "the Lord told him not to prosecute her."

* * * * *

To meet such a thorough-going business woman as Mrs. Hattie Lytle Dale, manager of the demonstration department of the O'Donohue Coffee Company, who is stationed in Plainfield for a few days, is a marked pleasure. Considering her manner in comparison with the average demeanor of the feminine who is actively engaged in the hustling competiveness of the business world, Mrs. Dale is so apt and practical in her transactions that she impresses one with being to the manner born. There is no fluttering conventionality about her that is usually found to deteriorate the average business woman's qualifications. She is tersely pleasant in her talk and just aggressive enough without being overbearing in her negotiations with her brethern in business to succeed wonderfully where others would either fail or languish at the half-way point. The O'Donohue Company possess a prize in having the personality of Mrs. Dale to push their brand of goods among the people.

* * * * *

One phase of the early gossip growing out of the present war was that there was a dearth of applicants for cottages along the sea shore this season on account of the fear that the Spanish war ships might slyly steal up some day and bombard the coast with disastrous effect. Charles H. Hand, the well-known real estate man of this city, visited Asbury Park, Belmar, Elberon and several other popular resorts along the coast a few days ago and in conversation with the writer yesterday said that from present prospects this season is going to be one of the most successful in several years along the shore. Nearly every cottage is rented, and only a few hotels have not yet secured landlords. Those that have been rented, Mr. Hand says, are rapidly booking guests. He says that all this talk abut fear being entertained of bombardment from the enemy is without foundation. The people are going along in the even tenor of their way as though we were at peace with all the world.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

The motto of the Pleasure Palace these hot days is "Come where it's cool," and the management lives up to this motto by keeping the spacious house as refreshingly cool as a mountain summer resort. The bill is always of excellent quality, and the combination of comfort and high class shows is proving a sure winner, even at a time when theatrical business is usually dull. Next week's programme is exceptionally strong, from the first number to the last. The feature is the vaudeville debut of Merry Katie Emmett, so well and favorably known the country over for her character impersonations. Miss Emmett appears in a brand-new playette, assisted by that sterling actor, Hubert Sackett. Another pair of "legitimates" are Claude Gillingwater and Edward J. Heron, who, in "My Husband's Mother," have one of the funniest sketches in vaudeville today. In addition we have M'Lle Rombello, the sand painter, a unique and artistic performance; Franz Wilczek and his wife, violinist, and a half dozen others.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

AIDING THEIR PATRONS.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS HELP THE PARK AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH.

Strawberry and Ice Cream Festival Given to Swell the Amount Which the Young People Pledged for Expenses.

The Park Avenue Baptist church Endeavorers gave a strawberry and ice cream festival last night in the chapel which was participated in by all the members of the society and their friends. The proceeds went to swell the $50 which the society have pledged towards the running expenses of the church.

The festival was given under the auspices of the missionary and social committees. The young men and women worked hard Wednesday night to trim the church for the occasion, and the efforts were well rewarded. Bunting and flags were hung in graceful folds, and the C. E. colors, black and yellow, for the State, and green and white, for the Local Union, were seen everywhere. The large "C. E." which had a place on the arch at the head of Park avenue a year and a half ago, when the State convention of the organization met in this city, was placed in the front of the room. Flowers and greens made up the rest of the decorations. The tables where candy was sold, and where the cakes were also displayed, were set off with colors.

A short programme was first given which consisted of gramaphone selections under the direction of Charles Hayes; vocal solos by Miss Lottie Messersmith and Thomas A. Cuming, and violin solos by Mr. Franco.

The admission fee entitled the payer to cream and cake. The young people in charge of the affair were J. M. Hawkins, chairman, and Miss Adelaide Runyon, Miss Anna Wyckoff, Miss Bessie Giles, Miss Laura Runyon and Rev J. W. Richardson, of the missionary committee; F. H. Clarkson, chairman, and Miss Helen Cuming. Miss Lizzie VanWinkle, Miss Henrietta Cuming, Miss Lizzie Livezey and Arthur Heath, members of the social committee.

Electric Lights Ought to Be Put Out.

It is claimed by the light and trees committee from the Common Council that a fair test of the Welsbach light cannot be given unless electric lights in the vicinity are put out. The new lights were burned last night, but the electric lights spoiled the effect. It is probable that some other arrangements will be made in a day or two.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning June 12. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Christian courage; examples from books or life.—Mark x, 32-34; Acts xxi, 10-14.

Christian history is replete with illustrations of courage of the highest character. There have been times in the history of the world when it required the greatest physical and moral courage to confess Christ and to stand firmly by Christian faith and duty. In many places in the world today similar courage is demanded. These demands for Christian courage have been faithfully met, both in the past and in the present. For their faith in Christ men have been willing to hazard their lives and not a few have willingly stood the supreme test itself and have sacrificed their lives for the sake of their religious convictions.—If we were to call the roll of earth's honored dead, we would find upon it the names of an innumerable multitude, who died as martyrs to their Christian faith, and of a countless host of others who, although not called upon to suffer martyrdom, yet displayed matchless courage and heroism in the defense of their faith. All honor to Christianity's courageous dead, and may their spirit fall upon the disciples of Christ today and their example inspire us to noble, heroic and self sacrificing deeds for Christ and humanity!

Christ Himself heads the long list of courageous Christians, if we may so speak of Him. He Himself has left us a matchless example of the courage that should possess all Christians in battling against wrong and injustice and in performing the duties of life. Long before His death He knew that He must die as a martyr, and yet unflinchingly and steadfastly He turned His face toward Jerusalem to meet the crisis of His life, and when it came, with a calm courage and fortitude that impressed itself upon all who saw Him die, He gave His life for the world. It has been well said, "Socrates died like a philosopher, but Christ like a god." Only divinity itself could explain His calm courage, His sublime trust in God, Himself and the issues of His life and death.

Paul the apostle certainly ranks next to Christ in the category of brave and heroic Christians. Luke gives us in the topical reference an illustration of Paul's courage. Paul is at Cæsarea on his way to Jerusalem after his last great missionary journey. A certain prophet named Agabus came down from Jerusalem, "took Paul's girdle and bound his own hands and feet and said, "Thus sayeth the Holy Ghost, so shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man who owneth this girdle and shall deliver him into the hands of the gentiles." Then all tried to persuade Paul not to go to Jerusalem, but he bravely replied, "What mean ye to weep and to break my heart, for I am ready not to be bound only, but to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus?" Nor was this magnificent language a mere idle boast. Paul meant it, and he proved it by his subsequent history. Let us receive an inspiration from the examples of Christ, Paul and all heroic Christians.

Bible Readings.—Num. xiii, 20; Deut. xxxi, 6; Joshua i, 6, 7; Judg. iv, 14-16; vii, 15-23; II Sam. x, 9-13; II Chron. xix, 8-11; Ez. x, 1-4; Ps. xxvii, 14; xxxi, 24; Isa. xli, 6, 7; Dan. vi, 10-23; I Cor. xvi, 13; Eph. vi, 10-18.

The Sense of Sin.

The missionary among people whom we complacently call "heathen" is often asked if he finds them ready to confess that they are sinners. He must answer yes or no according to the point of view and according to the meaning intended by the questioner. Unconverted people at home and abroad are essentially alike in this matter. They will tell you that they do not claim to be better than their neighbors and that they are well aware of coming far short of perfection, though they will doubtless also resent any suggestion as to particular instances that they are not quite as good as anybody whom you chance to know and that they are not really examples to many who make louder pretensions.—Commonwealth (Baptist).

A Leader and Commander.

There is deep significance in the prophecy that the Messiah should be given as "a leader and commander to the people." There must always be a head. Every flock must have its shepherd; every tribe must have its chief; every nation must have its leader. To be adequately led, to be wisely commanded, is one of the deepest needs of the human race. Instinctively the people seek for a leader; especially at the time of any perilous crisis, the cry of their hearts is, Who shall lead and guide us?—Reformed Church Messenger.

Truth Is Truth.

There are times in the history of every individual, as well as every church, where things look blue. When there is a going back on the truth once attained, and when the ordinances of worship are corrupted, and when men who once spoke out against the inroads of corruption become silent as the grave, it looks blue for the rest of the faithful ones. But no matter who comes or who goes, truth is truth and God is true to it.—Christian Instructor.

The Purpose of Life.

Do the tears that arise in the heat of the strife
Seem to hide from your vision the purpose of life?
Do the myriad cares of laborious days
Leave a doubt in your heart whether living them pays?

Banish doubt and plead on. Life was given to man
As a part of creation's mysterious plan.
Each must carry what burden the years may bestow
Until burdens and bearers alike are laid low.

At the end of the road is a couch and a pall,
And it may be the couch is the end of it all,
Or it may be the spirit, released from the clod,
Shares the freedom of time with the infinite God.

'Tis but folly to dig into moss covered creeds.
Let your life be a record of generous deeds.
Not the wisest may fathom futurity's plan,
But the weakest may live as becometh a man.
—Frank Putnam in London Public Opinion.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning June 12. Comment by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M. Topic, Life Marring and Molding.

SCRIPTURE READING.—Jer, xviii, 1-6.

Jeremiah, the prophet, goes to the workshop of a potter. There he sees an earthen jar in process of molding. The clay will not take the shape first intended and so the maker shapes it into a different form and makes a vessel adapted to different uses from that he first designed.

All this Jeremiah views as an object lesson of the spiritual condition of the people Israel. God had intended them, as His own peculiar people, to teach all men righteous living and heart holiness. They had shown themselves utterly unworthy the divine intention. They had forsaken the worship of Jehovah, the living and only true God and had turned to idols. In place of pure hearts and loving deeds they had become possessed of evil spirits and were vicious in life.

God turns from His purpose of making them prosperous as a people and exalting them among the nations. He denounces punishment against them for their wickedness.

All these threatenings were fearfully fulfilled in the years which followed.

The lesson has wide application. It contains warning for all at the present time. It applies to nations, communities and individuals.

Prosperity and happiness can come permanently only from love of God and righteousness toward men. Whoever turns from the truth and prefers the false and untrue unfits himself for the service of the God who has made the universe on lines of eternal verity. He becomes as clay, hardened in the process of manufacture and unfit for the finer and better uses. Not even God can make that man into nobility of life and service. He becomes debased and low.

But if a person or nation seeks to do right and purifies the life, the Scriptures declare, "if a man purge himself, he shall be a vessel unto honor, sanctified and meet for the Master's use, prepared unto every good work."

"Francis Forrester."

This was the title by which Dr. Daniel Wise was for many years known among the readers of The Sunday School Advocate and the young people of Methodism. No writer for youth has done better work than he. No one has been more beloved. Born in England in 1813, he came to the United States in 1833. He has been a member of the New England Southern conference of the Methodist Episcopal church since 1843. From 1856 till 1872 he was secretary of the Sunday School Union and Tract societies. He was also editor of Zion's Herald for a period. He is the author of many books for young people, some of which are widely read. He resides at Englewood, N. J. Though the Epworth League came too late for him to be active in its organization his interest in the young people is unabated, and they in turn should know the work and honor the name of one who has done so much in years gone by to aid the youth of Methodism and America to develop intelligent piety.

Furnish the Feast.

The need that the gospel shall be carried to those unreached in the regular church services was never felt more keenly than at the present time. "Go out into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in that My feast may be furnished with guests," is being heard and heeded by many of the Lord's servants. The League should help in this work. Invite those who work by you in the week in store or factory or office to worship with you on Sunday. Invite them, go after them, and when they come give them courteous welcome. Introduce them to other young people and make them feel at home.

"To everything there is a season," and every season has its work and purpose. Summer is here. Whether we enjoy the hot weather or not it is best to welcome it and get the most possible from it. What new sights are you seeing, what new sounds from the myriad voiced life around you are coming to your soul? Are you hearing the heavenly choirs of birds and trees, rocks, rills and skies which are tuneful with their Maker's praise? "Day unto day uttereth speech and night unto night showeth knowledge." Open your soul doors and windows and let in light and breezes of paradise.

The Gift of Love.

It is in loving, not in being loved,
The heart is blest.
It is in giving, not in seeking gifts,
We find our quest.

If thou art hungry, lacking heavenly bread,
Give hope and cheer.
If thou art sad and wouldst be comforted,
Stay sorrow's tear.

Whatever be thy longing or thy need,
That do thou give.
So shall thy soul be fed, and thou indeed
Shalt truly live.
—Sunday School Times.

Provinz Ostpreußen.

Bartenstein. Kaufmann Wartat von hier, welcher sich wegen eines Leidens am Bein (Krampfadern) in eine Klinik nach Königsberg begeben hatte, ist dort an Blutvergiftung plötzlich gestorben.

Rominten. Auf Anregung der Behörde ist hier in den letzten Jahren auf die Vermehrung der Störche Bedacht genommen. Hierdurch ist es gelungen, dem Ueberhandnehmen der Kreuzottern vorzubeugen.

Provinz Westpreußen.

Dirschau. Der blinde Harmonikaspieler Otto Fordon wurde, als er mit seinem Begleiter die Baldauer Chaussee passirte, von unbekannten Personen überfallen und mit einem stumpfen Instrument in's Gesicht geschlagen. Von hinten erhielt der arme Mensch einen Stich in den linken Oberarm, so daß die Muskeln durchtrennt wurden. Der Begleiter lief beim Ueberfall davon, kehrte aber, als sich die Unholde entfernt hatten, zurück und brachte den schwer verletzten Mann in das Johanniter-Krankenhaus.

Rheinprovinz.

Köln. Hier wurden mehrere Mitglieder einer internationalen Diebesbande festgenommen, die vor kurzer Zeit in Paris einen bedeutenden Bankdiebstahl ausgeführt und mit einem großen Theil ihrer Beute nach Köln geflohen waren. Im Besitze der Verbrecher wurde eine größere Anzahl Kassenscheine von bedeutendem Werthe, sowie zahlreiche Juwelen vorgefunden.

Duisburg. Die wegen Ermordung des Bergmanns Schula zum Tode verurtheilten Fabrikarbeiter Theodor Graat, Franz Santer und Anton Schmitz, sowie die wegen Anstiftung zum Morde verurtheilte Wittwe Karoline Schula sind hier nach einander durch den Scharfrichter Reindel aus Magdeburg enthauptet worden.

Provinz Sachsen.

Suhl. Die alberne Gewohnheit, einer Person kurz vor dem Hinsetzen den Stuhl heimlich wegzuziehen, hat hier einen recht bedauerlichen Unglücksfall veranlaßt, indem der 17jährige Lehrling Max Seeburg in Folge eines solchen Scherzes so unglücklich niederstürzte, daß er vollständig gelähmt liegen blieb und anscheinend schwere Verletzungen des Rückgrates erlitt.

Provinz Schlesien.

Gleiwitz. Sieben Ortschaften des hiesigen Kreises wurden schwer von Hagelschlag getroffen. So hoch lag der Hagel, daß die Einwohner der heimgesuchten Ortschaften nicht im Stande waren, ihn allein wegzuräumen, und der Landrath sich Militär erbat, um bei der Abräumung behilflich zu sein. Fast sämmtliche Felder in der Umgegend sind verwüstet.

Neumarkt. Das große Loos fiel in die Kollekte des hiesigen Lotterie-Einnehmers Werner. Dasselbe wurde zu gleichen Theilen von Kaufmann Thomas in Neumarkt, Gastwirth Kentsch in Dietzdorf, Müller Fritsche in Dürschwitz und Inspektor Hoche in Jakobsdorf gespielt, so daß nach Abzug der 16 Prozent staatlicher Abgabe auf jeden der vier Gewinner die Summe von 105,000 Mark entfällt.

Provinz Schleswig-Holstein.

Apenrade. Der hiesige Bürgermeisterposten wird von Neuem ausgeschrieben. Der bei der ersten Präsentation gewählte Bürgermeister Böttcher zu Eisenach soll ersucht werden, sein Bewerbungsgesuch zurückzuziehen, weil er gelegentlich der Vorstellung hierselbst mitgetheilt hat, er hätte seine Schulbildung in seiner Vaterstadt Delitzsch an dem Real-Gymnasium genossen und dieses mit dem Zeugniß der Reife verlassen. Nun hat man jedoch ausfindig gemacht, daß in Delitzsch kein Real-Gymnasium, sondern nur ein Real-Progymnasium besteht.

Kiel. Die dänische Galeasse „Margarete" kam bei der Ausfahrt aus dem Kaiser Wilhelm-Kanal bei Holtenau in das Schußfeld eines Panzerschiffes, das Torpedoschießübungen abhielt, und wurde von einem abgeschossenen Schultorpedo unter Wasser getroffen; um ein Sinken der Galeasse zu verhüten, wurde sie auf Grund gesetzt.

But a trifle for so good a Sideboard as this, $13.95
Not a haphazard, thrown-together affair, but as substantial as honest talent knows how to make it. And there are other good boards here too—from $9.75 to $100. A grand showing.

How About Your Refrigerator?
Pay us $5.49—get a hardwood refrigerator that ought to tax your means for one-half more—$5.49 pays for not only one refrigerator, but covers cost of a fine galvanized pick, tongs and pan that go along with it—another proof of "Amos H. Van Horn, Ltd." liberality! As spick and span a refrigerator stock as Jersey ever saw—dozens of kinds, all new in idea and small in price!
Two Summer Cooking Helps
The "Wickless Blue Flame Oil Stove" and the "Monarch Vapor Stove." Two marvels of inventive genius, as easy to run 'em as can be—no instructions—no worrying valves, etc. Call—we'll operate them for you. We've the "Insurance" and "Quickmeal" Vapor Stoves too.

Every man and women who deals with me will save money. I buy for spot cash and sell for spot cash, thus saving a percentage which I share with my customers. I guarantee to sell goods of this kind as low as can be purchased in New York City, Chicago or Philadelphia, and I request the public to compare my prices with others in the same line of business. I have now resided in Plainfield for eleven years and intend to stay and make it my permanent place of business and residence, as I recently purchased of William Kelly, of Oak Tree, the valuable property 218, 222 and 224 Park avenue, nearly opposite North avenue, and in the spring, when leases expire and I am in full possession, will open a Bicycle Store and Repair Shop there and will continue to supply the public with Bicycles and Bicycle Goods at great bargains as heret fore. My policy is to give my customers the full benefit of lowest cash prices for the best goods. Call at my store and procure my prices and be convinced. tu-f

No need to wait!

If you want to get a Piano, there is no reason why you shouldn't have it AT ONCE. The question of cost does not count, for our liberal easy payment system puts Pianos within the reach of all. A first payment of TEN DOLLARS, in most instances, will be sufficient and the later monthly payments can be even smaller.

Our immense business means that you can get a Piano here for very much less money than an equally good one would cost anywhere either in New Jersey or in New York.

A BLUE UMBRELLA.

BY H. S. KELLER.

"Colonel, why did you never marry?" If a cyclone had struck the sharp-featured man who sat with his feet elevated upon the iron railing of the veranda, it could not have caused him to start up more quickly. He snipped the ashes from his cigar, paced to the father end of the veranda, and returning to the questioner's side, he said,—

"Harry, what made you ask me that question?"

The young man, upon whose shoulder the other's hand rested lightly, lifted his eyes. Evidently the colonel was deeply moved.

"Why, all men marry; that is, men of means or—anyhow they should marry."

"But you are not married."

"And for a good reason; I am not able."

"But you could support a very comfortable household if you were not—well, what you are," said the colonel, as he moved away.

"Ah! Hold on, colonel! do not leave me in that—he's gone!"

The other, paying no attention to his words, went down the broad steps and walked away into the moonlight.

"I know what he means; he might just as well told me in so many words—spendthrift! Hang it all! I know very well that I am careless about finances and all that sort of thing. If I had been forced to work early I'd know the value of dollars, and be a very different sort of chap now. Ah, well! Life is too short to fret over mistakes gone and done for. Edith Lisle is a—here she comes now."

Was it the tap-tap of tiny feet or the frou-frou of snowy skirts that made Harry Lancaster's heart throb tumultuously? It was both—and the fact that the woman he loved more than all others was nearing him. Rising, he tossed his cigar away, lifted his hat and offered the charming creature in white a chair.

"Do not disturb yourself, Mr. Lancaster; I merely came for a brief walk up and down the veranda Isn't it a lovely evening?"

"It is indeed a delightful evening. If you will not rest here for a few moments, will you permit me to offer you my arm for the stroll?"

She laid her dainty hand upon his arm, and the pair strolled slowly to the farther end of the veranda; they turned to retrace their steps when Edith said,—

"Was not that a firefly? Over there among the bushes to the left? See, there it is again, and such a glowing one, too! There, it has disappeared."

"It may be a firefly, but it is my opinion that Colonel Drake of the Regulars is smoking a cigar out there among the shadows," said Harry.

"Is that charming old bear here?" she suddenly asked, allowing her hand to slip from the other's arm.

"He came this afternoon."

"And as I was not down to tea I did not meet him."

"You seem to be acquainted with the colonel, Miss Lisle."

"Fairly; but really I ought not to have spoken so shockingly about a very fine gentleman. He is quite engaging—but I detest that absurd idea about his strange umbrella."

"Umbrella? What umbrella, may I ask?" inquired Harry, puzzled at her remark.

"Why, have you never heard about the colonel's umbrella?"

"Never."

"Colonel Drake possesses a blue, old-fashioned umbrella which is supposed to be a very potent love-charm, or something like that. Plainly, so it is told, when he invites a lady to share its shelter against the rain, her heart is won forthwith. Strange, is it not?"

"Absurd! Have you ever——"

"No, not yet."

"I should not like you to accept its shelter ever—though I do not believe in such silliness," softly said Harry.

If she understood his meaning she was coy of acknowledgment, for, lifting her hand to his arm again, the pair resumed the stroll.

The next morning Harry Lancaster's heart sank when he looked from the window and saw the leaden clouds scurrying along the darkened sky.

When he entered the dining-room he saw that Miss Lisle's chair was vacant. Ah! the colonel's chair, too, was vacant! Over his coffee Harry made the resolve to make a break before night. He would ask her for that dainty white hand.

After breakfasting he went to the smoking-room and seated himself near a window overlooking the white stretch of sand, the curling waves and the foam-capped billows beyond.

Ah! A couple approached from the beach. The gentleman carried—a blue umbrella!

It was the colonel's blue umbrella; it was the colonel, but—who was the lady?

"Miss Lisle, by Heavens! Pshaw! I'm a fool to think there is anything strange about this. What do I care about that blue umbrella and its potent love charm?"

Two hours afterward, Edith Lisle blushed as Harry Lancaster asked her a question. She recovered quickly and said softly,—

"Mr. Lancaster, the potency of the blue umbrella is not a fiction. He is a charming gentleman, and—I always did like soldiers. I—I—thank you, and well—I simply said yes under the blue umbrella; and I hope we shall remain friends."

Mrs. Manycooks (severely): "Didn't I hear a man talking loudly with you in the kitchen just now Mary?"

Mary (complacently): "Oi hope so, ma'm, for thin Oi can call yes as a witness in a case av braich- av-promise suit, ma'm."

Baseball flourishes in the vicinity of Evona, now Clinton avenue, under the leadership of the Clinton Avenue Club, an organization of the young men living in that neighborhood. Last year the team won a number of games and met with general success. This year they started out again, this time equipped with uniforms. So far they have played two games, winning one and losing one. Both were played with the Dunellen team. The Clinton Avenue contingent won the first by a score of 27 to 8. Last Saturday they met again and Dunellen won 28 to 22. The winners scored 19 runs in one inning. Then Burt was put into the box and the Dunellenites scored no more. The Clinton avenue team has no game for tommorrow afternoon, but has several scheduled with the High School, the Berkley Heights team and others. The team includes several old college players and other members of the once famous champions of the city, the White Caps. Their grounds are located on South Second street, just east of Clinton avenue.

John MacLarty, who formerly pitched for the Plainfield Crescents, has now gone with the Westfield team and will open with them Saturday. He takes the place of his old rival, Higgins. Mac is anxious that the Westfields should meet the Crescents so that he might pay off his grudge by defeating them, but there is little chance that the clubs will meet. The Westfield team has not the strength to meet the Crescents and the Westfield management is well aware of the fact.

The Crescents will play as usual tomorrow afternoon at the Crescent Oval. The opposing team will be from the Oak Hill Field Club, of Brooklyn. The Brooklyn team is composed of young fellows who are on to all of the tricks of the game and are expected to make a strong stand against the home club. If the Crescents play the game they did last Saturday, however, the Oak Hill nine will have to do some hustling to get ahead of them.

An exciting game will be played on the Washington avenue grounds tomorrow afternoon between the Fourth Ward Athletic Club and a nine composed of the employes at the Pond Machine Tool Works. The game is called for 3:30 o'clock.

The Y. M. C. A. team has arranged a game for tomorrow with the C. R. R. team, composed of young men who work in the Jersey City and New York offices of the railroad. The game will be played on the Grant avenue grounds.

ROD AND GUN.

Julius Williams, of Elmwood place, together with some friends from New York, went fishing yesterday and they report having had great luck.

Daniel Ginna and Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, of Watchung avenue, returned from Lake Hopatcong last evening with a fine catch of pickerel and bass.

GOLF.

A. L. C. Marsh will draw the plans for the new clubhouse to be used by the Park Golf Club. The work of laying out the links will be started at once.

The progress being made on the new links of the Park Golf Club is most satisfactory, and the membership is rapidly filling up to the one hundredth mark. The new club gives promise of being one of the best in the State. It is expected that the grounds will be ready by July 4th.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

The management of the Central New Jersey Trotting Association is trying to make arrangement with the owner of "Marion Mills" for her appearance on both days between the heats at the race meet to be held here June 22d and 23d. "Marion Mills" is a pacer that goes the mile in about 2:04 without harness or driver. She is guided merely by the sound of the bell. Mr. Dwyer, of Lakewood, is now negotiating with the management with a view of bringing his running horses, high jumpers and pack of fox-hounds as a special feature for both days of the meet. Between the heats, he would give hurdle races, exhibitions of high jumping and a fox hunt over the trail of an annaise-seed bag. The pack of hounds includes thirty dogs.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Although Raymond A. McGee, of this city, is comparatively sure of securing his "Y" at Yale University, it is still uncertain whether he will be placed regularly on the Yale 'varsity crew. At one time McGee was considered sure of a place. Then he was taken from the boat and it was agreed that he would be a regular substitute to the crew which would entitle him to the coveted "Y." A week ago he was placed in the boat again and rowed as No. 4 until Wednesday when he was again taken out. There is still a chance that he will participate in the great intercollegiate race from Yale's shell.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Miss Tallamy, of West Front street, is riding a new wheel.

Miss Annie Fleming, of Grove street, and Arthur Wyckoff, of West Third street, are recent purchasers of Eldridge wheels. A. D. Clifton, of Morris avenue, is riding an Eldridge racer.

Want Building Ordinance Repealed.

A petition is being circulated asking the Common Council to repeal the building ordinance entire. It has already been signed by most of the builders of the city and many prominent citizens.

—Schloss, the shoe dealer, gives away a souvenir spoon tomorrow.

—The finance committee of the Y. M. C. A. will meet next Monday night at the home of S. F. Kimball, of Madison avenue.

—An entertainment was given in Bethel chapel last evening by the members of the Earnst Workers. The principal feature of the programme consisted of a drama entitled "Mother Nature and Her Children." There were also several vocal selections and recitations.

LOCAL HORSES TO MEET

OPENING DAY FOR THE PLAINFIELD DRIVING CLUB TOMORROW.

The Matinee Races at the Track On Park Avenue Will Begin Tomorrow and Will Be Held Every Saturday.

Tomorrow will be opening day for the Plainfield Driving Club at the track on Park avenue, when several matinee races will take place between the local flyers. To those not familiar with the amount of speed, high quality of both trotters and pacers owned in and around Plainfield, this, their first appearance for the season, will afford a grand opportunity to inspect and see them in motion.

While these matinees which are to occur weekly on Saturdays throughout the season are but friendly contests, they are as a rule fully as interesting as the great trotting and pacing races where large purses and stakes are competed for, as drivers and horses seem just as anxious to win and the best of feeling prevails among all. The public, or those interested in fine horses, are always welcome on Saturdays and the managers exercise their best judgment in providing an attractive programme to please all and endeavor to exclude or keep in check any element likely to mar the pleasure or in any way interfere with those who may choose to attend and enjoy the sport.

The Central New Jersey Driving Association, in forming which Plainfield took the initiative, is composed of the four county associations, Union, Somerset, Hunterdon and Middlesex. This association is backed and supported by the best class of citizens of each county and the home association, "The Plainfield Driving Club," numbers among its members many of Plainfield's most influential citizens who are prominent business men in both this city and New York.

The Central New Jersey Driving Association was formed for the purpose of improving the breed and the development of horses, and to establish and maintain a series of race meets in the counties mentioned, to be conducted in accordance with the wishes of the citizens upon an honest basis, thus adding another attractive and wholesome outdoor sport to those already established in our vicinity. The first meet will be held in this city June 22d and 23d, to be followed in the order named by Somerville, Flemington and New Brunswick.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood, of the Y. M. C. A., is visiting in Philadelphia.

Lawrence E. Bromfield, of 403 East Sixth street, Regent of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, is suffering with a severe attack of nervous prostration. He is now stopping for a short time at Asbury Park in the hope that he may soon regain his health and strength.

The Jail Wardenship.

The case of Charles W. Dodd vs. John C. Blore, over the wardenship of the Union county jail, came up before the Supreme Court at Trenton today. Lindabury, Depue & Fales for Mr. Blore, and C. A. Marsh for Mr. Dodd.

From the remarks made from the bench, it was thought by the lawyers present that Dodd would win, as the ground of the unconstitutionality of the old soldiers' act of 1897 as applied to county offices. This would sustain the opinion given by Mr. Marsh.

Wallace House Celebration.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, June 10.—There will be a celebration at the Wallace House on Friday of next week of the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill and the battle of Millstone. The Revolutionary Memorial Society are making arrangements for a most enjoyable event. Addresses will be made by Hon. Carlton T. Lewis and Mrs. Donald MacLean, and there will be music and a collation, which is being looked after by the Somerville ladies.

A New Store Building.

Charles Hand, the real estate dealer, has begun the erection of a building on the corner of Watchung avenue and East Second street, which will be used as a store building. The old house has not been moved away yet, but the cellar for the new erection has been begun.

In the Navy.

The friends of Charles S. Langdon, formerly of Ninth street, and later of New York, will be pleased to hear of his whereabouts. He is serving on the auxiliary cruiser Yankee as chief quartermaster.

No Agreement.

P. M. French has informed a Daily Press reporter that the Plainfield Street Railway Company has made no agreement with him to water any streets in the city.

Second Marriage Ceremony.

Patsey Christmas, the well known sewer contractor, who was married a month ago by Justice Mosher to Miss Rose Ceperelle, of Italy, went through the religious ceremony yesterday and was married again by Father Miller, of St. Joseph's church. Afterwards a reception was held at the home of Fortunato Margentino, of Park avenue, and a good time was had by all the friends and relatives of the two parties.

Will Probably be an Army Chaplain.

Rev. Arthur Crane, of Carlton avenue, will in all probability be the chaplain of a New Jersey volunteer regiment if this State is called upon to send another to the front. He applied for the position some time ago and is just in receipt of an answer from Governor Voorhees, who is a personal friend of Mr Crane. The Governor says that he will consider the application of Mr. Crane.

—There will be an auction sale of flowers at Peterson's green houses on Watchung avenue tomorrow afternoon.

Spalding $50. Crawford $50 & $35.

Now is the time to have your Wheel cleaned and put in order before the RUSH.

MUST HAVE TROOPS TO ASSIST WARSHIPS.

Sampson Cables Washington Asking For Prompt Action.

Sampson's Peport of Hobson's Exploit Highly Commends Hobson and His Companions—Suggests Reward—Second Expedition to Manila Sails Today—Rainy Season Begins.

THE LATEST.

Three O'Clock.

WANT PROMPT ACTION.

Sampson Needs the Promised Troops to Hold Ground Won.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 11, 12:56 p. m—The operations against Cuba are still suspended while the warships that were to convoy the transports to Cuba are chasing the supposed Spanish ships about the gulf.

The officials of the War Department are indignant at what they term the timidity of the officials of the Navy Department.

Secretary Long, of the Navy Department, says, however, that the convoys will return in time to start with the expedition tomorrow.

The first part of the second expedition to the relief of Rear Admiral Dewey at Manila will start today.

Rear Admiral Sampson sent a long cipher despatch from Port Antonio this morning to the War Department which is said to contain news of the utmost importance.

It is known that the delay in sending troops to assist Sampson in holding the grounds gained by the bombardments at Santiago and adjacent points has greatly irritated the Admiral.

The message is supposed to deal with this phase of the situation and urges upon the department the expediency of immediate action.

The newest plan of the Administration, which contemplates the holding of the transport ships in the vicinity of Key West until Monday, does not meet with Sampson's approval.

He wants the transports sent immediately so that he will not have to reduce the fortifications one day only to have the work to do over again because of lack of troops.

PRAISE FOR HOBSON.

Rear Admiral Sampson Speaks Very Highly of Hobson and His Companions.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 11, 1:22 p. m.—In his report on the sinking of the collier Merrimac in the channel to the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, Rear Admiral Sampson says:

"I cannot too earnestly express my appreciation of the conduct of Mr. Hobson and his gallant crew in their venture and say that a more brave and daring thing has not been done since Cushing blew up the ram Albemarle.

"I am sure you will offer suitable professional reward to Mr. Hobson and his companions."

"I must add that Commander Miller relinquished the command of the Merrimac with the greatest reluctance, believing that he should retain his command under all circumstances.

"He was finally convinced that the person to carry out the multitude of details which had been under preparation by Mr. Hobson, might endanger the proper execution of the expedition.

"There were hundreds of volunteers anxious to participate in it. There were 160 from the Iowa and nearly as many from this ship. There were large numbers from the other ships, officers and men alike volunteering."

RAINY SEASON BEGUN.

Excellent Reports From Key West as to Health of Army.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Key West, June 11, 12:32 p. m.—The wet season began last night. The showers refreshed everybody and everything.

This morning's advices from Cuba and the blockading fleet report that the health of the sailors on the fleet remains satisfactory.

There are only 48 cases, one of which is serious, in the four hospitals here at the present time.

NO DELAY IN TROLLEY.

Brunswick Company Feel Sure of No County Interference.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, June 11.—Officers of the Brunswick Traction Company, of New Brunswick, when questioned yesterday in regard to a rumor that the proposed extension of their line from Bound Brook to Dunellen and from Bound Brook to Somerville had been blocked by the refusal of the Freeholders of Middlesex and Somerset counties to allow them to lay their tracks over several of the small bridges along the route, said the extension would be made at once, the company having already given out contracts. The company has received the permission from the townships. It is necessary to secure the consent of the county to cross county bridges or culverts. The company agreeing to widen and strengthen the bridges, expects to get consent.

Closing of Primary Department.

The closing exercises of the Kindergarten connected with Miss Scribner and Miss Green's school were held yesterday morning. They consisted of songs and games and French songs and were conducted by the teachers, Miss Fuller and Miss Hellwig. Miss Hellwig has severed her connection with the Kindergarten, by mutual consent, but will continue to teach French and German in the school.

Miss Conklin's Bad Fall.

Miss Mary A. Conklin, daughter of S. C. Conklin, of 134 West Front street, fell from her wheel yesterday and broke her arm in two places. Dr. Probasco was summoned, and took her home in a carriage. The doctor considers the injuries serious.

NEW HOME FOR THE YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB.

Formally Opened Yesterday Afternoon by the Patrons.

RECEPTION AND MUSICALE.

PLEASANT AND CONVENIENT SURROUNDINGS NOW PREVAIL.

New Home is Situated on Madison Avenue in the Old Methodist Church Parsonage—The Programme and Those Who Had Charge.

The Young Women's Home, on Madison avenue, was opened yesterday afternoon by an informal tea and musicale, which was attended by a fair representation of Plainfield ladies who are interested in works of charity.

The new home is situated on Madison avenue in what formerly was the old Methodist church parsonage. The quarters of the home were originally on the corner of Watchung avenue and Fifth street, where acoommodations amply large were at first secured. But with the growth of the club and the interest taken in the work by the King's Daughters, of this city, more room was needed.

The attention of the ladies was called to this vacant house, and it was rented. The house contains eight good sized room, is comfortable and centrally situated in that part of the city which is convenient to all its patrons. The rooms are not yet completely furnished and donations of articles of furniture, especially bedroom suites, will be thankfully received.

The rooms are used by the young women every day. Classes in dressmaking, millinery and general education have been established, and much interest is shown in the work by the young women who attend. With careful instructors, such as they have, the results cannot help but be good.

The exercises yesterday afternoon were of an informal nature. Fourteen hundred invitations had been issued to the ladies of the city, and the attendance was large. The hours of the opening were from 3 till 6, and during that time people were coming and going continuously. As they entered the door they were confronted by a salver on which reposed pieces of silver as a polite hint that such offerings were acceptable.

A committee of ladies, Mrs. J. K. Myers, Mrs. L. H. Biglow, Mrs. Stover, Miss Oakley, Miss May Clawson and Miss Eastman, received the guests and directed them to the room on the right where Mrs. M. I. Cooley and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen poured tea.

A programme consisting of recitations by Miss Mary Lucky, violin seselections by Miss Margaret Burnette, accompanied by her sister, Miss Clyde Burnette; vocal solos by Mrs. Ward, the contralto soloist of the First Baptist choir, accompanied by Howard Case, and songs by a lady quartette, composed of Mrs. J. K. Myers, Mrs. Frank Clawson, Mrs. W. L. Saunders and Mrs. Robert Lowry, made up the affair.

The guests were given an opportunity to look over the house, and many availed themselves of this privilege. A reading room has been established, containing on its tables copies of the daily papers of this city, besides magazines, books and pamphlets of all descriptions. Games, too, are provided, and any innocent forms of amusement are encouraged. The patrons of the home, situated as it now is, feel assured that its work will be more successful as the weeks go by, and the interest that is shown in the work by the young ladies of the city, points to enlarged opportunities of work in the future.

No Reflection on Mr. Spencer.

The exceptions filed to the accounts of H. Newton Spencer as administrators of the Miles estate do not reflect upon Mr. Spencer in any way. Craig A. Marsh, the counsel, who filed the exceptions, informs The Press that Mr. Spencer has accurately accounted for every dollar, and that the fight is between two of the heirs.

Heard About Mission Work.

The Endeavorers of the Park Avenue Baptist church listened to a talk by W. B. Hamilton, of Elizabeth, last night. Mr. Hamilton is engaged in mission work in that city, and told something about his experiences in the mission field. A quartette sang twice.

A Latin Scholar.

Ralph Campbell, of Madison avenue, who graduated from the University of New York on Thursday evening received honorable mention in the Latin contest. He also received a cash prize from his fraternity, Zeta Psi, for general excellence during the four years.

MORE TROOPS WANTED.

RECRUITS NEEDED TO PUT JERSEY REGIMENTS ON WAR FOOTING.

The Companies Are to Be Increased From 83 Men to 106 Men—Recruiting Offices Opened Throughout State.

The sight of a captain of the New Jersey volunteers in fatigue uniform on the streets of Plainfield this morning resulted in a decided increase in the martial spirit. With his appearance came the announcement that all the Jersey regiments were being recruited to a war footing and that there was a chance for such Plainfielders who wanted to go to war if they made known their intention without delay.

The Jersey regiments have all been organized on a peace footing as when they were part of the militia, that is, with 83 men, including officers in each company. The war standing is 106 men in each company. Orders have been issued to all the regiments to enlist sufficient men to bring their number up to the war footing and no time is being lost in doing so.

The First Regiment is now working in Newark where recruiting offices were opened this morning. There were many visitors there and a number of men gave their names.

A detail of the Second Regiment was active in Paterson, where the regiment came from. Offices are to be opened there at once.

The Third Regiment has started preparations to recruit its ranks to the required limit without delay. Recruiting offices were opened this morning at Elizabeth, Somerville, New Brunswick, Asbury Park and Long Branch.

Captain C. W. Irwin, of the regimental staff, came to Plainfield this morning and called at The Press office. He inserted an advertisement asking for recruits which will be found in another column. No recruiting office will be open in Plainfield. Instead, all Plainfielders who want to fight for their country as members of the Third Regiment are requested to apply at the office in Elizabeth, 134 Broad street. Captain N. V. Compton, formerly regimental pay-master, is recruiting officer there. The office will be open between the hours of 9:30 and 12 o'clock in the morning, and 2 6 o'clock in the afternoon. Companies C and E will be recruited in Elizabeth.

A recruiting office is also to be opened in Somerville under the charge of Captain Cook, of Company H, who was detained at home by illness. The necessary twenty-three men to complete the ranks of Company H will be secured there.

Captain Irwin says that the new men are wanted at once. If those who want to go will apply at Elizabeth without delay, they will be able to get in, he says, but there will be no chance if they put it off for several days. He expects no difficulty in securing the number of men necessary.

COLORED PARSON COULDN'T PAY.

Rev. M. E. Hall Failed to Return a Loan to a Lawyer.

Rev. M. E. Hall, of West Front street, a colored Methodist preacher, is minus a silver hunting case watch, which he has been carrying. The watch is in the possession of Lawyer J. P. D. Kirch, of Park avenue, who holds it as security for the payment of a $3 loan, which Mr. Kirch advanced to the preacher so as to enable him to secure a lot of books, "Stories of Cuba," which he has been selling recently.

Mr. Kirch wanted his money back, and claims that Hall wouldn't pay it, so yesterday afternoon he had a warrant made out by Justice Mosher, and sent Constable Rockafellow after the delinquent preacher.

The dominie told a pitiful tale of how his wife and children were in need of food and clothing, and also said that he couldn't get cash for his books, but had to let the money stand. A settlement was finally effected between the two, and Hall left his watch as security for the payment of the money which he promised to do in a few days.

Approaching Marriage.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Emma Kirch, of Springdale, Somerset County, to Charles A. Haring, of this city. The wedding is to take place at the home of the bride Tuesday evening. Attorney J. P. D. Kirch, of Somerset street will be the best man. The young married couple will live on West Front street.

Special Service in New Faith Chapel.

The meetings held during the past week in Faith chapel have been largely attended and there have been several professions of faith in Christ. Rev. Arthur Crane will speak tomorrow evening. Song service at 7:45.

—The large trees surrounding the home of Berry Egan, of West Seventh street, have been cut down.

A DASTARDLY OFFENSE.

DRUNKEN MAN TRIED TO COMMIT RAPE ON A YOUNG GIRL.

Hank Southard the Guilty One—Mr. Heiner Interfered and Made a Complaint to Justice Nash—Southard in Jail.

"Hank" Southard, while in an intoxicated condition this forenoon, attempted to commit rape on Rose Honney, a young girl, but he was prevented by Mr. Heiner, of West Second street.

The little girl was playing in the vicinity of the Mt. Zion A. M. E church, on West Fourth street, when Southard came along. He tried to coax the girl into the church, but she refused. He finallally got the girl acoss the street to "Battle Row," which was recently burned. Mr. Heiner saw Southard with the little girl while he was in a barber shop getting his hair cut, and thinking that something was wrong, he followed the two. When he reached the dilapidated building he found Southard trying to commit the heinous crime.

The little girl's clothing was torn and she was greatly frightened. Heiner took charge of the girl and Southard, and with the assistance of a special officer the latter was brought to Justice Nash's office, where a complaint was made out against him by Heiner. Southard was locked up and will be held until Monday for trial.

The little girl, altnough greatly frightened, is so young that she did not realize the gravity of Southard's act. A few years ago a similar incident occurred in this city, and the offender was sent to State Prison for fifteen years.

AT WILDERNESS LODGE.

CHURCH OF REDEEMER WOMEN STILL PLANNING TO RAISE MONEY.

Festival and Musicale to be Held at the Home of Mrs. J. O. Stevens Next Wednesday—Those Who Will Take Part.

Instead of resting on their laurels, after the unparalled success of their thousand dollar fair, the ladies of the Church of the Redeemer seem rather to be inspired to further efforts, for they propose to hold a strawberry festival and cake sale next Wednesday, from 4 to 11 o'clock. The festival is to be held at Wilderness Lodge, the residence of J. O. Stevens, of Clinton avenue, and will be in charge of the social and entertainment committee of the Guild of the Church of the Redeemer, of which Mrs. Stevens is an active member.

The grounds will be decorated and tables and booths arranged with the same taste which characterized all the arrangements of the recent fair. A light tea will be seived in the house for those who wish to come early and stay late. The special feature of the evening will be the half-hour musicales, of which a series will be given in the parlor, beginning at 8 o'clock. A programme of unusual variety has been arranged by Walter A. Hudson and George O. Stevens, including numbers by the cream of Plainfield's entertainers, as well as an attractive addition by out-of-town talent. Among those who will contribute to the evening's enjoyment are Fletcher Hallock, Wm. N. Runyon, Alfred Holmes and George Stevens, besides the Misses Burnett, of Madison avenue, and two nieces of Mr. Stevens, and Miss Miller and Miss Kingsland, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., who have already made many friends in this city.

The proceeds of the festival are to go towards the building fund of the Church of the Redeemer.

Profits of a Festival.

The strawberry festival of the Whatsoever Circle of the Kings Daughters of Trinity Reformed church was continued yesterday afternoon and evening in the lecture of the church. The attendance was not what it should have been. During the evening, W. C. Townsend rendered several excellent mandolin solos, accompanied by Harry Stewart on the piano. The gross receipts were large but the expenses will be considerable so that the Circle wi not make as large profits as they are justly entitled to.

A School Entertainment.

The concert for which the members of the Franklin school have been preparing is to be given in their school building Monday evening next. The dainty and attractive costumes from original designs, and the bright happy faces and graceful movements of the children combined with the finely rendered music for which our public schools, under the leadership of Mr. Lewis, are gaining so enviable a reputation, promise to make the entertainment one of an unusually pleasing character.

—Shakespeare Club went on their annual picnic this morning to Black River Glen.

IN AID OF A NEW CHURCH

MISSIONNRY MASS MEETING UNDER REV. W. B. G. COSTOR.

Collection Used to Help Pay for the House of Worship—An Address by Bishop Waters—Girl Evangelist Absent.

Rev. W. B. G. Costor, the New pastor of St. Peter's A. M. E. Zion church, has a vigorous way of introducing himself to the Plainfield public. He arranged for a missionary mass meeting which was held in the Pierce Cycle Academy last night, and attended by a number of prominent white people of this city, as well as a number of distinguished clergymen of the colored race.

The meeting began yesterday afternoon and lasted until late at night. The afternoon service was participated in by Rev. J. C. Temple, of Jersey City; Rev. E. M. Stanton, of Newark, and Rev. M. M. Edmonson, of Somerville.

The evening service was presided over by Rt. Rev. Alexander Walters, presiding Bishop of the New Jersey Conference of the A. M. E. church. Prayer was offered by Rev. M. M. Edmonson, of Somerville, and a solo sung by Mrs. Evelyn Costor Smith, of Newark. A recitation was given by Miss Ada Harrison, of Newark, and then the pastor of St. Peter's church, Rev. Mr. Costor, introduced Rev. J. C. Temple, of Jersey City, who made a stirring address.

This was followed by another solo by Mrs. Smith, a daughter of the new pastor.

The address of the evening was made by Bishop Walters. The Bishop has belted the world, and is one of the two colored trustees of the United Christian Endeavor Society.

The collection amounted to $74.66, of which $61 was paid to Counselor McClure this morning as part of the purchase money for the Filmore Avenue church, where St. Peter's Society is located. The finance committee consists of former Councilman Leonard Spangenberg, Rev. E. M. Stanton and Rev. J. C. Temple.

Isabella Horton, the child evangelist, was not able to be present last night, but will speak tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at St. Peter's church. The new pastor is a G. A. R. man, an Odd Fellow and a Freemason, and will no doubt make a success. He is a graduate of Paulquimm College, Waco, Texas.

STREET ALTERATIONS.

Borough Improvements Made Under Direction of Engineer Hubbard.

The street department of North Plainfield, under the direction of Borough Engineer Frank J. Hubbard, is making some needed alterations on Westervelt avenue. Beyond Fairview avenue that thoroughfare has heretofore been very poorly drained. The water has laid in the gutters, making many bad mud holes. That portion of the street is now being graded.

Westervelt avenue, between Fairview and Grandview avenues, was in excess of the width as provided by the ordinance. This is to be narrowed and the space taken from the roadway will be converted into lawns connect the sidewalk and the curb, after fashion of LaGrande avenue in the city. If the residents keep these in good order the result will be a great improvement in the appearance of that section.

The Horse was Startled.

As Charles Bilyeu, one of the drivers for Hoagland, the expressman, was putting the hames on a delivery horse in front of the North avenue office last evening, the animal suddenly bolted and ran up on the sidewalk, knocking Bilyeu over, and throwihg himself on the sidewalk. The horse had to be unharnessed.

Relief Corps' Annual Convention.

At a meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps held last evening arrangements for the members to attend their annual convention at Long Branch June 23d were completed. No doubt nearly all of the members will accompany the members of Post No. 73, who will hold their annual encampment at the same time and place.

More Signs of a Station

Employees of the Central Railroad Company started work this morning to take up the side track which runs to Morgan Bird's mill on Fourth street. It now looks as though the company intends to erect a station on that side of the track before long.

A Summer Charge.

Rev. A. Ernest Crane has received a call to toke charge of the Baptist church at Hinton, W. Va., during the summer months. He leaves for his field of labor next week.

FOUGHT WITH DEATH IN A SHADOWY POOL.

Theodore Herrmann Drowned Yesterday While in Bathing.

AID ARRIVED TOO LATE.

HIS STRUGGLES WERE NOT SEEN UNTIL HE SANK FOR THE LAST TIME.

Had Been Assisting His Brother, John Herrmann, in Building the Latter's Factory on Somerset Street—First Seen By Painter George Collins.

It was cool and shady in the gap through which Stony brook passes to the first range of the Watchung Mountains. Never did it look prettier with the verdant dress of Spring than in the soft light of the declining day late yesterday afternoon. But the Angel of Death was near. There is a deep and quiet pool by the ruins of the old Coddington dam, where Theodore Herrmann struggled and fought all alone until the water closed over his head and he sank for the last time Just the circumstances that led to his death by drowning no one will ever know.

George Collins has been employed for several days painting a house near Washingtouville. He was assisted by Edward Keller. When they came home from work Thursday evening they notised a crowd of half grown lads disporting themselves in the water in the pool, just below the old Coddington mill dam. The pool is about fifteen feet in width and is thirty feet long. It was formed by the overflow of the water over the dam before it was washed away in the great freshet of seven years ago. The sides of the pool were steep and it was ten feet in depth.

Yesterday afternoon Collins and Keller finished their work shortly before 5 o'clock. Then they started home afoot by Somerset street. As they reached a point on the roadway just above the site of the old dam, the shady pool was visible. Collins looked over and saw something moving about the surface of the water. As he came nearer, he saw that it was the top of a man's head, and it kept whirling round and round. He remembered the boys he had seen swimming there the afternoon before and supposed that one of them was trying some trick in the water. There was something about it, however, that gave him the idea that all was not right.

Two Italians were busy close by with a horse and cart, carting earth for the erection of a small dam. John Herrmann, the stair builder, was building a stair and sash and blind factory near the site of the old ice house and a small dam and raceway was being erected to furnish water power for the factory.

"There's a boy drowning over there," shouted Collins at the laborers. They looked up but continued their work without paying any more attention. The head continued to whirl about the pond but the face remained under water. There were signs of a struggle. Collins had made up his mind that something was the matter and ran down the embankment to the pool.

"There's a boy drowning there, I tell you," he again called to the Italians.

"'Taint a boy, it's the boss," replied one of the laborers who now saw that something was the matter.

Slowly the head disappeared beneath the surface, there was a ripple, a few bubbles rose through the dark waters and then all was still.

Horror-stricken at what they had seen, the men gathered on the bank and conversed in whispers as to what was to be done. None of them could swim and there was no rope or long pole handy. Then one of the laborers started down Somerset street on the run.

Samuel Moore, of Jackson avenue, was at work during the afternoon in getting out a quantity of stone and loading it into his wagon, on Somerset street, just above the bridge that leads to the Brookside Sanitarium. He was assisted by Arthur J. Swick, a young man formerly employed in a Somerset street blacksmith shop. They were at work when an Italian dashed up breathless.

"In pool, in pool," he gasped, and gesticulated wildly pointing in the direction whence he had come. Divining that there was trouble somewhere, Moore ordered his assistant to jump on the wagon, and together they drove hurriedly to where the Italian had pointed. There were the men gathered on the bank, gazing down

PLANS FOR INVASION

Forces Will Be Divided After Taking Santiago.

SHAFTER HAS 27,000 MEN

A Part Expected to Go to Help the Porto Rico Expedition—A Combined Movement Later on Havana With Seasoned Troops—The Army and Navy at Odds Over the Responsibility for Delay.

Washington, June 11.—The general understanding here is that General Shafter's force of 27,000 men, after taking Santiago de Cuba, will be divided. One part, probably numbering 15,000 or 17,000, will remain at Santiago to set things in order, attend the removal of the prisoners of war, and establish a provisional government under the United States flag. The remainder of the troops, by the latter part of next week, if all goes as well as expected, will be ready for transportation to Ponce, on the southern coast of Porto Rico. The positive date of their departure for that point will be determined by the readiness of General Coppinger's force to start for San Juan.

The campaign in Porto Rico will then take a double phase. At San Juan there will be a simultaneous attack by land and sea, the troops being landed at an undefended point a few miles distant, from which they can get around to the south of the city, while the remnant of the Shafter expedition, marching by a good military road about seventy-five miles long from Ponce to San Juan, will cut the island in two and form a junction with the force already investing the city.

Porto Rico is expected to fall an easy victim to our arms. It is thought that the campaign there will have the effect not only of disheartening Spain, but of seasoning our own soldiers and getting them ready for striking the last great blow of the war, when the combined movement is made against Havana. The volunteers who have helped to capture Santiago and Porto Rico will be trained down to something like the condition of regulars by that time, and the raw men still in camp at Chickamauga and the Gulf points can be brought over and used merely as reserves.

GEN. SHAFTER
Commander of Cuban Invading Army.

The army and navy are decidedly at odds over the question, Which is to blame for the present stagnation in the Cuban campaign? Sympathy here is almost wholly with the navy, which has thus far accomplished practically all it has set out to do, and whose work has now come to a stand still through lack of support by a land force. On the other hand the army insists that as soon as a land force could be got ready it was shipped, but that the navy was not ready to afford the necessary escort to protect the transports from some much dreaded Spanish ships, which are reported as cruising about in West Indian waters. The navy retorts that it is ready, and has been ready at any time, to furnish the necessary escort, that he embarkation of soldiers was premature and done to quiet popular criticism, and that the real cause of the delay, to cover which the "phantom" Spanish fleet was conjured up, was the army's lack of readiness for making the actual start.

The cabinet did nothing yesterday toward settling the vexed question of responsibility or helping either party to the controversy to make its own case good. The secretary of the navy withdrew from the meeting at a very early hour and drove home. The next to leave was the secretary of state, and the others separated and drifted apart at about the usual hour.

No Officer Allowed to Tamper With Mail.

Washington, June 11.—Postmaster General Emory Smith states that all reports indicating that postoffice inspectors or other officials have been detailed or authorized to open letters within the mails are untrue and misleading.

The privacy of the mails at no time, under any condition of circumstances, anywhere, will be invaded during the war.

All mail properly addressed, and upon which sufficient postage is paid, will be delivered to the addressee as expeditiously and scrupulously as it has ever been.

We Should Strike in Spain.

London, June 11.—The St, James Gazette yesterday published a long editorial pointing out the hopelessness of any further Spanish resistance and suggests the Americans seek a settlement of the Cuban question in Spain. It says:

"There is no need of an invasion, but the mere presence of a strong armament, which the Spanish navy could not drive off, on the coast would produce a tremendous effect and there are numerous unfortified anchorages where the ships might coal."

Baiquiri Bombarded.

Havana, June 11.—Several American warships yesterday bombarded Baiquiri, twenty miles east of Santiago, near the railway line to the city of Santiago. Official advices from Santiago say that the bombardment "caused no damage."

HURRY ORDERS GIVEN.

Gen. Merritt Has Received Word to Hasten Second Manila Expedition.

San Francisco, June 11.—General Merritt has received orders from Washington to rush all work pertaining to the sending of the second transport fleet to the Philippines. A detail of Nebraska troops has taken charge of the steamer Morgan City. Provisions and ammunition have been ordered on board the China, Colon and Zealandia. Orders on the Zealandia were for her to sail to-day, but it does not seem possible for her to get away so soon. There has been no date set for the sailing of the other transports that can be relied on as definite. The steamers Senator, City of Pueblo, and the Queen will soon be made ready to receive troops.

The Iowa volunteers reached the city yesterday. While passing through the desert in Nevada a car containing soldiers from Iowa caught fire, and the soldiers lost all their clothing. Several of them were quite badly burned about the head. Colonel McClure, chief paymaster, has been instructed to pay off up to July 1 all the troops now concentrated here as soon as possible. This will require the expenditure of $940,000.

General Otis has ordered the Idaho volunteers to join the second Manila expedition, which will sail in a few days. A corps of engineers will also be added to the expeditionary force.

At a dinner given by Mayor Phelan to Major General Merritt at the Pacific Union club, a number of prominent citizens were present. In responding to a toast in his honor, General Merritt said that the success of the American troops in the Philippines could not be doubted. He thought that the territory acquired by the United States by right of conquest should not be relinquished. What the navy had won the army would hold. He closed by saying:

"I believe in the new national policy of the United States, which looks to the acquisition of additional territory, represented in outlying islands that are requisite for the development of national strength and growth."

His sentiments were heartily applauded.

THE PRESIDENT WILL APPROVE.

The First Bond Issue Will Probably Be for About 50,000,000.

Washington, June 11.—A considerable part of the time of the cabinet meeting yesterday was devoted to an informal talk about the contest in Congress over the war revenue bill. The general opinion seemed to be that the final disposition made of the seigniorage question in conference reduced the threatened evils to a minimum, and that in its present shape there was nothing in the bill which need cause the president to withhold his approval. He will sign it, therefore, as soon as the engrossed copy reaches him, and he has time to read it through. Secretary Gage has in the meantime prepared in advance for the issue of the first loan under it, which will be put out at once. It is understood here that the amount of this issue will be only from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000, possibly fifty in bonds and ten in certificates, so as to avoid, as far as possible, a disturbance of the money market or any appreciable effect upon stocks. The signing of the bill and the issue of the loan circular will probably all be compassed within twenty-four hours.

Situation at Santiago.

Jamaica, June 11.—In Santiago de Cuba there are now about 20,000 Spanish soldiers, chiefly infantry, with a fair contingent of cavalry and field artillery, drawn from the surrounding country. During the day time the cavalry skirmish in the vicinity of the city, returning at night to the barracks. In the last few days the activity of the Spaniards has been particularly noticeable. Oxen trains have been making their way to the batteries, detachments have been working on emplacements, and there have been other signs showing that the Spaniards are preparing a desperate resistance.

Some guns from Admiral Cervera's ships may be removed to the forts. The insurgents, about 5,000 strong, have taken a position on a mountain to the westward. Two thousand insurgents of this gathering are unarmed. General Maximo Gomez, now about 150 miles inland, is making his way toward the coast. Rear Admiral Sampson is actively co-operating with the insurgents.

A TORPEDO EXPLOSION.

Three Men Killed and Lieut. Harts Wounded Near Jacksonville.

Chicago, June 11.—A dispatch to the News from Jacksonville, Fla., says: "A torpedo in the St. Johns river at St. John's Bluff, eighteen miles below Jacksonville, exploded yesterday, killing three men and badly wounding Lieutenant William W. Harts of the United States Engineer Corps, in charge of the work of fortifying the river at that point. One of the killed was John O'Rourke, an electrician at Jacksonville, who was at work with a force of men wiring the torpedoes placed in the river. How the accident occurred is not known."

More Troops for Merritt.

Washington, June 11.—Orders have been issued for Batteries B, H, K and L of the Third Artillery, now at the Presidio of San Francisco, to join the command of General Merritt for duty in the Philippines. Light Batteries D and O from the Sixth Artillery, stationed at Washington barracks and Fort Myer, Va., will leave Tuesday for San Francisco.

Austria Refuses to Mediate.

Vienna, June 11.—The government has declined to initiate mediation between the United States and Spain, as it wishes to avoid the appearance of making intervention seem only a dynastic action in the interest of the queen regent, which, perhaps, might give fatal offense.

To Vote Wednesday.

Washington, June 11.—The Hawaiian annexation resolution was yesterday taken up in the House of Representatives and unanimous consent was obtained for an agreement by which the debate is to continue until Wednesday evening, at 5 o'clock, when the vote is to be taken.

A FORMIDABLE FLEET

Battleship Indiana and 15 Others Staunch and Strong

WILL GUARD TRANSPORTS

The Battleship Indiana, Flagship of the Squadron—Why This Course Was Determined Upon.—The Fleet at Port Tampa—Many Transports Hired—None of the Other Squadrons Will Be At All Weakened.

Washington, June 11.—Another formidable American fleet has been assembled, consisting of sixteen warships of various classes, headed by the big battleship Indiana, which for all-around effectiveness stands at the head of the navy. This fleet is at Port Tampa, and is to convoy the troop of transports from that point. The formation of this formidable convoy squadron is due to the reports, more or less indefinite, that Spanish warships are lurking between Florida and Cuba, with a view of intercepting the troop transports. The navy department has not given serious credit to these reports, yet they were more or less circumstantial. In order to avoid the slightest possibility of a dash by some Spanish ships against the troop transports, the assembling of the sixteen warships was determined upon.

Whether this action was ordered from Washington, or was due to the precautionary measures of the officials in command in the South, is not disclosed. It is known only that Commodore Remey, commander of the naval base at Key West, has brought together the convoys. The fleet is strong enough, both in number of ships and size of individual ships and armament, to cope with any Spanish vessels that may be at large in the West Indies, and it eliminates any possible danger that might attend the transportation of the army of invasion to Cuba.

Captain Taylor, who commands the Indiana, is available as commander of this squadron, although it is not disclosed definitely who will be its chief. Commodore Watson is with the blockading fleet off Havana and cannot well be spared from that position, which will be maintained efficiently, notwithstanding the drafts made to create this large convoy squadron. Captain Taylor is regarded as one of the most judicious and capable officers in the service, and should the squadron command fall on him, it is felt here that it will be in able hands.

The Indiana probably will be the flagship of the convoy squadron. There likely will be other battleships, but it is not deemed advisable, for prudential reasons, to give the full list of the ships in detail. The Indiana is considered one of the most formidable warships afloat. She has a displacement of 10,288 tons, and has a main battery of sixteen large guns, besides many smaller rapid fire and machine guns in her secondary battery. Her largest guns are of the 13-inch class, four in number, mounted in turrets, two forward and two aft.

The desirability of forming this fleet was suggested by the information, coming through official channels, that Spanish ships left Barcelona some days ago, bound for Cuban waters. This information came to the state department. It was to the effect that the ships included three Spanish warships and one transport. The information was regarded as trustworthy. It was communicated to the navy department and led to careful consideration. A little later came the reports from the ships off Florida that strange vessels, with military tops, had been seen in the offing. These reports were received with some credulity, but naval officers were disposed to dismiss them as myths. They were treated lightly, and some officials spoke of the matter as another case of "phantom ships." But the better advised ones, knowing of the reports as to the sailing of Spanish ships from Barcelona, looked upon the matter as one which should not be dismissed too lightly. A single troop transport, carrying no armor, might be at the mercy of some strange Spanish ship, and there was no purpose to hazard the lives of 1,500 men on any of our ships, when reports came from two widely separated sources, one of them quite in detail, of the approach of Spanish ships.

Rear Admiral Sampson will still have ten or more ships, including the formidable battleships Iowa, Texas, Massachusetts and Oregon, and the armored cruisers New York and Brooklyn. The blockading squadron will continue to have twelve or more ships, including the four big monitors, Puritan, Terror, Amphitrite and Miantonomoh.

Besides the fleet of sixteen convoy vessels, there will be from thirty to fifty transport ships, making in all a remarkable flotilla of transports and naval convoys.

The war department yesterday gave out an official list of the transport ships thus far hired, in order to clear up erroneous reports. The list shows fifty ships chartered along the Atlantic coast and ten on the Pacific. Those along the Atlantic will be used in the main for embarking troops from Florida, and those on the Pacific for the troops going to Manila.

Big Diamond Imports.

Washington, D. C., June 11.—A report from the collector of customs at New York shows that the imports of diamonds at that port during the period from January 1 to April 30, 1898, amounted to $2,085,435, as compared with $241,175 for the same period in 1897. This enormous increase of nearly 900 per cent. is said to be almost entirely due to the reduction of the customs duty, which has operated to prevent smuggling.

An Attempt to Rob a Train.

Dallas, Tex., June 11.—Reports were received by the Santa Fe officers in Dallas yesterday that four train robbers attempted to hold up an express train on the Lampasas division on Thursday night. A fight ensued between the trainmen and the bandits, in which one of the latter was shot, and Johnson, a fireman, was killed. The Santa Fe officials declare that the robbers got no money.

MOVEMENTS AT CHICKAMAUGA

Many Regiments Ready to Move to the Front.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 11.—Every indication now points to the fact that several regiments from Chickamauga will soon be moved to Tampa. The Fourteenth New York will be among the first to go. Owing to the fact that almost every regiment is short its quota of men, the orders for the several regiments to move will probably not be received for some days yet.

The railroads entering the city are under orders to have all their empty cars assemble here as quickly as possible, and be in readiness to move the troops. Additional army corps to be mobilized here will be located on Missionary Ridge near Green's lake. This has been officially given out. General Brooke has announced that over 100,000 men will be encamped at Chickamauga within a very short time and the number may run to 125,000.

A grand review will certainly take place on July 4. General Brooke has so informed a committee of gentlemen from the chamber of commerce, and that body has extended a formal invitation to President McKinley to be present and review the army. General Brooke believes that the president will accept the invitation and come. The temperature went to 96 at Camp Thomas yesterday and bids fair to go still higher to-day.

The regiments which are thoroughly equipped and ready to move are the Eighth, Ninth, Twelfth and Fourteenth New York, First Pennsylvania, Eighth Massachusetts, Fourth and Sixteenth Pennsylvania of the Ohio Cavalry and Griggs's rough riders. The commands are not equipped up to the mark, but the recruiting work could be finished at Tampa. Lieutenant Colonel Richards, who has been chief aide on General Brooke's staff for some time, has been assigned permanently as assistant adjutant general on the staff of General James H. Wilson, who is to command the Sixth Corps when organized.

Colonel Richards succeeds Lieutenant Colonel W. E. Elder, who takes command of the Fourteenth New York.

There are now about a score of patients in the new Leiter hospital and more are being sent in. This hospital is complete in every way. The new postoffice at Lytle, a rough, but commodious building, is being rushed through, and probably will be completed by to-night. It is estimated that 175,000 letters, besides thousands of packages, are handled daily at the Lytle office. Thirteen men work from 6 a. m. to 11 p. m., distributing mail. The force will be increased next week. Rations, supplies and equipments continue to pour in. Nearly all the volunteers are uniformed and the work of equipping them goes steadily on. There is no complaint about rations, all the men seeming satisfied.

A Chicago firm furnishes the army with forty thousand pounds of fresh beef daily.

Major Russell Harrison of the inspector general's department, who spent Thursday at the park, left at night for Tampa, where he will remain some time.

DUN'S WEEKLY REPORT.

The Victory at Santiago Causes a More Confident Tone in the Market.

New York, June 11.—The nation has been thrilled during the past week by the heroic action of Hobson and his associates, and the certainty that the Spanish Atlantic fleet is imprisoned and powerless to do harm has helped to make the tone of markets more confident. Every step of progress during the week which has looked toward an early termination of the struggle has been reflected in the market and in lower rates for money. All industries have felt the uplifting influence. The cotton manufacture has been more embarrassed than any other, owing to causes not connected with the war, but has found larger demand for goods and higher prices for print cloths in a general conviction that the point of difficulty has passed.

The exports of merchandise from New York during the past week have exceeded those for the corresponding week last year by 40.0 per cent. This means another heavy excess of exports over imports, as the imports have fallen 28 per cent. below those of last year, and the balance would be about $40,000,000 for the month if the returns should continue to show a like difference.

Men talk as if wheat had gone down out of sight, but the collapse of May speculation has only made it more evident that the outside world requires nearly if not quite all the wheat this country can spare.

Over 210,000,000 bushels of wheat have already been exported, and almost 200,000,000 bushels of corn, 4,134,800 bushels during the past week, against 1,787,035 last year, and the market is justified in feeling that those who have gone so far beyond all precedent in defying current reports are entitled to pay for it.

Iron and steel production has declined because several establishments have stopped for repairs. Yet the weekly output June 1st, 225,398 tons, against 234,163 May 1st, with the unsold stocks which decreased 18,142 tons during the month, indicate a consumption weekly of 233,876 tons, against 228,258 in April, so that the ablest iron journals are in error in saying that the apparent consumption does not keep pace with the production of 1,000,000 tons monthly.

The woolen manufacturers are buying no wool, and the sales at the three chief markets during the past week were only 2,549,300 pounds, against 4,878,750 in 1892. The manufacturing works are running steadily, without inquiry for more wool, as if they had on hand material for a year to come. It is the plain truth that dealers here and at the West have greatly underestimated the stock of wool held by the mills.

The boot and shoe manufacture is actually shipping more products than in any previous year, and more in the last three weeks than in any year except 1895 and 1894, though disputes about prices continue and for the time retard shipments. The holders of leather are trying to get higher prices, and prices of hides have meterially advanced, but with much fear of reaction.

There is little new in the market for minor metals, tin being firm at 14.9 cents, and copper being sold at 11.87 for Lake, with lead weak at 3.75.

WILL AWAIT CONVOYS

May Be Some Days Before Troops Will Leave Key West.

RUMORS OF SPANISH FLEET

Spanish Warships Said to Have Left Barcelona Some Time Ago for Cuban Waters—This May Have Something to Do With Holding of Transports for a Stronger Convoy—Matter in the President's Hands.

Washington, June 11.—The transports with the United States troops will probably not leave Key West for Santiago for three or four days, certainly not before the first of next week. The ships are at sea, off Key West, and will remain there until the navy department can furnish a sufficient and adequate convoy to escort them to Santiago.

The president, as exclusively stated in these dispatches yesterday, has ordered the delay in the sailing, and although publicly army and navy officials declare they put little faith in the stories of Spanish warships off Havana, still the president is determined that the transports shall not sail while there is the least suspicion of a Spanish vessel hovering between Key West and Havana.

In the President's Hands.

The situation was discussed at the cabinet meeting yesterday, but it was not a matter for the president's advisers to decide, as the president himself has taken the matter in his hands, and while there is undoubtedly a difference of opinion between the war and navy departments, nothing will be done until the president orders it.

It was the navy department which first raised the scare about Spanish for transports. The army authorities, according to instructions from headquarters here, embarked the troops and started the transports from Tampa on Wednesday, but were suddenly stopped off Key West. The war department yesterday declared that it was ready to proceed and that the soldiers will suffer by being kept upon the transports. The navy department declares that it has a fleet of over a dozen war vessels at Key West, ready to convoy the transports, but at the same time acknowledges in a report to the president that if there are Spanish warships outside of Havana the naval vessels, waiting at Key West are not of a class to give battle to a Spanish armored cruiser. The only battleship in the convoy fleet is the Indiana, and hence the president decided to hold the transports until the navy department could order Admiral Sampson to send the Iowa and perhaps another battleship and cruiser to Key West to join the fleet.

Not the Army's Fault.

The officials at the war department, from the secretary down, deny emphatically that they are responsible for the delay, and the facts in the case as stated, show conclusively that it is not the war department's fault that the transports are not now on their way to Santiago.

While it is evident that the officials in Washington are putting less faith than ever in the rumors of Spanish warships being off Havana and waiting for the United States transports, nevertheless, as a cabinet member said after the meeting yesterday, while there is a shadow of doubt in regard to this, the president will hold the transports at least until the proper convoys can be provided. The war department is especially annoyed at the delay, because the army is not only anxious to get to Cuba and assist Admiral Sampson in his attempts to capture Santiago, but it fears bad results from being obliged to keep so many troops on transports in tropical seas during this weather. The delay also interferes with the Porto Rican expedition.

From indications now it will be at least Sunday night or Monday morning before the Iowa and the other battleships from Admiral Sampson's fleet off Santiago can reach Key West. Although dispatches were sent to him last night they will have to await the dispatch boats to take them to him. It will take a couple of days for the vessels to steam back to Key West and for the transports and the convoys to get ready to start. By that time the navy department will certainly be able to find out the truth as to the Spanish vessels off Havana.

Several cabinet members expressed themselves yesterday as convinced that there are no Spanish ships waiting for our transports, and that the reports are, as the war department calls them, "spooks." But, at the same time, they fully agree with the president that no risks can be taken, especially when the lives of so many soldiers are at stake.

The Ladrone Islands Ours.

Washington, June 11.—It is believed here that the cruiser Charleston and the transport Pekin have possession of the Ladrone islands.

Before the departure of these vessels from San Francisco their commanding officers were ordered to go to Guahan island, destroy the Spanish force there and take possession in the name of the United States.

A sufficient time has elapsed for these vessels to make the voyage, and the officials are now confident that the islands have been captured.

It is understood that the Monterey is under instructions to take possession of the Caroline islands.

A Spanish Flag Torn Down.

Bridgeport, Conn., June 11.—A small riot occurred on Main street this morning in front of Horace Jackson's stationery store. Some one had hung a Spanish flag over the upper part of the building. People stopped, stared and began to inquire of one another why the hated colors were hung out, some newsboys began to cry "Tear it down!" and then pelted the building with stones.

A crowd gathered and shouts and curses rent the air. A policeman ran up the back stairs and tore the flag down. No one about the building could explain how the flag came to be placed there.

Is the baby too thin?

Does he increase too slowly in weight?

Are you in constant fear he will be ill?

Then give him more flesh. Give him more power to resist disease. He certainly needs a fat-forming food.

Scott's Emulsion is just that food. It will make the baby plump; increase the weight; bring color to the cheeks, and prosperity to the whole body. Thin children take to it as naturally as they do to their milk.

A FINE HARBOR TAKEN.

Will Be Used As a Base of Operations by Land.

Jamaica, June 11.—Scout boats running under the shadows of El Morro have cut the Haytien cable and now hold thirty-five miles of the coast east of Santiago de Cuba, including Guantanamo.

Under the cover of the fleet eastern Cuba may be safely invested by land and sea, Admiral Cervera's fleet annihilated and the entire province and its towns and harbors seized and held after a short campaign.

The harbor of Guantanamo is a fine base for land and sea operations. The harbor is capacious and has forty feet of water. The land approaches are not so precipitous as at Santiago de Cuba. The low lying hills can be easily crossed with trains of siege guns and there are level roads to Santiago de Cuba, thirty-three miles distant, where a few mountain batteries, beyond reach of the fleet, will be taken to an eminence commanding the city and the Spanish ships.

Guantanamo is an important place. It has six miles of water harbor and will be of great value to the United States as a navy and army supply station, coaling depot and cable terminus.

The Spaniards made but slight defence. Their batteries were silenced on Tuesday by the Marblehead in a few minutes' firing at four thousand yards. A small Spanish gunboat ran away.

The Oregon, Marblehead and Yankee hold the harbor, waiting to land marines.

Senate Adopts Conference Report.

Washington, June 11.—The senate yesterday agreed to the conference report on the war revenue bill. It is expected that the president will sign it to-day and that it will become a law the day following, except such features which the bill provides shall go into effect at a later date.

The increased beer and tobacco taxes, the tea tax and the tax on legacies will go into effect the day after the bill becomes a law.

The special taxes, stamp taxes and taxes on the incomes of sugar refining and petroleum refining companies and pipe line companies will go into effect on July 1.

The tax on mixed or adulterated flour will go into effect xty days after the approval of the act by the president.

Where Are They Going?

Newport News, June 11.—Seven of the swiftest ships in the American navy are now at Hampton Roads or near by.

They are the Minneapolis, Cincinnati, Newark, Buffalo, Yale, Harvard and Dixie.

That they are gathered here for some important mission is apparent, though the officers refuse to tell what their orders are.

Every ship is being coaled to its utmost capacity, which leads to the belief that a long trip is planned, possibly as far as the coast of Spain.

In speed and steaming radius these ships are well fitted for just such a trip.

Gen. Roe Brig.-Gen. of Volunteers.

Washington, June 11.—Charles Roe of New York, major general of the National Guard organization of that state is to be made a brigadier general of volunteers. His nomination will be sent to the senate in the next batch of appointments that go to the capital. General Roe is the only one of the five men recommended by Governor Black for appointments as brigadier general to receive recognition thus far.

General Roe graduated from the Military Academy at West Point in 1868 and was appointed a second lieutenant in the First Cavalry.

Illinois Naval Reserves.

Chicago, June 11.—Illinois sent her last detachment of naval reserves to the front Thursday. With this contingent 1,066 men have been enlisted from this state. The detachment Thursday, consisting of 200 reserves, left via the Pennsylvania railway for Norfolk, Va., where they will be placed on board the Newark for active service.

Madrid Threathens Us.

Madrid, June 11.—A semi-official note issued yesterday says Spanish letters continue to be seized in the United States, even though addressed to foreigners. The note adds:

"If this measure, unprecedented in war, is persisted in, Spain will make reprisals upon the property of Americans in Spain."

Women Pallbearers.

The traveler from Biarritz describes a peasant funeral in the south of France, in which the coffin was borne to the grave on the shoulders of women. The dead person was a woman of their own class. In the same district it is the custom of women to part with their hair to bury it with a dead child, accompanied with a favorite toy, so as to prevent the child from being lonely.

FOR THE VACATION SEASON.

Subscribers leaving the city for the summer season can have The Daily Press sent to their new address by notifying the buisness office. The address will be changed as often as desired. "Home news" will prove most interesting while you are away.

Sprinkling the Streets.

It seems that it is the duty of the street committee of the Common Council to name the restrictions to be inculcated into the ordinance which the Plainfield Street Railroad Company have petitioned to have enacted so that they may construct and operate their proposed Scotch Plains extension.

Well, if that is the case we hope that those officials will recognize the fact that people who reside along the various lines of the street railway are anxious for some permanent relief from the aggravating fault of the air being filled with dust as every trolley car whizzes by. One of the sure ways of compelling the trolley magnates to remedy this condition of affairs is to inject into the ordinance, that is to be passed, a clause making it obligatory upon the company to regularly and sufficiently sprinkle the streets along their tracks to lay the dust.

The Crop Outlook.

It is too early yet to predicate any forecast of our cereal production for 1898 on reports sufficiently comprehensive to be fairly reliable. But so far as these reports have been published they are on the whole favorable to the United States. The winter wheat sowing has done nobly, and though the spring wheatfields have in some cases exacted a second sowing they are on the whole of reasonable promise. The total area planted is 25 per cent larger. The late spring rains and cold have somewhat hampered growth, but if the summer season should be reasonably propitious there is no reason why the wheat crop of 1898 should not greatly surpass that of its predecessor.

On the other hand, the outlook in Europe, though better than that of last year, does not compare well with our own. Bad weather rotted the seed quite generally in France, Austria-Hungary and European Russia, compelling second sowing. The growth has been slow and uneven, and at the best it is not expected to reach an average.

Another failure of European wheat crops would precipitate political disaster and popular distress to a degree which we can scarcely overestimate. The Roman Cæsars kept the people down by gratifying the outcry "panem et circenses" (which may be translated, "lots of bread and lots of fun"). The modern Cæsars don't give their subjects much fun, and if there is a pinch in the bread question it means serious mischief, as shown for example in the late Milan riots. However much we may deplore foreign distress, it would mean for us, with good crops at home, a more than usually powerful fulcrum of increased wealth and prosperity this year.

North and South.

All war is a grim and terrible fact, however supreme may be its underlying motive, but there are sometimes even casual conditions which go far to offset its horror. All sections of our land rent 35 years ago with such a volcanic tumult of civil strife are now united heart and hand as they never were in the palmiest days of yore. The finishing agency to remove the last vestige of bitterness has been the flame of enthusiasm and purpose which is now warming the whole nation with its common glow. Even till lately some lingering grudge of sore hearts was sometimes evident, perhaps unconsciously so. For this our present war is the final balm of healing. Henceforth we are one in our most secret sympathies and sentiments. This is strikingly symbolized in the spectacle of Chickamauga park.

That historic site in September, 1863, was the most dreadful slaughter pen of a most murderous war. The grim tenacity of the struggle was only equaled by that of Gettysburg. Two square leagues were literally drenched with the blood of brethren embattled for mutual destruction. Now that old field of carnage is the most important rendezvous and organization camp of the troops of north and south, burning with the rivalry of love, not of hate. To quote the lines of a recent war poem:

Bright oriflamme of liberty,
One bannered blazon flaunts the sky
And hails that "sunburst" in the sea,
A gallant people's anguished cry.
Now brothers touch in common weal
To right the foreign wrong with steel.

We observe that once more newspaper writers are amusing themselves discussing the question why great men live unhappily with their wives. Meantime, do great men live unhappily with their wives? Have they done so in the past? No, decidedly. Man for man, these great ones have been just as happy as the common run of mankind. Gladstone's life is a shining illustration of the truth of this statement; so was Tennyson's. The great poet's wife blotted out her own individuality and gave her life to her husband. Washington's domestic life was a model of felicity. Grant's greatest happiness was to be at home with his family. It is true that sometimes men think they are great and try to pose as such when their wives know them to be hollow humbugs. Who can blame a woman for speaking out her mind under such circumstances?

The Alaskan homestead and right of way law was one badly needed. Until its passage no man could own a foot of land in the whole territory. Now homesteaders may take out land patents and secure their ground as in other territories, mineral lands being exempt. The salmon fisheries in the southwestern part of Alaska ought to be put under strict surveillance, or this valuable fish will become extinct there. The salmon canning industry is now worth $3,000,000 a year in Alaska.

A face culturist has discovered that the human nose can be made over from the most ignoble shape into a fine classic one. This news is especially commended to those numerous people who annoy the rest of the world by nosing into things.

The new battleships Kentucky and Kearsarge can carry each 1,200 tons of coal. They are to be completed by Jan. 1, 1898, but in an emergency can be rushed through a couple of months earlier.

Whether it is a crime to be a millionaire depends on how the man gets his millions.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News, but Just as Interesting.

One of Plainfield's bright little four-year old girls was asked yesterday what hunger is. She replied "It is when you awfully much want something to eat."

Miss Shattuck, principal of the Bryant School, has received word that the navy flag which was presented by the school children to Admiral Dewey's flagship on Decoration Day, has reached Washington.

A thing rarely seen in Plainfield or anywhere else was an interesting sight in this city yesterday. A Plainfield physician was making a call and his coachman, colored, was sitting in the wagon in front of the house studying the Bible. The book was a good sized one and the reader seemed to be greatly interested.

Two blue jays have made their home in a tree down in the east end. Near by resides a prim little maid who has taken a great interest in the troubles of the birds. After considerable effort their nest was built and the eggs were hatched. One little blue jay fell a victim to a neighbor's feline pet. The little maid was very sorrowful. She had much difficulty in getting the correct name of the birds that interested her so greatly. Several days ago, another of the little birds fell out of the nest and pussy went after it, amid loud cries from the parent birds.

"Mamma," cried the little maid, "The kitty is after the little jay birds." It was sometime before her mother could explain that they were merely jays and that the "bird" after it was not necessary.

Mrs. E. M. Tomlinson has found among her possessions a little pamphlet published many years ago by the Washington Monument and Historical Association, of Plainfield. It was in the interest of a movement to place a suitable monument at Washington Rock. The book contained an appeal for aid and an appropriate poem, written by EllisAyres. On the book is a list of the officers, all of whom are well-known citizens, and several of whom have since died. The officers were president, Nathan Harper; first vice president, A. Berry; second vice president, William Wolff; treasurer, I. S. Dunham; secretary, T. J. Gilles; corresponding secretary, J. H. Van Winkle; directors, Oliver Runyon, James Clark, E. W. Runyon, Wm. B. T. Lane, Theo. French, Isaac D. Guyer, James M. Frazee, A. Vanderbeek and B. T. Mulford.

A QUARTETTE OF BRIGADIERS.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Westfield, June 11—Mrs. LaRosa, of Union place, is confined to her home by illness.

A large number of citizens of Westfield gathered in the township rooms last evening to arrange for and discuss plans for the proper celebration of the Fourth of July. The meeting was called to order by Charles W. Denman, who is always foremost in getting up anything for the help of the town. He was elected chairman, James B. , secretary and committeeman, C. W. Harden, treasurer. The following general committee was appointed: Messrs. C. W. Denman, C. W. Harden, James B. Wilson, Dr. F. A. Kinch, C. P. Wilcox, Isaac Seeley, W. J. Bogert, W. Tuecy, W. W. Downes, E. J. Wilcox, Paul Q. Oliver, J. F. Dowall, J. R. Patterson, S. W. Reese and M. M. Scudder. As near as can be told now the day's programme will consist of a sunrise salute, a bicycle parade, games and races, a base ball game and bicycle races in the morning. More races and another base ball game in the afternoon and fireworks in the evening. There will also be good band music all day and such other fixings necessary to make a celebration up to the top notch of patriotism. The committee will meet next Tuesday evening at the residence of Charles W. Denman.

Children's Day exercises will be held in the Methodist church Sunday morning and will consist of recitations and singing by the scholars and an address by Rev. C. M. Anderson. In the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock there will also be special service for the children. In the Baptist church the exercises will be held in the afternoon, also in the Presbyterian church. The Congregational church Sunday-school will observe Sunday, June 19th, as Children's Day.

Assessor J. M. C. Marsh, of Westfield, is making his annual assessment. He states that the valuation of property in the township has increased between $30,000 and $40,000 within the past year. The valuation of the township now is greater than before the borough of Mountainside was set off.

"The Devine Institution for Instruction In and Impartation of Moral Righteousness," will be the subject of the baccaulureate sermon which will be preached to the senior class of the High School in the Presbyterian church tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock by Rev. George A. Francis.

The official board of the Methodist church will hold a meeting Monday evening for the purpose of arranging for the repairing of the church. The exterior will be painted, the lecture room enlarged and the interior of the church redecorated. New carpets will also be purchased.

Mrs. C. F. Conante entertained a number of friends at a red, white and blue luncheon at her home on Prospect street yesterday. The table was tastefully decorated with the stars and stripes and each member of the party was presented with a small silk American flag.

Rev. George A. Francis will preach Wednesday evening at the Second Avenue Baptist church in New York. Mr. Francis has been appointed as a member of the missionary committee of the East New Jersey Baptist Association.

LINCOLN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Lincoln, June 11—The primary election for the purpose of nominating candidates for members of Council and Mayor will be held in the Council room Saturday, June 25th, from 7 till 9 o'clock p. m.

Mayor Drake was electioneering Thursday evening and his speech to the citizens assembled near the Park made a good impression for the cause of woman suffrage, of which he is a strong advocate.

Alfred Hunt, of Co. H, of Somerville, now at Sandy Hook, has been granted a twenty-four hour furlough and will spend Saturday evening with his parents in town.

William Gillick, of Newark, has assumed charge of the polishing department at the Steel Tool Works.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials Address,

Mayor Wilson, of the borough, is in Somerville today on business.

Miss Ethel King, of Craig place, has recovered from a slight illness.

Mrs. Angleman, of East Fourth street, is visiting friends out of town.

Mrs. Hariot Burton Ford, of Watchung avenue, is very ill at her home.

Miss Lelia Cruikshank, of Belvidere avenue, is the guest of out-of town friends.

Freeholder Lutkins, of Somerset street, was in Somerville yesterday on business.

Mrs. VanDuzen, of Horsehead, N. Y., is visiting Mrs L. T. Rogers, of Madison avenue.

O. S. Teal, formerly of Plainfield, but now of New York, is in the city today on business.

Mrs. S. S. Swackhamer, of the borough, is visiting relatives at Whitehouse for a few days.

Miss Kissam, formerly of Central avenue, has been visiting the Misses Elliott, of Madison avenue.

Assemblyman Roger F. Murray and family, of this city, are stopping at Atlantic City for a few days.

Miss Florence Dodge, of New York, has returned home after a pleasant visit with Plainfield relatives.

Henry B. Drake, of Duer street, left this afternoon for Providence, R. I., where he will be the guest of relatives.

James Grover and family, of Philadelphia, have been visiting at the home of L. B. Bromfield, of East Sixth street.

Miss Langdon, of New York, formerly of this city, is visiting Miss Anna Wyckoff, of East Sixth street and Franklin place, for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eldridge Eaton will return tomorrow evening from their wedding trip and will take up their residence at Netherwood for the summer.

Patrolmen Totten and Lunger are now doing duty in the business part of the city. The former has the east side to look after, while the latter is on the west side.

Misses Emma and Gertrude Haviland, daughters of A. W. Haviland, of Rockview avenue, have goon to Greenwich, Conn., to spend several days with friends.

Miss Shreve, of Grove street, has gone to Moorestown, N. J., where she will act as bridemaid at the marriage of her friend, Miss Anna West, to Nelson West, of Philadelphia

Mr. and Mrs. Eaton, of Alfred, N.Y., are spending a few days in Plainfield with friends. They came from Brooklyn yesterday, where they attended the marriage of their son, Louis E. Eaton, to Miss Cushing, of that city.

—Two special trains filled with excursionists from Philadelphia passed through Plainfield early this morning on their way to Jersey City, where they took a boat for Coney Island to spend the day.

—Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street, left a pocketbook containing $17.60 in a Central Railroad coach Thursday afternoon on her return from Philadelphia. Mrs. Dale, of the O'Donohue Coffee Company, found the pocketbook and turned it over to the conductor, who was notified of the loss by telegraph at Elizabeth. It was returned to Mrs. Cox on the next train.

RUTGERS FREE SCHOLARSHIPS.

There Were Six Union County Students at the Examination.

There were six students of Union county schools who applied for appointment to fill scholarships in Rutgers College, under the act of 1864, and were examined by County Superintendent Holmes and the city superintendents of Plainfield, Rahway and Elizabeth at the court house last week. Three were from the Battin High School, one from Crabford's High School, one from the Dingry School and one from Union.

They all passed very creditable examinations, and it remains for the State and college authorities to determine their acceptance. The law provides for one free scholarship from each assembly district. That would give Union county three appointments. If several candidates for appointment pass the examination from the same assembly district, all who are suitably qualified shall receive appointment to such free scholarships, excess from certain assembly districts being counterbalanced by vacancies in other assembly districts, provided only that the entire number of appointees shall not exceed the entire number of free scholarships created by the State.

PLAINFIELD'S BUSIEST STORE
We Sell Goods Cheaper Than All Other Stores.

TIME WAS
When the merchant's motto was buy as cheap as you can and sell for all you can get. That is changed now. Our constant thought is to buy the best we can at the price and sell at the lowest possible figure. We make no secret of our methods. We buy direct from the makers, from the auctioneers, from importers who must have cash. 'Tis why we sell so close and are ALWAYS BUSY.

A CHAPTER OF SPECIALS.

NEW YORK LETTER.

Special Correspondence.

Write the name of Mrs. Isaac Lawrence on the tablets of fame beside that of Holland, the inventor! She is the patron saint of the submarine torpedo-boat, and when that boat has been adopted and revolutionizes the navies of the world, it will not be forgotten that to a woman's faith and generosity something of that succcess was due.

Mrs. Lawrence is a popular young matron of society. Her husband is a lawyer, one of the Lawrences of Long Island. She was Miss Lee Gwynn, and is a daughter of the late Nicholas Gwynn, from which she inherited a large fortune. Her city home is at No. 10 East Nineteenth street.

MRS. LAWRENCE.

Mrs. Lawrence has been several times in Cuba. She has seen the starving reconcentrados, and burns with patriotic zeal whenever the question of American intervention is discussed. Mr. Holland was seeking about for some one to back him in his experiments with the submarine wonder. Here was her opportunity to help her country. She saw that the Holland boat, if it could be made a success, would furnish a new arm to the naval service more terrible than the monitor.

She bought stock in the company—lots of it—and talked it up so eloquently that a number of her friends also invested in the company. Mrs. Lawrence is the heaviest stockholder.

The Yellow Freaks.

Pulitzer has appointed William Van Benthuysen managing editor of The World, and thus New York makes another drain on Chicago. Van Benthuysen has been for many years on the Chicago Tribune, where he began as a copy-reader and gradually rose to that high position which attracted Pulitzer's attention. The salary which such a man can command is shown by the fact that Pulitzer pays him $25,000 a year. This is the largest salary that any managing editor ever received, the next in amount being $15,000, which Pulitzer paid John A. Cockerill. At present Pulitzer feels the temporary loss of E. J. Chamberlain, managing editor of The Evening World, who is prostrated by overwork. He was ambitious to make the most of the Cuban troubles, and the result is that he is now obliged to retire for restoration. Under such exigencies Pulitzer is ready to pay well for first-class talent, and in fact liberality is necessary for any one competing with Hearst, whose money flows like water. It is estimated indeed that Hearst has sunk a million in The Journal, which is the most costly plaything of the present day. He has recently engaged Julian Hawthorne as a naval correspondent, and it will be interesting to see how the latter handles marine matters.

Jim Blaine on the Tribune.

James G. Blaine, Jr., is now a member of the Tribune staff, and this gives him an opportunity to develop. He was formerly a newspaper man, and evidently thinks this his true field. There is certainly room enough. Pulitzer is said to be a member of a syndicate about to engage in the pulp business more extensively than any other concern. This is no doubt due to the large amount of paper used by The World, and as Hearst uses a still greater quantity he too is reported in a similar enterprise. The Pulitzer scheme is located in Maine, and the projected mill is expected to be in operation soon. The recent advance in paper impairs exports, and foreign orders to the amount of $20,000 have been lost, as Germany is now a cheaper market. To return to Pulitzer, he has appointed Foster Coates editor of The Evening World in place of Earnest C. Chamberlain. The condition of the latter is very serious, being the result of protracted excitement on the Cuban question, under which both mind and body were impaired. The latest display of this condition was the impression that war had been declared, which he announced in head lines weeks ago. An entire edition was printed before the error was detected by his associates, but it was suppressed before any reached the public. It was certainly a very narrow escape, much like that of The erald, which suppressed an entire edition containing the Joe Howard bogus proclamation. The question of the ownership of The Sun has been settled by a recent statement in its own columns. A report was circulated that J. Pierpont Morgan had acquired a controlling interest, but it now appears that Paul Dana is owner of a majority of the stock, and therebore its tone will be unchanged. CYRUS THORP.

A Pretty Mode of Hair Dressing.

A simple and artistic mode of hairdressing and one particularly well suited to the woman who wears her hair high is here shown. First the hair should be loosely waved all round, then divide a portion for the front, combing the remaining hair well up on the crown and tying there securely.

Then take the front piece of hair and comb it back to the crown, arranging it rather high and roll the ends round the fingers to form a kind of pad, which pin to the crown. Divide the back hair into three strands, take the centre portion and make into a loop, which twist under the end with the left hand to give it a small knot at the base of the loop, then pin the loop rather high on the top of the head. With the two remaining strands of hair make two more loops like the last one, and pin them more to the back of the head a trifle lower than the high loop, then twist the ends of hair round the fingers to form small French curls, which pin in position.

The Independent Queen of Holland.

The young Queen of Holland is of a serious turn of mind, and though delighting in most girl-pleasures, greatly dislikes any talk about "conquests," flirting, or matrimonial intentions. She never fails to complain to her friends of the persistency with which rumor betroths her, now to one person, now to another, and lately exclaimed: "I will never marry unless I love, and love is a sacred thing which should not be gossiped about!"

The wife of a well-known politician keeps a scrap-book, in which she pastes all the uncomplimentary paragraphs printed about her husband. They come in handy for quotation at times.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Provinz Westfalen.

Münster. Der Oberpräsident hat den von dem Vereine für katholische Arbeiter-Kolonien in Westfalen abgeschlossenen Kauf eines größeren Heidegeländes bei Breden im Kreise Ahaus genehmigt. Somit steht der Einrichtung einer zweiten katholischen Arbeiter-Kolonie neben der schon mehr als zehn Jahre bestehenden in Maria-Veen nichts mehr im Wege.

Lengerich. Beim Einsturz des Mauerwerks einer neuen Ringofenziegelei stürzten drei Maurer in die Tiefe. Die Verunglückten, welche sämmtlich tödtliche Verletzungen davontrugen, wurden in das hiesige Krankenhaus gebracht.

Sachsen.

Dresden. Die Chokoladen- und Zuckerwaarenfabrik Jordan u. Timaeus beging das Fest ihres 75jährigen Bestehens. Eine der Würde des Tages angepaßte Feier ließ das gute Einvernehmen zwischen den Chefs und dem Personal der Firma erkennen.—Bei dem Armee-Jagdrennen kam Lieutenant Graf Königsmarck von den 13. Ulanen mit des Lieutenants Engel „Rotar" an der Steinmauer zu Fall und erlitt eine schwere Rückenmarksquetschung, die seine Ueberführung in das Carola-Krankenhaus nothwendig machte. Wenn eine Lebensgefahr auch ausgeschlossen erscheint, so wird die Heilung doch längere Zeit in Anspruch nehmen.

Chemnitz. Eine Ortschaft, die sich durch eine ungewöhnliche Vorliebe ihrer Söhne für den Lehrerstand auszeichnet, ist das im höchsten Theile des Erzgebirges gelegene Dorf Grumbach bei Jöhstadt. Nicht weniger als 65 der gegenwärtig im Amte befindlichen Volksschullehrer Sachsens sind aus diesem Gebirgsdorfe gebürtig. Es wird kaum einen Ort in Deutschland geben, der einen gleich hohen Prozentsatz seiner Bewohner dem Lehrerberuf zuführt.

Döbeln. An der Staupitzstraße fiel ein vierjähriger Knabe, Sohn des Handarbeiters Bohne, in die zur Zeit angeschwollene Mulde und wurde ein Stück mit fortgerissen. Ein in der Nähe wohnhafter Schuhmacher, der den Vorgang beobachtet hatte, holte das Kind noch lebend wieder heraus.

Leipzig. Der Vorstand der Leipziger Börsenhalle, Fritz Schubert, ist gestorben.—Leipzig hat den Verlust eines seiner bedeutendsten Industrie-Etablissements, der bekannten Irmler'schen Pianofabrik, zu beklagen. Ein in der Fabrik ausgebrochenes Feuer griff so rasch um sich, daß man nicht einmal die fertigen Instrumente in Sicherheit bringen konnte. Nicht weniger als 900 Klaviere, darunter einige sehr kostbare, wurden ein Raub der Flammen. Die Fabrik selbst ist gänzlich zerstört.

Marienberg. Ein seltsames Brautpaar wurde kürzlich in Mittelsayda ehelich verbunden. Der 52 Jahre alte Handarbeiter August Heinrich Richter schloß mit der 78 Jahre alten Johanna Christine verwittweten Helbig den „Bund für das Leben." Die Braut ist bereits Urgroßmutter, sie hat 4 Kinder, 26 Enkel und auch Urenkel, und erfreut sich trotz ihres hohen Alters noch bester Gesundheit.

Thüringische Staaten.

Meiningen. Auf der in der Nähe der Stadt gelegenen sogenannten Schanze soll schon in nächster Zeit ein Bismarck-Thurmbau errichtet werden. Von dem Berge hat man eine prächtige Aussicht auf die lang gestreckte Kette der Thüringerwaldberge nach Osten, sowie auf das ganze Rhöngebirge nach Westen.

Pfordten. Der hier zum Bürgermeister gewählte Polizei-Inspektor Karl Pöhler-Apolda hat die Bestätigung der Behörde abermals nicht erhalten. Es ist dies hinter einander der dritte Fall, so daß sich die Gemeindevertreter demzufolge in die Nothwendigkeit versetzt sehen, sich zum vierten Male mit der Neuwahl eines Bürgermeisters zu beschäftigen.

Freie Städte.

Hamburg. Hier ist die Maschinenfabrik von Vogel u. Kaemp ein Raub der Flammen geworden.—Die Hamburger Bäckerinnung hat beschlossen, mit einem Kostenaufwand von etwa 160,000 Mark ein neues Innungshaus erbauen zu lassen. Die Kosten sollen durch Ausgabe von Antheilscheinen zu je 100 Mark gedeckt werden. Die Antheilscheine werden von der Innung zurückgekauft.

Bremen. Seit Mitte Mai ist die neue Fernsprechverbindung zwischen hier und Berlin in Betrieb genommen. Die neue Verbindung besteht im Unterschied von den vorhandenen, welche durch das Amt Hannover vermittelt werden müssen, in einer unmittelbaren Leitung ohne Zwischenstationen. Dieselbe wird eine wesentliche Verbesserung des Sprechverkehrs zwischen Bremen und der Reichshauptstadt im Gefolge haben.

Lübeck. Als 100. auf der Koch'schen Werft erbautes Fahrzeug lief der für A. Kirsten-Hamburg erbaute Dampfer „Timandra" vom Stapel.—Die Lübecker Zimmerer haben beschlossen, im Interesse der Förderung einer sozialdemokratischen Wahl den Wahltag als Feiertag zu betrachten und die Arbeit ruhen zu lassen.

AMOS H. VAN HORN LIMITED

"The Portland Range" doesn't give you worry—but comfort—and lots of it.

Your Home---

Let Us Help You "Fix it Up"

Spring's the time you give yourself new duds. Better clothe the home too. No better season—none more appropriate. But be chary of what you get and how deep you go into that purse.

Here, you'll find our 40 years' experience a help in picking out sensible things—no chance of poor choosing, for our 3 acres of Furniture and Carpets are best from A to Z.

Mayhap you're not ready to spare but a scanty sum. Then our credit terms of 75c a week will "bridge you over." And none but cash prices, even if it be credit terms!

$10.75 —same as cut. Nothing new about the price we know full well—but there's a lot new about the suit at such a price. Of solid oak, well finished and well shaped—if you want other shapes, we've 100 here up to $150.

But a trifle for so good a Sideboard as this. $13.95 Not a haphazard, thrown-together affair, but as substantial as honest talent knows how to make it. And there are other good boards here too—from $9.75 to $100. A grand showing.

How About Your Refrigerator?

Pay us $5.49—get a hardwood refrigerator that ought to tax your means for one-half more—$5.49 pays for not only one refrigerator, but covers cost of a fine galvanized pick, tongs and pan that go along with it—another proof of "Amos H. Van Horn, Ltd." liberality! As spick and span a refrigerator stock as Jersey ever saw—dozens of kinds, all new in idea and small in price!

Two Summer Cooking Helps

The "Wickless Blue Flame Oil Stove" and the "Monarch Vapor Stove." Two marvels of inventive genius, as easy to run 'em as can be—no instructions—no worrying valves, etc. Call—we'll operate them for you. We've the "Insurance" and "Quickmeal" Vapor Stoves too.

75c. A WEEK WILL DO IF CASH IS SHORT.

WAR NEWS, 1861-64.

HOW NEWSPAPERS OF THAT TIME TREATED STARTLING EVENTS.

Old Way and New—Three Inside Page Columns Told of the Fall of Sumter—Facts of Momentous History-Making Events Secondary to Editorial Comment

A war with a foreign power would tax the journalistic resources of America, vast as they are. There is no possible combination of brain, money and muscle that would not be brought into play. Hundreds of workers in all branches of the profession would be sent to the front. That paper which fails to have its dispatch boat at the first naval combat will be counted no paper at all. Special wires will carry the news of the fray to the dailies which own them. Every known system of communication will be brought into play. Trained corps will demonstrate the possibilities of the heliograph, the flag system and what not. The camera will reach its highest form of development. Snap-shooting a bursting shell or a crushed turret at the moment of its subsidence will become a common occurrence.

In this matter of news gathering things have changed mightily since the days of nearly forty years ago. There were daily papers—plenty of them—when the cable of the Union snapped under the long strain, and the two sections of the country drifted apart. They had what they called the "magnetic telegraph," too, but they were a little chary about using it. It cost money, and the leased wire had not been invented. No correspondent sat on a stump with a typewriter on his knees and clicked off beautiful stuff, while the bullets made sounds like splitting silk in the air around them, as Stephen Crane and Richard Harding Davis did for five or six weeks in Greece last year. News in those days came by mail, and it was sent by correspondents who had much reverence for the general commanding, and took what he said as matter inspired. They were not more anxious to be killed than are the correspondents of this day, and kept out of harm's way as much as possible. It stands to reason that when a man is fifteen miles back of the zone of fire all day, and is then forced to get his information from a flabbergasted General who is thinking only how best to preserve his own reputation and save his head, the "news" he sends on to his paper is likely to be a little off color.

Any reader of the modern newspaper who desires to have the strong contrast between the paper of '60s and the paper of the '90s brought to mind, has only to examine a war file of some one of the journals that are still nationally known. Take the New York Tribune, for instance, which at the outbreak of hostilities was one of the most prosperous and influential dailies in this country. It has a high-class editorial screamer as its Washington correspondent, and Horace Greeley as its editor. One would think that there was a combination to make envious rivals shiver and turn pale. It did not. The rivals were no better and no worse than it. It used to subdivide its local intelligence into departments, headed respectively "Local Items" and "Brooklyn Items." This was all the heading they got. It has not been many years since the word "item" has been used in a newspaper to describe a news story. The Tribune published a detailed report of the proceedings of Congress, much the same as is now given to its million of readers by that accurate and sportive journal, the Congressional Record. The important news of each issue was not printed upon the first page, but upon the fifth page, opposite to the editorial page. Those were the days of "personal editors," when one man dominated the paper and the paper's constituency. It got brief telegrams from Washington each day, which it printed, bearing the credit line, "By Magnetic Telegraph."

The national capital was then boiling and bubbling like a caldron. All men saw that the inevitable conflict could not be much longer postponed, and those who met their neighbors in the morning after a restless night looked at them with scared eyes and asked for intelligence that was dreaded. The Tribune had ample warning of the impending crash, and the preparations made to report the first overt act of war were on a scale commensurate with its standing and influence. It hired a man in Charleston to send it something in case the "rebels" succeeded in scaring up nerve enough to do anything. It may be said that it was two years after this before the word "Confederaes" found its way into columns of the Tribune.

Sumter was attacked, and the Tribune man did himself and his paper proud. He sent a total of three columns, which were printed, of course, on the fifth page, under a "scare head," a single column in width and containing twenty-two black lines. On April 12, while the guns from the island batteries and the guns from the fort were roaring all day, he sent on seven dispatches of an average length of 100 words, giving the progress of the engagement. He announced the occurrence of the most momentous event in national history in these words, "The ball has opened." He ended one of his dispatches with the statement, "These are lively times here," and another with the similar statement, "These are reviving times on the Palmetto coast. Evidently he desired to give the paper its money's worth, and he could not think of anything else to say. He paid, however, even at that early day, a compliment to the splendid gallantry of the American fighter, whether he comes from the North or the South. "The soldiers are perfectly reckless of their lives," he said, "and at every shot jump upon the ramparts and then jump down, cheering." The Tribune went to its readers with the proud consciousness that it had done everything possible to a great journal in covering the Sumter affair, and doubtless its readers thought so, too.

On the morning of July 22, 1861, it plastered itself with glory an inch thick, and one can imagine without difficulty the smile that spread itself over the benigh features of "Uncle Horace" when he picked up the paper from his desk and saw that it had not been beaten upon the battle of Bull Run. To this wrestle of the gods and Titans nearly a page is devoted—the fifth page. The headlines are still one column wide, and, in the light of these latter days, read queerly. Here are some of them: "Great Battle Fought," "The Batteries of Bull's Run Captured," "Splendid Union Victory," "A Death Blow to Secession," "Heroism of the Union Forces," "They Know No Such Word as Fail," "Not Over 500 Killed and Wounded," "Forty Wagon-loads of Dead Rebels." Two days later the Tribune announced "The Battle Decisively Won." It did have something to say, however, of a "panic among the teamsters." It will be seen that the Bull Run man, like the Charleston man, rose to the occasion and demonstrated what a journalist can do when put to it.

The files of the New York dailies for the four years of the civil war are an object lesson in the evolution of the American newspaper. In that time they gradually grew out of their inefficiency, and grew used to war. Its correspondents learned that they would not be shot every time they got close enough to battle to hear the bullets sing overhead. They learned to establish lines of communication from the front to the rear and from the rear to the nearest telegraph office, independen of the government lines. They learned to judge of the progress of a fray by what they saw of the wounded streaming to the rear, of the ordering forward of reserves, of the steady backward and forward movement of the lines, of the thousand things of a battle-field that tell the story of victory or defeat as plainly as words. They became too wise for the general commanding. His stereotyped reply, "We are winning all along the line," lost its force. They stopped asking him questions at all. He used to send for them and ask them questions, which they answered correctly or not, as they saw fit. The journalist was developing into the newspaper man and newspaper man was beginning to assert himself, to feel and to know that he was by far the most dangerous animal on the field, despite the men with the guns.

The consequence of this evolution was that when Gettysburg was fought, nearly two years afterward, the headlines of the Tribune on the morning after the third day of the gigantic struggle told the story of the result fairly well. The news had been moved to the first page by that time. Editorial paragraphs had become a secondary or tertiary feature of that and other papers. The "personal editor" at last had been brought into contact with men and events bigger than he. He might rise in his wrath and denounce some contemporary as a "horse thief and liar," and excite only a fleeting smile of amusement. Probably the contemporary was so busy reading and editing the news from the front that he did not see the denunciation. The headlines of he Tribune on the fourth day when the guns of Gettysburg were hushed forever, said, among other things: "The Severest Action of the War," "Losses on Both Sides Heavy," "Advantage on Our Side." That was the truth, even as we see it to-day. Still, a scant four columns were devoted to the intelligence. The paper of this time which printed less than five pages about so enormous a conflict would consider itself irretrievably disgraced.

If the battle of Gettysburg or Shiloh or the Wildness or Hampton Roads were fought over again to-morrow, people would listen to the roar of the guns in a thousand theatres by holding telephone receivers to their ears. Next would come the cheers of the charging regiments, given in the squeaky tones of the phonograph. Lastly, every dime museum in the land would coin money by vitascope reproductions of the capture of a battery.

The Pope's Idea of Proportion.

During a recent brief outing in the Vatican gardens Leo XIII. came across an assistant gardener who was digging the soil.

"My good man," he said to the gardener, "how much do you receive a day for your labor?"

"Two francs your holiness," was the reply.

The pontiff mused awhile.

"And how many children have you?"

"None, your holiness."

"And does your wife also work for her livelihood?"

"Holy Father," said the laborer, "I have never been married."

Onec more the pontiff mused in reflection.

"Then, my good man," he said, "I shall give instructions that from henceforward, instead of two francs a day you will receive a franc and a half, and that half a franc will be added to the wages of some other workman who has a wife and family to support."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Willowy.

"I don't say all women are alike," remarked Mr. Meekton, with a sigh, "but Elizabeth hasn't changed much. Before we were married she was what they call a 'willowy' sort of girl. She is now a pronounced I-will-owy sort of a woman."—Chicago Tribune.

A baseball game is in prospect between the Y. M. C. A. team and the team from Leal's school.

It is to be hoped that a game will soon be arranged between the nine of the Bachelors Club and the Clinton Avenue Club. Both are confident of victory and a match between the teams would promise lots of excitement.

The Crescents have arranged a game with the Williamsburgh Field Club for next Saturday at the Crescent Oval. The Williamsburgh team played here last season and defeated the Crescents. It is a strong team and a good game may be looked for.

Next spring will see Lederer in Princeton University in all probability. He is already considered an eligible candidate for the freshmen team of next year, and is thought to have a good show for the 'varsity team. The management of the Princeton team already has its eye on Lederer and has been corresponding with Manager Mumford regarding his ability as a player.

When the season opened, Manager Mumford had decided to place "Art" Lederer in the field and bring Clarence Vroom in the diamond to cover second. Lederer played the first game as second baseman, however, and his excellent playing in that position has kept it for him so far. He is more careful than he was last year and his added speed in throwing makes him a valuable man.

The Seventh Regiment team will not appear here July 4th, as Manager Mumford hoped. A. B. Wilson, quartermaster-sergeant of Co. F, Seventh Regiment, who manages the team, has written to Manager Mumford of the Crescents as follows: "Regret that it will be impossible for the Regimental team to play July 4th, but hope to have the pleasure of another game next season when I hope to make it a little more interesting for your crack-a-jack baseball team."

Now that the negotiations with the Bound Brook Athletic Club are off, Manager Mumford has a rattling good team to play against the Crescents on the morning of Independence Day. The Brooklyn Athletic Association is now supporting the strongest of the semi-professional teams that come from that section of New York. The Brooklyn A. A. team is now scheduled to play in Plainfield on Fourth of July morning.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Lester Radford, of Park avenue, is riding a Crescent wheel.

Mrs. Elvaine VanName, of Elmwood place, was presented with a Stearns bicycle today by her husband.

Thomas D. Blair, of East Second street, wheeled over from Princeton University Tuesday evening and visited his home.

Cyclists who are on the lookout for pleasant rides and new roads will find a delightful section of the country now open to them by the completion of the macadamizing of the road between Rahway and Metuchen.

Clifford Smith and Robert Crane have arranged a little race meet for this afternoon. It will be held on East Front street. There will be bicycle and foot races. The prizes have been donated by the merchants of the city.

Nothing has yet been done towards scheduling any of the runs of the cycling squad of the Christian Endeavor Local Union. The first run will probably be to Dunellen, as the societies in that place are particularly anxious that they be given a chance to entertain the squad.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Secretary Williams, of the Central New Jersey Racing Circuit, writes very encouragingly of the outlook for the circuit trotting races. Owing to the unpropitious weather, the various events have been shoved ahead two weeks. The races scheduled for Plainfield June 8th and 9th have been put down for the 22d and 23d, with entries to close June 14th. Somerville, June 29th and 30th, entries to close June 21st. Flemington, July 4th and 5th, with entries to close June 28th. New Brunswick, July 13th and 14th, with entries to close July 2d. The purses will be the same throughout the circuit. The horses in Plainfield that will go into active training for the circuit races are Wood Wind, 2:25½; Highland Boy, 2:22½; Bud Onward, 2:21½; Sidnut, 2:25½; Myrtletwig, 2:25; Kenelm, 2:24½; Linola, by Bayonne Prince; Barney Williams, by Young Stamboul; Bolette Sunday and a number of others. Plainfield has these to choose from, while Somerville and Somerset county and Flemington and Hunterdon county are equally well supplied. There will be no lack of entries. Horses must be owned and trained in New Jersey prior to May 1st, 1898.

GOLF.

Owing to the death of Harry Janeway Weston, of New Brunswick, there will be no match today between the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club and the New Brunswick team at the latter place. The deceased was a member of the New Brunswick team.

George Scisco, of Powers' pharmacy, will leave the city Monday for Morristown, where he has accepted another position. He was only assisting Mr. Powers during this week.

—Monday the members of the Plainfield Primary Sunday-school Teachers' Union will go to Dunellen and hold their meeting in the Presbyterian church of that place.

FOR THE BIG RACE MEET.

COMMITTEES WHO WILL LOOK AFTER ALL THE DETAILS.

Everything is Going Forward Without Delay Under the Direction of Energetic Members and Pres. Coddington.

All horsemen are interested in the preparations for the big race meeting of the Central New Jersey Driving Association which is to be held in this city June 22-23. Everything is going forward without delay and in a manner that would would be expected from the energetic men who are pushing it. The work has been divided among a number of committees who have their duties thoroughly systematized.

The committees, as appointed by the president, former Judge W. A. Coddington, are as follows:

Police—W. T. Kirk, Thomas Brantingham and N. B. Smalley.

Help, gates, etc.—N. B. Smalley.

Music—Thomas Brantingham and C. V. D. Corle.

Stages and transportation—N. B. Smalley and F. W. Williams.

Track and grounds and distance judge—John Osborn and C. C. Brower.

Privileges—W. A. Coddington and W. T. Kirk.

Procuring track from U and M. A. S.—J. W. Johnson, A. C. Vail, W. A. Coddington and F. W. Williams.

Auditing—J. W. Johnson, A. C. Vail, W. A. Coddington.

FOUGHT WITH DEATH.

where Herrmann had last been seen. A few words explained the situation. Young Herrmann had gone in swimming alone. His clothes lay in a heap on the bank. He had worn only a pair of trunks.

Swick, who is a powerful young man and an expert swimmer, rapidly threw off his outer garments and prepared to go to the rescue. Fearing that Herrmann, if still alive, might catch hold of his would-be rescuer and drag him down, Moore fastened a halter that one of the Italians had found, about Swick's shoulders, and held fast to the long rope attached.

Then Swick dived and came up after a few seconds to say that he had found the body, but there were no signs of life apparent. He dived again, caught hold of the corpse and both were dragged ashore by Moore and the others. The body of Herrmann was carefully laid on the slope. There was not the slightest sign of life.

Frank Miles, of Somerset street, came along and hurried home, telephoning to Dr. D. C. Adams, who arrived at the scene of the drowning half an hour after the accident took place. He worked over the body for some time, but there was not the slightest sign of returning consciousness.

It was thought by those who first arrived on the scene that Herrmann was taken with a cramp. It has since been learned that he did not know how to swim very well and that he probably found himself in deep water before he realized it. The banks are so steep that he may have been unable to get out.

He was working on the factory, which his brother, John Herrmann, was building near by. Young Herrmann, was a powerfully built man, standing nearly six feet in height. He was twenty-six years of age and unmarried. He lived on Whitewood avenue. He was regularly in the feed and kindling wood business on Richmond street, Plainfield.

He was a member of the American Volunteers and took an active part in the work of that organination.

Collins says that when he first saw Herrmann in the water, there was a carrirge standing there in which was a man and woman. They were apparently looking at Herrmann.

This morning County Physician Wagoner, of Somerville, came to the borough and viewed the remains. He then gave a burial permit. Announcement of the funeral will be made later.

Prospective Lawyers.

Saveral young men went to Trenton to take their examinations for admittance to the New Jersey bar, yesterday. Among them were Councilman William Runyon, who wants to be admitted to practice in this State, and Druggist George W. V. Moy. Clarence L. Murphy took his counsellors' examination. The examinations yesterday were written; the orals come Monday.

Pastor to go Abroad.

While Rev. George Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church, is absent on his trip abroad, his pulpit will be filled by various divines from Newark and New York. Mr. Hauser expects to be accompanied abroad with several Plainfield friends. He will probably sail during July on the steamer Westerland, and he will endeavor to arrange it so that he can return on one of the sister ships of the Red Star Line.

JOTTINGS OF THE DAY.

ENTERPRISINGLY GATHERED AND CONCISELY TOLD BY REPORTERS.

Sewsy Notes of More or Less Importance Bunched Together for the Ready Reference of Press Readers

—Tomorrow is Children's Day. Van-Arsdale is on hand with a line of shoes or sandals that are just the thing.

—There are two big holes in West Sixth street, between Park avenue and Madison avenue, that should be attended to.

—The lawn fete and strawberry festival at the Christian church next Tuesday evening, is under the auspices of the ladies of the church.

—Children's Day exercises will be observed at Hope chapel tomorrow morning. The parents and friends of the scholars are cordially invited to be present.

—At the meeting of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, R. A. M., Thursday evening, one proposition for affiliation was received and routine business transacted.

—The members of Warren Engine Company took their engine out for a "wash" last evening and they found that everything worked satisfactory. The engine was taken to the foot of Elm street.

—Evangelist Thomas Graham, of this city, has been engaged by the Y. M. C. A. state committe to work under their auspices among the soldiers at Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook. He left the city Friday morning to take up the work.

—Two very large and handsome cakes of manufactured ice are on exhibition at Rowley's drug store today. In one cake there appears a wreath of flowers, while in the other there are roses, ferns and an American flag. The ice was furnished by the Plainfield Hygeia Ice Company.

—The New York Clothing Company believe in enterprise of the kind that keeps up a steady business. At their store on West Front street, next to Music Hall, scarcely a week goes by but what a consignment of goods of exceptional value is received and sold on the basis of "quick sales and small profits." Bargains that are quickly snatched up always abound in the store managed by Mr. Weinberger. Commencing today a great sale of hot weather clothing will be commenced there. Look over the new advertisement in today's Press.

PROMINENT WITNESSES

Plumbers Awarded $10.60 For Extra Work on a House.

An interesting case was tried in Justice Nash's court yesterday afternoon, because of the witnesses called to testify on one side or the other. The plaintiffs were Galbraith & Walsh, the plumbers, of North avenue, and the defendant was John M. Mortimer, of West Seventh street.

The defendant was sued for $42.45 for extra work done on his house. The plaintiffs were awarded $10.60. Some of the witnesses were Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett, Health Inspector Addis, William Ball, a plumber; H. Hansen, the contractor; William G. Morse, the architect; Geo. J. Tobin, the plumber; and William Harding. The trial lasted all the afternoon. The lawyers were Irving Brady for the plaintiff and Senator Reed for the defendant.

SANTIAGO MUST FALL; TROOPS NOW EN ROUTE.

Expedition Sailed From Key West This Morning at Daybreak.

Movement Against Porto Rico to Follow—Gen. Coppinger to Command It—First Bid For Bonds—Plans of Campaign—SanFrancisco Aground In a Dense Fog.

THE LATEST.

Three O'Clock.

SAILED FOR CUBA.

General Shafter's Army Left Key West at Day Break This Morning.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Key West, June 13, 10:52 a. m. m.—At an early hour this morning the fleet of twenty-six transport ships, conveying Major-General Shafter's expedition to Cuba, arrived off this port.

Orders were awaiting them and were sent on board immediately. They were instructed to sail for the southern coast of Cuba without delay. They sailed at once.

Washington, June 13, 12:25 p. m—A despatch to the War Department says that the army of invasion sailed at daybreak this morning from Key West, 15,000 strong.

Washington, June 1:10 p. m—The first detachment of troops, which sailed for Cuba today from Key West, was composed of 773 officers and 14,564 privates.

TROOPS EXPECTED.

Shafter's Epedition Looked for at Santiago de Cuba Next Thursday.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Mole of St. Nicholas, Hayti, June 13, 10:54 a. m—It is expected that the expedition led by Major General Shafter will land near Zachara Bay, nine miles west of Santiago de Cuba.

Operations will be begun there immediately on the arrival of the expected transports with their loads of troops.

Twenty-six thousand infantry, three squadrons of cavalry and a regiment of artillery are expected off Santiago de Cuba Thursday.

TROOPS FOR PORTO RICO.

Gen. Coppinger Will Probably Command That Expedition —Lee To Remain.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Tampa, June 13, 1:15 p. m—Major General Coppinger is now in command of the troops left at the camp near this city. It is believed that he will take command of the next expedition to start.

The next expedition will be to reduce the fortifications of San Juan at Porto Rico. Lee's corps is not likely to be sent to Porto Rico.

They will remain in Tampa until the time comes for the grand movement against Havana when they will be transferred to Cuban soil.

NOW FOR SAN JUAN.

Plans of Administration for the Continuance of the War.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 13, 1:42 p. m.—The plans of the administration are now showing definite shape. The forming of the rendezvous near Key West marks the beginning of the general invasion of Cuba.

The Porto Rican movement goes forward at the heels of the movement against Santiago de Cuba, if not simultaneously.

The third expedition to relieve Dewey at Manila will probably sail from San Francisco Wednesday.

If overtures for peace are being made by foreign representatives abroad, none have been received here as yet. No attention is being given to peace talk by the Administration at present.

The Guantanamo skirmish is being discussed despite a report that it is unfounded. One cable connecting Cuba with the outer world still remains uncut.

When the administration is assured that troops have been landed in Cuba, with the three expeditions enroute to Manila, with the army ready to capture San Juan, the capital of Porto Rico, then will the administration feel that there is nothing left for Spain to do but surrender.

BID FOR BONDS.

A New York Syndicate Offers to Take All or Any of the Bonds.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Washington, June 13, 1:32 p. m.—The first bid for the issue of the $200,000,000 worth of bonds, as provided by the War Revenue Bill, has been received here.

It comes from a syndicate composed of the National City Bank, the Central Trust Company, and the Vermilye Company, all of New York.

The Syndicate offers to take all or any part of the new issue of bonds.

It is generally considered in official circles here that this offer, coming even before the issue is authorized, will considerably strengthen America's financial position throughout the world.

CRUISER AGROUND.

Cruiser San Francisco Reported On a Shoal Near the Massachusetts Coast.

(From the Union Associated Press.)

Highland Light, Mass., June 13, 12:25 p. m—Despatches report that the cruiser San Francisco ran ashore in the dense fog this morning.

She is reported to be aground half a mile from the High Head life saving station.

She lies in an easy position, and, it is thought, will float at high tide without injury.

Boston, Mass., June 13, 1:30 p. m.—Two large tugs have been sent from this port to aid in pulling the cruiser San Francisco off a shoal.

WRECKED THE SURREY.

An Expensive Drive for Young Leon Coombs, of Plainfield.

One of Hackman John Lynch's surreys was wrecked in the stables to Laine's Hotel, South Plainfield, yesterday afternoon. Lynch took a party over to South Plainfield. A lad, named Leon Coombs, of Watchung avenue, attempted to go driving on his own account

The top of the surrey struck a beam and was wrecked, while the boy had a narrow escape from serious injury.

Miss Katherine Langhorne, of Putnam avenue, left Saturday to spend a week with her sister at Wellesley College.

CRESCENTS WON AFTER A HARD FOUGHT GAME

Defeated the Oak Field Club of Brooklyn.

SHORTSTOP'S BAD ERRORS.

VISITORS HANDICAPPED BY HEISER'S INABILITY TO STOP GROUNDERS.

MacLaughlin's Curves Puzzled the Brooklyn Men—Only One Error for the Home Team—Captain of the Oakes Known to Local Cranks.

A veteran aggregation of ball players from Brooklyn found the Plainfield Crescents a decidedly hard nut to crack Saturday afternoon. As a result of the hard hitting of the Crescents, combined with their excellent fielding, the Oak Field Club, of Brooklyn, lowered their colors and victory perched on the banner of the home team by a score of 6 to 1.

It was not a one sided game by any means. But for the unfortunate work of Heiser, the veteran shortstop for the visitors, the final score would have been very close. Now, on ordinary occasions, Heiser can play ball, but Saturday was not one of the eventful days. He could not seem even to stop a grounder to say nothing of fielding it and so the officials on the scorer's bench were kept busy chalking up errors against his name. There were other errors by the visitors but, with the exception of two dropped flies, they did not amount to much.

"Mike" Cavanaugh made the only error for the home team, allowing a throw from Vroom to wander out in the field while the solitary Oakite scampered along the base line for a base.

MacLaughlin was an enigma for the visitors. They succumbed to his curves to the number of ten and when they did hit him it was right into the hands of a waiting fielder. Schall was a good pitcher but the six hits scored by the Crescents were all opportune and were a prominent feature in the run getting.

The Crescents opened the ball in the second inning. A lively grounder by Collins was the cause of Heiser's first error. He made up for it by catching Vroom's short hit. Stevens and Lederer both batted safely to right centre, Collins scoring. Stevens scored on Cooney's sacrifice while Lederer came home on a wild pitch. That ended the scoring for the time.

In the third, the Oaks caught their first glimpse of first through a single by Devoe. He was caught napping and immediately retired. Heiser took first on four balls in the fourth but the three men following went out one after another and he never completed the circuit.

In the fifth, Hollister reached second on a muffed fly by left field, with two out. Another glaring error by Heiser of Metz's easy grounder, allowed Hol to score. That made the score 4 to 0.

Collins, the first up in the sixth, made a clean hit and added another run on a long hit by Vroom, that sent the centre fielder chasing out toward the fence. Vroom reached second before the ball came back. Nolan dropped Stevens' long fly and Vroom went to third. Stevens then stole second. Some rapid manœuvrings saved them both on an easy grounder by Lederer to Williams. Cooney sent another to Williams, but Vroom outran the throw, scoring the sixth and last run for the Crescents.

The detailed score was as follows:

BOWLING ON THE GREEN

PLEASANT AFTERNOON SPENT AT CHRISTIAN SCHEPFLIN'S HOME.

Ladies' Day Celebrated by the Middlesex Bowling Green Club—The Winners—A Social Time After the Playing

[Special to The Daily Press.]

Dunellen, June 13.—A perfect day last Saturday in a great measure assisted in making the annual ladies' day on the beautiful green at Christian Schepflin's lawn an unqualified success. The event is an annual one and is given under the auspices of the Middlesex Bowling Green Club, of which Mr. Schepflin is the genial president. The wives, sweethearts and sisters of the members assembled early in the afternoon and spent a portion of the time in bowling on the green. The two teams were captained by Mrs. Louis A Powelson and Mrs. Alexander A. Pettit, both of New Brunswick. No attempt was made toward fine playing, but the women rather enjoyed the sport just for the exercise and fun to be derived. Of course, they were assisted by the sterner sex, who were able to do much in making the affair pleasant for the fair bowlers.

Under a spacious tent, in a cool spot, Hart's orchestra, of New Brunswick, discoursed sweet music and thereby enlivened the occasion materially. Under this tent a bountiful spread was provided by that most excellent executive committee, Fred. Weigel, R. M. Pettit and C. A. Schanck. It was about 5 o'clock when play was concluded, and everyone then enjoyed a repast as served by Caterer Wikoff, of New Brunswick.

After the inner man had been attended to, a time was spent in genuine sociability and in renewing old time friendship. All wished the host and hostess prosperity and happiness when the start for home was made.

WEDDED AT ST. MARY'S.

Miss Mary Fosbre Becomes the Wife of a Navy Yard Employe.

A quiet wedding took place yesterday afternoon in the rectory of St. Mary's church when Miss Mary Fosbre, of 532 West Sixth street, was united in marriage to Arthur Jackson, of Newport News, Va. The coremony was performed by Rev. P. E. Smyth. William Fosbre, brother of the bride, acted as best man. Miss Nellie Fosbre, a sister of the bride, was the bridemaid. The bride wore a traveling gown. After the marriage a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on West Sixth street.

The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock and the reception continued until 10 o'clock. The newly-married couple left on the 7:01 train for Washington, D. C., where the honeymoon will be spent.

They will then reside at Newport News, where the groom is employed in one of the departments of the navy yard. He was formerly a resident of Plainfield.

Interesting Morristown Wedding.

A number of Plainfielders were interested in a wedding at Morristown last Thursday at mid-day, when the elder daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Fitz John Porter, Evaline Sanford, was married to Rev. Walter Hall Doggett of the Union Seminary, New York. Miss Harriet Cornelia Gardiner, of this city, was one of the bridemaids, and Rev. Clarence M. Dunham, rector at Metuchen, was the best man. A number of Plainfield friends were invited.

Held to Await Action of Grand Jury.

Henry Southard, who was arrested Saturday noon on a serious charge, was given a chance for an examination before Justice Nash this morning. Southard was represented by Francis J. Blatz, of the firm of Murphy and Blatz, and City Judge DeMeza looked after the interests of the State. Southard waived examination and was held without bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. He was taken to Elizabeth this afternoon.

Sunday Fun Interrupted.

Two young men were having a great time in front of H. M. Stockton's house on Central avenue yesterday afternoon, swearing and cursing and amusing themselves seeing which one could shout the loudest. Mr. Stockton telephoned to Chief Grant, and the Chief, putting Officers Saffron and Cash into a carriage, ordered them to bring the two men to the station house. This morning one was fined $5 and the other $10. Both paid.

For Better Excise Regulations.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, June 13.—A number of residents of New Brunswick are contemplating the organization of a law and order society, with a view to taking some action to have the Sunday excise laws enforced. It is alleged that at the present time the law is openly violated Sunday after Sunday.

DAY IN THE CHURCHES FOR THE LITTLE FOLKS

Special Services Arranged for the Children.

MUCH FLORAL DECORATION

SINGING AND SPEAKING BY THE YOUNG CHRISTIANS.

A Beautiful Silk Banner Presented to the Primary Department in Trinity Reformed Church—Exercises in the Other Churches.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The exercises at the First Presbyterian church consisted of songs and recitations by the school and a talk on "Lanterns" by the pastor. The service closed with singing the "Star Spangled Banner." Recitations were given by Miss Mary Lucky, who gave an outline of missionary work on the twentieth century movement, Edna Burr, Marian Engelhardt, Leah Hammond and Margaret Abbott.

The twentieth century movement in Presbyterian Sabbath-schools was told about by several members of the primary department. The movement was explained by Charles Line Alfred Dunham, Harold George and Erwin Leland.

Two prizes were presented for learning the largest number of Scripture verses. Leah Hammond received first prize and Winnie Hammond the second. The prizes were books. The pulpit and platform were covered with a profusion of peonies, roses, daisies and greens. A large American flag was draped over the organ. The exercises were in charge of E. M. Case, the Sunday-school superintendent.

GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

The usual Children's Day exercises at this church were held in the morning. The church was appropriately decorated with flowers and roses, under the diretion of Mrs. A. A. Taft, Miss Hoagland, Miss Clark and Miss Woolston. This committee also had charge of the programme, which was very interesting. At the close of the exercises the pastor, Rev. Mr. Gardner, made a short address to the children, and he baptized one infant. The programme rendered was as follows: Recitation, "Children's Day," twelve girls; "Dr. Sunshine," Charles Doeringer, Emily Taft; "Miss Selfish and Lend-a-Hand," Grace Woolston and Marion Major, Mildred Long; "A Little Maid's Sermon," Lottie Benner, Charles Powell; "The Fag," six girls; songs, "If I Were a Sunbeam," Ethel Noe, Anna Hoagland, Rachel DeCamp; "Why Should Children be So Happy," school; "God Will Remember," school; "Children's Prayer," school, and a song was also given by Edna Sebring.

The opening exercises were in charge of the pastor and preceded the above programme. One feature of the decorations was the manner in which the flowers were arranged in front of the pulpit. The words "Children's Day" were spelled and could be plainly seen from any part of the room.

ALL SOULS CHURCH.

Children's Day exercises at All Souls' church were held immediately after the morning service. The pulpit platform was prettily trimmed with daisies, roses, peonies and grasses, which were afterwards distributed to the children, a very pretty custom. One infant was christened, Marjorie, the daughter of Murray and Marie A. Burtis, of Fairview avenue. The special exercises consisted of songs and recitations, the presentation of flowers, and an address by the pastor, Rev. A. C. Nickerson upon kindness to dumb animals. The exercises were in charge of E. Burr Smith, the superintendent. All Saints' school has grown rapidly since Mr. Nickerson's pastorate began, and now numbers 55.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

Despite the great heat, there was a very large attendance at the Children's Day exercises of the Sunday-school of the First M. E. church yesterday afternoon. The Sunday-school assembled as usual in Vincent chapel and marched into the church, where the exercises were held. The superintendent, J. W. Jackson, presided.

A programme, entitled "Pictures of Heroic Methodism," was given. Several paper on the history of Methodism were read. There were recitations by the members of the primary department, under the charge of Mrs. N. Y. Hull. Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass made a short address.

The floral display about the desk and platform was very handsome. It was arranged by Miss Susie Davis,

CYCLE COP TOO FAST.

THRILLING CAPTURE MADE BY CHIEF MASHAL WILSON YESTERDAY.

Drunken Frenchman Was Driving in a Reckless Manner—Had Left His Friend Behind That He Might Be Free.

Emiel Ryer, a Frenchman, of Washingtonville, had a glorious time yesterday, which terminated in his arrest last evening after some difficulty on the part of Chief Wilson. The latter has made a reputation for catching people on his wheel, and whenever he has given chase he has been successful in securing offenders.

Last evenings about 7:30 Ryer went through Linden avenue in a carriage. He was driving the horse at a rapid pace and was very much under the influence of liquor. Chief Wilson gave chase. When Ryer turned into Somerset street from Linden avenue he almost ran over a number of people. Up Somerset street the man went at full speed, with the officer after him. When Greenbrook road was reached Ryer managed to turn in. He continued to ride at express speed. It was noticed, however, that the officer was gaining ground, and by the time Grove street was reached he was close enough to catch the horse by the head and bring him to a full stop. He then escorted the man and his rig to the borough lockup. The horse and wagon were put in Richard Boyce's stables, while Ryer was locked up.

It appears that Ryer and John Korer, also of Washingtonville, started out together. The former borrowed the rig from Caspar Wyxer, of the Valley, and told the latter that he wanted to take his wife out for her health.

The two men started out and when they reached the borough Korer said that he wanted to make a short call. He did so and while he was absent Ryer drove off and left his friend. After that, Ryer states, he cannot remember what took place.

Later Korer called on Chief Wilson and claimed that the rig belonged to him, and to prove his claim he produced several Italians as witnesses. This fact did not move the officer and he held the horse and wagon until this morning when Mr. Wyxer called and got his rig.

Ryer was arraigned this morning before Recorder Long and was given his choice between $15 or fifteen days. He claims that he can secure the money by this evening and the officer has made no disposition of him as yet.

Dod Attacked Cyclist.

F. M. Stillman, of 816 Fourth street, was riding on a bicycle from Washingtonville toward home on Somerset street, last evening about 7:45. When near the end of the trolley line a large brown spaniel jumped out from behind a clump of bushes and attacked Mr. Stillman. The canine inserted his teeth in the calf of Mr. Stillman's leg, inflicting a severe wound. After some difficulty Mr. Stillman succeeded in chasing the dog away. Mr. Stillman called on Dr. Mattison, of Somerset street, and had the wound cauterized.

A Bad Tumble.

Yesterday afternoon while Robert Cloos, of New York, and John Cloos and Herbert Lederer, of this city, were out riding on their bicycles, the former fell off of his wheel and received a very bad cut in the head. The trio were riding into South avenue after leaving the Hunterston Hotel, when Mr. Cloos struck a stone and was thrown to the ground. He was assisted by his brother and friend to Dr. E. W. Hedges' office, where treatment was given. Later in the day Mr. Cloos was able to return home.

Glimpses of Some Sovereigns.

The last lecture of the High School course in the borough school was given this morning by A. V. D. Honeyman. The subject was "Glimpses of Some Sovereigns of Europe." This makes nine lectures in a free course, which members of the Board of Education and others have cheerfully given, and which have been appreciated by the pupils.

Getting Ready for the Races.

Carpenters and painters are at work today making repairs around the Driving Park in preparation for the races which occur there last of this month. The grand stand needs repairing, and almost all the panes of glass in the judges' stand are out, having been broken by the small boys during the winter.

To Enlist.

John Scott, of Essex street and J. J. King, of West Third street, went to New York to enlist this morning.

Dissolve Partnership.

Childs & Stanley, the florists, have dissolved partnership, the latter continuing the business.

—Justice Mosher has leased a suite of rooms in the First National Bank building, and will move there soon.

VETERAN WATCHMAN DIED LAST NIGHT.

Benjamin Wright Passes Over the Great Divide.

FOUGHT IN THE CIVIL WAR.

FOR THIRTY YEARS HE PROTECTED THE BUSINESS SECTION.

Was Born in Milford, N. J. in 1822—Has Been in Feeble Health for Some Time—A G A. R. Member—He Leaves Three Sons.

A figure for many years a familiar sight on the streets of Plainfield after most of her good citizens had retired to rest, has passed away. Benjamin Wright, the veteran watchman, died at his home, 213 West Fifth street, at 3 o'clock this morning. While he has been confined to his bed for two weeks and was in a precarious state, the end came rather unexpectedly.

Benjamin Wright was born at Milford, N. J., in 1822. After spending most of his boyhood in that place he came to this city with his parents. At the outbreak of the Civil War he joined the volunteers and took part in several of the memorable battles of the war. At the close of the war he returned to Plainfield, where he subsequently became nightwatchman.

At that time there was no police protection in this city, save for a constabulary. The business men united in hiring Wright, who patrolled the streets in the business section, summer and winter, where he soon became a familiar figure to all the old citizens.

As the town grew, a police force was started and the city began to furnish the needed protection. Wright joined the force and served the city faithfully, but as he grew older he was gradually dropped. Then, as a special officer, he continued to watch the business section where he was employed by the property owners. The improvement in the protection by the city police force reduced the number who considered a watchman necessary. Wright was growing old and his health was very poor, so four years ago he retired and Geo. Rockafellow took his place. He was watchman and policeman for thirty years.

Since that time Wright has resided in this city. Last April he moved to 213 West Fifth street, where he has lived ever since

He was married twice and his second wife survives him. He had four sons by the first wife, three of whom are living. William Wright lives on West Front street and is employed in the Potter Press Works. Louis Wright makes his home in Bayoone, and Peter Wright is at the San Remo Hotel, New York.

For the last three months, Mr. Wright has been complaining of very poor health but it was not until two weeks ago that he was compelled to take to his bed. His death was caused by a complication of diseases.

He was a member of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R. He was also a member of the Congregational church.

Mr. Wright was a member of Co. H, of the 30th New Jersey Volunteers, which was headed by Captain Hubbard.

A BOLD THEFT.

Basketful of Groceries Stolen While a Boy Was Drinking Soda.

Grover Marsh, the fifteen-year-old son of Randolph Marsh, of Plainfield avenue, had a basket of groceries stolen from him Saturday night, while drinking a glass of soda in a West Front street candy store. Young Marsh had set the basket down between his feet, and was intent on what was in his glass, so that he did not see some one lift the basket very carefully from its position, and walk off with it. The police were notified at once, but could get no trace of the thief. The basket contained a 15-pound piece of meat, half pound of tea, two pairs of stockings, condensed milk, and other things.

The Senior Dance.

The graduating class of '98 of the Plainfield Seminary gave the Senior dance Saturday evening, to which many of their friends were invited. The hall was artistically decorated with flags and there was good music by Rogers and his accompanists. The patronesses were Mrs. George A. Strong, Mrs. George W. VanBoskirck and Miss Isabel Arnold.

Drunk Early in the Day.

Officer Totten found Ludlow Frazee, a painter, drunk at 2 o'clock Sunday morning and locked him up. This morning he was fined $5. He paid.

Miss M. VanHorn, of Duer street, spent Sunay with friends in Elizabeth.

THE FIRST INVASION

Eight Hundred Marines Land at Guantanamo.

TO HOLD TILL TROOPS COME

First Successful Landing Made By the Oregon—Many Shots Were Fired by Spanish—No Americans Injured—Sampson Now Has a Harbor—This Will Be the Landing Place of All the Tampa Troops.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 12.—Latest advices in regard to the landing of American troops on Friday show that eight hundred marines have pitched their tents about the smoking ruins of the outer fortifications of Guantanamo, and the Stars and Stripes for the first time float from a Spanish flag staff in Cuba. To Captain Clark and the battleship Oregon belong the honor of accomplishing the first successful landing of the war. Forty marines from the battleship went ashore yesterday morning and occupied the left entrance of the bay until the troopship Panther arrived with eight hundred marines.

These, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel R. W. Huntington, arrived at 3 o'clock, and within half an hour they had burned the buildings of the Spanish camp and had set fire to the little village which crouched on the beach under the hill of Guantanamo.

The whole operation of silencing the guns and landing the forces was as easy as the placing of a Sunday school picnic. The Marblehead, backed by the Vixen and the Dolphin, opened fire on the earthworks Saturday. The shores to the right of the entrance were lined with guns and rifle pits, but the Spaniards stampeded after firing a few shots.

The city of Guantanamo lies four miles up the bay and a little Spanish gunboat came down to help the shore batteries. She stayed just long enough to turn around. Numerous shots were fired by the Spaniards, but not one landed and no Americans were injured.

Fired Fifty Shots at Forts.

The main fort lies within the city limits and is yet to be reduced, but it is not in a difficult position and the American officers say it can be taken in fifteen minutes when desired.

The Marblehead, the Dolphin, the Vixen and two colliers have been off the entrance of the harbor for several days, and Saturday morning they sailed into the channel, and a mile further on they opened fire, sending fifty shots at the fortifications on the left. The hills on the right of the entrance were deserted. There are no defences on the right side of the harbor.

No attempt was made to land until the Oregon steamed in early Friday morning. Captain Clark immediately sent forty marines ashore, and twenty from the Marblehead followed. They found evidences of a very hasty departure upon the part of the valorous Spaniards. Hammocks, clothing, ammunition and several watches were scattered about the earthworks, and a Spanish flag was found in one of the rifle pits.

The little detachment of marines held the place until the Panther arrived, when they were recalled and the work of disembarkation began. The first boat load had scarcely landed when the village burst into flames.

Company B, under Lieutenant Hall, was the first ashore, and without the loss of a moment the column started up the steep, rocky hill to the earthworks. For an hour a brown column of marines filed up the narrow path, eventually taking up a position at the top of the hill.

Marines to Wait for Troops.

As soon as the American flag was swung out to the breeze from the flag staff of the captured Spanish camp, the Oregon steamed away to rejoin the fleet off Santiago de Cuba.

The marines will hold the position until the arrival of the expected troops, in the meantime scouting in the vicinity, with the Marblehead, the Vixen and the Dolphin lying to protect them.

Rear Admiral Sampson now has a harbor and a base of supplies on the south side of the island, and troops can be landed at will.

The troopship Panther reached the fleet off Santiago early yesterday.

On her way over the Yosemite fired a dozen shells into the port of Baiquiri, but received no response.

Guantanamo is only forty miles east of Santiago de Cuba, and is a splendid location for a base of supplies.

It is understood that the island of Cuba is now entirely cut off from cable communication with the outside world. Report here has it that the cable ship Adria cut the cable at Santiago de Cuba on Monday and that the same day the St. Louis cut the cable running from Guantanamo to Mole St. Nicholas. She was interrupted in the work by shells from the shore, but the Marblehead sent several shells at the soldiers and scattered them.

From Cape Haytien.

Cape Haytien, June 13.—No war news has been received here to-day. It is probable that the repairs of the Caimainera cable can be completed by Thursday or Friday. It is understood that the vessels of the United States navy are rendering all the assistance possible. Other arrangements for the work are already well under way.

Carranza to Leave Canada.

Ottawa, Can., June 13.—Lieutenant Carranza and Senor du Bosc will sail for Madrid from Montreal on Saturday, June 25, two weks hence.

In the meantime, it is stated in official circles, Canadian secret service men and private detectives are to watch their movements closely.

Many Pension Clerks Dismissed.

Washington, June 13.—The largest clerical reduction in the pension bureau for some years was effected Saturday by the dismissal of over one hundred clerks and a number of the corps of special examiners. The action follows a reduction of the appropriation.

THE FIRST LAND BATTLE.

Spaniards Try to Drive Back Our Marines but Are Repulsed After Thirteen hours of Hard Fighting.

Mole St. Nicholas, Hayti, June 13.—Lieutenant Colonel R. W. Huntington's battalion of marines, which landed from the transport Panther on Friday, and encamped on the hill guarding the abandoned cable station at the entrance to the outer harbor of Guantanamo, was engaged in beating off a bush attack by Spanish guerillas and regulars Saturday afternoon. The fighting was almost continuous for thirteen hours, when reinforcements were landed from the Marblehead.

Four of our men were killed and one was wounded. The advance pickets, under Lieutenants Neville and Shaw, are unaccounted for. The killed are:

Assistant Surgeon John Blair Gibbs, son of Major Gibbs of the regular army, who fell in the Custer massacre. His home was at Richmond, Va., but he had been practicing in New York, and he entered the service since the war began. He was a very popular officer.

Sergeant Charles H. Smith of Smallwood, Md.

Private William Dunphy of Gloucester, Mass.

Private James McColgan of Stoneham, Mass.

Corporal Glass was wounded in the head.

The bodies were stripped and mutilated.

MERRITT WANTS MORE MEN.

His Demand for Full Force of Twenty Thousand.

San Francisco, June 13.—Major General Merritt wants more troops. He is now in communication with Washington on the subject and hopes to receive word within a few hours that additional forces have been granted to him.

General Merritt contemplates leaving San Francisco for Manila in two weeks and is desirous that his expeditionary forces shall precede him to the Philippines. With the troops that arrived Saturday he has a force of about sixteen thousand. It is said that in the last forty-eight hours the governor general has been in constant communication with the war department, and has finally demanded that the full quota of 20,000 specified by him, be filled.

The Senator and the Morgan City are being fitted up for the troops, and both these vessels will be ready by the end of next week. They were built for the Klondike trade and have a large carrying capacity, and a few days' work will put them in shape as transports.

The third fleet probably will comprise the Senator, the Morgan City, the Ohio and the Centennial, if the latter is accepted after reinspection. The Ohio arrived yesterday from Seattle and was turned over to the government.

The work of organizing the engineer and signal corps for Manila is proceeding slowly, as not enough men can be found. So far only twenty-seven have been enlisted. Fifty men are wanted in each corps, and as California cannot supply them, Major Thompson has telegraphed East asking for volunteers.

Major J. F. Bell, engineer officer on Major General Merritt's staff, and chief of the bureau of information of the Philippine expedition, has received orders to start for Manila on Tuesday. He will start on the first transport, and will be accompanied by a large corps of assistants.

Coal for Sampson's Fleet.

Mole St. Nicholas, June 13.—The steamer Scindia arrived here yesterday direct from Norfolk, Va., loaded with coal for the fleet off Santiago. The Scindia was formerly of the Anchor line.

The Scindia was a British passenger and freight steamship and traded between New York and European ports until she was purchased recently by the United States government for use as a collier. She sailed from Norfolk about a week ago with her holds filled with coal for the ships of Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley.

Vixen Landed Supplies.

Port Antonio, Jamaica, June 13.—Four hundred rifles, 60,000 rounds of ammunition and five tons of provisions have been landed for the insurgents at Aserrado, a few miles to the west of Santiago, by the auxiliary cruiser Vixen. The landing was opposed by Spanish cavalry, who were driven off with great loss.

The report that Manzanillo is almost defenseless has been brought to Montego Bay by refugees, six hundred of whom have just come from that port.

Spaniards Fortifying Havana.

Key West, June 13.—The officers of a gunboat just arrived here from the blockade at Havana say that the Spaniards are working like beavers erecting sand batteries and earthworks about five miles east of the city and on the Morro and Cabanas Heights.

Strict orders against firing compel the Americans to look idly on at the proceeding, but occasionally a shot is thrown near the workers, as if by accident, which causes the greatest terror.

Japan's Diet Dissolved.

Yokohama, June 13.—The diet has been dissolved as the result of its rejection of the government's proposals as to land taxation.

The government will probably give a six months' notice from July 1 as to the enforcement of the codes without the diet's amendments, with a view to the operations of the treaties.

The new tariff will come into force on September 19.

Troop Ships Off Santiago.

Madrid, June 13.—A dispatch from Havana says:

"Eleven American merchantmen have arrived before Santiago de Cuba. It is believed they are transports conveying troops which it is intended to disembark. Precautions are being taken to prevent them from effecting a landing."

WILL KEEP PHILIPPINES

What the Navy Has Taken, the Army Will Hold.

MORE ENGINEERS WANTED

Twenty Thousand Wanted by Merritt This Number Will Be Given—News from the Other Side Conflicting—No Fear of the Cadiz Fleet Ships Not in Good Condition The Commercial World is Anti-American Because of Selfish Interests.

Washington, June 13.—The latest advices from administration circles are to the effect that there is no intention of letting go of the Philippines as a condition of peace, nor is anyone so optimistic as to predict an early termination of the war.

That there is a fixed determination to hold the Philippines now seems apparent. It is two days since General Merritt was quoted as having said:

"What the navy has taken the army will hold," when discussing the situation at Manila.

Yet not even a qualified disclaimer has been put forth to these significant words of the military governor of the Philippines, and the general disposition is to regard them as in a large degree official. It is not impossible that this terse statement by General Merritt was put out as a "feeler" to learn whether the country would look favorably on a "colonial policy."

This view of the matter seems borne out by events following the speech at the San Francisco dinner. Major General Merritt wants more troops. He has been in communication with Washington on the subject and has the assurance that additional forces will be granted him.

The work of organizing the engineers and signal corps for Manila is proceeding slowly, as not enough men can be found. So far only twenty-seven have enlisted. Fifty men are wanted in each corps, and as California cannot supply them, Major Thompson has telegraphed East asking for volunteers. Major J. F. Bell, engineer officer on Major General Merritt's staff, and chief of the bureau of information of the Philippine expedition, has received orders to leave for Manila Tuesday. He will depart on the first transport and will be accompanied by a large corps of assistants.

News from the other side is about equally satisfactory and unsatisfactory. That coming in the latter category is a report from Shanghai that the extension of the Hong Kong boundary has been signed at Pekin. If this is correct, it will affect American dispatch vessels as the new boundary embraces Kowloon and Mirs bays, thus necessitating a new base in Chinese waters, which will be more distant.

Encouraging news which more than offsets this is to the effect that the much talked of Cadiz squadron need be feared neither in the Philippines nor in the West Indies. This information comes in the following dispatch dated at Lisbon Saturday:

"Captain Aunon has stated he would not leave Cadiz until the fleet started, and that he will remain aboard the flagship Pelayo until out of sight of land.

"It appears that the cruiser Alfonso XIII is not serviceable, being so defective that she has been nicknamed in the navy the 'sarcofago ambulante' (the floating coffin).

The condition of the Pelayo is very dubious.

"It is significant that the Portuguese papers are friendly to Spain. Under the present circumstances it is generally recommended that the latter country sue for peace.

"Without any doubt the public sentiment in Portugal is anti-American. The press, without exception, takes the side of Spain, and it does so reflecting popular opinion, which favors Spain from causes of race, religion and extensive intermarriage.

"The commercial world is anti-American because the war stopped important financial negotiations pending and which were calculated to extricate this country from the terrible condition into which its monetary affairs have fallen. Ever since the war began exchange has been getting worse and worse."

PORTO RICO WILL SOON STARVE.

Walter Bett Expelled on Suspicion of Having Helped Us.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., June 13.—Mr. Walter Bett, who is said to have been a secretary of Mr. Crawford, the British consul at San Juan, Porto Rico, the latter now acting for the United States, arrived here Saturday. Mr. Butt, it appears, was accused of communicating information to the United States authorities concerning the mines and fortifications of San Juan and he was therefore ordered to leave Porto Rico. The Spaniards claim this is a flagrant breach of British neutrality and dangerous, for Mr. Crawford, unless it can be proved that the latter was the employer of Mr. Bett and that the expelled secretary is not answerable for his actions to the British government.

Mr. Bett denies having supplied the United States authorities with the information referred to.

Thirty-one Porto Rican refugees, mostly women, also arrived here Saturday.

The newspapers say that two more months of the existing conditions will bring Porto Rico to the verge of starvation. The government of the island has established a few public kitchens for the relief of those who are suffering the most.

The Spanish torpedo boat destroyer Terror is now regarded as being useless, owing to the break down of her boilers and the lack of means to repair them. She is still at San Juan de Porto Rico, with the Alfonso XIII, Isabel II, Ponce de Leon, Conoha and Comacat. At least they were all there when the refugees left San Juan.

Crews at Saratoga.

Saratoga, N. Y., June 13.—The 'varsity and freshmen crews of Columbia and Pennsylvania universities arrived Saturday afternoon and were immediately taken to their training quarters at Saratoga lake.

ADMIRAL SAMPSON'S REPORT.

He Extols the Bravery of Hobson and His Men.

Washington, June 13.—The navy department has posted the following bulletin giving a detailed official report from Admiral Sampson upon the heroism of Lieutenant Hobson and his men in sinking the Merrimac in the Santiago channel:

United States Flagship New York,
Off Santiago, June 3, 1898.

Permit me to call your special attention to Assistant Naval Constructor Hobson. As stated in a special telegram before coming here, I decided to make the harbor entrance secure against the possibility of egress by Spanish ships, by obstructing the narrow part of the entrance by sinking a collier at that point.

Upon calling upon Mr. Hobson for his professional opinion as to a sure method of sinking the ship, he manifested the most lively interest in the problem. After several days' consideration he presented a solution which he thought would insure the immediate sinking of the ship when she reached the desired point in the channel. This plan we prepared for execution when we reached Santiago. The plan contemplated a crew of only seven men and Mr. Hobson, who begged that it might be intrusted to him. The anchor chains were arranged on deck for both the anchors, forward and aft, the plan including the anchoring of the ship almost automatically.

As soon as I reached Santiago and had the collier to work upon, the details were completely and diligently prosecuted, hoping to complete them in one day, as the moon and tide served best the first night after our arrival. Notwithstanding every effort, the hour of 4 o'clock in the morning arrived and the preparations were not completed. After a careful inspection of the final preparations, I was forced to relinquish the plan for that morning as dawn was breaking. Mr. Hobson begged to try it at all hazards.

This morning proved more propitious as a prompt start could be made. Nothing could have been more gallantly executed. We waited impatiently after the firing by the Spaniards had ceased. When the men did not reappear from the harbor at 6 o'clock I feared that they had all perished. A steam launch, which had been sent in charge of Naval Cadet Powell to rescue the men, appeared at this time, coming out under a persistent fire from the batteries, but brought none of the crew. A careful inspection of the harbor from this ship showed that the Merrimac had been sunk in the channel.

This afternoon the chief of staff of Admiral Cervera came out under a flag of truce with a letter from the admiral extolling the bravery of the crew in an unusual manner. I cannot myself too earnestly express my appreciation of the conduct of Mr. Hobson and his gallant crew. I venture to say that a more brave and daring thing has not been done since Cushing blew up the Albemarle.

Referring to the inspiring letter which you addressed to the officers at the beginning of the war, I am sure you will offer a suitable professional reward to Mr. Hobson and his companions.

I must add that Commander J. M. Miller relinquished his command with the very greatest reluctance, believing he would retain his command under all circumstances. He was, however, finally convinced that the attempt of another person to carry out the multitude of details which had been in preparation by Mr. Hobson, might endanger its proper execution. I therefore took the liberty to relieve him for this reason only.

There were hundreds of volunteers who were anxious to participate; there were 150 from the Iowa, nearly as many from this ship, and large numbers from all the other ships, officers and men alike.

W. T. SAMPSON.

Bald Defeated McCarthy at St. Louis.

St. Louis, June 13.—Eddie Bald, the world's champion one mile bicycle rider, defeated Charles McCarthy, the St. Louis champion, by straight heats in a match race at Athletic park, Saturday afternoon. These were to have been three races, but Bald won two straight, so the third was not run. Willie Coburn paced the first race on a single, and Bald won easily by three lengths. Time, 2.07 1-5. The second race was paced by a tandem ridden by Tom Coburn and Ernest Stade. Bald won by a length in 2.01 1-5.

Michael Gives an Exhibition Mile.

New Bedford, Mass., June 13.—The races at Buttonwood cycle track Saturday were witnessed by five thousand people, Jimmy Michael, the Welshman, rode an exhibition mile in 1.49 without exertion, paced by a quad and triplet. The little fellow rode finely and with better pacemakers might have cut several seconds off his time.

Moles Are Fierce Fighters.

You would hardly believe that moles, clumsy, almost blind, little beast that they are, become perfect demons when they quarrel. No one knows what they quarrel about, but if they once start fighting one has to die. They will keep on in the presence of any number of spectators, hanging on to one another like bulldogs, and burying their enormously strong jaws and teeth in one another's flesh. Hedgehogs, another type of the quiet, inoffensive animal, not only fight, but always to the death, and when one is killed the other generally devours him. Hares, on the other hand, are proverbially the most timid of creatures. Yet they can fight. A fight between two hares is a ludicrous sight, as they skip and jump over one another. But a blow from the hind legs of a hare is no joke to his opponent. Among birds, robins are the most pugnacious.

What Was Wrong.

"Why is it," asks the Atchison Globe, "that a man will fall asleep in his chair while reading in the evening and can't sleep a wink after he goes to bed?" He has subscribed for the wrong newspaper.

TO ARRIVE THURSDAY

Shafter's Army Has Sailed From Key West.

SIXTEEN WARSHIPS GUARD

No Fear of Spanish Gunboats Now—Landing May Not Be at Caimanera—Indiana Will Lead the Procession—Porto Rico Movement Will Begin in Ten Days—Cable Will Be Reopened—Santiago Will Soon Be Ours.

Washington, June 13.—Under command of Major General Shafter, the first division of the United States army sailed last night from Key West for Santiago de Cuba, to besiege and capture that town.

The army transports, thirty in number, left last night for Key West. The convoying warships, believed to number between sixteen and nineteen, were ready for the voyage, and with this powerful force there is no longer reason for apprehension that the transports can be attacked successfully by any Spanish warships, even if such should have escaped the vigilant search of the naval commanders at Key West and off Havana.

It is believed here that the sally out of Havana of three Spanish gunboats was intended to create the impression that they were prepared to go out to attack the transports. If so, the plan miscarried, for the craft were detected immediately by Commodore Watson's cruisers and driven back pell mell into Havana harbor, under the protection of the guns of the shore batteries. Even if these boats had escaped they could have done no damage, for the size of the convoy furnished is sufficient to warrant the belief that they would have been speedily destroyed should they have had the courage to make an attack upon the fleet of American ships.

The Spanish gunboats are not of a formidable character, not one of them being the equal in power of the smallest of the American cruisers, even such gunboats as the little Bancroft, which may be used as General Shafter's flagship.

Every precaution has been taken by the government to be sure of the safety of the troops en route to Cuba. The naval war board was in session yesterday making the final preparations for the disposition of the guardships. The transports will be kept as closely together as safe navigation will permit, and the warships will be disposed ahead, astern and on either flank.

The fleet and the scouting vessels will be thrown far out in advance of the transports, and in order to ensure against an attack from the rear, some of these vessels, such as the St. Louis, perhaps, will linger far astern ready to signal the heavily armed cruisers at the first sign of an approaching foe.

The battleship Indiana, it is expected, will lead the procession of ships, which will be the most numerous gathered in American waters since the civil war. The troops should arrive off Santiago by Wednesday night, supposing the fleet proceeds at eight knot speed and landing operations should begin by Thursday, for General Shafter will not keep his men cooped up on shipboard a moment longer than necessary.

It is not believed that they will be landed at Caimanera, the point on Guantanamo bay where the American flag now flies over the heads of Sampson's marines, as that place, while well adapted to serve as a naval base, and as a harbor of refuge for the American warships, is not particularly well suited for the beginning of military operations.

In ten days' time, unless unforseen obstacles are encountered, the movement upon Porto Rico will begin.

The war department has been in close communication by telegraph with General Miles at Tampa and all of the necessary instructions have been given to the commanding general for the preparation of the military forces to be used in this part of the campaign. General Miles in turn has been consulting Generals Coppinger and Lee at Jacksonville, giving the necessary detailed instructions, and all is so near ready that were some essential supplies on hand the expedition could start within twenty-four hours.

The navy department has been advised of the purpose of the army, and the war board are making arrangements for the supply of the convoying fleet. This will be of a more formidable character than that which goes with the Santiago expedition, for the plans contemplate a joint attack upon the San Juan fortifications by the army and navy, and the fortifications are so powerful that heavily armored ships only can be sent against them at the beginning. Therefore, it is believed that Sampson's battleships will head this fleet.

Now that Sampson has taken up a position ashore in Guantanamo it is expected in the navy department that he will soon be in direct cable communication with the department, which will greatly facilitate the combined operations of the navy and army.

The cable which he cut just before landing the marines was buoyed, and as soon as cable operators and instruments can be gotten over from Hayti, the cable will be opened again.

Temerario to Leave Asuncion.

Buenos Ayres, June 13.—The government of Paraguay, acting upon the representations of the United States consul at Montevideo, has informed the commander of the Spanish torpedo gunboat Temerario, now at Asuncion, that he must disarm that vessel if he desires to remain in port. The Spanish commander refused to do so, and thereupon he was informed that the Temerario must leave Asuncion as soon as the repairs to her machinery are completed, which must be done quickly.

More Cavalry for Manila.

Denver, June 13.—Orders have been received for the dispatch of the Nevada troop of Colonel Torrey's rough riders, now at Cheyenne, to San Francisco. This order is taken as indicating that the entire regiment is to be sent to the Philippines. The regiment is not yet fully equipped and provided with horses, but the several troops will be forwarded as fast as they are ready.

NOW FOR PORTO RICO.

President Has Ordered Gen. Coppinger and Gen. Lee to Hasten the Expedition.

Washington, D. C., June 13.—Now that the troops have embarked for Santiago, the entire attention of the war department is being turned to the Porto Rican army. Orders have been sent by President McKinley to Major General Coppinger, who will command the expedition, and to Major General Lee, who will be second in command, to hasten the Porto Rican expedition in every way possible.

Under the most favorable circumstances it will be utterly impossible to get the army embarked and started for Porto Rico in less than two weeks. The troops that will constitute the expedition will be drawn from the armies now encamped in Tampa and Jacksonville.

At the latter place there are at present ten thousand volunteers under the command of Major General Lee. It will not be necessary to take this entire force at Jacksonville for the Porto Rican expedition, as the intention of the government is to send only an army of about ten thousand men to San Juan, some of whom will be regulars from Tampa.

A commission of officers is now in the South investigating the facilities offered for embarkation by Jacksonville, Fernandina and other places. This commission will make its report to the war department some time next week.

HOW BONDS WILL BE ISSUED.

Mr Vanderlip Explains the Procedure Under the War Revenue Bill.

Washington, June 13.—Assistant Secretary Vanderlip, who has had personal charge of the details of the proposed bond issue, said yesterday:

"The subscription for $200,000,000 of the 3 per cent. bonds just authorized by Congress will be opened by the treasury department as soon as the bill is signed by the president, and will close at 3 p. m. on July 14. This gives ample time even for the most remote sections of the country to receive complete information regarding the details of the issue and to have subscriptions from such points reach the treasury. Every channel will be used to disseminate in the widest possible manner information regarding this issue and to make it in every sense a successful popular loan. A great number of subscriptions have been received in advance of the passage of the act, and there is every reason to believe that the issue will be largely oversubscribed.

"By the terms of the law the allotment will be peculiar. The law provides that the smallest subscriptions shall be first allotted, and the allotments made inversely in accordance with the size of the subscriptions. That will result in a line being sharply drawn at some point, and all subscriptions in amount below that point will be awarded in full, while all subscriptions for an amount exceeding that sum will receive no allotment whatever.

Every precaution is taken to prevent individuals repeating subscriptions and thus getting an undue advantage. The law provides that all individual subscriptions must be allotted first, and therefore subscriptions from corporations and associations other than individuals will only receive an allotment in the event that the individual subscriptions fall short of the $200,000,000 which is at present offered.

"The treasury will print about four million subscription blanks and circulars of information. They will be put in the hands of every money order postmaster and in every banking office and express office at the earliest possible moment. Circulars now being prepared will fully set forth the terms under which subscriptions will be received."

NOT YET A LAW.

It Will Be Sent to the President Early on Monday.

Washington, June 13.—The war revenue bill will become a law to-day. Owing to a rule adhered to in both houses that the presiding officer shall not sign such measures except when the houses are in session, the bill still lacks the signatures necessary before the president approves it. While the House was in session Saturday, the Senate was not, and it was thought best to attend to these details together. Accordingly, when the two houses meet to-day the bill will be promptly rushed through for the signatures of Vice President Hobart and Speaker Reed, and the necessary enrolment details, and sent immediately to the president.

International Missionary Union.

Clifton Springs, June 13.—At the close of the meetings of the International Missionary Union the following candidates, accepted for the foreign field, were presented by Mrs. White Miss Grace Soper, Miss Glenck and Miss Matthews. The Misses Wyckoff, who have spent several years in China, spoke in Chinese. Saturday evening's meetings were devoted to the interests of higher education and the place of schools in the mission fields of a direct evangelical character. This has been a question which has called out a variety of opinions among the missionaries. A number spoke on the subject. Dr. C. W. P. Merritt of China presided.

The War Feeling in Spain.

Wilmington, Del., June 13.—Captain Davis of the British steamer Le Coq, which reached this port Saturday from Santander, Spain, says that while in that country he was impressed with the fact that the common people apparently are taking very little interest in the war with the United States. The people think the conflict is for the consideration of the Madrid government.

Red Cross Offers Aid.

Washington, June 13.—The Red Cross Society has offered to supply all the volunteer camps with hospital supplies—ice, milk, condensed milk, etc.—in a few hours. The plan has been approved by Secretary Alger and the regimental surgeons have been authorized to co-operate with the Red Cross agents for the purpose indicated.

Camara's Fleet Wanted at Home.

Madrid, June 13.—Many of the newspapers advocate the keeping at home of Admiral Camara's fleet for the purpose of defending the coast.

The Open Door.

Unrestricted commercial opportunity in the orient, for which British diplomacy has carried the picturesque phrase of "the open door," appeals vigorously to American sympathy and advantage. Whatever may be the outcome of the present war in fixing our status in the east as a power de jure and de facto the principle of trade freedom in the vast markets now being rapidly opened to civilized enterprise is an inevitable factor in our national policy. The need of outlet for our surplus products in the case of a people matchless in commercial energy and manufacturing skill is sure to be bigger each year. The last decade has shown that we can compete favorably as an export nation in a great variety of our most important products. "The open door" then is full of significance to the United States. It is of even more value to England, and on that basis the two countries stand with locked hands in opposition to the declared or implied policy of three great powers who have a strong foothold on the shores of the eastern Pacific.

Harper's Weekly in a recent editorial is disposed while welcoming "the open door" to be ironical over the maintenance of such a policy as opposed to the theory and practice of "protection." This is the sarcasm of a doctrinaire. The question is not one of ethics, of abstract right and wrong. It is a practical problem. Great Britain even is protectionist in part or in whole in some of her confederated dominions, as, for example, Canada and Victoria. The most ardent protectionists in the United States accepted Mr. Blaine's reciprocity doctrines as belonging to the logic of the situation. The Dingley bill also takes them into account. So far as theories of free trade and high tariff at home are considered both sides can unite heartily and consistently as to an oriental policy of unrestricted competition.

Whatever may be the occult effect of kindred and a common language in determining the cordial sympathy of Great Britain in our present war, community of interest is a still more potent element. As this commercial fact is likely to remain unimpaired in the great overshadowing international question now looming on the historic horizon it promises to be a strong welding force in the unity of Anglo-Saxon destiny, a new impulse to the "step in line" and "touch of elbow" in the march of a world conquering race.

A Flood of Gold.

The gold production of 1898 promises to be greatly in excess of any previous output in our own records or those of the world. The statement of Assistant United States Treasurer Muhleman is of interest in this connection:

The outlook is that we are to have a great amount of gold this year. As yet the Klondike gold has not come in owing to the ice, but it is estimated at $20,000,000 or more when it does come.

There will also be a large increase from present indications from Colorado and other mining states. I am told that the clearing house people are trying to extend their facilities for handling and safe keeping the increased gold which is expected to pour in from San Francisco. If they get a lot of the precious metal out there from the Klondike in addition too the extra large supply from Australia, they will be overloaded and the surplus would come east.

The increase in Australian gold and that of the rand of South Africa, which shows an augment of $20,000,000 this year over the product of last, will also greatly swell the aggregate. Whatever policy the government may finally adopt in raising its war expenses this great surplus of gold, which is also accompanied by an increasing value of silver, will prove a most favorable factor in the immediate financial situation.

Experts have begun to discover that the prejudice in favor of wine from grapes only is unreasonable and unfounded. Whisky that would make even a cowboy hilarious is made from potato parings, wood shavings or almost any old thing. In like manner it has been found that barley will make a first class wine, whether it be sherry, port or tokay. The Frenchman Pasteur found this out in the course of his experimentations with hydrophobic germs and other bad things. He did not utilize the discovery commercially, however. The Germans have done that. Barley malt at the fermentation point has lactic and vinous acids added to it, and these produce the wine, which contains 19 per cent alcohol. It is favorably received at the hospitals in Germany and is considered very pure and healthful.

The surest way to suppress prize-fighting is to get flash light pictures of the faces of the two human brutes just when they are in the midst of one of their most exciting rounds. Such downright hideous repulsiveness as they present was never conceived outside of a delirium tremens dream. A civilized bulldog would be ashamed to look like them.

No nation can ever be a great naval power unless it has plenty of coal, that, too, where it can be quickly obtained. It is almost as much her pits of first class coal as the fine staying qualities of her sons that enable Britannia to rule the wave.

A large proportion of the Spanish debt is owed to the Roman Catholic church. Pope Leo naturally made a very earnest effort to prevent the war and save the church's property.

Spain has 26,000 schoolteachers and 38,000 priests.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The people of Plainfield are like a great many other people we know—they do a great deal of howling about what they don't like, get up meetings, and the Board of Trade holds a meeting on the subject of amending the building laws, but no one seems to have the nerve to approach the City Council with a request to have it, or any part of it repealed. They are probably afraid of displeasing the city fathers and being punished for it.—Elizabeth Contractor.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. GOOD MATINEE RACES.

SEASON OPENED AT GENTLEMEN'S DRIVING PARK SATURDAY.

Fastest Mile of the Afternoon Was Made by "Myrtle Twig" in 2:27—She Was Not Pushed—The Summaries.

Saturday afternoon marked the opening of the Gentlemen's Driving Park for the season, and the first of a series of matinee races were held. The judges for the afternoon were J. W. Johnson, A. C. Vail and F. W. Williams, who also acted as timers.

The first event was a brisk opener for road horses of the 2:40 class. There were two starters and Johnny Osborne, with "Roxy French," had the event all his own way. N. B. Smalley, however, kept him close down to the class time.

Darby's famous horse, "Sunday," appeared in the 2:30 class and finished close second in two heats to Wright's "Arpansa."

"Linolla," from the Woodbrook Farm, came out for a match with "Myrtle Twig" and "Bolette." The dark mare was looking good, but Osborne, who piloted her, was instructed not to push her too hard. Her mark is 2:24, made last season. She passed under the wire ahead of "Bolette" in both heats, but the pacer from South Plainfield had the match in two straight heats. The time in the first was the fastest for the day.

The day's sport ended with a lively dash between the brown mare "Belle Hayes," driven by her owner, I. F. Randolph, of Elizabeth, and W. A. Coddington's "Rapid," also driven by her owner. The horses were driven to pneumatic-tired road wagons. "Belle Hayes" took the first two heats, the second of which was won in a rattling finish.

Afterwards Former Judge Coddington worked his bay pacer, "Belle," a mile in 2:53. This was the first time that the mare has been out this year. She can go better than 2:30.

The attendance was quite large and much interest was shown in the events.

The summaries in the events were as follows:

2:40 Class, Trotting, Road Horses.

John Osborne's "Roxy French," (Osborne)	1	1
Newton B. Smalley's "Ned Norton," (Smaley)	2	2

2:41, 2:40.

2:30 Class, Trotting and Pacing.

C. L. Wright's "Arpansa," (MacNee)	1	1

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to the Daily Press.)

Dunellen, June 13.—Last Saturday evening George VanNest left New York by the New York Central Railroad for Denver, Col., to bring Isaac Laing home. Mr. Laing has been in the west for a long time in search of health, but his condition is not improved, and it is thought best to have him at home. Mr. VanNest will reach Denver tomorrow.

Yesterday in the Methodist and Presbyterian churches appropriate Children's Day exercises were held, consisting of recitations, songs, dialogues, etc. There was a large attendance at both churches.

Next Thursday evening the Commencement exercises of the public schools will be held at the Presbyterian church. There are eight graduates, six young ladies and two young men.

The Brunswick Traction Company will commence work this week laying trolley tracks through the borough. Most of the material has now arrived.

F. T. Dickerson and family, of North avenue, have left town for Dover, where they will remain until September.

Miss Jamison, of Church street, spent yesterday at Rahway, and she sang in the Methodist church in that place.

Mrs. Anna Abbott, of Church street, has returned from Somerville, where she has been visiting relatives.
